This sale commences Tuesday, July 6th, at 9 o'clock, and new features will be developed every day, so that it will be wisdom to watch the Golden Lion's store news daily. The motive in the exploitation of this sale is far from a selfish one—the prices being too greatly sacrificed for that view. The merchandise is seasonable, and fashionable, and the evidences of sincerity to absolutely reduce the stock means that no half way business will do for such a sale as this aims to be.

AT WORK ON CANAL

Men Have Commenced Operations at Hastings—More Men Soon.

Hastings, July 3.—The first work on this section of the canal started a few days ago, when a gang of men started excavating for the water front just above the locks. A larger force of men will be put on soon and the river front for some distance up will be completely changed by a concrete and steel pier. All the boathouses along this locality will have to be moved away or torn down at once. The plans of procedure on the contract have been changed again, and instead of building the locks this year the contractors will go ahead and dredge above. The logs have been put in at the locks and the water will likely soon be back to summer level so that steamers will again be able to go below.

WORK FOR HUMANITY

At a representative conference of humane workers held in Toronto on June 29th, 1909, it was decided to organise a Canadian Federation of Humane Societies. Mr. J. J. Kelso, founder of the Toronto Humane Society, in his opening remarks as chairman, said the federation would give greater strength and influence to the movement, secure better laws, the organization of Bands of Mercy among children, the publication of a Humane Journal and the appointment of a travelling secretary to advocate the humane cause throughout the Dominion. Officers were elected and an annual convention will be held. All societies or individuals willing to help in this undertaking are invited to correspond with Mr. P. C. Harris, Director of Humane Society, 103 Bay St., Toronto. And there should be a response from Peterborough, where there should be a branh of the Royal Humane Society. We have instances of cruelty to animays—from wives and children to horses and other dumb animals, with nobody in authority to initiate action to secure proper redress and punishment. Without such a society in existence, organic, punitive and repressive action is impossible. The ender heart of women are lacerated almost daily by seeing on our streets horses, especially, cruelly abused. Half-fed as they are they are lashed and beaten, by boys and men. This could, and should, be prevented. But to private individuals and, especially, ladies the role of informer is repugnant. If there were an officer of a Humane Society to report, action would be taken by an authority whose business it is to look after matters of the kind mentioned. Without a Humane Soicety, Peterborough cannat consistently advocate the Federation of Humane Societies, however desirable and promotive of the objects of the society such federation would be.

BEAUTIFY THE CITY.

There are so many elements that enter into the matter of civic beauty, and these are so interwoven and inter-related, that it is difficult to give any one, or two, or three, especial prominence.

But beauty of private premises and a corresponding condition of abutting streets, to the casual observer are in first place. Private citizens may do all in their power to make their premises attarctive, but if the streets in front of them are frowsy, littered, filthy; if unthinking citizens deposit the refuse raked from their lawns and grounds, and dump them upon the streets and the refuse is left there, not only the appearance of the street is defiled, but the private premises are correspondingly disfigured and comeliness detracted from.

We see on some streets the whole length littered with rubbish of the kind mentioned. ——street, in the west end, short as it is, is a type. The gutter, from end to end, is deep in rubbish, obstructing the gutter checking the flow of water, and untidy in the last degree. Some of the litter is the remains of last year's rotten leaves. This sort of beauty-killing is to be seen on almost every street of the city.

Of course, the persons owning or occupying the property behind such conditions are primarily to blame. If they have a proper public spirit they would not commit the trespass of making the street in front of their premises a dumping ground and a public offence. It is almost inevitable that such presons have little care for their own premises and less for the boulevards in front of them. The consequence is that on such streets the efforts of the majority of residents is neutralised by the action or inaction of their unneighbourly neighbours; and the continuous sweep of clean, neatly shaven, boulevard and swept and garnished street, is broken, and a sacrifice laid upon the altar of ugliness.

Here is where civic and private cooperation comes in, or should come in. The city has the responsibility of the maintenance of the streets in good order. It is the part of the city to provide means for keeping the streets clean and tidy. A garbage by-law was proposed and killed. We cannot expect the city to take positive action for the protection of the public interests, when they show such reglect in preventing nuisance. We have had many private complaints and some letters indignantly referring to making—or permitting—a public street, as the foot of Charlotte street—in the heart of the city—a dumping ground for all sorts of filth—even that constituting a menace to health. If the city offends in this sense till the public are driven to revolt, can we expect the city to lead in the matter of keeping our streets clean and tidy?

The city seems to shun and shirk the responsibility of making and maintaining boulevards, which is plainly their duty. Without these it is impossible to have uniformity of beauty of our streets.

In other cities and even towns the corporation provides a line of curbing —what every street, where the walks are not outside of the line, should have. In these places the curbing, which is not expensive, is put in as the pavements are done, the expense divided between the property owners and the general taxpayer, This curbing permits of a proper gutter being formed, insuring good drainage, and it adds immensely to the beauty of the street. Boulevards thus protected are not driven over by heavy wheels, or pawed into holes by tethered horses. They are easy to maintain, and citizens, along their line find it a delight to keep them in as good order as they do their private lawns.

A few public-spirited, citizens, with taste and public enterprise have placed, at their own expense, curbs upon the streets in front of their property. The latest example is the action of Mr. Walter Stocker, Weller street, who has built, or is building, two fine dwellings. With only one completed and the other hardly begun, he has put down a handsome curbing in front of both, setting an example on this street, which others should follow, and which the city should have set itself.

It is questionable, however, whether such isolated curbings add to or detract from the beauty of the streets where they are found. While, in the abstract, they add to the attractiveness of the street at the points where they are placed; they otherwise serve to emphasize the untidiness of the street in their vicinity. They are incongruous, and, in comparison with their surroundings, suggest a woman clad in a soiled and tattered morning wrapper, held in by a belt flashing with diamonds.

We cannot have the conditions that contribute to uniform beauty of the streets unless the city cooperates with private citizens. If the city refuses to provide for the removal of filth and rubbish from the streets, we can hardly expect them to provide what should be provided in every street, where the walks are inside the tree line—lines of concrete curbing, such as are plentiful in the residence sections of live cities and live small towns?

City and citizens must work together to obtain beautiful and attractive streets. We have the foundations, laid in the form of magnificent lines of street trees, and beautiful and well-kept private lawns, which are too often deformed by filthy streets. We need some organisation of citizens to put the matter of reform in regard to the treatment of our streets in motion. We must have general co-operation if we are to have private residences boulevards and streets, united in a coalescent harmony of beauty, which would glorify the city from centre to circumference.

A PROGRESSIVE MAYOR

Los Angeles, a Californit city with progressive ideas that possesses a character giving it the initiative and referendum and also the right to call appointments where the officeholder has failed to hold public confidence, recently chose a new mayor, his predecessor preferring resignation to removal. Mayor Alexander, now the chief of the city, is a successful business man, who has set about the task of running its affairs on business lines. Among his new departures is the establishment of what may be termed a civic clearing house.

This is founded on the system, many large business concerns practise, of inviting suggestions for the improvement of the administration, but in addition it will receive and remedy any complaints that are made of defective city conditions. If attention is called to street disrepair, or neglected vacant lots, or insufficient police patrolling, or unsanitary sewers or drains, the complaint is recorded by the mayor's secretary and forwarded to the appropriate department with instructions to investigate and report within a specified time. Prompt attention is thus given and the heads of departments are held strictly accountable to the mayor, as chief executive.

"I conceive it," Mayor Alexander is reported to have said, "to be the duty of the mayor to be watchful of the interests of the citizens and to be in close personal touch with the affairs of the city. It should be the right of every person who believes that city affairs are not properly conducted to appeal to the mayor and such appeal should have careful investigation and consideration."

Another new departure he has introduced is that of holding periodic conferences with the heads of city departments to talk over their respective affairs. This, the mayor explains, "is nothing more than an effort to have the city departments do 'team work.' They should work together according to some general progressive plan and each department should know something about what the other departments are doing. Otherwise there can be no intelligent co-operation." There is sound common sense in this and it can easily be seen how invaluable the thoroughly capable mayor can make himself by securing efficient co-operation among the civic departments.

AN OBJECT LESSON

It is announced that suits which could have been bought for $20 in United States clothing stores a short time ago are now being marked up to $35. This is one of the results that are following upon the action of Congress in increasing rather than reducing the American tariff. It is a most gratifying result. Byt this means the injustice and oppression caused by a system of protection such as that in force in the United States will be brought home to the masses in a way that would be impossible without such an object lesson. The increase in the American tariff now being made will, in the end, prove more beneficial than trifling reductions. The work of reform will be all the more thorough when it does come. Tariff reform will be the great issue in the next election in the United States, and the verdict will be such that a misunderstanding of it will be impossible.—Weekly Sun.

However if President Taft is true to the spirit of the platform upon which he conducted the presidential campaign—tariff reduction—he will be compelled consistently to veto the new tariff bill.

DIRECT REPORTS

(Ottawa Free Press.)

The Toronto Mail and Empire strives to make it appear that it is only within the past few weeks that the Government have regarded with favour the proposal to confine the operation of the British preference to imports via Canadian ports. The Mail knows that two years ago the House of Commons discussed the proposal upon the initiative of Mr. H. J. Logan, and that after a spirited debate upon the question, Sir Wilfrid Laurier accepted the policy as the natural sequel of that of developing Canadian trade within Canadian channels. The only point as to which he hesitated was as to when the policy should be put in operation. "That the time will come ultimately we are all agreed," he said; and he proceeded to add:

"But I look upon this motion as a completion of the policy which we inaugurated for years ago when we resolved to construct another transcontinental railway from the Pacific to the Atlantic ocean. When this railway is in operation, as by the terms of the contract it must be in the month of December, 1911, then will b e a fitting time to adopt this policy."

Finally the Premier, having thus committed himself and his ministry to the principle involved, moved:

"That on and after a date to be named by the Governor-in-Council the British preference shall apply only to goods brought into Canada if shipped through a Canadian seaport."

The only people who opposed the proposal were Mr. A. E. Kemp, then the Conservative M.P. for East Toronto; Hon. G. E. Foster, then as now Conservative member for North Toronto; Mr. Samuel Barker, then as now Conservative member for Hamilton; and Mr. E. Bristol, then as now Conservative member for Centre Toronto.

Thus we see that the Liberal party has approved of the direct import application of the British preference, while it has been the Conservatives who have opposed it. It may be that the delay in the completion of the Quebec bridge may postpone the application of the policy, but that it will come upon the opening of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway is assured.

BE A WOMAN!

"Be a man," said an Atchison girl to her brother. Then she got to thinking. When trouble came to her home it was her mother who met it bravely, patiently, and calmly. It was mother who told father not to worry, who calmed his fears, and who did all her own worrying without letting anyone know about it. It was mother who was never afraid, never angry, who was above petty annoyance, and who spent her life on the firing line, fighting for others. "No," the girl added quickly to her brother, "I don't mean be a man; be a woman!"

WAS TAKEN SICK FROM CATCHING COLD PE-RU-NA RELIEVED.

MISS ERNESTINE BOUVARD, Duck Lake, Saskatchewan, Can., writes:

"At the close of 1908 I took sick as the result of catching cold. I became very weak and could not do anything.

"I consulted a doctor who had me take various kinds of medicine, but I did not find any relief from my suffering. At the advice of a friend, I wrote to you and you advised me.

"After I had taken two bottles of Peruna there was noticeable improvement. I combined the use of Peruna, Manalin and Lacupis and after taking several bottles of each I find myself entirely cured.

"I can certify that it was through your medicines that I recovered my health. I advise every one who is similarly afflicted to obtain Dr. Hartman's advice and be benefited."

Mrs. Wilda Moores, R. F. D. No. 1, Lents, Oregon, writes:

"For the past four years I was a wretched woman, suffering with severe headaches and other pains, leaving me so weak and weary that it was only with difficulty that I was able to attend to my household duties.

"I used different remedies, but found no relief until I had tried Peruna.

"Within two weeks there was a change for the better, and in less than three months I was a well and happy woman.

"All the praise is due to Peruna."

Peruna is not a local remedy, but an internal systemic remedy. It will relieve catarrh in its most obstinate form.

AN ARCTIC TRAGEDY.

Heroic Self Sacrifice in the Cause of Science.

Surely the darkest side of arctic exploration was never more poignantly exhibited than it is in Lieutenant A. Trolle's account in Travel and Exploration of the death of Mylius Erichsen and Hagen and Brooklund, members of the Danish expedition to northeast Greenland. The indomitable energy of these men, their self sacrifice in the cause of science, are on the highest plane of heroism.

"For thirty days these men walked on with only one sledge and four feeble dogs, covering a distance of 150 miles, or five miles a day. Every morning they must have had only one wish, one craving—the craving for sleep, sleep and rest forever. And yet they crept out of their worn sleeping bags and faced a new day, because they would continue till they reached a place where there was some probability of our finding their bodies and Hagen's fine map sketches.

"Ten miles from the depot, on Lambert Land, Mylius Erichsen and Hagen died. Only Brooklund reached the depot, leaving his dead comrades behind and creeping along on his wounded feet alone in the dim moonlight. When he arrived at the depot he placed Hagen's sketches and his own last report so that the search party could not fail to find them and then, wrapping himself up in his furs, lay down and died."

ESCORTING THE COURT.

Official Pomp and Splendor in Old Colonial Times.

In colonial days York, Me., was the county seat to which the judges and lawyers from New Hampshire and Massachusetts often went, and the court sessions were attended with much official pomp and ceremony. In "Old Colonial Houses In Maine" Emma Huntington Nason quotes from a record left by John Adams, who as a young barrister went to York in 1774 and who made at that time the following entry in his journal:

"When I got to the tavern on the eastern side of the Piscataqua river I found the sheriff of York and six of his deputies, all with gold laced hats, ruffles, swords and very gay clothes and all likely young men who had come out to that place to escort the court into town."

This gives us a hint of the pomp and splendor affected by the court officials of those days, "when the judges wore robes of scarlet with large cambric bands and immense wigs and the barristers had gowns and also bands and tie wigs."

As the judges aproached the shire towns the sheriff met them with an escort and flourish of trumpets. Their arrival was announced by cannon, and the daily summons to the court before balls were introduced was by beating a drum.

Friendly Rivalry.

By choosing the Canadian route to Great Britain, the Australian delegates to the Imperial Conference have emphasized the homogenous character of the British Empire. Canada and Australia have recently been indulging in a good deal of rivalry, as both want emigrants of the same class, but that does not prevent their remaining the best of friends. The program of the Canadian tour has included a visit to the great irrigation scheme of the Canadian Pacific at Calgary, by which 3,000,000 acres of ranch land are being brought under cultivation. Irrigation has played such an important part in agricultural development at the Antipodes that the Australian delegates were especially anxious to see how Canada was solving problems like her own.

A Stay Here.

By the display of remarkable presence of mind, an unknown man performed an act of heroism in Algonquin Park a few days ago which prevented the slaughter of a number of persons and saved considerable quantity of property from destruction.

H. Armour, Grand Trunk agent at Algonquin Park, was drowned. His body could not be found, and it was suggested that dynamite be used to bring the body to the surface. While thirty sticks were being thawed out around the fire, the fuse of one became ignited. An unknown section man seeing the danger, instead of running away, rushed in and picked up the stick with the burning fuse and hastened to the lake. He hurled it with all his might into the water, but before it had traveled half the distance, it exploded. If the explosion had occurred by the fire, the entire thirty sticks would have been exploded, wrecking a house full of people nearby and bringing most of them to their death.

Park Superintendent Bartlett, who heard the detonation, sent a messenger to the camp, but the obscure hero could not be found.

System Poisoning

CONSTIPATION

Do not be satisfied with temporary relief—Cleanse the system and make cure lasting with DR CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS

Constipation begins with the bowels but it does not end there.

You must also consider the way it affects the liver, the kidneys, the digestive system and in fact the whole human body.

Headaches, backaches, aching limbs, indigestion, biliousness, kidney derangements, and the most serious diseases imaginable, often have their beginning with constipation of the bowels.

There is one treatment which has a direct and combined effect on the bowels, the liver and the kidneys and gets these organs into good working order in remarkably quick time, and that is Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

They afford relief quickly but they do more than that. They positively cure constipation and insure lasting regularity of the bowels by setting the liver right.

Policeman Peter C. Morris, 16 Wascana Ave., Toronto, Ont., states:

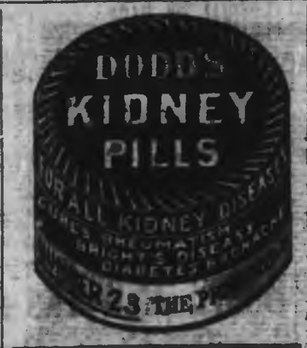
"I was troubled for years with habitual constipation and have spent considerable in so-called remedies and can gladly say that I have been completely cured by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and shall be pleased to personally recommend them to any person who wishes to interview me."

It scarcely seems wise to trifle with medicines which merely afford temporary relief, when by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, you not only get prompt relief but also a thorough cleansing of the whole excretory system and lasting benefits by the restoration of the health and activity of the liver.

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, one pill a dose, 25 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

A Big Canadian.

One of the most interesting and independent thinkers that Canada has given to the world, says The Boston Herald, is John Beattie Crozier, author of a "History of Intellectual Development," and an autobiography which will be valuable to all who wish to study the effect of the dominant scientific conceptions of the latter half of the nineteenth century on sincere men. He has resided in London for some years, and has just received a pension of $250 a year from the Authors' Society. So has Richard Whiteing. A man of letters in Great Britain, thanks to this society and to Government pensions, is often saved from want in old age.



LIFE OF THE MINK.

Mark Pellington Tells of Family Near Stayner, Ont.

My acquaintance with the mink began some few years ago, while I was staying that week in Silver Thorne's Creek, near Stayner, Ont., says Mark Pellington, Algonquin Park Ranger in Toronto Saturday Night. I was busy coaxing a lazy trout to take notice of my bait, when suddenly he vanished in the twinkling of an eye. I felt that the fish had got taken flight at myself; and, as I sat very still, a large female mink and three young mink came swimming along the stream. I watched them for some time. When it became evident that the mother mink was desirous of arrying off all my catch of chub and trout I made a rush for the young ones, and succeeded in capturing one, getting from my captive a neat pinch that brought the blood freely. I took the little fellow home and was censured by my mother for doing so. However, I placed the little chap in a tin box, covered it up well and went back to the stream. The mother mink by this time had carried off all my small fish, and made quite a fuss at my approach. So I went farther up the stream, thinking many things about my mother's words, kindly spoken but to the point about the feelings of that mother mink. However, I felt that my mother did not know how sore my finger was and I resolved that the youthful mink must stay in the tin box. I caught a number of chub and took them home, and was delighted to see the little fellow eat them up—except the heads, which he tossed aside with contempt. Next morning early I was at the creek again catching chub for the mink, and he ate them with great relish. Then I departed for school. When I returned he was gone. He had jumped out and run to the creek, my mother told me with a smile. I went and examined the box and decided that our mothers have much feeling for the mother animals, especially regarding their young.

The summer following I assisted a couple of neighbor lads to capture a pair of young mink, which they kept in a neatly made pen near the stream. We fished every chance we could get to supply them with food, and it was surprising the amount of small fish those young mink could dispose of, as well as drinking a quantity of new milk daily. In about three months they were fine big fellows, and evidently very strong, as they chewed a hole out of their pen and departed. We often saw them afterward in company with other mink and when called would allow us to approach within a few feet of them, but never close enough to be recaptured. As the winter approached they disappeared. Evidently some trapper had caught them.

A Patriot.

National and local characteristics come out oddly enough at school examinations. A subinspector, hearing a class of London Irish boys repeat Macaulay's "Horatius," inquired whether three soldiers would be likely nowadays to hold a bridge against a whole army.

"Would three Englishmen, for example?" he said.

"No, sir!" said the class.

"Would three Scotsmen?"

They again dissented.

"Would three Irishmen?"

"Please, sir," shouted an excitable little fellow, "one Irishman would do it!"

How She Secured Office.

Mrs. Mary East is said to have been the pioneer woman in England to hold some of the offices as to which women's eligibility is now in dispute, but she was elected because she disguised herself as a man. For thirty-six years this remarkable woman, while masquerading as a man and acting as landlord of the White House inn at Poplar, served assiduously on juries and in parish offices. In 1744 she was "head borough." In 1752 overseer of the poor. When her sex was finally discovered she retired to private life with the competence she had acquired as an innkeeper.

An Accomplice.

The doctor looked at the patient.

"I am very sorry," he said, "that you didn't let me send for Dr. Gootkine some time ago. It's scarcely worth while to bring him here now."

"Oh, well, doctor," said the patient wearily, "perhaps you can make use of him as an accessory after the fact."

Welland Canal and Lloyd's.

A protest from the Canadian lake marine interests has also been occasioned by the report that Lloyd's and other English underwriting companies contemplate an increase of 1 per cent. on hull insurance on all steamers using the Welland Canal and trading east of that waterway. This would mean that the rate of insurance from Port Arthur to Buffalo would be 5 per cent., to boats going through the Welland and trading as far east as Prescott 6 per cent., and to those going on down the St. Lawrence to Montreal 7 per cent.—an increase of 2 per cent. over the Buffalo route. The adoption of this insurance rate would further handicap the Canadian all-water grain route, and tend to divert the carrying trade back to the New York route. For part of last year the Canadian route almost put the American route out of business.

Old Glory in House.

Actually within the Canadian Parliament building itself, a large American flag was displayed on the day of the closing of the House.

The individual in charge of the decorations of the hall where the Australian press delegates were entertained to lunch by the Hon. Frank Oliver, draped the Stars and Stripes over the entrance in the most prominent place. Some of the members of Parliament, in their peregrinations, sighted the invader and the flag was removed forthwith, but the incident caused a good deal of talk.

Very Warm Weather Promised During This Month With A Few Severe Electric Storms

Irl Hicks Has Considerable Variation in His Dope for July—Predicts Sufficient Rainfall for Growth—Will Close Warmer.

WHAT MAY BE EXPECTED.

Rev. Irl Hicks has the following prediction for July:

A regular storm period covers the 1st to the 6th of July, being central on the 3rd, with full moon at extreme declination south on the same day. The storm diagram shows that the period of both Mercury and Venus begin at the opening of July, hence their combined perturbing influences will be felt at this first July storm period. Certain wise critics inform us that "it is safe to predict warm weather in July," so we will say that very high temperatures will prevail from about the 2nd to the 5th, causing a warm wave to pass eastwardly over the country on and about those days. From 3rd to the 5th, low barometer and blustering, violent storms will visit many localities in their eastward sweep over the country. While we do not look for a heavy general rainfall in July, the combined forces of Venus and Mercury will naturally cause some violent local downpours. As the storms move to the eastward, the barometer will rise west of storm areas, bringing cooler, westerly winds and fair weather; but in advance of these changes most parts of the country will have blustering to violent thunder storms, say about the 3rd to 5th. The 4th promises rain and thunder storms for many localities. A period of seismic probability is central on the 3rd, extending from June 29th to the 6th

A reactionary storm period is central on the 8th, 9th and 10th. The Mercury period is central on the 8th, the moon is in perigee on the 7th, on the equator on the 9th, and at last quarter on the 10th. This period promises severe electrical and atmospheric unrest. The amount of violence to be expected from storms at this time will be plainly foreshown by the readings of the barometer. Look for heavy thunder gusts and driving rain squalls. On and touching the 9th storms will reach their crisis. A sharp change to rising barometer, with cooler winds from the west, will bring up the rear of these storms. The Mercury influence will tend to prolong cloudiness and threatening weather between the storm periods.

A regular storm period is central on the 14th, extending from the 12th to 17th. This period comes at the culmination of the Mercury period and within a few days of the center of the Venus period. It also contains the New Moon at greatest declination north. As we enter this period the temperature will rise very high, the barometer will fall, and storms of a threatening aspect will visit many localities, progressively from west to east, between the 14th and 17th. The high temperature and storms may not reach a final crisis until the conjunction of the Moon with Earth and Sun on the 17th. This period promises the heaviest rains, perhaps, of any period in this month. After decided storms and the barometer begins to rise, change to cooler will follow for a few days. A seismic period is central on the 17th, extending two or three days before and after that date.

A reactionary storm period is central on the 19th, 20th and 21st. This period lies in the center of the Venus period, and the characteristics of the Venus disturbance will be noticeable in black, blustering storm clouds, severe electrical storms, and scattering local downpours of rain. We do not look for general, diffused rainfalls throughout the country, although the Venus period being central on the 22nd covers the whole month, and is as a rule attended by heavy rains. We rather look at this time, and at other July periods, for local cloudbursts over narrow, scattering localities, with wide, intervening sections without normal, or sufficient rainfall.

A regular storm period is central on the 26th, extending from the 24th to the 28th. It will not be surprising if threatening conditions last for several days before and after the center of the Venus period, the 22nd. Heavy electrical storms and violent summer gusts are very probable about the 23rd, and from that date on through the period 24th to 29th. Look for much the same general results at this, as at other July periods, remembering that extremes of one kind or another are almost certain to attend the Venus influence. Spells of the most oppressive summer heat are among results to be expected, ending in fierce lightning, thunder, hail and sudden drop in temperature. The culmination of this period will come, in central and eastern parts of the country, on and touching Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, the 26th 27th and 28th. The Moon will be approaching its extreme declination south, at its full, as the period culminates; hence a change from excessive summer warmth, and probable "hot winds," is apt to follow up the storms of this period, with the rising barometer and northwesterly winds that bring up the western tangents of storm areas. There can be no question but atmospheric tides follow the Moon in its declinations north and south, hence when the Moon is south, streams "or rivers" of cooler air flow southward from polar directions, especially after a series of heavy, Venus thunder storms. There is prospect for such results, progressively from about the 27th to 30th.

ONLY ONE CURE FOR A BAD STOMACH

Indigestion and Similar Troubles Must Be Treated Through the Blood.

Indigestion can be treated in many ways, but it can be cured in only one way—through the blood. Purgatives cannot cure indigestion. By main force they move the food on still undigested. That weakens the whole system, uses up the natural juices of the body and leaves the stomach and bowels parched and sore. It is a cause of indigestion—not a cure. Others try predigested foods and peptonized drugs. But drugs which digest the food for the stomach really weaken its power. The digestive organs can never do the work properly until they are strong enough to do it for themselves. Nothing can give the stomach that power but the new, rich, red blood so abundantly supplied by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. So the reason for their success is plain. The health of the stomach depends upon the blood in its delicate veins. If that blood is weak and watery the gastric glands haven't the strength to secrete the juices which alone can digest the food. If the blood is loaded with impurities it cannot absorb the good from the food when it is digested. Nothing can stimulate the glands, and nothing can absorb the nourishment but pure, red blood. And nothing can give that pure, red blood but Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Mrs. Alfred Gallant, Mill River, P. E. I., says: "For several years, previous and up to two years ago, I suffered continually from indigestion. I could not eat enough to keep my strength, and what little I did eat, no matter what kind of food, caused great pains, so that I became much reduced in flesh, strength nd energy. I consulted several doctors and took medicine from them, but without any benefit whatever. On the advice of a friend I began to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and some good results were noticed. I could slightly increase the amount of food day after day, and suffered no inconvenience, until after taking ten boxes I could eat any kind of food and in a short time got back to my normal state of health and feel that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have surely cured me of a most stubborn case of indigestion."

You can get these Pills from any dealer in medicine or they will be sent by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, by addressing the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Board Of Works After The High Crossings On Charlotte St. West

"Disgrace to the Man That Made Them," Is Ald. Bradburn's Comment—Automobiles Bounce Over Them and Machines May Be Damaged.

OTHER MATTERS TAKEN UP

Bad street crossings, particularly several on Charlotte street claimed the attention of the Board of Works last night. Probably the aldermanic automobiles appreciate a high crossing more than any other vehicle, and Ald. Bradburn claimed that some of the crossings on Charlotte street must be several feet high. Engineer Hay stated that they were not more than nine inches above the roadway.

Ald. Phelan was in the chair with Ald. Bradburn, Duncan, Buller, Gillespie, and Mayor Rush present.

The residents on Lansdowne street have asked for a sidewalk, but their fences are on the street line, and they refuse to take them back with the result that no walk will be laid. The engineer recommended that the present board walk be torn up, and a cinder path made.

Moved by Ald. Duncan and Ald. Bradburn that the sidewalk on Bethune street, north of Smith street, be built as soon as possible.—Carried.

A motion was passed to this effect: Mr. A. H. Stratton asked for a wider approach to his property so that he can get his auto in and out. The engineer suggested that as a great many changes would be necessary around the city for auto owners that the city do the job if the property owners pay the whole cost.

This was left in the hands of the chairman to grant.

Bad Crossings.

Ald. Bradburn drew attention to the very bad construction of some of the crossings on Charlotte street. He said the crossings were a disgrace to the street and will rack every auto and rig that goes over them.

Ald. Duncan said that there should be a surface drain on Simcoe, Hunter, King and Charlotte streets down to the river and have the roads fixed up right as the money being spent now is only wasted.

Ald. Bradburn and Duncan moved that some action be taken at once to improve the crossings on Stewart, Rubidge, Reid, and Charlotte streets.

Gypsies Camped On The South Ward Park, According To This Writer Asks If the Citizens Appreciated the Restfulness and Aesthetic Arrangement That Marked the Much Talked of Gift to the South End Residents—Says No One Knew They Were On a Park.

SUGGESTS IMPROVEMENTS

To the Editor of the Examiner.

Dear Sir,—The citizens have been introduced to the South End Park during the last few days and I must admit that I am curious to know the general opinion of the pleasure grounds that have been provided for the residents of Ward No. One. I feel safe in saying that ninety-nine out of every one hundred people who visited the park did not know at the time that they were on public property. It was the encampment of the gypsies that attracted the public's attention to the lot, otherwise I suppose it would never have felt the foot of more than the few who use it as a short cut. Well that is the South End Park, and the people of the South Ward enjoy the pleasing green sward so carefully attended, and its beautiful beds of flowers and the benches under the nicely-trimmed trees. Oh, it's a beautiful spot! The cool breezes these hot days linger around the benches where the ratepayers of the ward and their wives and children gather to escape the heat and the dust.

The announcement of the purchase of the property for park purposes was received with delight and it was actually thought by a few that a decent park was going to be prepared, but the hope died a slow, but natural death, and the idea of a park sank into oblivion. The Gypsies, however, have brought it into prominence, and they have gone away probably very much pleased with the lot and the opportunities it provided for open-air life. The park is like many of the streets in the South Ward, featured by the neglect it has been subject to. But it does not even deserve the title of park. There are many pasture fields in the neighbourhood of more prepossessing appearance and undoubtedly the grounds of the King Edward school are dainty in comparison with the public park. There is one satisfaction, however. The residents feel that there is great room for improvement and they will look to those in authority to put forth some effort to make the lot a park or at least a decent field or playground.

Yours truly,
GEORGE ST. SOUTH.

KEEP CHILDREN WELL DURING HOT WEATHER

Every mother knows how fatal the summer months are to small children. Cholera infantum, diarrhoea, dysentry, and stomach troubles are alarmingly frequent at this time and too often a little life is lost after a few hours illness. The mother who keeps Baby's Own Tablets in the house feels safe. The occasional use of the Tablets prevents stomach and bowel troubles or if the trouble comes suddenly will bring the little one through safely." Mrs. Geo. Howell, Sandy Beach, Que., says:—"My baby was suffering from colic, vomiting and diarrhoea, but after giving him Baby's Own Tablets the trouble disappeared." Sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

FOSTER SAYS PRESENT COLD WAVE WILL BE FOLLOWED BY HOT SPELL

Washington, D.C., July 3.—Last bulletin gave forecasts of disturbance to cross continent June 23 to July 2, warm wave June 27 to July 1, cool wave July 1 to 5. This disturbance was expected to cause a great high temperature wave and be followed by a great fall in temperatures. Next disturbance will reach Pacific coast about 7, cross Pacific slope by close of 8, great central valleys 9 to 11, eastern states and provinces 12. Warm wave will cross Pacific slope about 7, great central valleys—longitude 105 to 85—about 9, eastern states and provinces—longitude 90 to 75—about July 11. Cool wave will cross Pacific slope about 11, great central valleys, 13, eastern states and provinces 15.

This disturbance will inaugurate the most severe storm period of the month and for ten days—July 11 to 20—better be on the watch for dangerous storms. During those hot days of July peopel love to be on the water and therefore I advise all to select some other period than the ten days mentioned.

July, prior to 20, will bring too much rain to the southern or cotton states and I am expecting drouth in northern states and Canada. The highest temperatures usually occur not far from July 10, the highest averages covering from July 5 to 20, but this year I expect the highest averages to occur eight to ten days earlier. Not far from July 5 very low temperatures will prevail about Chicago through the northwestern states and the provinces near Manitoba.

Some danger of destructive hail storms July 11 to 20 in those crop sections of which Minnesota is central. Those hail storms sometimes do great damage and that period will be closely watched by all interested parties. The disturbances that will bring those storms are similar to those that cause tropical storms on our southeastern coasts but this year the disturbances will come a little too early for that class of storms.

The Great Comet.

This monster comet is expected in May of next year, but it is too early to say when will be the most favorable time for observation. It is now beyond the orbit of Jupiter. It is claimed that if the comet were to pass the earth's orbit April 11 instead of at a calculated later date it would be a head on collision and the consequence would be disastrous to all animal and human life.

The makeup of the comet is not known. It is probably not a solid mass but an aggregation of smaller bodies moving among each other. Donnelly held that much of the gravel we see came from comets colliding with the earth. It is quite difficult to account for the immense amount of gravel on the American continents and for the reason why so very little is found on the Asiatic continent.

Scientists claim that the earth is a half billion years old and if so, many collisions may have occurred in that time.

THREE BARNS "RAISED"

Exceptional Activity in This Feature of Rural Life in Emily.

Emily, July 3.—During the slack season which is now being experienced there has been exceptional activity in barn raising and in this neighbourhood three splendid barns are being erected. Mr. F. W. McGee and Mr. Albert Ruth have new ones and Mr. H. Finlay is having a raising on Monday. The neighbours are generous with their assistance and large gangs gather for the work. Sixty or seventy people is nothing out of the usual and the after parts are much enjoyed. The barns are modern in every respect and are large and well built.

Tea is more susceptible to foreign influences than ever butter. This is why it should never be exposed to the air or sold in bulk form. The sealed lead packets of "Salada" Tea preserve the tea in all its native goodness. Insist upon "Salada."

Annual Exodus To Stony Lake Points In Full Swing Many Tourists Have Arrived

Special Staff Correspondence.

Stony Lake, July 3.—The warm weather and the closing of the schools for the summer vacation have been the cause of a big invasion of Stony Lake during the past week and the rush will be still greater during the next few days. Each steamer up the lakes has been bringing new arrivals and the resorts are beginning to put on their summer appearance. Now that the plague of mosquitoes and black flies, which have been making the lives of early comers miserable, has almost entirely disappeared, people have begun to enjoy themselves in earnest. Another week will see the season in full swing. As usual there was a big exodus from Peterborough to the Lake on Dominion day, the steamers Stoney Lake and Empress each having big crowds on board, while many took in the round trip on the Majestic, which was making a regular trip.

Mr. and Mrs. H. LeBrun returned to Peterborough yesterday, after spending Dominion Day at "Belle Chaisse." They will open their summer home for the season on Wednesday next.

All the hotels and boarding houses report large bookings of guests, many of whom have already arrived or are expected next week.

The Misses Craig and Mrs. Moss, of Toronto, have opened up "Belle Isle" for the season. Mrs. Harmer, of Peterborough, is their guest.

Mr. H. C. Loomis and Mr. Paul Allan, of Cleveland, O., arrived on Wednesday evening, and opened "The Rafters" for the season. Mrs. Loomis and party are expected next week.

Mr. Henry Sutherland, Toronto, opened his cottage "Inglestane" for the season, on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Gouinlock, of Toronto, are entertaining a small party at Edithena.

Mrs. J. R. Donnel and Miss Alice Donnel, Peterborough, came up on Wednesday and will spend most of the summer at Kilkenny.

Mr. Frank Anderson, Toronto, came up on Dominion day on a visit to Mr. Jas. Gouinlock.

Mr. S. Hunter, of the Toronto World, Mrs. Hunter and Miss E. Hunter, of Millbrook, are at Pipacton for the season, having arrived on Friday.

Mr. H. P. Lindsay spent the holiday at his cottage.

The water is lower than usual at this season of the year and early comers to the lake are appreciating the fact. It was not an unusual thing on the first of July to find boathouses flooded.

MANAGER OF DOMINION BANK AT OSHAWA HAS DISAPPEARED

Oshawa, Ont., July 1.—Mr. Larry G. Cassells, manager of the Dominion Bank here, has disappeared. He has been missing since last Friday, and a new officer has been temporarily placed in charge of the bank.

On Wednesday evening of last week Mr. Cassells went out in his canoe, and when some distance from shore the canoe overturned. His cries attracted the people on land and they rescued him. Later they found his paddle floating in the lake. He was taken home and placed in bed, where he remained all next day. The following morning Mr. Cassells left town and his present whereabouts are unknown to his Oshawa friends. His wife and two children have departed for Montreal.

While all sorts of rumours are in circulation, it is generally believed that the bank will not sustain loss as the result of his departure.

Mr. Cassells, who is about 35 years old, has been in the Dominion Bank at Oshawa for nearly twenty years, having started work there when a mere lad. He rose to the position of manager, and earned the respect and trust of everyone in Oshawa. He speculated in stocks considerably, and recently dealt in mining stocks, on which he is supposed to have lost a considerable amount of money.

Mr. A. E. Begg, chief inspector of the Dominion Bank, when asked about the affairs of the bank's branch at Oshawa, replied that there was no shortage. He was asked if there had been a shortage of $40,000, and replied, "Everything at Oshawa is all right."

Has Spent Many Years In Medical Research In Mexico

Dr. Pelkey, a physician of a very wide medical experience, and who is at present in the city is a very interesting person, having spent several years in Mexico and one who has spent much time in medical research both in Mexico and on the continent. He is a man having a wide knowledge of the treatment of diseases, giving particular attention to tuberculosis, and in his efforts to effect a cure for this, the most dreaded of all, he has made two wonderful discoveries. He holds medical certificates which he showed the Examiner last evening in France, United States and Mexico.

Dr. Pelkey is a Canadian by birth, having been born in Broom County, Quebec. At the age of fifteen years he was sent by the United States Government to Mexico. In the City of Mexico he spent seven years in the Medical College there. After completing his course he went to Paris, France, where he took a post graduate course in the Belmont Medical school. He spent four years there at the conclusion of which, he returned to Baltimore where he passed examinations in surgery and chemistry at the John Hopkins College.

In 1901 he returned to the city of Mexico where he served as physician in the army for seven years. He returned to Canada in 1906 and in 1907 he made the first discovery of the great specific cure for tuberculosis.

Patients suffering from tuberculosis are given an inhaler, invented by Dr. Pelkey. The invention was completed a year ago last February.

Dr. Pelkey is exhibiting the invention, which is called the Peltier Inhaler, throughout the country. He has Government certificates from Mexico, Brazil, New Mexico and Canada and many Latin-American republics, testifying to cures wrought by him with the inhaler. One certificate states that nearly half a troop of Mexican soldiers and American soldiers and Government officials of Montreal were cured under his treatment. Another is signed by President Diaz, of Mexico, himself, whom Dr. Pelkey cured.

Dragoons At Nassau Broke Up Camp and Left For Home

The 3rd Prince of Wales Dragoons' Camp at Nassau, was broken up yesterday morning and the men have departed, after having had a most enjoyable and profitable time. Reveille was sounded at 4 o'clock yesterday morning, and the work of striking camp was commenced soon after A and D Squadrons entrained on a special train at Nassau, at 7 a.m., and left for their respective headquarters at Bowmanville and Colborne. B. and C. Squadrons, to which was detailed the work of cleaning up the camp grounds, leaving the field in shape, and looking after the regimental baggage, rode into town about ten o'clock The men of these two squadrons live in the vicinity and left soon after for their respective homes.

Capt. Campbell of Cobourg, who was a guest at the camp for the past couple of days, also left for his home yesterday.

Legal Committee Refused Offer To Settle Claim For Damages

The Legal Committee met yesterday afternoon and took up a few of the matters before them and settled them all, so that if their report is adopted by the council on Monday night they will have a clean slate for next month.

Esther Torpey on May 9th last, fell on the sidewalk on Toger street and received such injuries as to necessitate her going to the hospital. She put in a claim for damages, and her solicitor wrote the council.

The city engineer reported that the sidewalk was in good repair and that the city was not to blame. The city solicitor also reported that she had no claim.

The committee therefore decided to take no action on the advice of city solicitor's advice.

A later letter was received from Mr. Gordon offering to settle for $500 or a writ would be issued. This made no difference however.

A letter was received from the Peterborough Cereal Co., in reference to their assessment which is fixed at $10,000 on condition that they employ a certain number of hands. The place was destroyed by fire and the company wanted their fixed assessment continued.

The city solicitor however stated that they must file the necessary declaration that they have complied with the by-law. If not the fixed assessment must cease.

The committee therefore decided to write to the company asking for the declaration.

The Kennedy case for damages was taken up again. The committee received a number of letters from him, but the committee decided to follow the solicitor's advice, which was that Mr. Kennedy had no claim against the city and that no action be taken.

The aldermen had a lengthy discussion. Alderman Metheral thought Mr. Kennedy should be given something. Finally he moved that Mr. Kennedy be given $50 without prejudice. There was no seconder so that no change was made.

MANY PEOPLE WERE CRUSHED TO DEATH

Score of Workmen Perish in Disaster at Newport, Eng.

SEVERAL ARE IMPRISONED

Lock Wall of New Alexandra Dock Collapses and Twenty Are Believed to Have Lost Their Lives—Rescuers Are Working to Release Those Still Living In Debris—Have Small Hopes for Them.

Newport, Eng., July 3.—It is estimated that twenty men perished yesterday by the sudden collapse of the west wall of the new lock at the entrance to the Alexandra dock, where fifty men were working in a trench 60 feet deep, preparing for the laying of a concrete foundation.

Without warning the heavy shoring timbers gave way, the entire structure collapsing, and carried down with it thousands of tons of earth, railway lines, many cars and four travelling coaches. The men at the bottom of the trench had no chance to escape. Of the fifty men man in the trench 25 have been accounted for.

Late at night four men, still living, were pinned in the debris in the trench. The incoming tide made the work of rescue very difficult.

At midnight, aided by electric lights and flare lamps, the rescuers were still busy with their work. Thousands of persons had gathered to watch the weird scene.

Conversation were being held with a few of the imprisoned men with the aid of speaking tubes and stimulents, and cigarettes were passed down to them; but there was little hope of rescuing the victims as the removal of the debris that was pining them down was likely to cause further falls of earth and beams.

Up to midnight eleven persons had been extricated, dead or injured, and it was believed that there still were sixteen bodies under the debris.

House Demolished by Storm.

Carieville, Sask., July 3.—One of the worst storms of the season passed over here Thursday night, doing considerable damage. William Hackett, fifteen miles north of here, was in the centre of the disturbance, his house being completely demolished and also his stable. One child, aged two, was killed, and Mrs. Hackett severely bruised, with a deep gash in her head; also a baby was hurt, and a brother, aged twenty, had a leg broken. Hackett escaped with only slight bruises.

Hail, accompany the storm, did serious damage to crops of the district. Rain fell in torrents.

Zeppelin to Try for the North Pole.

Berlin, July 3.—According to the Lokal Anzeiger, Count Zeppelin intends to make an effort to reach the north pole in his airship. The Emperor accepted protectorship over the undertaking, after listening to a report on the subject at Kiel by Prof. H. Hergesell, of the University of Strasburg.

The plan embraces a thorough exploration of the polar regions by means of a Zeppelin airship, before undertaking to reach the pole. A craft of special strength will be built for the purpose.

Want to Come to Canada.

London, July 3.—At a meeting of the Imperial Press Conference it was decided to form an Empire Press Association, with headquarters in London, to consider all matters relating to the interests of the press of the Empire as a whole and to arrange other conferences. It is probable that the next conference will be held in Canada, if an invitation is sent in the name of the press of the whole Dominion.

Attacked by Trained Alligator.

Paris, July 3.—"Princess Silva," alligator trainer, was attacked by an alligator yesterday in the presence of a big crowd at Luna Park, while exhibiting the animal, which recently had been brought from Florida. It seized her right arm in its jaws and was crushing it when she drew a revolver with her left hand and fired five shots into the alligator's head.

Cure Neuralgic Agony

No affliction is so painful, so hard to bear as Neuralgia. It may strike any organ—one nerve, or, perhaps, a whole set of nerves may be affected. Physicians who have had large experience with this malady say local applications are best.

A well-tried treatment consists of rubbing the affected parts thoroughly with Nerviline. The rubbing should be continued until the skin shows a warm healthy glow. This invariably relieves the pain.

Protection against relapse is best secured by wearing a Nerviline Porous Plaster over the weak spot. No greater healer than a Nerviline Plaster is known. —It draws out congestion, absorbs deleterious secretions through relaxed pores, acts as a sure preventive against muscular aches, rheumatism, sciatica, stiffness, lumbago, and neuralgia.

Remember this: Nerviline treatment has for nearly fifty years been curing chronic cases—it will cure you, too—give it the chance. 25c bottles of Nerviline and Nerviline Porous Plasters 25c each. Sold all dealers.

YESTERDAY'S BIG FIRE AT COBALT

Mining City Suffers a Loss of Three Hundred Thousand.

ONLY ONE MAN KILLED

Sharp Skirmish With Fire-Fiend Results In Devastation of Foreign "Shacktown" District—Two Thousand Persons Are Homeless—Ontario Government Is Sending Assistance to Sufferers.

Cobalt, July 3.—Cobalt is painfully familiar with the iron clang of the fire bell in the early morning hours, and when the whole town was aroused at four o'clock yesterday, people found a blaze already painting the early morning sky red, and knew that the inevitable had happened, and that fire had broken into the jam of shacks and crazy wooden buildings on the Haileybury road, and, fanned by a slight breeze, was cracking up the buildings around it like orange boxes.

For six hours the fire raged, and the result is the destruction of about 200 buildings, rendering homeless 2,000 people, in a district, about half a mile long by 100 yards wide, known as "French Town," and tenanted chiefly by foreigners. The loss is placed at about $300,000, while the insurance will be less than $50,000. This is because the insurance rates have been almost prohibitive from 10 to 15 per cent.—and in some cases the companies cancelled the risks held.

The fire originated in Joe. Lee's Chinese restaurant, supposedly from an overheated stove. Two waitresses, who roomed in the building, heard the flames crackling, and aroused the other inmates. As previous serious fires have originated in Chinese buildings, there is a decidedly anti-Oriental sentiment here to-day.

The local volunteer firemen were assisted by the brigades from New Liskeard and Haileybury, which arrived by special train about 5.30. The water supply was inadequate and recourse was had to dynamite to blow up buildings in hopes of checking the progress of the fire.

It was during the dynamiting of one building that a Finlander, who did not understand the warnings given him, and who rushed back into the house, was blown up and killed.

The more modern and considerable part of the town, though the less populous, is to the south of the seat of the fire, and the firemen and their many helpers first strove to break the rush of the flames towards the Imperial Bank and Cobalt "square." Finally, mainly through private initiative, the tide was stopped in this direction, but the wind had now veered, and was driving the flames in half a gale down the track, straight for the packed rabbit warren of "French Town."

By the time the frightened Syrians and Greeks had obtained the attention of the firemen, half a dozen buildings had gone and the fire was leaping on to fresh fuel every other minute.

Frightened men and women, the latter often with babies in arms, began to stream out of many boarding-houses and little stores, in night wrappings and the scantiest of dress, and they ran back and forth, frantically striving to drag out whatsoever they prize most.

Scant time had they for consideration, for the dread forerunners of the bellowing furnace behind, the showers of red hot sparks, settled on tinder-dry roof and woodwork and instantly set it alight. Hard as the brigade worked with their incomplete appliances, the streams they poured into the flames had no more effect than a pailful of water on a volcano vomiting lava, and speedily they were beaten back. The bucket brigades were also futile.

Ontario Government Helps.

Toronto, July 3.—The Ontario Government took action yesterday to relieve the distress caused by the destruction of the town of Cobalt by fire.

To a press representative last night Sir James Whitney said: "An appeal was made to the Government and we communicated at once with Gen. Cotton here and the Militia Department at Ottawa. They have kindly agreed to loan tents and blankets, and Hon. F. Cochrane, Minister of Lands, Forests and Mines, is attending to the matter. He will send a couple of men to take charge, with instructions to report by telephone to-morrow on the general situation, and advise if any further relief is needed."

Later Hon. F. Cochrane stated that E. T. Corkell, mining inspector, would leave on the night train with 100 militia tents and 300 pairs of blankets. Mr. Corkell will make a general survey of the damage and report immediately to the Department.

Millions In Bounties.

Ottawa, July 3.—During the last fiscal year the Government paid total bounties of $2,467,306 on pig-iron, steel, lead, petroleum and Manilla fibre. Iron and steel bounties were $1,864,614, compared with $2,309,152 during the preceding year. Bounties on lead were $307,483, compared with $51,001 during the preceding year.

Carberry, Man., July 3.—Yesterday morning, about 3 o'clock, an electric storm passed over the district and the home of Joseph Williams, farmer, three miles southwest of here, was struck by lightning and destroyed, the family barely escaping. Loss $3,000.

Asks $5,000 Damages.

Toronto, July 3.—W. J. Hevey, prominent in labor circles, will issue a writ this morning against John W. Bruce, president of the Building Trades Council, asking $5,000 damages for alleged slander.

TAKE OFF THE FAT WHERE IT SHOWS

Most women suffer much humiliation because of great quantities of fat, so located that, no matter how they dress, everybody sees that they are abnormal. This is the day of the slender figure, and fat women are simply not tolerated either in business or social affairs. Women may not know it, but men when they see a fat woman pass them on the street make all manner of sympathetic remarks about her. They do not mean to be unkind or to seem unmanly, but it is natural for a man to dislike fat on a woman. Where fat shows the most there is where it must be removed, and as quickly as possible. The hot weather dresses seem to be made for the fat woman's misery and the slender woman's delight. They expose all the charms of woman and her ugliness as well. Exercise and diet will not remove fat. This has been proved. The famous Marmola prescription which has met with such phenomenal success and has so many of our society women as its sponsors, is now being sold in tablet form to meet the demand of the public for this style of treatment. These little tablets go into your system just like food. They stop the stomach and digestive apparatus from producing fat and reduce the fat upon the body at the rate of from 12 to 15 ounces a day. They are harmless and can be carried in your purse and taken even after you have indulged in a hearty meal away from home. They are sold at all drug stores at 75 cents a case, or if you prefer you may write the Marmola Company, Dept. 833, Detroit, Mich.

WESTERN BANK HELD UP BY BANDITS

Armed Men Get Away With $10,000 at Rainy River.

COVER MANAGER WITH GUNS

Three Bandits Enter Branch of Bank of Nova Scotia and Pillage the Place While Chief of Institution Stands Helpless—Posses of Citizens Are Scouring the Woods In Pursuit of the Culprits.

Rainy River, July 3.—One of the most daring bank robberies since the time of Jesse James was pulled off yesterday in this quiet little burgh, when three heavily armed desperadoes entered the branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia, shortly before 11 a.m., and secured between nine and ten thousand dollars in cash. They chose the time well for easy access to the money, as the safes were open at that hour, the manager was alone, and business was proceeding quietly. The bandits entered the office of the manager and covered him with revolvers. While he was thus held helplessly, they speedily gathered up all the cash available and hastily made their escape into the woods north of the town limits. The streets were full of people at the time, but none became aware of the daring robbery which had been pulled off until the alarm was given by the manager of the pillaged bank. The bandits by that time had a short start, and they dashed away into the woods.

As speedily as possible every available man was armed and sent in pursuit. The river front was closely patrolled to prevent the bandits from escaping back into Minnesota, from which they no doubt came, as the revolvers with which they were armed were stolen from Weeks' Hardware Co. in Spooner, last Wednesday night. The posse is searching the woods, but pursuit is very difficult, owing to the nature of the country, which is heavily timbered and broken by innumerable streams and lakes. The bandits must either effect their escape over the river or make their way across the wild and rugged country to the C.P.R. The pursuers have an excellent description of them, and they escape should be difficult. They purchased the cartridges at the Rat Portage Lumber Co.'s stores yesterday morning, and their appearance was closely noted at that time, which supplemented the description Manager Temple was able to give. Many people also saw them running away from the bank.

While the arming of the pursuers was hurriedly in progress, a regrettable accident occurred, as a rifle was discharged, the bullet hitting Mr. Field, accountant of the bank, in the leg, inflicting a painful wound. The robbers no doubt had their plans well laid before they attempted such a daring hold-up.

After escaping into the woods they separated, two taking the box and the third running in a different direction, evidently for a rendezvous. It was impossible to communicate with Beaudette or other points around the town, as the bandits had taken the precaution to cut the wires.

Period Pianos.

That the esthetic sense of our people is undergoing rapid development, is shown by the demand for what are known as Period pianos. That is to say, if "My Lady" has the decorations of her drawing room done in the style of Louis XIV., XV., XVI., or in the days of the Empire, then she has a piano made to correspond. Or if she is a lover of the Antique, then she has a Chippendale or Sheraton piano to match the chairs, etc. "Dear," club rooms and bachelors' apartments, furnished with Mission furniture, likewise have Mission Pianos. The New Scale Williams Pianos are made in these Art Cases. The Williams Piano Company will submit designs and estimates free of charge to those who wish special Period Pianos not carried in stock. The reputation enjoyed by the famous New Scale Williams is a guarantee in itself that Period Pianos, made to order, will be eminently satisfactory. Many styles here. 6

IN THE WORLD OF SPORT

SIMPSON AND CIBOT HAD A GREAT RACE FOR FOURTH PLACE AT THE BELLEVILLE MARATHON

The Toronto Sar says:

Hans Holmer and "Pat Powers" Jennings were the heroes of Belleville Dominion Day. Hans Holmer won Belleville's big "pro." Marathon, and Pat Jennings was the man who carried the thing through to a successful conclusion. It was a big event for Jennings to swing, but thanks to the backing he received from everyone, from Mayor Marsh down to the man who drives the street watering cart, he swung it, and put Belleville solidly on the athletic map.

It was a great race and a great crowd.

Holmer to win had to run Abbie Woods, winner of the Montreal Marathon, into submission, and had to stand off the repeated and combined rushes of Cibot and Orphee, the Frenchmen, who "teamed it" to say nothing of Tom Coles, Fred Simpson, Charlie Petch, old Bill Davis, the Caledonia Indian, who ran in great form, Pat Dineen, of Boston, and others.

When the race started Cibot and Orphee tried hard to whipsaw Holmer and Wood, but they hadn't the speed. Coley and Simpson stuck to them for six miles and then went back to where Bill Davis and Pat Dineen were struggling along. Holmer and Wood and the two Frenchmen battled it out to eight miles, and then Cibot let go. Wood loosened up the pace, and at ten miles had Holmer 50 yards back. Then he threw up his hands and quit, the blistering sun and strong wind putting him out of the running. Then Holmer took command and drew away running by over a mile. Bill Davis came from behind and gave Orphee a lively argument for second place, but after catching him at 20 miles was unable to hold him and was content with third. Fred Simpson and Cibot had a grand struggle for fourth place, but the Frenchman, though he was run to a walk several times, beat him home a hundred yards. Charlie Petch ran 21 miles before he quit with leg cramps. Tom Coley's stomach went back on him at the sixth mile. He struggled on to the eighteenth mile and was fifth when he quit. Pat Dineen, the Boston veteran, looked as if he would be one of the first three men when his leg gave out.

HAROLD ELLIOTT WON EASILY

Local Boy Had No Difficulty in Winning Five-mile Event at Dominion Day Sports.

The Lindsay Warder says: Harold Elliott, of Peterborough, had little difficulty to win the five-mile race in the afternoon. There were just two other starters, Alcott, of Fenelon Falls, and Rogers, the L. C. I. runner. Elliott won in 31 minutes flat, one minute ahead of Alcott. Rogers, who ran the distance in 30 minutes flat at the L. C. I. sports, dropped out with a cramp. Elliott ran a nicely-judged race. He gets a watch for his trouble.

CHURCH UNION IN THE BALL LEAGUE

Norwood Baseball League Mixes Up the Denominations.

The Norwood Baseball League is exceptional from the fact that Church Union is practiced to a certain extent. The following note from the Register explains the matter:

The second game of the local baseball league took place at the park on Monday evening, the contestants being the Roman Catholic—Baptist aggregation vs. the Presbyterian—Church of England amalgamation. There was a large attendance of townspeople and much interest was taken in the game, which was well contested. The score at one time stood 7 to 4 in favour of the Roman Catholic—Baptist team. This the opposing aggregation managed to overcome and at the end of the fifth innings when the game was called, the score stood 8 to 7 in favour of the Presbyterian—Church of England team.

'ROUND THE STORES

There is a decided expression of beauty and substantiality about the sunny furniture at Clegg's. The line of Kitchen Cabinets carried by this firm embraces such handy household requisites that no housekeeper should fail to know all about them. In beds and bedding, verandah chairs, and cottage furniture, the display comprises a large and varied assortment.

A sale which promises to be a well-patronized one is the mid-summer annual reduction clearance at Laing & Maher's popular Daylight Store. The special offerings in high-class Clothing, Furnishings and Hats are all in the bargain class. Fancy Summer Vests and two-pieced Summer Suits in various stripes and plain effects, will appeal to men who enjoy a bargain when they see it.

McWilliams, the hatter, is enjoying a good patronage from a very conservative clientele, which facts indicates more forcibly the stylish character of the goods carried by this store. Among the attractive displays of this season is an extensive one of fine straw hats for all ages of men and in an interesting range of nobby designs.

For a very comprehensive line of Summer Underwear the shopper who wants a good garment should visit the store of Messrs. H. LeBrun & Co. This firm is showing many grades of Men's lisle mesh, silk, wool, and cotton underwear, in various weights and sizes and in prices to suit every condition of purse and taste.

While the family is away for the summer is a good time for the necessary repairs to be made in the furnishings of the town house, and the housekeeper who wishes to have her Oriental floor coverings renewed will find the Richard Hall & Son's Special July Reduction Sale an unusual chance to save money. No better chance for adding to the supply of rugs for the summer cottage could possibly be had than that afforded by the large display of distinctively summer rugs in numberless designs and sizes. The firm is also selling a large line of straw mattings below regular prices.

Pretty and graceful light Summer Suits and flimsy embroidered Blouses will be found at Cressman's. Fancy hosiery is another line in which this firm excels. The store never looked better. Note the freshness of everything of a summer character: the exquisite array of new styles, the milling, the natty conceits in neckwear, the lovely ribbons, the gauzy muslin dress patterns. It's refreshing to roam through this cool, airy store. The stores are few and far between that can equal the displays of textile elegance and loveliness.

Even the extreme heat has its compensations. It is the only time of the year when one appreciates the cooling luxury of ice cream and of sodas, the soothing effect of the chilled drinks that are usually to be obtained at a well appointed store like the Coleman Bros. The purity of ice cream, ice cream soda and drinks of this class is, of course, a most important matter, because upon that depends the health and comfort of those partaking of them. These are things the Colemans are very particular about.

It is a wise precaution for all who contemplate a sojourn "far from the box of supplies" to order a stock of necessities from E. F. Mason & Co., in order to be assured of the choicest qualities of goods. People who go "camping-out" will find this store a good shopping house for tea, coffee, sugar, canned goods, fruits, and other table luxuries.

TERRORISTS ACTIVE.

Slayer of Col. Wyllie Offers No Defence for Act.

London, July 3.—Madar Loloff Dhingrini, the Indian student who Thursday night shot and killed Lieut.-Col. Sir William Butt Curson Wyllie and Dr. Cawas Lalcada of Shanghai, at the conclusion of a public gathering in the Imperial Institute, was arraigned in the Westminster Police Court yesterday morning and remanded for one week, after being formally charged with wilful murder.

In the dock the prisoner appeared quite unconcerned. He stood with hands in pockets and shook his head negatively when asked if he wished to say anything. Subsequently, however, he said that he had not wilfully killed Dr. Lalcada.

"I saw him advance, and then he caught hold of me; I fired in self-defence," he declared.

This is the first time the methods of the terrorists have been introduced in political agitation in England, and the country has awakened to the fact in an ugly temper. The prisoner, whose age is given as 25, is said to have relatives in good standing in Calcutta.

In the Indian Office, the murder of Col. Wyllie, who was a political aide de camp to Lord Morley, Secretary of State for India, is held to be entirely political, and due to some imaginary grievance against the system of Government.

Dhingri came to London from the Punjab some years ago. He belonged to the advanced section of the Indian Nationalist Party, and he has been taking a course in engineering in London University.

During the commemoration of the Indian Mutiny he attracted attention by wearing a badge inscribed "In memory of the martyrs." Some of his fellow students taunted Dhingri, who threatened to cut the throat of one of his most active tormentors. He was a hard-working student, but he held very advanced political opinions. He was a frequentor of the India House, the local centre of the Indian agitators.

A Calcutta despatch yesterday says: There is to-day a recrudescence of political excitement in Eastern Bengal, and meetings to express sympathy with natives who have been deported are of almost daily occurrence. Arabindo Ghose, one of the most prominent of the Indian agitators, is traveling through the country in the interests of an anti-government campaign. He is preaching that the "Fiat of God has gone out to the Indian nation to unite, to be free and to be great."

French Naval Red Tape.

Paris, July 3.—Debate has begun in the Chamber of Deputies on the report of the special committee which has been making an investigation into naval matters.

The features of the debate was the speech of Deputy Pichon, exposing to ridicule what he termed "the red tape of the Ministry." He cited cases of the acquisition of a pair of sea boots for a coastguard and a dog kennel, which necessitated several months' correspondence through "hierarchic channels" to and from the Ministry, and that the replacing of a cracked tumbler on a flagship required the signature of the Minister on the voucher.

The sole duty of one of the 26 departmental committees, he declared, was to count the leeches which died at the naval dispensary every three months.

SOME SPEEDY WORK

Messrs. J. J. Turner & Sons Decorate Bradford in a Hurry for Dominion Day.

Messrs. J. J. Turner & Sons do not waste any time over their orders, and they gave another example of that fact this week. On Wednesday afternoon at 4.30 o'clock the firm received a telephone message from Bradford, asking them to decorate that town for the big celebration to be held there next day, July 1. It was short notice, but the local firm was equal to the occasion, and after working all night the employees of the firm had the streets a blaze of colour by six o'clock on the morning of the holiday.

How Havelock Triumphed Over Bowmanville And Won Midland Championship

Special to The Examiner.

Special to The Examiner:

Hampton, July 1.—In the list of Dominion Day events here to-day the chief one was the deciding game in the race for the Midland Football League championship.

Last Saturday the first of the home and home games was played in Havelock and the homesters won by 1 to 0. The return game was played here instead of in Bowmanville because a grand celebration was held in this village and the crowd was sure to be here anyway.

The Easterners came by C.P.R. to Burketon and finished the trip in carriages and arrived in town at ten o'clock. The Western champions drove up in the afternoon and arrived at half past two. The Havelock contingent was rather small as there were only a half dozen native rooters along to give courage while Bowmanville had a small army of supporters.

The football enthusiasts began to gather early at the field and at the time to start the game there was a good crowd which had come in many ways. The most stylish outfit was a big touring car from Oshawa and it pulled up at one side of the field of play along with a line of horses and buggies. The pedestrians assembled on the opposite side where a rail fence was the boundary line.

There was no difficulty in distinguishing the players as Bowmanville had green jerseys and Havelock's were gray and purple. Peterborough county had a decided advantage in weight and that with one or two exceptions they were taller than their opponents.

Bowmanville won the toss and chose to defend the north goal and kick with the wind which had risen during the afternoon to a light gale. At 3:24 Robson started the ball rolling but Bowmanville seured it and made a rush but failed to score. As the teams had each other pretty well sized up in the previous game there was no sparring or parrying and every minute counted when the result depended on the number of goals scored. When the ball was kicked out from goal, Havelock tried a run but there was no tally. In a few minutes Mathison got a corner kick which looked dangerous but it was booted out and the decks cleared. After 11 minutes of this see-saw work, Sisson got the ball and made a dash down the side and shot from well out in the field. It looked easy to Rose but the wind changed its direction and went whizzing through the Havelock goal. That evened the score on the round and things were getting real interesting. After the face-off Bowmanville pressed hard as they were depending on their work while they had the help of the wind and soon had the ball down in the Havelock goal again and one of the forwards knocked it through with his hand.' That was a false alarm that did not count, but Havelock drew in a little closer to wait till the storm blew over and succeeded in preventing any further scoring in the first half hour. Both teams finished this period strong and fresh and it was a rattling good exhibition.

When the second session opened with the score a tie on the round, every player was on his toes and the crowd was wildly excited. Havelock now had the wind and let out a good spread of sail to get the lead but rather overdid it and in 8 minutes Bradley wound his way through the defence and notched another for the green shirts. This was both the feature and the surprise of the game and it looked as though the railroaders were on the down grade with no control over the brakes. At this stage they made a re-arrangement of the works by putting Hitchins at centre half and it saved the day. With the score against them and the wind in their favour they spruced up and worked like heroes. Bowmanville had not yet decided to let the score stand and kept right on rushing and pressing but fortune had turned. In 12 minutes H. Mathison notched the first for Havelock and their hopes rose accordingly as it stood a tie again.

All this time both teams were playing splendid combination and when one wing got in difficulty it passed the ball over to the other wing where business was not so brisk and then there would be a speedy dash along the side line. These long passes were very effective in relieving and showed the real class of the contesting teams. Havelock got down on the Bowmanville territory and Hitchins made a close shot which touched the bar and bounded out. It was only a few minutes till McPherson dropped one on James' and he failed to punch it out and it fell on the goal line, spun round and went over. This put the Easterners in the lead and they shovelled in some more fuel and opened the throttle. At about this time Bowmanville weakened a little and showed signs of distress and bunched in front of the goal but both teams resorted to kicking the ball off the field to kill time and altogether five minutes were added for this offence.

Within three minutes of full time McPherson netted another for Havelock but Bowmanville revived and in the closing minutes of the game were keeping their checks so busy that they could not feel safe. It was a fight to a finish and the decision was not certain till the gong sounded because a score was liable to be made at any minute.

Was it strenuous? What else could it be with the championship swaying from side to side with the utmost uncertainty as to where it would land. Even though the game was strenuous yet it was not dangerous and there was not a stop of a minute on account of injury and it can be said to the credit of both teams that the conduct of the players was gentlemanly.

The only changes in the line-up from last Saturday were that Dr. Kindried was back in his old position at centre-half for Havelock and that Washington and Prof. Harris were replaced by Gimblett and Moore on the Bowmanville team.

With these changes the lineup of to-day was as follows:

Bowmanville (2)

Goal G. W. James, backs A. Brown, A. W. Carter, half backs T. Werry, E. Horn, W. Moore, right wing Dr. E. Sisson, C. Adams, left wing P. Gimblett, P. Clemens, centre M. Bradley.

Havelock (3)

Goal W. Rose, backs K. McKay, H. T. Andrews, half backs W. McMullen, Dr. H. C. Kindried, W. Hitchins, right wing H. Mathison, B. McPherson, left wing G. Mathison, T. P. Lancaster, centre C. Robson.

Notes

Dr. Devitt, the president of the League was an interested spectator but could not cheer his team to victory.

To-day's affair will be handed down in history as "The Battle of Hampton Field." Quite classical! But it was only a football match on a common pasture lot.

Bowmanville has the unique distinction of being the only team to score a goal on Havelock this year.

Charlie Robson put up the very game that his mother would have him play.

Moore, the unknown wonder, didn't cut much ice on the pond.

Lancaster edits the Havelock Standard while James performs the same act for the Bowmanville News. Of course their descriptions of the game will be exactly alike.

Bradley is a spedey little centre man and Hitchins was the only one that could keep him in bounds.

The referee was E. Brumwell, who is the secretary of the League.

Horn plays the centre half position in good style and picks out some very difficult shots.

Ken. McKay, the Havelock manager, is a tailor by profession and has taken the measure of every team that has come within reach.

With a good straight referee the losing team would have won by a wide margin. Sure! That's always the way!

Sisson and Adams had to be watched all the time lest they would make a dash and score.

McPherson and Mathison were of the same variety.

Havelock said they would make a try for the Ontario championship and they should make a good show in the Intermediate class.

Minor Offences From This Morning's Police Court Bill

At the police court this morning the claim of Ethel Forsyth against James Cruikshanks for $16, wages as a domestic was considered. The Magistrate awarded plaintiff, for whom Mr. McWilliams appeared, $12, and costs—$2.50—to defendant.

C. J. Duranceau was charged by Wm. Fares, with trespassing on the premises of the latter. It appears that defendant owns the house of which plaintiff is tenant, and wishes to remove the house in order to build another, and therefore wished to dispossess the tenant in possession. Mr. O. DeLaPlante appeared for plaintiff, against whom the charge was dismissed with the suggestion that the parties come together in order to effect a settlement.

Wesley Crowter and —— Keegan were arraigned again on a charge of stealing a gold watch and $5.00 from Jas. Landry. The case was again enlarged, the Crown wishing to get a third person, supposed to be implicated, so that all three could be tried together. Croute was released on 100 dollars and Keegan on his personal recognisance. Mr. Kerr appeared for accused, Crowter, and Mr. Gordon for accused, Keegan.

Mr. Cyril K. Lech Returns From Fort Hope On The Albany River

After an absence of over thirteen months Mr. Cyril K. Lech, son of Mr. K. G. Lech and one of the partners of the firm of Wm. A very funny comedy picture describing the adventures of a man of great ambition, who sought big honors, and yet abused the newspapers, but was caught in Love's Net by the lady reporter.

Old Peterborough Boy Delighted With Progress City Has Made

Mr. William E. Cope Here on a Visit After an Absence of 23 Years — Distinguished Himself By a Brave Rescue Some Years Ago, Which Is Told In Detail—Glad to Meet the Friends of His School Days.

PLEASED WITH OLD HOME

"It all reminds me of a poem in one of our old school readers. I think the title of it was '"Twenty years Ago,'" said William E. Cope, a former Peterborough boy, who is visiting old friends in the city after an absence of 23 years spent in Rochester.

"Jove! it's good to see the old faces, to meet the boys I went to school with over in Ashburnham, to visit the scenes of our boyhood pranks and games and especially to find that my one time comrades have been successful in life and that the town has so wonderfully developed."

Mr. Cope was very greatly pleased with Peterborough. "When I left here there were only 8,000 people and now you got 18,000 and it is not because I was born here and therefore have an innate love for it but Peterborough is the best place for its size that I have ever been in. Your streets appear to be well cared for. Old George street is lined with stores that are a credit to the merchants and there is some kind of an activity which caught my attention as soon as I arrived."

With Mr. Fred Cook

Mr. Cope has been visiting one of his school chums, Mr. Fred Cook, of East City. He was accompanied by his wife and boys for an enjoyable holiday that concluded this morning, the family leaving on the noon G.T.R. train.

"If I could persuade my wife to remain here I believe I would return to Peterborough and settle down. There is no place like your home town and the place where you spend your youthful years probably the best of your life. After a long absence it is great to grasp your old friends' hands. One thing that has surprised me is that the boys who were the most unpromising, whose future seemed to point to failure have achieved success and are now doing well." Mr. Cope is foreman of the Rochester Moulding Works, a position he has attained by his ability and industry.

Mr. Cope's father was for forty years in business in Peterborough, having a wood turning shop in East City.

A Heroic Rescue

A friend of Mr. Cope's recalls a brave deed he performed in 1903 by which he rescued a young lady from drowning. Shortly afterwards he was presented with a handsome medal for bravery. A newspaper account of the affair which occurred July 23rd, 1903, is as follows:

Rochester, August 1, 1903.—The Gillie's Bible class of the Cornhill M.E. Church enjoyed a very pleasant moonlight excursion on the steamer Arundel on Tuesday evening of last week. Everything went well until the steamer approached the home pier and then occurred what came near being a fatal accident. Contrary to regulations, the people crowded to the gangway plank long before the pier was reached, among the number being Miss Rhoda, of Clifford street, who being pushed to the front by the crowd behind, in some way fell overboard. Certain death would have been her fate had it not been for the presence of mind and heroism of William Cope, of No. 97 Bartlett street.

With no thought for his own safety this brave young man threw off his coat and hat and jumped into the water. The woman could not be seen, but he was directed to the spot where she went down. He treaded water waiting for her to rise to the surface, but she did not appear. He then dived down and after a while felt something against his feet. He reached down and caught hold of the woman's clothing and drew her to the surface. A rope was thrown to the brave rescuer and both were drawn to the pier. The act of bravery on the part of Mr. Cope was doubly commendable when it is considered that the boat was nearing the pier at the time of the accident and failure on the part of the engineer to reverse the motion, rescuer and victim would have been crushed to death. Certainly Mr. Cope's brave act is deserving of recognition by the authorities who, it is hoped by many, will reward the young man with a life-saving medal. The young lady was restored to her normal condition in 10 minutes after she was taken from the water.

Mr. Cope is a son of Alexis and Jane Cope, of Peterborough, Canada, where he was born in 1872 and began his education. The family moved to the States eventually and young Cope attended No. 3 and No. 5 schools in Rochester and later attended Mt. Vernon Academy at Mt. Vernon, Mass. He has resided in this city since he was 14 years old. He is an athlete and expert swimmer and has long been identified with Cornhill M. E. Church, where he is assistant teacher of the Gillie's Bible class and serves in some capacity in nearly all the societies of the church.

Mr. V. Eastwood Donates Prizes To Pupils Of S. S. No. 2, Smith

Miss Pollard, Teacher, Remembered on Her Departure—School Pic-nic Was Held on Shore of Chemong Lake—Most Enjoyable Outing.

ADDRESS TO MISS POLLARD

Smith, July 5.—The pupils and parents of S. S. No. 2, Smith, held a very enjoyable picnic on the lake shore last Wednesday. The afternoon was spent in games and races which were very much enjoyed by the grown up people, after which tea was served by the ladies.

During the evening the teacher, Miss Pollard presented the prizes donated by Mr. V. Eastwood (a former pupil of the school) of the Royal Bank, for penmanship. The first prize, two dollars and one-half, was won by Miss Jessie Graham. The second prize, one dollar and one-half, was won by Miss Ruby Archer. The third prize, one dollar, was won by Miss Gertrude Archer.

At the close of the evening, the popular teacher, who is leaving our midst was presented with an address and a handsome gold lined nut bowl. Miss Pollard has proved herself an energetic and hard working teacher and though only a year with us, by her sterling qualities won the esteem and respect of not only the children, but of all those with whom she came in contact and much regret is felt at her departure. The presentation was made by Gertrude Archer and the address, which was read by Helen Moore, was very ably responded to by Miss Pollard, who in a few well chosen words thanked the people for the many favours shown her in the past year.

The Address

The address was read as follows:

Dear Miss Pollard:

We, the pupils and friends of S. S. No. 2, on this, the eve of your departure from our midst, wish to express to you our gratitude and appreciation of your efforts on our behalf during the terms of the past year.

Our lessons have been presented in such a way as to make them interesting as well as instructive. Especially in the newer branches of learning, such as nature study, birds and insects, have we profited by our studies together. In our games we have always found you willing to enter with zest and spirit, thus showing us that school life is not entirely one routine of studies, but that it is a place where we as children gather together for both study and recreation.

Our year's study together has shown us many things. We have all advanced from the youngest to the oldest in studies. You have shown and impressed upon us the value of an education. We have learned something of the mysteries of this world, of its great and wonderful changes which are constantly taking place, and of the other worlds as large and larger all around us.

In the years which are to come to us all, be they few or many, we, your pupils of the year 1908 and 1909, will ever remember you. We will look back on these terms as among the bright spots of our lives, and will hold you always in highest esteem.

In conclusion we wish you to accept this little token as a link which will bind our friendships made this year, more fully; and may you have God speed in your chosen vocation in the years to come.

Signed on behalf of the shool,
GERTRUDE ARCHER.
HELEN MOORE.

Thursday Half-Holiday Is Referred To By One Of Clerks

"How are the merchants and clerks going to spend their Thursday afternoons during July and August?" asked the Examiner of a senior clerk in one of the uptown stores this afternoon.

The counter hopper essayed a laconic grunt signifying a certain amount of disappointment and replied, "Well, as far as the merchants are concerned they are not manifesting any great desire to take an afternoon a week and of course there is not much satisfaction in considering what we will do until we get the holiday. We're like little Willie in front of the candy shop with the thermometer at 89 degrees and no money to try some of the 'Jersey Ice Cream' announced on a show card. However we are hoping that some one will start the ball rolling. I believe this the most conservative town on the line. It is either that or the wisest."

The clerk finished tying the parcel. "Our boss would join in the movement but there is no unanimity of action, no joint determination, and I guess there will not be anything done until the merchants get together and act in a body."

CONDUCT OF SENIOR LEAGUE BALL PLAYERS RECEIVE A COMPLIMENT

Sporting Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I have been following the ball games in the Senior City League this summer and I must say that the boys are to be congratulated on the class of ball that is produced every Saturday. I have enjoyed them very much and I must say that they are deserving of far bigger crowds. Last Saturday's games were hummers particularly the first and the sensational finish is as good a bit of work as I have seen in many a day. If the boys continue to remain together Peterborough should have an unlimited supply of material in a year or two. As one of those who watches the games from the stand I have a little suggestion to make which might be acted upon by the players. When the first match is nearly over the teams playing in the succeeding game have the habit of throwing the ball or of batting it in front of the grand stand I suppose to warm up. This interferes with the game in progress and detracts attention from it. The fans want to see the boys in the game and if the warming up stunts have to be pulled off let those that need it go over to the south end corner where they will be noticed by no one.

I have noticed in your paper from time to time references to Lindsay, Belleville and other places as being dead towns, but Peterborough belongs to the same category, and I firmly believe that it should head the list. Instead of one hundred or more people there should be five hundred. Ladies have the privilege of attending without any admission being charged, and there are generally only a handful. I have written this hoping to see our youngsters and the older boys encouraged in clean sport and so far this year the conduct of the players has been exemplary.

With best wishes for the boys.

Once a Kid Myself.

Here is one case: "I am now using the second bottle of your Parisian Sage, and can notice a new crop of hair appearing. I am glad to say it is a darker colour than my hair was before I became bald." MADE REFERENCE TO LATE FATHER LYNCH

His Lordship Bishop O'Connor Spoke of His Long Service as a Priest.

At St. Peter's Cathedral yesterday, His Lordship Bishop O'Connor, made reference to the late Rev. Father Lynch, whose funeral will be held tomorrow morning at nine o'clock. The deceased had spent more than fifty years of his life in the priesthood having celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of his ordination a few years ago. He had laboured in this parish when the present generation were children. He had baptised many and likewise conferred many of the sacraments upon his parishioners of that time not a few of whom have passed to their reward. Bishop O'Connor asked the congregation to remember Father Lynch in their prayers.

THE "PEACH BASKET"

According to the Ladies Home Journal the peach basket hat was unloaded upon America's fair ones by the milliners of Paris because the Parisiennes declared that it was the last straw—it went beyond the limit—and refused to wear them.

"Even so," Hilda remarks, as she contemplates her inverted waste-paper basket creation, "when you're in Rome do as the Romans do and we're not in Rome, Paris I mean and I've got to get ten dollars' worth in use out of mine."

MONTENEGRO DANCES.

The Kolo is a Feature of All Great National Festivals.

The national dance of Montenegro is the "kolo," somewhat similar to the "horo" of Bulgaria. Both sexes take part, crossing hands and forming an unjoined circle. The music they supply themselves, each end of the horn alternately singing a verse in honor of the prince and his warlike deeds. The "kolo" is always danced at any great national festival, and the effect of the sonorous voices and swaying ring is very fine. Then there is another dance performed by four or five, usually youths, to the accompaniment of a fiddle, the leader setting a lot of intricate quick steps which the rest imitate at once. It is really a sort of jig and makes the spectator's head swim if he watches it for long.

I never saw any dances in northern Albania, though certain Slav artists love to depict wonderful sword dances, with beauteous maidens swaying gracefully after the style of nautch girls. A casual observer who has seen the Albanians come into Montenegrin markets or to their great weekly gathering in the bazaar of Scutari could never picture these stern, lean men dancing or at play. They never smile, and they look the life they lead, each clan ever ready for war with its neighbor and absolutely pitiless in the vendetta. The red Indian is not more stoical in his bearing than the northern Albanian clansman.—Wide World Magazine.

Kent and Burr.

James Kent, famous for his "Commentaries on American Law," was a great admirer of Alexander Hamilton, and when the great Federalist was killed by Aaron Burr in a duel he became the implacable enemy of the latter. One day long afterward when in New York the judge saw Burr on the opposite side of Nassau street. He went across the street as fast as his years would permit and, brandishing his cane in Burr's face, shouted:

"You're a scoundrel, sir, a scoundrel, a scoundrel!"

Burr proved equal to the emergency. He raised his hat and bowed to the ground and then said in his calmest professional tone, "The opinions of the learned chancellor are always entitled to the highest consideration."

The Deserter.

"Do you desire to have it understood," asked the judge, addressing the lady who wanted the divorce, "that your husband deserted you?"

"Yes, sir."

"Please tell the court as concisely as you can how he deserted you."

"Two months after we had completed our wedding trip he scolded me because he thought I was extravagant in the matter of getting clothes, and I went home to my people."

"Yes. Proceed."

"Well, I waited and waited and waited for him to come and beg me to return to him, and he never did."—Chicago Record-Herald.

A Family Necessity

Is a remedy capable of affording immediate relief to the hundred and one ailments that constantly arise. It may be a cold, perhaps toothache, neuralgia, pain in the back—use Polson's Nerviline, it's penetrating, pain-subduing, and powerful.

NERVILINE

is at least five times stronger than ordinary remedies and its worth in any household can't be overestimated. For man or beast, Nerviline is a panacea for all pain.

"Not if it Cost Ten Dollars

A bottle, would I be without Polson's Nerviline," write J. A. Ruth, a farmer living near Trenton, Ont. "Nerviline is the best household liniment I know. We use it for stomach troubles, indigestion, headache, and Summer complaint. I know of nothing better to take in hot water to break up a cold, or to rub on for rheumatism or neuralgia." Every farmer should keep a few bottles of Nerviline handy, and have smaller doctor bills.

Nerviline is a protection and safeguard against the pains and aches of the entire family, and cures rheumatism, neuralgia, toothache, etc. 25 cents for a large bottle.

Stories of W. S. Gilbert.

When Sir Henry Irving and Edwin Booth were acting together in London at doubled prices, the story goes that Mr. Herman Vezin, meeting W. S. Gilbert in the street, asked him whether he had been to this quite exceptional show. "No," said Mr. Gilbert; "I have sometimes paid half a guinea to see one bad actor, but I will not pay a guinea to see two."

Mr. Beerbohm Tree was playing the part of Falstaff at the London Haymarket, and the indispensable stuffing made him perspire profusely. Mr. Gilbert, who was in the theater, went behind the scenes to see the actor, who may well have been expected to be congratulated on the excellence of his impersonation.

"How well your skin acts!" said Mr. Gilbert.—London Graphic.

Peter the Great as a Drinker.

There is preserved in the Bodleian library, Oxford, an innkeeper's bill for breakfast eaten in England by Peter the Great of Russia. The czar and his twenty companions managed to dispose of half a sheep, a quarter of lamb, ten pullets, twelve chickens, three quarts of brandy, six quarts of mulled wine, seven dozen of eggs, with salad in proportion. Peter was always a hard drinker. He would drink a pint of brandy and a bottle of sherry for his morning draft; after dinner he managed eight bottles of sack, "and so to the playhouse." But his favorite drink was hot pepper and brandy.

He Had the Bill.

Tom (in restaurant)—Excuse me, old man, but would you mind paying my check? I haven't anything but a forty dollar bill. Jack—A forty dollar bill! Why, I never heard of a bill of that denomination. Tom—Here it is—a bill from my tailor!—Chicago News.

Children Had Eczema

SUFFERED AGONY UNTOLD

Treatment prescribed had no effect—Dr. CHASE'S OINTMENT made thorough cure.

Many a mother's heart has been torn by the suffering of her little one who has fallen a victim of eczema. Only such mothers appreciate to the full the value of Dr. Chase's Ointment as a cure for this horrible ailment.

Mrs. Oscar Vancott, St. Antoine, Sask., writes:

"I have found Dr. Chase's Ointment to be a permanent cure of eczema and other skin diseases. One son, while nursing, broke out with running watery sores all over his head and around the ears. Many salves were prescribed to no effect. The child's head became a mass of scabs and he suffered agony untold. He became weak and frail and would not eat and we thought we would lose him.

"Providentially we heard of Dr. Chase's Ointment, and it soon thoroughly cured him. He is seven years old now and strong and well. An older boy was also cured of eczema by this Ointment, and we hope more people will learn about it so that their poor little ones may be saved from suffering."

Chafing and irritation of the skin, from which nearly all babies suffer more or less, is a frequent source of eczema. There is no treatment for chafing so satisfactory as Dr. Chase's Ointment. Pore-clogging, unsanitary powders are being discarded by all who have once learned the value of this great Ointment in keeping baby's skin soft, smooth and healthy.

In scores of ways Dr. Chase's Ointment is useful in every home in the treatment of pimples, barber's itch, scalds and burns, poisoned skin, sore feet and every form of itching skin disease. 60 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

A BASHFUL LOVER.

The Professor Was a Shy Wooer, but Finally Got the Lady.

Dr. Haldane, at one time a professor of St. Andrews university, was a very shy man. This latter failing prevented him from asking any lady to become his wife until he was well advanced in life.

However, he plucked up courage one day, redecorated his house and went to call on the object of his affections.

The lady, seeing the doctor's embarrassment, opened fire. "Weel, doctor, hae ye got through a' your papering and painting yet? I'm told your new carpets are just beautifu'. They say the pattern o' the dining room chairs is just quite out o' the way. In short, that everything about the house is just perfect."

Here was a providential opening he was not such a goose as to overlook. He advanced his chair, sidled toward her, simpering the while, raised his eyes furtively to her face and said, with a gentle inflection of his voice which no ear but a willfully deaf one could have misinterpreted: "Na, na, Miss Jane, it's no quite perfect. It canna' be quite that so long as there's one thing wanting!"

"And what can that be?" asked the imperturbable spinster.

Utterly thrown on his beam ends by her willful blindness to his meaning, the poor doctor beat a hasty retreat, drew back his chair from its dangerous proximity, caught up his hat and in tones of blighted hope gasped forth his declaration in these words: "Eh, dear, eh! Well I'm sure! The thing wanting is a—a—a—sideboard."

However, she married him after all.—London Answers.

DEFINITIONS.

Some Queer Ones Gleaned From a High School Examination.

Among the questions in an examination in definitions in a well regulated high school in an eastern city were these: "What is a broncho?" "What is a boomerang?" "What is a pantomime?" "What is a cartoon?" And these four excited some most remarkable answers. The following bona fide replies, taken at random from the papers, show in many cases decided originality, to say the least, but they likewise display the effect of imperfect enunciation and pronunciation and of the association of ideas without due regard to "sense."

In reply to the first query, "What is a broncho?" were the following: A broncho is an herb used as a medicine, a part of your body, a foreigner, a man that lives on ranches.

"What is a boomerang?" called forth, among others, these: A boomerang is a species of the baboon family, what an Indian chews, something explosive.

The replies to "What is a pantomime?" included the following: A pantomime is an animal that eats human flesh, a person who finds fault, a man who is always on the bad side of everything, a trunk, a box to carry people in, resting on the shoulders of four men; a vision of one's former sins.

As for the question "What is a cartoon?" that seemed to excite the wildest ideas of all, and there were brought forth such answers as these: A cartoon is a vessel for holding articles, a strong windstorm, a kind of fish, a bunch of flowers presented to a hero or a nobleman, a soldier's water bottle, a statue, a strong gust of wind.—New York Tribune.

What They Make Judges Out Of.

Justice David Brewer of the United States supreme court, during an address before the students of law at the University of Pennsylvania, told them one of the experiences of his judicial career at his own expense.

"It happened I was sitting at one time on a number of cases in which a good friend of mine was interested as counsel, and it also happened that in many of them my decisions were rendered against my friend's clients. One day after the completion of such a case we sat together talking, when a very bashful young man from the rural districts came in to see me bearing a card of introduction to obtain my advice upon the choice of a profession. 'What do you think you want to do?' I asked him. 'I kind of thought I'd bettor study law,' he replied, 'not that I want to very much, but because I guess I'd like to be a judge. They make judges out of lawyers, don't they?' he asked, somewhat hesitatingly. 'Once in awhile,' my legal friend replied before I could answer. 'Once in awhile they do, but not often.'"—Philadelphia Press.

He Wasn't Fooled.

A once famous publisher was a man well acquainted with general literature, and it was often said of him that he never failed to name the author of any given passage. A would be wit, thinking to have a little fun at this gentleman's expense, told his friends at a dinner party before the said publisher's arrival that he had himself written some verses in imitation of Southey and that he intended to puzzle old F. with the question of their authorship.

Accordingly later in the evening the wag quoted his lines, and, turning to Mr. F., he said: "I am sure they are Southey's from their style, but I cannot remember where they occur. Of course you can tell us."

"I cannot say I remember them," replied Mr. F., "but there are only two periods in Southey's life when he could have written them."

"When were those?" asked the joker, with a wink at his friends.

"Either in his infancy or his dotage," was the quiet reply.

Spanish Railroad Trains.

The Spanish train averages possibly twenty miles an hour—to allow one to make time exposures of the scenery perhaps. It makes frequent and long waits. At every station the guards run up and down, shouting the name of the town and the number of minutes for each stop. At every station also the two military guards who accompany each train descend and walk around the cars, looking to see that no robbers are concealed. As there is at least one stop an hour these guards get some exercise before the day is over. They say this custom was adopted to drive away any brigands who might be concealed in or under the train and that it has been successful. These military guards are very fine looking men and wear an impressive uniform. We saw more than one black eyed senorita look approvingly after them as they passed by.—Outing Magazine.

PERILS OF EXPLORERS.

A Tragic Journey Across a Desert of Central Asia.

One of the most trying of the central Asian adventures of Sven Hedin, the Swedish explorer, was this: In February, 1895, Sven Hedin started eastward, exploring the country between the Kashgar and Yarkand rivers, proceeding in April to cross the Takla Makan desert, between the Yarkand and Khotan rivers. Never before had any known traveler attempted to exploit a course amid the eternal sea of shifting sand hills from river to river. The tale of that little, travel worn, bedraggled group, far beyond the last watering place, enveloped in dust, stumbling along through the dreary but agitated desert sea by crooks and roundabout ways, with desolation spread around and every trace of life departed, was a weird and pathetic one. "Not even a fly was to be heard in the air, not even a yellow leaf broke the monotony."

And ever at their head was the sturdy figure of the Swedish explorer, compass in hand, still enthusiastic, guiding them as best he could through the death shrouded wilderness. At length the camels had to eat their straw saddles, and the last of the bread was gone. Horrors followed. As men and camels dropped out of the line they were immediately enveloped in the whirling sand shroud and never seen again.

The end came on May 5, when Sven Hedin, crawling on all fours, dragged himself across the dry bed of the Khotan river. "All of a sudden a duck flew into the air and water splashed," he wrote. Two of his followers were all that survived, and it is doubtful whether even those two would have lived to tell the tale had not Sven Hedin carried back water for them in his boots.

MARKED THEIR TRAIL.

Two Brave Women Who Outwitted a Band of Indians.

One summer afternoon in 1776 Jemima Boone and two sisters named Callaway while boating on the Kentucky allowed their canoe to drift close to the opposite bank. Here, behind a bush, five Shawnee warriors were in hiding, and, although the spot was not more than a quarter of a mile from Boonesborough, one of the Shawnees struck boldly out into the water, seized the canoe and dragged it to shore with its screaming occupants.

Once in the power of the Indians, however, these youthful daughters of the wilderness betrayed a wonderful self possession and resourcefulness. They knew enough of Indian customs to realise that if their strength failed them and they should prove unequal to the long march to the Shawnee towns on the Ohio they would be slaughtered mercilessly. So they stifled sobs and calmly accompanied their captors without protest or struggle. At every opportunity, though, they secretly tore little pieces from their clothing and attached them to bushes on the trail. Nothing more was needed to inform Boone and his fellow settlers, who had quickly started in pursuit, that they were on the right track, and on the second day of the captivity they caught up with the Indians. A volley laid two Shawnees low, the rest fled, and by the close of another day the girls were safe in the arms of their thankful mothers.—H. Addington Bruce in Smith's Magazine.

The Troubles of a French Academician.

The candidate, once elected, is bound to pronounce a harangue before he is allowed to take part in the work of the noble body. The director who happens to be in office answers him. This oration is invariably, or at least should be, composed first of thanks, more or less humble, for the great honor conferred, then of a panegyric of the happy one's predecessor. And, oh how difficult that sometimes must be! More than one has rushed to the encyclopedia, then to the libraries, so as to get some clear notion of the illustrious eximmortali! Then fate is often ironical. A historian may have to celebrate the talent of a writer of light comedies, a legitimist may have to praise a Socialist, or else the newly elected member may have to speak of his most intimate enemy.—Jeanne Mairet in Atlantic.

Ancient Derricks.

Probably the oldest derricks still in use are the two built at Trier, in Germany, in the year 1413 and the one built in 1554 at Andernach, also in Germany. All these three derricks are built on the same principle. In the middle of a massive A frame tower is located the swinging or main boom, 20 by 20 inches, whose iron pivot moves in a pan shaped bearing cup. On top are fastened the guy ropes and the cap, which is also movable. The derrick can be moved by crossbars fastened to the main boom. The load is chain lifted by tread wheels sixteen feet in diameter.

Wagner to the Musicians.

Wagner's little admonition to the musicians was most characteristic and worthy to be noted by many an orchestra of this day. "Gentlemen," he said, "I beg of you not to take my fortissimo too seriously. Where you see 'ff' make an 'fp' of it, and for piano play pianissimo. Remember how many of you there are down there against the one poor single human throat up here alone on the stage."—Neumann's "Personal Recollections."

FRUIT—THE GREAT PHYSICIAN

Wonderful Medicinal Value of Apples, Oranges, Figs and Prunes.

How many people realize what remarkable curative principles are contained in fruit juices. There are two—the bitter and the sweet. There is about ten times as much of the sweet as of the bitter, though the bitter principle is the one which has the curative effect on disease. Apples, oranges, figs and prunes contain the highest percentage of bitter principle and thus are the most healthful.

It was a theory of a physician in Ottawa, that if the amount of bitter principle in fruit juice could be doubled, the curative property would be increased, not twice but many times.

After many tests, this physician succeeded in forcing into the combined fruit juices an additional atom of bitter principle, and in doing so formed an entirely new compound. To the combined juices were added valuable tonics and antiseptics and the whole made into tablets.

These are "Fruit-a-tives"—the only remedy known to science that is made of fruit. The wonderful cures in cases of Stomach Trouble, Biliousness, Constipation, Rheumatism, Chronic Headaches and Neuralgia, Kidney, Liver and Skin Diseases are due solely to the fact that "Fruit-a-tives" contain the medicinal properties of fruit. 50c a box, 6 for $2.50, or trial box, 25c. THE FATEFUL MISS DOUGLAS.

By PROVIDENCE REVERE.
[Copyrighted, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.]

Mrs. Ransom surveyed her tall brother meditatively, while he returned the scrutiny with smiling cheerfulness. John MacPherson was enjoying to the utmost his little visit to his sister, whom he had not seen since her marriage a couple of years previous, so he did not in the least understand why she should sigh and remark seriously, "It's too bad; yes, it is!"

"What?" he asked lazily. It was a extra fine cigar he was smoking, and it did not seem possible just then for anything to be of deadly importance.

"Why, that you got here just the day after Isabel Douglas left town," responded pretty little Mrs. Ransom. "She's the dearest girl! She"— "Lives in Kentucky, beautiful as a dream, glorious brown eyes, most charming disposition on earth, is"—

"Where'd you meet her?" broke in Mrs. Ranson breathlessly.

"I never had the pleasure," laughed her brother. "Only I had to sit one whole evening during my visit in Toledo and hear my hostess recount the charms of this most evasive Isabel. She had left there just the week before my arrival. I seem to cast a blighting shadow over her enjoyment. At any rate, she runs at my approach."

"Now, isn't that queer?" said his sister. "But, really, John, I'm in earnest about wanting you to know her."

"So was my Toledo hostess," he answered amusedly. "If only the lady and I were of a similar mind and as much in earnest nothing on earth could save us from wedding cake and rice. But we aren't, thank the fates," he cried rather fervently.

At the age of thirty-five John MacPherson, comfortable in his bachelor quarters in New York, wealthy enough to indulge any whim, looked with quiet and polite pity at the unfortunates he knew tied down to domestic cares. He had fully decided he wanted none of that for him. What happiness he might miss was more than compensated for in peace and quiet and freedom.

"I DON'T UNDERSTAND IT IN THE LEAST," SHE LAUGHED.

"You're all wrong, Jack," said his sister rather wistfully. "Aren't you ever going to abandon your crazy notions and marry some nice girl and settle down?"

He threw out his hands in mock dismay as he got to his feet. "I'm the most settled down person you ever saw, Nan," he protested. "I'm as steady as a railway time table and perfectly contented just as I am. I could attend the wedding of some other fellow to your amiable Isabel without a qualm."

"No, you couldn't," said his sister forcibly. "You've never seen her."

But if he had not seen her the fame of Miss Isabel Douglas was destined to haunt his ears. During his visit at his sister's he heard Miss Douglas' name so frequently on the lips of visitors that he grew half irritated. It was impossible that any girl could be such a paragon, and if she was he had no desire to know her.

Such perfection would be decidedly tiresome, he concluded, and so he dismissed her from his mind.

When he reached Chicago on his homeward way he stopped to transact some business. Phillips, his lawyer, was most cordial in pressing his New York client to come out to his house, and MacPherson was half inclined to accept. His frame of mind experienced an instantaneous change, however, when Phillips added:

"We've a visitor coming tomorrow you'd like to meet, I know—Miss Isabel Douglas of Kentucky. She"—

"Sorry," said Mr. MacPherson decidedly, "but I can't wait over a day on any account, my dear man." At that moment he would have gone a hundred miles out of his way to escape meeting this southern paragon.

He did not stop to reflect she undoubtedly had not the slightest desire of meeting him either. The constant sound of her name and the rehearsal of her attractions had molded itself into a haunting shadow pursuing him, and he actually disliked the very thought of her. He wondered crossly why she never stayed home, where she belonged. He hated gadabouts. Then he went back to New York.

Strangely enough, even there he was not left in peace. One of the newspapers printed a page of pictures and gossip about beautiful women, and, idly glancing it over, the name of Douglas caught his eye. He groaned as he looked closer. Yes, the first name was Isabel. Then he searched for the picture of her and stared at it half indignantly. It was a very lovely face. More than that, it was high bred and thoughtful, as well as perfect in line and form.

But John MacPherson had seen too many beautiful women to be especially attracted by any one in particular. He wondered idly what there could be about this particular girl which so hypnotized all her friends and acquaintances. In a few weeks she had passed out of his mind entirely.

But John MacPherson was not to slip out of the clutches of determined fate in this easy fashion. With no warning whatever, no premonition of the trap before him, he climbed the steps of a Fifth avenue house one night to fulfill a dinner engagement.

His hostess was a charming woman, and her dinners were famous. He was in a very pleasant frame of mind. As he opened the little envelope containing the name of his dinner partner he exclaimed so sharply that the well trained footman could not forbear a glance of astonishment. On the card was the name of Isabel Douglas.

MacPherson, instantly in revolt, meditated flight for an instant, then realized how impossible that was and that there was nothing to do but go downstairs and meet her. Never in his life had he entertained such a violent prejudice for any woman's society as he now felt for hers. He was entirely blind to her innocence of the manner in which her name had been rung in his ears till he hated the sound of it. At any rate, she should not add him to the list of victims report said strewed her path.

He entered the big drawing room and greeted his hostess.

"I've favored you tonight," that lady said, smiling. "I've given you the prettiest and nicest girl here to take out to dinner. Do you know Miss Douglas of Kentucky?"

"I do not," said the hapless John MacPherson crisply and mentally set his teeth. In two minutes it was all over, and he was properly introduced to her. Just what he had expected Miss Douglas to do was hard to say. He had braced himself for resistance, but to his bewilderment, like a dash of cool water in his face, he realized there was absolutely nothing to resist.

Miss Douglas, far lovelier than her picture, had given him one rare, cordial smile which revealed the secret of her power, for it was a smile speaking a sympathetic interest in the individual addressed, and then had not paid much more attention to him, being interested in the conversation of a returned arctic explorer.

MacPherson studied her at his leisure and as the moments passed found himself grasping wildly at all his ingrained prejudices against her. He had wits enough to reflect in a panic stricken way that if the mere sight of her was so disarming acquaintance with her might work marvelous changes in a man's feelings. When they passed out to the dining room MacPherson found himself halting for something to say, a new experience for him.

The girl herself broke the ice by remarking that she thought she knew his sister. Was not Nan Ransom out west that relative? She had mentioned her brother so often.

By the end of that dinner John MacPherson was miserable, apologetic, at sea. He did not know why he should be so upset. All he realized was that he had a crazy desire to explain to Miss Douglas how sorry he was for being such an egregious idiot as to dislike her before he had met her.

"She certainly got in her special brand of hypnotic work on me, all right," he told his reflection grimly that night as he took off his cravat before the mirror. "But, then, she's an exception."

John MacPherson was a man who went out after what he wanted when he got his mind made up. He never really made up his mind about Isabel Douglas, however—that is, deliberately. He did not have time. It was a fatal attack from the very first sight of her. And when he asked her to marry him after she had been in New York two weeks only and she very properly protested at his haste it plunged him into despair so deep that he made life unbearable for his servants.

But Miss Douglas knew of her own heart, too, after several years of experience in refusing numerous suitors, and she did not keep the man she found she really cared for waiting too long before she promised to marry him.

"I don't understand it in the least," she laughed, pleasing and smoothing her head when she had said 'Yes.'"

"Neither do I," agreed John MacPherson promptly. "And I intend to marry you as soon as I wheedle you into naming the day for fear you'll change your mind."

Then he telegraphed his sister out west, who knew nothing of what had been going on in New York. Mrs. Ransom laughed and cried alternately when she got the laconic message. It said:

"I have at last met Isabel. You can buy your gown to wear to the wedding."

A CANINE BEAUTY PARLOR.

London Establishment Which Is a Model of Elegance and Luxury.

There is in London a beauty parlor for dogs which is greatly patronized by the pets of the leisure class. This canine Salon de Beaute is appointed in a style befitting the class of dog whose patronage is sought. An artistically furnished reception room is first entered. It is bright and cheerful of appearance. There is nothing to differentiate it in the eyes of a dog of the most delicate nerves from a drawing room in which he might be paying an accustomed social call. The walls are covered with art paper since, if they were colored in distemper, his health might be affected by suggestion. There are soft cushions on the chairs. The trained nurse in nurse's uniform has a soft voice and a sympathetic smile.

A door from the reception room leads to the salon, where the first impressions a dog gets are of abundant light and air and perfect hygienic conditions. In the centre is an American barber table for dogs. In an alcove is a marble bath with hot and cold water and several kinds of sprays and douches. Antiseptics and perfumed lotions make the bath and shampoo a pleasant preliminary experience.

After the bath the patient is first carefully wiped with soft, warm towels, and then led to the barber table to be electrically dried. An American apparatus accomplishes this. An electrically driven fan in combination with a gas burner sends out from the wide nozzle of a flexible hose a stream of warm, dry air, which not only speedily completes the drying process, but gives a delightfully soothing sensation.

When the dog's coat is quite dry it is combed and brushed, and, if necessary, curled. On a shelf above the table are rows of bottles containing hair tonics, lotions, beauty creams and perfumes. The trained nurse denied that any hair tinting is done.

In an hour a little Pekinese or other toy lap dog looks at himself in the glass, and is surprised at his own perfection, and his mistress, having finished her shopping, returns to find him not only more beautiful, but more charming and delightful because of the human effect which the consciousness of his improved appearance has on his spirits and temper.

Reversed the Verdict.

A prominent citizen of a large town went raging into the electric light company's office and declared that one of their wires had killed a pet tree on his premises.

"That tree," said he, "has been standing there for twenty years, and we regarded it as one of my family. My children played under it when they were babies, and it is associated with some of the pleasantest memories of my life. When it began to die we all mourned and we could not imagine what ailed it until yesterday, when I noticed that a wire was lying right across a branch. My poor tree has been electrocuted, and I feel as if murder has been done in my house."

Considerably moved, the agent of the company went to view the scene of the tragedy and found the trees still alive, but feeble. When he came to trace the wire he discovered one end nailed to the roof of an old barn and the other twisted around a discarded pole. It had been cut off for at least two years and forgotten. But the occasion demanded something, so he made the following report:

"Tree alive; wire dead. Wire evidently killed by tree. Bill inclosed."

The Art of Being Happy.

"Cheerfulness," says Ruskin, "is as natural to the heart of man in strong health as glow to his cheek, and wherever there is habitual gloom there must be either bad air, unwholesome food, improperly severe labor or erring habits of life." If children were taught that one of the great life duties is to unfold the fun-loving side of their nature, the humorous side, there would not be so many suicides, so many unhappy, discordant, miserable people, so many failures in the world. Why shouldn't we develop the humor faculty, the fun-loving faculty, just as much as the bread-earning or any other faculty? Why should we think it is so very necessary to spend years in going to school and college to develop other mental faculties and yet take practically no pains whatever to develop the humorous, the fun-loving side of our nature?

Three New Hats.

Milliners have other troubles besides the frequent difficulty of collecting bills. One milliner tells of a letter she received from the wife of a man who in a brief time had advanced from poverty to great wealth. His family was still in obscurity, but was preparing to emerge.

"I want you should make a bonnet and two hats right off," wrote the wife, "for me and the girls, and expense is no account.

"My measure is nearly twelve inches from ear to ear over the head and eight under chin and six from top of forard to back hair, and that's near enuff for both the girls.

"I'm sandy, Jane is dark, and Lucy's got red hair. We want lively colors, and I want blue flowers and strings on mine, besides some plooms.

"Jane wants hers green, and Lucy wants pink. We don't care what shapes, but they must be becoming and so as they won't blow to peaces in the wind. Nor we don't want them loud, for my husband won't bear to such.

"Please send within five days, and if satisfatory bill will be paid at once."—Youth's Companion.

Curly Hair Means Obstinacy.

The curly headed man uttered an exclamation of maze.

"Strange," he said, "I have been drawn for juries time and again, but I have never served. They always challenge me. I wonder why?"

"It is your curly hair," said a lawyer. "A curly headed man kills a jury. He always causes it to disagree."

"That is not true. You must be crazy," said the other.

"It is the gospel truth," the lawyer persisted. "Curly heads are as obstinate as mules. They think they know it all. They disagree with everybody.

"It is because," he hastened to add, "their curly hair makes them so good looking. In childhood they are spoiled by their parents, and in manhood women spoil them, falling in love with them on every side. So they become conceited. They disagree with everybody. Lawyers the world over recognise that as jurymen they would never do."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Getting at the Truth.

At twenty-three he thought fate was making a special effort to keep him down.

At thirty-five he thought he might have done great things if his wife had not been such a handicap.

At forty he believed he would have been a great man if his children had not made it necessary for him to cling to the sure things.

At fifty he was positive that there was a conspiracy against him on the part of his fellow men.

At sixty he felt that if he could have been thirty-five again nothing could have stopped him.

At seventy he began to believe that he had failed because of a lack of courage and inability to make the most of his opportunities.

At eighty he was almost sure of it.—Chicago Record-Herald.

His Ailment.

The captain had been tortured with a million questions about everything between heaven and earth, bearing it all heroically and patiently—the names of the towns they passed, the number of passengers on board, the size of his family, how much his salary, dangers, storms, etc.

One of the Ladies—How long have you been in charge here, captain?

Captain—Not very long, madam; only two years.

Lady—Indeed? And why did the former captain leave?

Captain—He died, madam.

Lady—How sad! And what did he die of?

Captain—He was asked to death by the ladies.—Judge.

FENCING FROM the STANDPOINT of PHYSICAL·CULTURE

A CLASS OF COLLEGE GIRLS TAKING A FENCING LESSON OUT DOORS

"SALUTE, young ladies!" And at the sound of the fencing master's voice a score of girls swing into position, bodies that were inert quiver with excitement of a coming bout with foils, eyes sparkle with excitement, and there follows a ring of steel against steel, telling that the fencing lesson has begun.

"It is marvellous what I have been able to accomplish with my class," confided the enthusiastic master during a rest in the daily practice. "When I took them six months ago they were awkward and angulaly, hardly a single movement had grace and attractiveness. Now look at them. Are they not quick, sinuous, alert and well developed young ladies? Where could you find a more graceful carriage, a greater amount of suppleness and lightness? Ah, believe me, there is nothing in all the list of exercises so beneficial to the feminine figure as fencing, and no girl should neglect taking lessons with the foils for at least one year if she looks forward to a successful social career, where grace counts for almost as much as beauty.

"Fencing lessons will do more for the improvement of the feminine outline than any other exercise. A girl who is too stout cannot fence well, so if she practises regularly the surplus fat disappears as if by magic. And the girl that is too thin for the present beauty standard fills out wonderfully after she has had a few months' hard work with the foils. Fencing seems to smooth out all the imperfections of contour. And that is not its greatest advantage. The quick movements required in practice will quicken the sluggish temperament. Fencing improves the vision, because a fencer must learn to see quickly and the body learns to move in the most graceful attitudes: Fencing means grace. One cannot become expert with the foils without acquiring sinuous and attractive poses, and the movements learned in this sport are used unconsciously in every other. A good fencer will develop into a good dancer. To be able to dance, however, does not mean that one can fence right off, but the various positions will come more readily to the beginner who understands the art of dancing than to the novice."

GIRLS' schools invariably include fencing among their list of exercises, and the classes are always popular. In the expensive schools high priced fencing masters are employed and the girls are taught to handle the foils with such skill that they can parry and thrust with their brothers. In the city there are a few excellent clubs for the purpose of promoting interest in this noble art. Tournaments are frequently held, and exhibitions which are a credit to the teachers and pupils are given during the fencing season.

For a girl who has grown a bit rusty on fencing and needs only a few pointers the following will be found useful, and even the amateur who wants to learn the art of fencing will find them of great value:—First of all the fencer should learn how to grasp the foil. This should be held firmly so that a quick strain from the adversary's thrust will not loosen the hold, yet it should not be gripped or the hilt clutched in the hand. Too firm a hold will strain the wrist and forearm. Let the hand lie flat on the convex part of the hilt, forefinger extended along the foil and the other fingers curled about the hilt and resting flat against the left side, touching each other lightly.

There is a great deal of science in the grasp of the foil, for through her blade the fencer understands her opponent's play and her sword must be free to ward it off with lightning quickness.

THE first attitude assumed by the fencer as she steps forward or to the centre of the field before placing herself on guard is as follows:—Stand with the body erect, heels just touching and toes pointed out, the right toe in a straight line with that of the opponent and the left foot at a sharp angle to the right. While the body is held erect it is swung slightly to the right, thus presenting a three-quarter view to the adversary. The sword hand is held on a line with the head. The left arm is allowed to swing at the side, not close to the body, however, and with the palm of the hand turned outward.

The salute is a picturesque posture and is a preliminary to the battle. While in the position just described the fencers stand at the correct distance from each other, this being determined by the length of arms and foils, and the arms of both fencers fall gracefully at their sides, the buttons on the foils just touching the floor. They should strike it a little toward the left of the right foot. At a signal both fencers step forward, raising the right arm until it is on a level with the top of the head, blades extended. The hands then drop to a line with the chin, almost touching it and the blades continuing upright. With a quick movement they sweep downward and to the right, this being one of the most attractive and graceful of the fencing movements.

With another quick movement the blade is brought forward and the tip of the foil grasped in the left hand, both arms raised over the head, and after a second or two the left hand falls to the side slowly and half bent, elbow down and the hand on a line with the ear. It is held some distance from the head, fingers pointing upward, while the right hand falls into position for "on guard" and the signal for the struggle to begin is given.

THE position of "on guard," the second in the series, is equally interesting. Lower the right hand from first position, turning the knuckles downward and move the blade so that the left hand grasps it lightly. Then raise both hands slowly and gracefully above the head, allow the left hand to loosen its grasp and fall into position at the back of the head, keeping the arms bent and half outstretched so that the open palm is on a level with the head. Then move the right hand to the front, just a trifle below the breast and to the right, with the elbow coming close to the body. Hold the foil in a horisontal position so that its tip is on a line with the eyes. Now advance the right foot about eighteen inches, being careful to keep the right heel on a line with the left, and allow the weight of the body to fall equally on both feet, so that one leg feels no more strain than the other. In this position the body is well balanced, yet poised so that the quickest possible movement can be made without any difficulty.

The lunge or extension now follows, and this is one of the hardest to manage. Stretch the right arm from its former position close to the body until it moves straight out at the same height as the shoulders. The body should never be the least bit rigid in this position, in fact pliability is one of the greatest qualities of the skilful fencer. Neither should the body be bent in this movement. Advance the right foot a trifle, keeping the knee directly in line with the instep. Do not lean forward or backward, except when advancing or retreating, and be sure that the body is upright. One of the easiest errors to fall into is bending as the body retreats or advances. When there is no one at hand to call attention to such errors the fencer is apt to acquire bad habits, and for this reason class work is excellent practice.

IN moving forward or backward the start is always made with the right foot and followed by the left. One of the first rules given by the instructor is to take small steps, never long strides. The position can be changed or shifted by ending the right knee forward or straightening it. This will move the body forward or backward, the distance of the movement depending upon the degree of the bend. When retreating or stepping backward always start with the reverse foot, that is, with the left and follow with the right.

FENCING terms are unintelligible to the novice. "Tierce" means when the fencers have their foils crossed with points upward and blades to the right of each other. When in the same position with the sword points to the left of each other the fencers are engaged in "quarte." A lunge in "tierce" is thrusting to the right and high, in "quarte" the same movement is made with the swords to the left.

The regulation fencing costume is one of the most picturesque of athletic attire. Short skirts are essential and sometimes they are accordion pleated. The plain gored skirt is as practicable as any. School girls often wear their gymnasium suits, and when they practice in the open air they don sweaters. The athletic field or the lawn outside the gymnasium is an excellent practice ground for the fencing classes and instructors have found that girls like the open air work far more than they do foil practice indoors.

A College Girl's Touring Equipment.

IN anticipation of a trip of several weeks' duration through a region where first class hostleries are conspicuously absent a college girl of practical mind has provided herself with a number of small and easily packed conveniences.

Into a flat dressing case of pigskin lined with morocco and fitted with tooth and soap boxes she has found space for a manicure set, a sanitary closed case containing a hair brush having a celluloid plate under the bristles to insure easy cleansing, a package of non-scented dry shampoo powder for freeing the hair of oil and dust, a metal box holding a tiny powder puff, a securely fastened wooden case for quarter ounce screw top bottles of ammonia, peroxide and witch hazel and a silk lined morocco heart-shaped affair holding four sterling silver ribbon runners and thread reels. A bevelled mirror set into the back of a four by eight inch black seal envelope purse which holds stationery, a fountain pen and its filler is protected by a feather weight rubberized silk raincoat and hat and a dark hooded kimono which can be folded into an infinitesimal amount of space.

In addition to the toilet conveniences the travelling case accommodates a pint coffee pot of dull copper with a removable inside percolator, a nickel teapot, which may be tilted to regulate the beverage to the desired strength, a poacher which cooks six eggs and a non-explosive alcohol chafing dish lamp which generates its own gas.

Birthday Dolls.

THE girl who wishes to remember the birthday anniversary of some small feminine relative or friend will find a visit to the doll emporiums entertaining and instructive. Instead of the conventional baby features and garb, dolls now have faces of varying ages and are dressed accordingly.

There are replicas of the "summer girl," golfing, tennis, yachting and motoring enthusiast, bride, widow, French maid, waitress and cook—all suitably garbed. Japanese tea room attendants, Dutch, Eskimo and Indian children, with different types of faces and in native costume, and infant dolls, have countenances modelled from life by expert artists.

Everything that an American doll wears is now to be—purchased ready made. There are fashionable frocks, gowns, bath robes, wraps, rubberised rain coats, Leghorn, straw, chiffon and lace hats and every imaginable accessory.

SOME SMART HATS EASILY TRIMMED

IT is somewhat a pity that the lingerie hats are no longer worn—they were so universally becoming, so attractive to make one's self and withal so singularly appropriate with the style of simple morning dress for which they were designed. However, no fashion can remain forever in favor, and the straw hats with large Alsatian bows of lace bordered lawn that are now so smart are certainly extremely effective.

It is rather a fad among young girls this year to be decidedly "sporty" in appearance on the tennis court or golf links, and, in fact, for whatever form of outdoor fun or exercise they may pursue, the costumes contrasting sharply with the charmingly pretty and girlish frocks and hats which are donned in the afternoon. Soft brimmed, comfortable Panama straws are worn again for riding, tennis and all forms of more or less strenuous exercise, but, unfortunately, only a girl with curly hair can look attractive in a Panama, for this hat requires to be worn far down on the head in a way which hopelessly flattens straight hair.

With the hair worn low on the neck or in a braid down the back a wide brimmed sailor is almost invariably becoming, and this year both white and black sailors are in vogue, the later being, perhaps, the more fashionable. Mushroom sailors are still in evidence, but flat sailors are more in demand than was the case last year.

White duck and pique hats, severely plain, with only a lawn scarf and bow-knot or large rosette as ornamentation, are delightfully cool and light. There is no hat, in fact, which so well takes the place of an embroidered linen or batiste morning hat.

With simple gowns of linen or gingham altogether the prettiest hats this year are those either of natural colored linen ornamented with an enormous bow-knot of plain or bright colored ribbon or the wide brimmed chip straws trimmed with large double bowknots of finest lawn or mull bordered with Valenciennes or baby Irish edging.

These new hats are, fortunately, no more difficult for a girl to make and trim herself than were the lingerie hats of a few summers back. First a good straw shape must be found, which, if too mushroom in effect, can be raised up on the head by means of a flat bandeau or velvet "halo." It is almost always possible at this time of the year to find a good untrimmed sailor shape in white, yellow, black or any colored straw desired.

The large bowknot is then made of finest French mousseline or perhaps a sheer embroidered batiste, the lace edge gathered in slightly to give a softer look. Any girl can surely make a pretty double loop or Alsatian bowknot, this being placed just in the centre of the hat, with one end of the knot left sufficiently long to encircle the crown.

This model can be carried out in any color or combination of colors that may be desired, and it is not a bad plan to have for one hat several different bowknots of various shades to change according to the gown with which the hat is worn.

Linen and pique wide brimmed flat hats are not so very difficult to do and are certainly worth attempting, so smart are they this season.

First a good wire shape must be procured, and this has only to be covered with a piece of linen of the desired shade. The best and safest way of covering a flat wire shape is by cutting first a good pattern in paper or cambric, this being done by placing a piece of the material over the top of the hat, cutting a slit in the centre so that it can slip down over the crown, and then, when the material fits flat on the brim, cutting it even around the edge of the brim.

The lining for the under side of the brim is made in the same way, the only difficult part being the neat joining of this facing. The top of the crown, of course, must be perfectly smooth and flat, but the sides of the crown can be hidden by the material or ribbon of which the bow is formed.

There are any number of variations possible in this style of hat—shirring about the crown and brim, cording, rows of tucks, all add to the charm of the model, but for a beginner the simple design is unquestionably the best.

A hat is undoubtedly the most important part of a costume, but an expensive hat is not necessary, at any rate in the summer, when a girl has plenty of time to turn out any number of fascinating hats. Even if she has not sufficient talent to make for herself a large, dainty Alsatian bow, she can then find a becoming straw shape in white or yellow and have made and wired a number of different colored ribbon bowknots, which she can change each time a different colored frock is donned.

FASHIONS FOR HOME MADE LINGERIE

DIMITY instead of plain nainsook or fine linen is just now extremely popular for all kinds of underwear, and for the girl who makes all or a great part of her own lingerie this is a fad well worth knowing of, for dimity, having a pattern of its own, calls for far less trimming than a plainer fabric. Dimity of a pretty check or stripe design requires little more adornment than a single edging of lace and perhaps some little tucking, whereas all batiste undergarments are profusely trimmed with hand embroidery and countless insertions of lace.

Both night dresses and chemises are ridiculously simple to make, and if a girl will only keep herself supplied in these two departments of her lingerie she will have sufficient saved to buy what else she may desire. The prettiest pattern for a summer nightgown is square cut, low neck, with short kimono or cap sleeves, the only trimming being a flat band of beading sufficiently wide for a one-inch ribbon about the neck and the same at the end of the sleeves. An edging of lace an inch or less in width and perhaps a few rows of tucks run below the beading will make as attractive a nightdress as could be desired. This gown slips on over the head, the ribbons being tied in front at each corner, so that there are no troublesome buttonholes and button slips to make.

It is an excellent plan to buy one night dress of an especially pretty design and good fit as a sample from which to cut the others. If, however, a girl does not feel that she can expend so much as a really pretty gown costs she can buy a paper pattern which will answer all requirements and is, in fact, easier to cut from.

For chemise and corset cover as well as night dress a square neck is now preferred to a round or V shape. Not only is the square more becoming, but over this shape the waist will be found to fit better and also give a wider shoulder line.

If a chemise is worn instead of a corset cover it must not be longer than a few inches below the waist, else it will cause the skirt of the dress to fit badly. A girl cannot commence too young to see to it that her underskirts and corset cover fit smoothly in order that her outer dress will look trim and neat and all unnecessary fulness and wrinkles be avoided. For this reason a fitted corset waist is preferable to a chemise, which, unless it is fitted in at the waist with the lower part or skirt added separately below a band of beading, is sure to interfere with the fit of the shirt waist and skirt worn over it.

Cheap lace is of all things to be avoided on underwear, and if a girl cannot afford a really good Valenciennes she should content herself with fine embroidery. For a young girl the most attractive undergarments are of a sheer quality of linen, trimmed only with hand scalloping and perhaps some simple design of hand embroidery. The open English embroidery is now preferred to the French and Swiss work, and this is of course the most effective. Also Irish lace, or rather baby Irish edging and insertion, have taken the place for the moment of the finer Valenciennes, which, exquisitely pretty as it is when first put on, never looks well after the first washing. Irish, on the other hand, is, if anything, improved by soap, water and ironing.

When she is making her own lingerie a girl should always turn out her undergarments in complete sets and not wear a lace trimmed chemise with an embroidered corset waist or a petticoat trimmed with one kind of lace and a waist of another design.

Naturally, too, of course, all garments must be trimmed with the one shade of ribbon. This summer white ribbon is preferred for the under waist and petticoat when a gown of sheer texture is worn, and satin is now in vogue rather than the wash ribbon formerly so fashionable. The satin, however, must be double faced.

It is as important to-day for a petticoat to have its band of inch wide beading with ribbon run through as for the corset waist itself to be thus adorned. Beading can always be added to a skirt above the flounce, and if the skirt itself is of sufficiently good quality and trimming it is well worth while to add this little finish should the skirt have been bought without it.

Silk shirts are decidedly costly but to make are comparatively inexpensive, and for warm weather are both hygienic and comfortable. Cut from any silk or paper pattern. The undershirt can easily be finished at the neck with a narrow beading and an edging of lace. With a little ingenuity a tiny wreath or small floral spray can be drawn on the shirt and easily embroidered, thus making this garment the equal of the most expensive article of its kind to be found in the shops.

should neglect taking lessons with the foils for at least one year if she looks forward to a successful social career, where grace counts for almost as much as beauty.

"Fencing lessons will do more for the improvement of the feminine outline than any other exercise. A girl who is too stout cannot fence well, so if she practises regularly the surplus fat disappears as if by magic. And the girl that is too thin for the present beauty standard fills out wonderfully after she has had a few months' hard work with the foils. Fencing seems to smooth out all the imperfections of contour. And that is not its greatest advantage. The quick movements required in practice will quicken the sluggish temperament. Fencing improves the vision, because a fencer must learn to see quickly and the body learns to move in the most graceful attitudes: Fencing means grace. One cannot become expert with the foils without acquiring sinuous and attractive poses, and the movements learned in this sport are used unconsciously in every other. A good fencer will develop into a good dancer. To be able to dance, however, does not mean that one can fence right off, but the various positions will come more readily

SOCIAL AMENITIES FOR THE SCHOOL GIRL

THE decalogue of good behavior embraces a code which covers a wide field, but, though there is much to learn about good manners, fortunately when once one forms the habit of taking pains about the little things as well as the big it is astonishing how rapidly improvement rewards our efforts.

One of the little things to constantly bear in mind is to refrain from calling attention to deficiencies, either your own or those of your friends. Nothing embarrasses more than being made aware of our defects by others, and sometimes consciousness of our own gets such a hold on us that it makes us appear most awkward and ill at ease.

One cannot attain perfect manners except by most painstaking care, and so when we say or do the wrong thing we must not brood on it, but forget it as quickly as possible and endeavor not to repeat the mistake. Often a little slip in manners will pass unnoticed if attention is not called to it—as, for instance, addressing a person by the wrong name. Some girls find it extremely difficult to remember the names of persons whom they meet formally, the name apparently making little if any impression on their minds. If it makes none they evade the matter by avoiding using the person's name.

Sometimes we will perfectly understand the name of the person we are meeting, but on addressing her will thoughtlessly call her Mrs. Blank instead of Mrs. Brown, and then, aware of our error, we will say, perhaps, in a nervous, embarrassed desire to set ourselves right, "Oh, pardon me, I knew you were Mrs. Brown, but I am so stupid about names." Such an apology is unnecessary, and, more than that, it is giving undue emphasis to an error which, as soon as perceived, you can set right without calling attention to it. Let your mistake pass without comment, but show that you are not as stupid as you seem by making a point of calling her by her right name as soon as possible.

To remedy our mistakes is far better than apologizing for them in cases like this, where the remedy can be immediate.

NEW DUTCH COLLARS AND PINS.

PURITAN collars are favorite accessories of the young girl's shirt waist suit. These collars are made of white linen finished with tailor stitched edges and stiffly laundered. In shape they greatly resemble the starched, unlined linen Dutch collars which are usually hand embroidered in all white mingled with a color. They are fastened with silk Ascot ties or with soft satin messaline shield bows, having fancy loops and fringed nine inch ends.

Soft Dutch collars, so-called, are of batiste, fine linen or lawn, hand embroidered and trimmed with lace or of allover muslin embroidery finished with a Valenciennes frilling. They are joined with jabots of a matching material or with Dutch pins.

Sailor collars are of starched plain white or colored linen edged with hemstitching, scalloping or waving and embroidered in polka dot, vine, eyelet and blind patterns in white, green, blue or dark red. With these collars are woven long Ascots of linen with art design embroidered ends done in all white or with colors.

To accompany the stiff turnover collars of white or solid color linen are narrow silk cravats having butterfly bows and tassel finished looped ends and bows of colored satin, with a plaited centre and plaiting bordered edges.

Stiff Gibson collars which fasten at the back of the neck are of starched plain or embroidered white linen and are worn without pin or tie. The Gibson collars in lingerie materials are so soft that, like the lace, and net stocks, they require some sort of support. The latest supporter consists of a thin celluloid sheet with apertures at either end and two hasp hooks near the centre. The sheer material is merely pressed by the finger tip into the apertures of the supporter and then engaged and locked on the other side by the hasp.

Rosebery to Resign?

New York, July 5.—The Herald's London correspondent cables: Lord Rosebery has at last, I hear, decided to break the ties that still bind him to the Liberal party, and he will pronounce his reasons for doing so in a letter which is to be read at the next meeting of the Liberal League.

This will mean his complete and formal severance from the party with which he has been associated throughout his political career. He has had this step in consideration for some time and he came to the decision before his recently issued manifesto on the budget, which was intended to be the first hint of his approaching defection.

Strenuous efforts are being made to make him change his mind and induce him to still keep up an attitude of benevolent neutrality toward the old party.

UNITED STATES NOW CLAIMS ATTENTION

Prominent German Says Europe Should Check Uncle Sam.

THREATENS WHOLE WORLD

Judge Schwarze In an Article In Der Tag Declares that the United States Is the Force to Be Feared and That Instead of Fighting Each Other Germany and England Should Unite Their Strength.

Berlin, July 4.—Judge Wilhelm Schwarze, a prominent member of the Reichstag and of the Prussian House of Representatives, seizes upon America's eleventh-hour use of moral force to secure participation in the Chinese railway loan as a pretext for a fresh and vigorous warning against "the American peril."

Writing in Der Tag, under the caption, "Europe for Europeans," the learned judge urges that England and Germany abandon their mutual suspicions, trade competitions, and naval rivalries, and league themselves without further delay against their common enemy from across the water.

"America," declares the jurist and politician, "is the peril not only for England and Germany, but for all Europe. Instead of arriving at common ways and means for combating the still latent danger, England and Germany are preparing to tear each other to pieces. In order to make the danger acute, Greater Britain and Greater Germany would go to smash on account of the United States.

"Europe should realize this in time to preserve what is still to be preserved. The yellow peril is altogether secondary. Our Imperial cousin in America is the greater danger. The dollar is the bigger. It will annihilate the shilling and the mark unless Europe sets up its own Monroe doctrine of Europe for Europeans. This doctrine must eventually take the form of an economic alliance of all Europe, including England, otherwise America will be the conquerer in the world battle and will exhaust Europe. The cause of this war would be the supremacy of the sea and the world markets. No matter who won, America would be the eventual and the supreme gainer.

"It is high time to explode the fiction that England and Germany are the chief rivals for world trade dominion, and that whoever is defeated the other would attain to it. The competitors are not England and Germany. America is not only he competitor of England and Germany alone, but of both of them together.

"Let us not be deceived by the fact that the American merchant marine at present is no match for the English and German mercantile fleets. That is a circumstance due, not to the inability of America to have such a fleet, but simply because it has hitherto not wanted one. That America will get such a fleet when it needs it is deducible from its imperialistic development in recent times.

"It must also be plain that American designs on Canada would be hastened by an Anglo-Germany war. If England and Germany fight they will fly at each other's throats for the benefit of America. America will be the laughing heir of both. That this will without doubt be the case is indicated by the brutal procedure of Aldrich and Payne in connection with the new tariff bill and by the forward policy of Secretary Knox in China.

"It is of the most vital necessity that the economic factors of Europe unite against pan-Americanism before it is too late."

Brakeman Fatally Hurt.

St. Catharines, July 5.—In Merritton on Saturday afternoon, Charles Mennan, brakeman, lost his life through injuries received in the G.T.R. yards. Mennan, while performing regular duties, fell under the wheels of the car. When removed to the hospital amputation was found necessary, the left leg being amputated below the knee. He died yesterday morning. His home was in Harrisburg.

Max. and Min. Provision Adopted.

Wasnington, July 5—The maximum and minimum provisions of the tariff bill were adopted by the Senate on Saturday by a vote of 36 to 18. The provisions of this measure will go into effect March 31, 1910, and 90 days must elapse before a President's proclamation applying the maximum duty of 25 per cent. ad valorem in addition to other duties provided in the bill will be operative.

Woman Takes Paris Green.

Hastings, July 5.—Mrs. James Stevenson died Saturday as a result of taking paris green about 10 a.m. Friday.

After she had taken the poison she crossed the road to her daughter, and told her what she had done. Medical aid was at once summoned, but without success. She was about 60 years of age, and her health had been poor for some time.

Queen of Spain's Ambition.

Madrid, July 5.—The Queen of Spain, when congratulated on the birth of the infant princess, answered: "Yes, isn't it nice. I always hoped I should have as many babies as grandmamma and I still hope so."

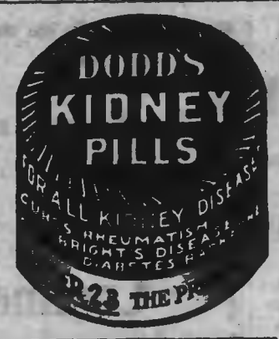
The Queen's determination to have a larger family than her mother has been noted.

New High School Principal.

St. Catharines, July 5.—At a special meeting of the collegiate institute board on Saturday, A. E. Coombs of Newmarket was appointed principal to succeed Principal John Henderson, who was principal for 34 years, and is resigning.

Talked With John Burns.

London, July 5.—Earl Grey, accompanied by Hon. Frank Oliver and J. Obed Smith, had an interview Saturday with John Burns. Mr. Oliver, interviewed by the Canadian Associated Press, said: "There is nothing to tell you. We just had a talk on emigration matters in a general sort of way." Mr. Oliver is leaving to-day for the continent.



COBALT WILL HAVE IMPROVED STREETS

Cobalt Fire Area Will Be Properly Surveyed First.

VICTIMS ARE COMFORTABLE

These Rendered Homeless by Fire Are Now Being Well Cared For and Mattresses Are the Only Supplies Needed — The Nipissing Company Forbids Rebuilding Pending a New Survey.

Cobalt, July 5.—The town was crowded yesterday with sightseers from the three other cities of silverdom, crowding into the silver hub to view the fire ruins.

Tents are springing up all over the ruins and enterprising Syrians would have already started building on a more pretentious scale if the Nipissing Company had not forbidden it until the ground has been properly laid out. Lots will be surveyed to get a proper alignment of the streets and town will probably impose building restrictions which will prevent further construction of the matchbox order.

The street through the Nipissing property will be widened by ten feet. The Nipissing were never desirous of allowing a town to grow up on their land, but they could not prevent the natural trend of growth towards the north. Now it is probable they will take advantage of the opportunity and do a considerable amount of exploration work, and in any case building will be delayed for some time.

Hundreds are going out of town and there is a land boom at North Cobalt and all places within a reasonable distance of Cobalt.

In the meantime the homeless people are sleeping in tents which have been laid out in military lines by Capt. Leckie and Major Holland.

The only lack is of experienced workers to raise the tents, as supplies from Toronto and the Militia Department are ample.

No more food is needed or supplies with the exception of mattresses. The city is now feeding and housing about 1,500 people in the tented city and the various public buildings of the town.

There is a good humor and resignation everywhere and the people have shown astonishing self-reliance.

The total loss is placed at $300,000, with about $40,000 insurance.

Subscriptions to the relief funds include $1,000 from Coleman Township, $250 from the Salvation Army, Toronto; $250 from the Nipissing Central Railway; Geo. McKay, $100; P. J. Finlan, $100; and many other subscriptions from $1 to $25.

Bush fires on both sides of the Montreal River on Thursday afternoon destroyed four houses and three shacks at Elk Lake. No insurance. Estimated loss $3,000. The principal losers are Alex. Perault, G. Phelps and W. Wilson.

Police After an Inhuman Father.

London, Ont., July 5.—The police are looking for George Hriskos on the charge of inhumanly treating his 13-year-old daughter. Hriskos left the city suddenly Saturday night, it is believed for Hamilton or Toronto, and took the child with him. He is said to have pulled her hair out in handfuls and to have beaten and kicked her unmercifully. He took the girl away from her mother in Greece against her will and against the wishes of the mother. The police are making every effort to locate him, and if caught he will be most severely dealt with.

Settler Is Murdered.

Winnipeg, Man., July 5.—A cold-blooded murder was committed at Margo, Sask., 23 miles from Wadena and near Invermay.

Alf. D. Fraser, a settler, was plowing in his field Thursday morning when he was shot dead from behind.

The Mounted Police organized a posse and started a search, coming upon S. Hainer, carrying a loaded rifle. He pulled it on the police and retreated to his house. He fought off the posse all night, but his capture was finally effected Saturday when the party surrounded his place.

Shot for Rebuking Soldier.

Nikolskoye, Siberia, July 5.—Col. Ivomik of the quartermaster's department was shot and killed here yesterday by an attendant of the military canteen. The colonel stopped two soldiers on the street and rebuked them for failing to salute him properly. The attendant, who noticed the incident, drew a revolver and shot the colonel dead.

C.N.R. Engineers Pacified.

Winnipeg, July 5.—The trouble between the Canadian Northern Railway and their engineers was happily settled on Saturday by the arrival of D. D. Mann, vice-president of the road. Every point in dispute has been satisfactorily adjusted.

Bye-Election Announced.

St. John, N.B., July 5.—The bye-election to choose a successor to Hon. H. A. McKeown, recently appointed Supreme Court judge, has been announced for July 20. Each party has a candidate in the field.

Dynamite on Track.

Mount Morris, N.Y., July 5.—Someone dynamited the Erie tracks in three different places at Dalton, a village about a mile south of Nunda, Saturday morning at an early hour, either in a "Fourth of July" spirit, or for the purpose of wrecking the fast train which passed through Dalton west-bound at about 5.30 a.m.

Three charges of the explosive were placed only a few rods apart just west and east of the depot.

The fast train for Buffalo was the last to pass over the dynamited track, and while it passed over it without wrecking the cars or injuring any of the passengers, three large pieces of rail were broken entirely out and the track was torn up. The missing rail was discovered by the crew of the extra train going east soon after.

Canadian Injured in Seattle.

Seattle, Wn., July 5.—Mrs. Geo. H. Munroe of Toronto lies dangerously hurt at the Miner Hospital here. She has a broken left wrist, deep cut, which just missed her left temple, sprained left ankle and several bruises on the body. She may have internal injuries.

Early Saturday afternoon Mrs. Munroe and her two children were aboard a big sightseeing automobile en route to the exposition when a tire flew off a forward wheel and the heavy automobile turned over completely, throwing out all the occupants. Mrs. Munroe was one of the most seriously hurt and was rushed to the hospital.

The two children were not injured.

Dead Bandit Identified.

Vancouver, July 5.—The engineer and fireman of the C.P.R. train which was held up two weeks ago at Ducks, B. C., have identified the body of the man shot by Constable Decker on Monday night at Ashcroft as that of the leader of the train robbers.

The dead man is one who held up the engineer after crawling over the tender. It is admitted that Constable Decker's murderer, the second train robber, must have escaped from that part of the country. Tired posses have returned to Ashcroft and Kamloops after several days of fruitless search.

Lady Grey Has Scarlet Fever.

Ottawa, July 5.—Her Excellency Lady Grey and Captain [illegible], A.D.C., are ill with scarlet fever at Government House.

Both patients are making favorable progress.

The disease was contracted during Lady Grey's visit to Toronto attending the International Women's Council, on which she was accompanied by Capt. Newton.

It developed on the return journey on Thursday.

DR. PELKEY

Consumption Cured

And all other Lung and Kidney Troubles

By the Wonderful Discovery made by a Canadian Doctor

Dr. Pelkey, a Canadian Physician, holding medical certificates in France, United States and Mexico, has made a discovery that promises to be the greatest boon yet given to humanity.

His great Consumption Cure is applied by means of an inhaler, the ingredients for which are contained in a tank, and the very first use made of it by the patient brings immediate relief, followed quickly by permanent cure. These Inhalers are not sold to the people, but are placed in the home until they are not further needed, and then taken away.

Dr. Pelkey is exhibiting the invention, which is called the Peltier Inhaler, throughout the country. The inhaler is first a platinum tank, divided into 38 compartments, into which various chemicals and drugs are placed. Outside these compartments cold water is placed. The action of the cold water causes a vaporous gas to rise into an eight-part evaporator at the top, where it is purified and forced through tubes for inhalation. The gas forms pure oxygen, tasteless and odorless, and the patient inhales this. So healing is its effect that it will almost immediately stop a tubercu losis cough.

A gauge registers the amount of oxygen taken by the patient

Most wonderful of all is the fact that Dr. Pelkey offers to treat his patients with the inhaler free of charge. The only thing for which he charges is a blood-purifier and building-up tonic, which he insists upon the patient's taking. He will even allow the person undergoing the treatment to take home the tank with him and be treated there.

Dr. Pelkey has been for 17 years in Mexico and Central and South America. He has Government certificates from Mexico, Brazil, New Mexico and Canada and many Latin-American republics, testifying to cures wrought by him with the inhaler. One certificate states that nearly half a troop of Mexican soldiers and American soldiers and Government officials of Montreal were cured under his treatment. Another is signed by President Diaz, of Mexico, himself, whom Dr. Pelkey cured. Dr. Pelkey can show hundreds of other testimonials of permanent people of Ottawa, who were cured of lung troubles and kidney troubles after suffering for five years.

Recommended by

Ontario Agricultural College Guelph, Ontario

They report Bug Death has made an excellent record in each of the past two years. The potatoes on which the Bug Death was applied were more vigorous in growth and greener in appearance throughout each of the seasons than those on which other applications were made.

DO YOU WANT BETTER CROPS?

Of course you do. Well, the way is clear. Use Bug Death and you'll not only have a heavier crop, but larger potatoes of better quality.

Write or call and we'll tell you some more good things of this celebrated Bug Killer and Fertilizer, both in one.

STEAMER IS RAMMED.

Terrible Disaster Is Narrowly Averted in Straits of Dover.

Dover, Eng., July 5.—The British steamer Whakatane, running to New Zealand, was towed here yesterday in a sinking condition and beached. The Whakatane was in collision off Dungeness in a fog with the French steamer Circe. The latter was damaged, but was able to proceed on her voyage to Rotterdam. No lives were lost.

The Whakatane had 300 persons aboard. She also carried a large number of valuable horses.

It was an exceedingly narrow escape from a terrible disaster. Immediately after the vessels struck, the Circe, with the help of another steamer, took the Whakatane in tow, but the hawsers broke. The Circe then steamed to Dover for assistance.

Several tugs put out and proceeded at top speed to the sinking steamer. When the liner arrived here she presented an extraordinary appearance, with her stern lying deep in the water. All the crew were mustered forward. Six salvage tugs and other vessels were lending assistance in the difficult operation of towing the sinking steamer to the beach.

The Circe had crashed into her amidships, making a great rent in her side.

Car Wrecks Buggy.

Hamilton, July 5.—A street car struck a buggy at the corner of King William and James streets about 10.40 last night, and four people had a miraculous escape from death.

Two women were badly injured, and two male occupants of the carriage escaped with severe bruises.

The women were Miss Amelia Spiece, 79 South Wellington street, and Mrs. Bray of Dundas, and the men were Earl Foster and Geo. Pyle of Dundas. The women were taken to the residence of Miss Spiece in the ambulance, and it is not known how seriously they were injured. The men were able to go home unassisted.

The carriage was struck square in the middle, and, it was remarkable that those in it were not all killed.

The buggy was smashed to pieces, and the horse was badly injured.

Round-the-World Service.

Victoria, B.C., July 5.—"As soon as the Panama Canal is finished, the North German Lloyd Steamship Co. will have a line of round-the-world steamers running into this port," said C. Friesland, agent of the German line at Hamburg, who arrived from Australia on Saturday.

Steamers from Hamburg and Bremen to the Orient by way of the Suez Canal will return to Germany by way of the Panama Canal as soon as it is finished, touching at Puget Sound ports.

Body Recovered From Niagara.

Niagara Falls, N.Y., July 5.—The river yesterday afternoon gave up its fifth body within a month and the fourth within a week. It is that of a man about 40 years old, 5 feet 9 inches in height; weight 140 pounds; nude except for a pair of black socks and one black shoe. It had not been in the water long. Identification may be established by the teeth, which contained considerable gold.

MINERS EXPECTED TO STRIKE TOMORROW

Break Between Dominion Coal Co. and Men Is Certain.

ELECTRIC WIRES ARE SET

Stout Fences Fixed With Wires Are Placed Around the Works and 250 Special Constables Are Sworn In In Anticipation of Trouble—Duggan Refuses to Confer With Members of U.M.W.

Halifax, July 5.—A strike of the miners affiliated with the United Mine Workers of America and employed by the Dominion Coal Co. is expected on Tuesday.

General Manager Duggan has refused positively to confer with a committee representing the union.

The trouble is due to a quarrel between the U.M.W. with headquarters in the United States, and the P.W.A., a local organization.

Meanwhile, the Dominion Coal Co. have sworn in about 250 special police, have erected stout fences and have electric wired the barricades.

In a statement last night Mr. Duggan denied the assertion that the fences had been filled with live wires for the express purpose of keeping striking workmen from committing possible damage to property. The wires, he said, were fitted with electric bulbs for giving better lighting facilities. The wires were eight feet from the ground and were out of all danger — unless some person should endeavor to trespass on the property.

To-day he will issue a proclamation stating that as the company now has an agreement with its workmen through the P.W.A. to continue rates and conditions of employment until Dec. 31, 1909, it will continue to mine and ship coal with the aid of P.W.A. men, who are loyal to their undertaking. The company agrees to extend all protection in their power to the persons and families of men who continue to work, and give notice that any man who does not report for work Tuesday morning is liable to be regarded as a striker.

The company have erected a large number of houses inside the colliery fences for workmen who may wish to occupy these until the strike is over.

It is expected that to-night the full force of 600 special police enrolled by the municipality will be on duty.

The Dominion Coal Co. officials do not look for a long drawn out strike, and it is the general opinion that the trouble will be all over inside of a couple of weeks.

The company is in communication with coal corporations in England, Scotland and Wales, any of which will, on receipt of a cable, send all the men asked for to Cape Breton.

This medium, however, will not be availed of only as a last resort, as the company are anxious to employ home labor exclusively if possible. The coal company are at present paying the best wages of any firm in Canada, under their long term contract with the P.W.A., and they intend to fulfil their obligations in this respect.

Practically all the summer contracts have been filled and between 100,000 and 160,000 tons of coal are banked.

Two thousand tents have arrived at Glace Bay for the U.M.W., and it is understood these will be erected near the collieries, in which the pickets and the scouts of the strikers may live, so as to be in close proximity to the strike.

It has been reported about Glace Bay that the different railroad corporations in the colliery districts will go out on strike in sympathy with the U.M.W. There is said to be not the slightest foundation for such a rumor, as the railroad men, under their constitution, cannot interfere in any labor dispute outside of their own organization.

Grafters Put Away.

Tokio, July 5.—Twenty-three members of the present Diet and of the preceding one were given sentences varying lengths, following conviction for complicity in the fraud revealed in the recent sugar scandal.

Five of the 22 were sentenced to ten months' imprisonment, four to seven months, five to nine months, and three of five months.

Only one of the men brought to trial was acquitted.

To See the Lift Locks.

Peterboro, July 5.—A deputation of Belgian officials arrived Saturday afternoon to inspect the hydraulic lift lock on the Trent Canal. The delegates included Hector Genard, inspector-general of bridges and highways; Leon Van Wetter, engineer of bridges and highways; Kroft de la Saule, chief engineer of buildings and secretary of the Belgian Government, and John Cockerill of Searing.

Ear Bitten by Horse.

Woodstock, July 5.—Mrs. Butler, wife of R. E. Butler, head of the Butler Lumber Co., was putting her horse in the garden when the animal got her ear between its teeth and bit the greater part of the member off, dropping it on the ground.

The ear was found afterwards, and an endeavor will be made to graft it on again.

N. S. Utilities Board.

Halifax, July 5.—The following have been appointed members of the board of commissioners of public utilities: Hugh Mackenzie, K.C., of Truro; John U. Ross, K.C., of Pictou, and Parker R. Colpitt of Halifax. Hugh Mackenzie is to be chairman of said board, and the secretary is Stuart Jenks of Halifax, barrister.

Wanted In Drayton.

Ottawa, July 5.—William Swift, held here on a charge of fraud and an attempt at suicide, will be taken to-night to Drayton, Ont., where he is wanted to face another charge.

Bodies Recovered.

Montreal, July 5.—The bodies of Harry Shaw and H. Crossley were found yesterday at Sorel, quite near where the two young men were drowned on Dominion Day.

TRAIL OF GYPSIES

Tried Their Favourite Tricks in Two Frazerville Stores—Were Travelling West—Last Heard Of in Millbrook.

PICKED UP ARTICLES

Examiner Special.

Frazerville, July 5.—Three loads, supposed to be one tribe of the gypsies, passed through the village on Friday afternoon, July 3rd. They caused a little excitement for the time being, by going into the two general stores.

First they entered the store of Mr. W. J. Timlin and purchased some goods endeavouring at the same time to get their money's worth, by snatching up some other articles which were at hand, in the nature of canned goods, etc.

Mr. Timlin happened to be home at the time and tooko the articles from them ordering them out of the store at the same time, showing that he did not believe in giving special bargains to visitors.

After this little encounter, they went across the road to Mr. W. A. Kidd's store, where they met with about the same success, however, they managed to get away with two loaves of bread, which had been sold to a customer, and were lying on the counter.

After paying a visit to each store, the gypsies passed out of the village taking a southward course, and were last heard of in the neighbourhood of Millbrook.

FIVE YEARS IN BUSINESS

Messrs. Lang & Maher Secured Present Premises Exactly Five Years Ago.

Five years ago to-day Messrs. Lang and Maher paid their first rental for the premises in which they commenced business, and are now occupying to-day. This fact was casually learned to-day when one of the reporters in the store saw a cheque paid to a man and one of the members of the firm remarked: "There is the last payment of five years' rental. We secured the store just five years ago to-day, although we did not open for business until August."

CANOE WAS ROCKED AND TWO BOYS NARROWLY ESCAPED DROWNING

Timely Rescue by Party in a Skiff---One of the Boys Had Gone Down Three Times---Accident Occurred Yesterday Afternoon Above Crawford's Grove and in Middle of the River.

What is stated to have been a very narrowly averted double drowning occurred on the Otonabee yesterday afternoon about one-quarter of a mile below the Street Railway wharf. Harold Morrow, Harold Warmington and another boy, unknown to the eye witnesses who recounted the details of the affair were paddling in a canoe and in spite of all the warnings that have been given out since the year, one, the third boy, was rocking the boat.

Two other canoes were close at hand, one about fifty feet away and the other much farther. No attention was paid to them until suddenly a cry for help was heard, the canoe having been overturned and all three were floundering in midstream. Morrow could swim and would probably have taken care of himself but the other two lads were helpless.

Boys Were Rescued

It is very fortunate that help was close at hand for from all accounts Warmington and the stranger were almost gone. Wm. Coons, Dod Emery, and two other young men were close by in a skiff and quickly brought their craft to the rescue. Morrow climbed into the skiff and Warmington was caught by the hair by Coons as he came to the surface the third time. Those who were nearby state that another minutes and he would probably have disappeared. The other boy is stated to have been in a condition almost as bad as Warmington. The latter had taken in some water but showed no serious effects beyond being exhausted. A rest on shore restored him and all three started for home. Two young men in another canoe picked up the cushions, paddles and other articles that were floating after the upset.

The accident occurred at about fifteen minutes to five o'clock, and excepting the three boats and the person who gave the account of the upset there were none others in sight, although it was not long until there were others. The statement that the unknown boy was making a cradle of the canoe is verified and was very likely the cause of the accident.

Mr. Alfred Davies Passed Away At His Residence On Saturday

After an illness extending over a period of two years, Mr. Alfred Davies passed away at his late residence, 106 McDonnell street on Saturday afternoon. Although Mr. Davies had been in failing health for some time his death came quite unexpectedly. In fact he had felt so much improved of late that his only daughter, Miss Helen Davies left last week to visit relatives in England and is at present on the ocean. However, on Friday he began to grow worse and gradually sank until the end came peacefully as stated above.

The late Mr. Davies was born in Manchester, England, fifty-four years ago. He came to Canada in 1893, first taking up residence in Norwood but soon after moved to Peterborough. He had resided here for the past fifteen years. Mr. Davies was for seven years organist in St. Luke's Church, resigning to take a similar position at St. Andrew's Church. He was a clever musician and a teacher of great ability. He had a large class of piano students and there are many musicians in this city who owe their success as such to his careful training.

He was a member of St. John's Church and last evening the rector, Rev. Canon Davidson made feeling reference to his death. Chopin's dead march was played by Mr. R. J. Devey at the conclusion of the service.

The funeral took place from the family residence this afternoon at 3 o'clock to the Little Lake cemetery.

Rev. Dr. O'Brien Refers To The Success Of The T. A. S. Outing

Splendid enthusiasm and satisfaction was very manifest at the regular meeting of St. Peter's T.A.S. yesterday afternoon. The success of the 10th annual picnic and particularly the reasons for the success caused a feeling of elation and gratification to show itself in the entire business of the meeting and Rev. Dr. O'Brien took occasion to congratulate and compliment the members upon their achievement. In speaking of the picnic he stated that when the society considered a picnic in the summer of the year of their organization they were afraid to take the step and only did so upon a commission arrangement. Their fears were not substantiated and with each succeeding year the picnic has been a greater success. Rev. Dr. O'Brien expressed his gratitude to everyone who had contributed to this picnic's success and particularly to the ladies whom he said were deserving of no small degree of credit for their voluntary assistance. Dr. O'Brien said that he had been unable to take as active a part as in former years and this fact seemed to be an added incentive.

The total receipts were over $1,300, but it is not expected that the net receipts will be much in advance of last year.

The expenses have been greater than ever and several hundred dollars were spent in securing prizes.

Rev. Dr. O'Brien is very pleased with the interest the members have shown. The new officers were installed yesterday afternoon, Mr. Jos. Picard, Jr., succeeding Mr. N. Bibby in the chair.

Aged Woman Of Hastings Takes Dose Of Paris Green

Hastings, July 3.—Mrs. James Stevenson of this town died this morning as a result of taking Paris green yesterday morning. After she had taken the poison she crossed the road to the house of her daughter and told her what she had done. Medical aid was at once summoned, and every possible effort made to save her, but without success, and she died early this morning. She was a woman of about sixty-nine years of age, and her health had been poor for some time. It is supposed that she took the poison in a fit of temporary insanity.

CAMPERS RETREATED

Had An Experience With the Bull Which Has Already Gained Notoriety—Put Its Head Through The Tent.

MADE OTHER TROUBLE

If all the reports received are true and there is every reason to believe that they are, the many canoeists who paddle or sail down the river for tea and a quiet outing, are cautioned to keep away from the east bank along the Kennedy property which extends from a point opposite the end of Park street down to Sandy Point. It is not the mosquitoes or flies that have caused trouble but a bull which would make a grand showing in a Spanish arena according to those who have seen it in action. Not so long ago it treed four bathers and kept them naked among the branches for more than an hour. Several parties who have pulled into the shore to have tea were rudely interrupted and forced to scamper to their boat and betake themselves to other quarters. Last week a party of boys who were camped opposite Crawford's Grove had to pull up the stakes to select new grounds separated by a well built fence from the bull's tramping ground. Their tent was torn in three places where the animal had put his head through during the night disturbing their peaceful slumbers. One morning the boys had a red quilt on a line near their camp and when a canoeist was passing the bull was snorting and pawing in front of it angered by the fiery colour so daringly flaunted at him. This bull is no fiction and besides possesses the faculty of appearing suddenly and when least expected.

The choir of All Saints' Church will go to Gore's Landing on Thursday, July 15th, for the opening of the new English Church at that place. They will leave Peterborough at three o'clock in the afternoon and will sail in the steamer "Tootsie" which has been chartered for the occasion.

BODY TO LIE IN STATE

Remains of Late Father Lynch Will Be Removed To The Cathedral This Evening.

The body of the late Rev. Father Lynch will be removed from the residence on Rubidge street at 7.30 o'clock to St. Peter's Cathedral, where it will be in state until to-morrow morning at 9 o'clock. Beginning at 11 o'clock to-night four members of St. Peter's T. A. S. will be with the body continuously until 6 o'clock to-morrow morning, as a mark of respect to the memory of the deceased. A change will be made every hour complete arrangements having been made yesterday. At six o'clock a mass will be commenced, and will be followed at its conclusion by another, this being continued until nine o'clock, when the funeral mass will be sung.

At the meeting of St. Peter's T. A. S. yesterday Rev. Dr. O'Brien touched upon the interest in and sympathy for the late Father Lynch, and suggested that out of respect for his memory the Society meet in a body this evening at 7.15 o'clock at the residence, to accompany the remains to the church. The question of selecting a watch also met with genuine approval, and there were many more offers made than were actually required. The men were selected for the respective hours and the details carefully arranged.

INTERESTING STORIES OF LIFE AT TRADING POST ON ALBANY RIVER

Strange Experiences Mr. Cyril Lech Met With in His Thirteen Months' Stay at Fort Hope, Revillon Bros. Post in Far North---Bizarre Customs of the Indians.

M. Cyril K. Lech, who has returned from Fort Hope, Revillion Bros'. fur trading post on the Albany River, Ontario's northern boundary, about three hundred miles west of James Bay, relates some interesting stories of his experiences in that unsettled country, where the Indians constitute the great majority. Not only did he obtain valuable knowledge of the elementary branch of the fur business, but by observation learned many strange facts about the descendants of the old time Canadian Indians, who have probably been forced further and further north by the advance of the white men.

He left Peterborough on May 23rd last year, and starting from Nipigon, paddled to Camp Alexandra, portaged a mile to Flat Rock, on Nipigon Lake, which he crossed to Ombabika, on the northern shore. In company with ten Indians Mr. Lech commenced probably the most difficult part of his journey, using Peterborough canoes each of a capacity of 5,600 pounds. The canoes were laden with provisions and supplies for the northern post. Their course was along the Ombabika River to the Ogoki, and into Lake Kaganagami, and finally to the Albany River. They continued on up stream to Lake Eabamet on the shore of which is situated Fort Hope.

An Annual Event.

One of the most important events from the standpoint of the Indians, who, by the way, are of the Ojibway tribe, is the arrival of the Indian agent and Treaty party. Mr. J. G. Ramsden, who holds the position of agent, pays an annual sum of four dollars to each red man. The reception the party is accorded is as unique as may be expected from the Indians. When Mr. Ramsden and his several other companions landed and made their way to the post they were saluted by a continuous fusilade of shots fired into the air. The Indians form a wide lane and line up on either side. They are all armed with "muzzle loaders," and as soon as the party beins their march to the post the salute begins. The first man hastily reloads and fires again and so on with the others until the party reaches the post. The din is deafening, Mr. Lech states, and the party took but a few steps when, stuffing their index fingers in their ears, they broke into a run to escape the noise.

The Indians by some arragement, carrying on their trapping operations in families, each having its respective grounds, and intrusion upon the part of others is strongly resented, a kind of unwritten law being enforced. The animals mostly caught are martin, mink, lynx, rats, red fox, cross fox, silver fox, weasels, bear, fisher and others. The traps are of the ordinary variety, and are secured from the trading post. Dead falls are also used. When an Indian sets his trap he always says a prayer before leaving it that some animals will stray into They have their own superstitions, which seem to have a strong hold on them. For instance, if a man dies while out on his line of traps the others will discontinue work, believing that the same fate may visit them. If, during the winter, an Indian find a bear's den, he puts a cartridge on the ground at the entrance to insure his getting the bear when he appears in the spring.

Dreams His Future.

At a particular stage of the Indian's youth he is able, or at least thinks he is able to forsee his future life. When about to enter young manhood he seeks out a sunny slope in the Spring, when the weather is beginning to get warm, and there remains for ten days, sleeping the most of the time. In his dreams he is supposed to forsee the rest of his life. Mr. Lech could not discover the nature of these ramblings in dreamland, nor the effect, if any, upon their after life.

The religious life of the Indians is looked after by an English Church minister, who remains at the post all the year round, and by a Catholic priest, who arrives in the Spring to spend the summer there.

Celebrate the New Year.

The Christmas-New Year week is fittingly observed and is a time for special social gatherings. A dance is held nearly every night and frequently they continue until the next morning, breaking up about seven o'clock. The Indian mode of dancing is patterned on the square dance, and the music which possesses a monotonous sameness is supplied by an Indian fiddler, who has as much an idea of music, as the people at the North Pole, if there are any in that much sought after locality. The Indian salutation or New Year's greeting is a kiss, which takes the place of our handshake and "Happy New Year to you."

The Mercury's Movements.

The longest nights in the north country are black and dreary. Gloom settles shortly after 4 o'clock and the daylight does not steal above the horizon until after seven the next morning. The weather is cold and dry at times, the thermometer registering 50 degrees below zero. The ice did not leave the rivers this Spring until the first of June, being much later than usual.

Mr. Lech saw the Indians making their canoes, using only the articles found in Nature's great workshop—the forest. They take the bark in strips from the birch trees and bind them to the frame, which they have previously prepared, and the joints are filled with the pitch from the pine trees. They also manufacture their own moccasins, and they purchase the cloth for their clothes, cutting it and sewing it themselves. If the Indian wants supplies he gets them from the trading post, and pays his accounts with the pelts of the animals he catches. Credit is not given to some of them, being in that respect like some white people, who are slow in paying their debts, in fact sometimes forgetting them altogether.

The Indians suffer from influenza, and if one of them feels in the least ill he shuts himself up in his wigwam and is ready to give up the ghost without any attempt to get better. Mr. Lech's return journey was made more rapidly than his trip into the country, and his experience will undoubtedly be of great value to him in his duties with the firm of Wm. Lech & Sons, of which he is a partner.

During the past month he has appeared for the self same offence no less than three times at least, that is his record and the police look upon him as a regular.

MR. BAILEY WRITES

To the Sporting Editor.

Peterborough, July 4, '09.

Sir,—I think the sports at the T. A. S. picnic might have been better managed. I was asked by the man in charge to go in a race, and although unwilling, being ill, I obliged, and on going, as told to do for the prize, I was asked how old I was, and the prize was refused. In the high jump, over black tape, I was injured in first attempt by catching my hand against a boy standing too close; and there seemed to be a desire to hinder me by some of the spectators calling out as I was jumping. The ladies might have charge in future.

W. A. BAILEY.

RECORD WORTH REMEMBERING.

From His Majesty's Loyal Opposition one hears a good deal of the alleged short comings of the Liberal Government. Perhaps more is made of these than the facts warrant for the Opposition is not solely concerned in protecting the country's interest, but has an interest in making the Government a fatal obstacle to the country enjoying the blessings of government by a Conservative cabinet. In the criticism levelled against the Government there has been a plentiful presence of assertion and absence of proof. The real question involved is not petty carpings at the Government's few short comings, but "what have the Liberals done for Canada since they came into power thirteen years ago?" There are things that should not be forgotten. This country has enjoyed unprecedented prosperity in all these years. The tide of depression that overswept the world flowed lightest over Canada, and her recovery was more prompt than any other country. Trade and national revenue have grown with great strides. Population and attendant development have shown great increases. These conditions represent a marked change from those attending the administration of a Conservative Government, and it is not, therefore unreasonable to give a large share of the credit of the improvement to the Liberal Government—the change come with a change of Government. In estimating the services of the Liberal Government during the past twelve years the people should not forget what it has done; as may be partially detailed in the following injunctions:

Do not forget the great benefits which resulted from the extension of the Intercolonial Railway to Montreal.

Do not forget that the Intecolonial has been taken out of politics and put under the control of a Commission, independent of both political parties, which has resulted in many economies.

Do not forget that cold storage facilities have been provided for the shipment of agricultural produce, which has greatly stimulated foreign buying, to the benefit of our farmers.

Do not forget the postal reforms, reduction of postage, and drop letter system; also the rural mail delivery, which is so much appreciated by the farming community.

Do not forget the establishment of a Department of Labour, presided over by a Minister of Labour, or the beneficial results of the Lemieux Act in settling disputes between employer and employed.

Do not forget that the assistance given to the silver lead industry and the iron and steel industry have been the cause of giving employment to thousands of Canadian working men, who in turn have purchased the products of our farms.

Do not forget that sweating has been abolished on Government contracts.

Do not forget that fair wages are guaranteed on all Government contracts.

Do not forget that the unjust franchise act and the jerrymander were wiped out of existence.

Do not forget that all tolls upon Government canals have been abolished, and these channels of communication are now free to the public.

Do not forget that Canada's credit is now so good that Canadian Government bonds have been placed upon the Trustee List in Great Britain.

Do not forget the establishment of the Railway Commission, which makes it possible for any citizen to get immediate redress from the extortionate practices of arilway corporations.

Do not forget the boon which the postal note system confers upon those who are long distances from banking conveniences.

Do not forget that the post office, which was formerly a heavy burden, is now self-sustaining and revenue producing.

Do not forget that the far distant Yukon has been put in touch with other parts of Canada by the building of a telegraph line.

Do not forget that the tobacco industry has been promoted and fostered.

Do not forget the great channel in the St. Lawrence, lighted from end to end, making it possible for large steamers to come into the harbour at any time of the day or night.

Do not forget that the lake harbours have been dredged and made sufficiently deep to accommodate the greatly increased lake shipping.

Do not forget that telegraph and telephone lines have been brought under the jurisdiction of the Railway Commission, which insures a square deal for all the people.

Do not forget that provision has been made for funds to build a railway from Le Pas to Hudson Bay, thus affording another outlet for the produce of the great West.

Do not forget that the Civil Service has been taken out of politics, and advancement in the service will go by competitive examinations and not by political pull.

Do not forget that a low tariff has been designed, which produces a large revenue without unduly oppressing the people.

Do not forget that previous governments were compelled to borrow money to pay the ordinary expenses of government.

Do not forget the great National Transcontinental Railway, which will afford relief to the congested condition in rates.

Do not forget the Liberal policy of opening up vast areas of new country, agricultural, mineral, and forest lands.

Do not forget that thousands of acres of forest reserves have been set apart for the use of the generations yet to come.

Do not forget that the national resources have been carefully conserved under the present Administration.

Do not forget the immense increase in the total trade of the country since the present Government came into power.

Do not forget that notwithstanding the heavy demands upon the Government in the building of necessary public works, the public debt is less per head now than it was when the present Government came into power.

Do not forget that the present Government never sold one acre of timber land since coming into power except by putting it up by public tender in open competition.

Do not forget that the land has been reserved for the settler, and that not one acre has ever been given to a railway company as a bonus by the present Government.

Do not forget that this Government inaugurated the British preference which promoted trade with Canada and fostered an Imperial settlement.

Do not forget that there are millions of acres more under crop now than in 1896, and this means prosperity for all the people.

Do not forget that no charge of wrong-doing has ever been made against any member of the Liberal Government.

Do not forget that during the past twelve years Canada has risen from an unknown colony to a powerful nation.

Do not forget the creation of the two new provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan.

Do not forget that the subsidies paid to the provinces have been greatly increased by the present Government.

Do not forget that the policy of the Government caused the settlement of the West.

Do not forget that while the public outlay was greater, the Government always produced a surplus.

Do not forget that the loans made necessary at this time are for the purpose of paying off loans contracted by a former Conservative Government.

Do not forget that 900 miles of the Grand Trunk Pacific are already opened for traffic.

Do not forget that by the early autumn the Grand Trunk Pacific will be opened from Winnipeg to Edmonton, and will be moving the crops.

Do not forget that the Canadian Government will confer with the Imperial authorities on the advisability of assisting in the defence of the Empire.

Do not forget that the "All Red Route" will bring much business to Canada, and be a tower of strength in case of war.

These are a few of the things which the Liberal Government have accomplished. While the press unfriendly to the Government makes reference to small affairs, out of which an attempt is made to create a scandal, nothing is said of the larger matters of government which are of such deep importance to the people at large.

The subject which there has been much controversy. A case settled by the judicial committee of the Privy Council places the matter exactly in the terms stated in the House by Sir Wilfrid Laurier. The Liberals are the champions of provincial rights, but they are not parties to a policy which would retard the urogress of the country for a hundred years to come.

It is a good thing for the people to reflect upon the political history of the country, and find out how much the present condition of affairs may be attributed to an enlightened policy and wise administration.

It is a good thing to consider the statesmanship of Sir Wilfrid Laurier and compare it with the rural palitics of some of his prdecessors in office.

It is a good thing to compare the careful financial methods of Hon. Mr. Fielding with the frenzied finance with which Mr. Foster is fascinated.

It is a good thing to realize how much Hon. Mr. Foster, Minister of Agriculture, has done for the farmers of the country.

It is a good thing to see the common sense methods of Hon. Mr. Graham in the administration of railways and canals.

It is a good thing to follow Hon. Mr. Lemieux, Postmaster-General, in his generous attempts to reduce the cost of the mail-service to the people and add free rural mail delivery.

It is a good thing to know that Hon. Mr. Oliver is the friend of the settler, and has no sympathy with the corporation which would exploit the lands of the settler.

It is a good thing to know that Hon. Mr. Brodeur, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, confoundeu his enemies and purged his department of dishonest officials who had been retained in office although they were appointe dby the Conservative Government.

It is a good thing to realise that Hon. Wm. Preston, Minister of Customs, keeps his department absolutely free from scandal, and that he encourages his officials by increasing their salary.

It is a good thing that in Hon. Wm. Pugsley there is a man who can rise above the puny assaults of the envious ones from his own province. As Minister of Public Works, the great spending department, the people may remain quite satisfied that not one dollar of public money will go for any purpose other than that for which it was voted by Parliament.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier, his policy, his colleagues, are before the people, and thoughtful men should consider the above samples of what has been accomplished during the past twelve years, and they will come to the conclusion that the affairs of Canada are well looked after, that those in power are entitled to the confidence reposed in them, and that the foundations of a great nation are being well laid by men quite equal to the task which has been imposed upon them.

Western Crops Good.

Ottawa, July 5.—The following is a copy of a telegram just received from Dr. Saunders, the director of experimental farms, by the Departmen of Agriculture:

"Crops throughout Manitoba looking very well. Will average a shorter growth than crops in Saskatchewan and Alberta, due probably to later sowing. Now growing rapidly. Weather very favorable. At Brandon experimental farm crops are in excellent condition and well advanced."

Governor Bulyea's Adventure.

Edmonton, July 5.—Lieut.-Governor Bulyea, Hon. Charles Murphy, and Dr. McIntyre, M.P., figured in a mix-up which might have been serious, but for the horsemanship and pluck of the Lieutenant-Governor. His honor was driving the Secretary of State and Dr. McIntyre about the grounds, when a plank, run over by one wheel, upended, rasing one side of the carriage and throwing the Lieutenant-Governor to the ground. He pluckily clung to the reins, and brought the spirited team to a standstill after being dragged some distance.

Make Hasts Slowly.

London, July 5.—Heartily as the proposals for state-owned cables or wireless telegraphs across the Atlantic are supported, The Economist does not imagine that there is much likelihood of the British Government attempting, for some time, at any rate, any further experiments, commercial or telegraphic. Its past experience has not been altogether profitable, and it would be fair to neither taxpayer nor shareholder to start on any hasty, unconsidered scheme of inter-Imperial cables.

New Trial for Night Riders.

Jackson, Tenn., July 5.—Justice Craft of Memphis, Tenn., has overruled the conviction of the eight night riders, six of whom were sentenced to death for murder, and granted a new trial. He holds that the grand jury which found the indictments was not selected in a proper manner and that the state did not allow the defendants a sufficient number of challenges.

That it will be very difficult to secure a jury to again hear the cases is conceded.

Looks Good for Canada.

London, July 5.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The Financier says that after the speeches of Earl Grey, Lord Strathcona, Hon. Mr. Fielding, Hon. Mr. Oliver and R. L. Borden on Dominion Day, the British investor can entertain no doubt about the Dominion's brilliant future. Surveying the list of Canadian visitors, it thinks Canada is likely to boom in 1909 as never before.

Huntsville Man Drowned.

Huntsville, July 5.—As the steamer Algonquin was passing the mouth of the canal on her way to the portage, the body of a man was seen lying in shallow water. It proved to be that of Joe McIlwain, 60 years old, of Huntsville. He left Huntsville Friday night in a punt and rowed over Fairy Lake, evidently with the intention of going to "Deerhurst."

Fireman Rescues Aeronaut.

Boston, July 5.—The fire department was called out at midnight on Saturday to rescue an aeronaut, J. J. Gannon of Boston, who had fallen with his balloon and was hanging suspended over an alleyway between the seven and five-storey business blocks at the corner of Washington and Milk streets.

Couldn't you guess what the taylor made ?

It's soap that is made by Taylor !

15¢ Worth of Taylor's Soap

for 5¢

This coupon with 5 cents will get you a regular 5 cent cake of Taylor's Borax Soap and also a full 10 cent cake of Infants' Delight Soap. You receive two cakes worth 15 cents for only 5 cents. One coupon only to each family and it must be presented to your dealer this week.

Taylor's Infants' Delight

Toilet soap should do just two things—remove the dirt and nourish the skin. Let us then show you how we have blended both qualities into a single cake.

For in 43 years we have learned the secret of perfect soap—one that leaves the skin as soft and pink as an infant's. So we call it Infants' Delight.

The olive oil in this soap comes from the gardens of France. There we pay the highest prices—often double what we might pay. But our oil is pure enough to use on your table.

Then we bring cocoanut oil over 12,000 miles from the isle of Ceylon. This oil has for centuries kept the Egyptian's skin soft and beautiful in spite of the tropical sun.

The oils are then filtered and boiled twice. After this they go through our own special milling process from which they flutter like flakes of snow into enormous bins.

These flakes are then crushed under a weight of 30 tons to press out the moisture. Then they pass through granite rollers and come out in miles of silky ribbons.

The soap is then dried eight times and goes through an ageing process equal to standing six months in your pantry. So you don't need to age this soap. It comes to you clear and firm—it is simply perfect soap.

Please use a single cake—then let the results decide for the future.

See for yourself how it lathers into a rich creamy foam. Note how it wears as thin as a wafer—how it leaves the skin as soft as velvet and as smooth as silk.

Besides this it is the loviest soap for the baby's skin. And if it is best for the sensitive pink skin of an infant, it surely is best for your own.

You will like the dainty perfume, too. We pay over $100 a pound for pure Otto of Roses, but it requires 3,000 pounds of rose leaves to make a single ounce. The fragrance is simply exquisite for it is only the delicate scent of roses—the breath of a million flowers.

Taylor's Borax Soap

Here again is a soap different in every way from the ordinary—it contains borax. Where other soaps merely cleanse this goes further—it whitens and purifies. The effect of the borax is almost magical—it is the most wonderful soap ever made for the laundry.

In this soap we use only the finest grade of cocoanut oil, for it lathers with greatest abundance. Then we mix in the borax which softens the water and also softens the hands.

Soft water is pure, but hard water contains mineral matters which prevent the soap from lathering. Borax makes the hardest water as soft as rain water, so you require only half the amount of soap.

With this soap you save most of the rubbing—it dissolves the dirt instantly and leaves the clothes with snowy whiteness.

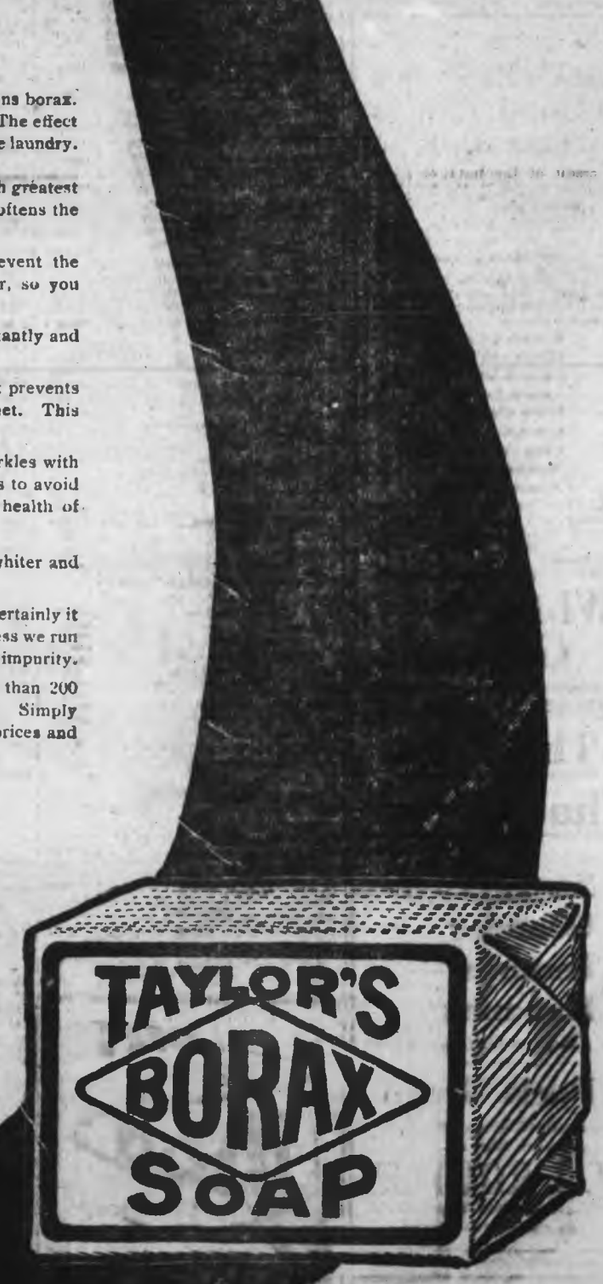
It cleans the daintiest of laces as well as the heaviest of woolens—and it prevents shrinkage of both. Every odor is removed and the cloth is pure and sweet. This soap also prevents starch from sticking and adds greatly to the stiffness.

Glassware it cleanses in half the time, and leaves a lustre that fairly sparkles with brilliance. But it does even more; it sterilizes and destroys every germ so as to avoid any possibility of contagion. Send a bar with the laundry and protect the health of your family.

This powerful cleanser is utterly harmless to the hands—it leaves them whiter and softer than before.

Think then how harmless it must be to cloth. For if it benefits the skin, certainly it could not injure the fabric. This is the purest of soap. During the boiling process we run through the soap thousands of gallons of clean water which carries away every impurity.

It requires twenty-one days to make a single cake. The labor of more than 200 persons is needed. Yet this wonderful soap costs no more than the ordinary. Simply because we make every year millions of cakes—we can buy at the lowest prices and give you the highest quality. Try one bar and learn the facts yourself.



Get the Free Soap This Week

We ask you to do us a favor—we want you to learn for your own interests the difference between these soaps and the ordinary. You have been using some soaps in the past and you naturally consider them good. But now we ask that you compare them with these—try them both and note how vastly they differ. We gladly invite the comparison because we have made it ourselves and we know just what must be the result. But it would be unfair to ask you to bear the expense of the test so we have made you this generous offer. We only ask that you buy one soap and we'll buy the other. Cut out the circular coupon on this page and take it to your dealer this week. Pay him only 5 cents and you will then receive both cakes worth 15 cents.

THE COMING KINGDOM

PASTOR RUSSELL TAKES TEXT FROM LORD'S PRAYER.

Nearly All the Parables Are Connected With the Idea of the Kingdom of Heaven—Millennial Period Will Not Last Forever, But Only For a Thousand Years—Then Will Christ Deliver It Up to the Father.

Brooklyn, N.Y., July.—Pastor Russell preached to-day at Brooklyn Tabernacle to a large audience. Text, "Thy Kingdom come, thy will be done on earth as it is done in heaven" (Matthew vi, 10). He said:

The words of our text have been repeated by Christian people of all nationalities for centuries. You recognise them as a portion of what is generally termed the Lord's prayer, given to the Lord's followers as a model in answer to the request of the Apostles, "Lord teach us to pray." The fact that our Lord instructs us to pray for his Kingdom to come, implies several things. (1) That it was not already here. (2) That it is part of the divine provision that in due time the Dominion of the Highest shall be established among men. (3) That this is one of the chief desiderata for God's people and for humanity.

It surely has not escaped the attention of every Bible student that nearly all of our Lord's parables are more or less closely identified with this Kingdom thought. The majority of them open with such expressions as, "The Kingdom of heaven is likened unto," etc. If we keep in memory that it is a Kingdom of priests that is to be established, otherwise called a Royal Priesthood, all will be plain. Our Lord Jesus, after he had paid our ransom price, after he died the just for the unjust, as our sacrificing High Priest ascended up on high to be our King; to be a Priest upon his throne. And similarly he is now calling for an under-priesthood, willing to follow his example of self-sacrifice in the present life. These in due time he will glorify with himself, giving them a share in that Royal Priesthood as Priests upon the throne of the Millennial Kingdom. Thus he promised, "To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with me in my throne, even as I overcame, and am set down with my Father in his throne" (Revelation iii, 23).

If all Christian people could realize that their "high calling" of God is not a calling away from eternal torment, but a calling, or invitation, to association with Christ in his great Kingdom, which shall ultimately rule the world, "under the whole heavens," they would read the Bible with a fresh interest; it would soon be to them a new book.

Glance at some of the parables. Note how they give snap-shot pictures of the Church's experiences, not only in the future, but especially in the present time of development and preparation and testing—picturing the trying experiences necessary for attaining the Kingdom. In other words, the Church, while on trial, is the embryo Kingdom, the probationary Kingdom class. This is the enlisting time, the testing time, the proving time, and none will be accounted worthy to share in the actual glories and privileges of the coming "Kingdom of God's dear Son" except those who now demonstrate not only loyalty but loving devotion to the Lord, to his Truth, to all who are his—to the extent of laying down their lives for the Truth and for the brethren.

Note the parable of the sower, and that the message sown is the "good seed of the Kingdom." Note that the ripe wheat developed from that sowing is denominated the children of the Kingdom. Note that the gathering of the wheat into the barn—by the resurrection change, to the heavenly state—is still associated with the thought of the Kingdom in the words, "Then shall the righteous shine forth as the sun in the Kingdom of their Father." Now they are exhorted to shine forth their light as tallow-candles, that they may "show forth the praises of him who called them out of darkness into his marvelous light." If unfaithful in shining forth the light under the present conditions of prevalent darkness, they will not be esteemed worthy of a place with the glorified faithful in the Kingdom which will shine forth as the sun.

Note in the parable of the net cast into the sea, which gathered fish of various kinds, that the net represented the nominal church of this present time, which in due time is drawn ashore, the fishes caught separated, and those suitable for the Kingdom are represented as gathered into baskets, while the unsuitable are represented as being cast back into the sea.

Notice the parable of the pearl of great price, which represented the Kingdom blessings and privileges, and could be obtained only by the selling of all that was possessed; that thus the Lord's followers who desire a share in his Kingdom are to reckon that no sacrifice is too great to make to attain that blessing—indeed, they are to know that the Kingdom can be attained at no less cost than the surrender of all their earthly hopes and aims.

Note the parable of the pounds and talents, which represented our Lord's departure to heaven for investure in authority to be the great King of earth, the sovereign of the Millennial Kingdom to be established at his return. Note the giving of the pounds and the talents to his faithful servants to be used in his interest in his absence. Note that on his return he first reckoned with these, and rewarded the faithful, saying to one, Have thou dominion over two cities; to another, Have thou dominion over five cities; to another, Have thou dominion over ten cities. Note that this giving of the Dominion to his faithful servants signified their sharing with him in his Kingdom at the time of its establishment at his second coming.

Note the parable of the sheep and the goats, which pictures the Millennial Kingdom in full operation. It opens with the announcement, "When the Son of Man shall come in his glory, and all the holy angels with him, then shall he sit upon the throne of his glory. And before him shall be gathered all nations; and he shall separate them one from another, as a shepherd divideth his sheep from the goats" (Matthew xxv, 31). This is unquestionably a picture of the Millennial reign of Christ, and his dealing with the world. When that time shall come, the elect Church, the Bride of Christ, will be with him in the throne, sharing his glory, and sharing in the work of judging the world; as said St. Paul, "Do ye not know that the saints shall judge the world?" (I Corinthians vi, 2.)

The prophecies of the Old Testament Scriptures abound in testimonies respecting the blessing which will come to the world during the reign of Messiah's Kingdom. The Jews had every reason to expect that God had honored their nation as the seed of Abraham with especial relationship to his Kingdom—that as his holy nation and people Israel should be the channel for the dispensing of the divine blessings to all the families of the earth. Nor will that expectation prove false. The Lord has not changed his plan; he has merely introduced first of all another feature of his plan not previously revealed, styled by the Apostle Paul "the mystery of God." This mystery is, that before Israel can be God's earthly agents for dispensing his blessings to mankind in general, to every nation, people, kindred and tongue, God will first select a special class, a "Little Flock," a "Royal Priesthood"—the Church, the Bride, the members of the Body of Christ as a Spiritual Israel. When this Kingdom class shall have been fully selected, and the last member shall have been glorified with Christ beyond the vail on the spirit plane of existence, then divine favor will return to natural Israel.

We are not to understand that everyone who has Abrahamic blood in his veins will on that account be permitted a special service for the Lord during the Millennium as an earthly representative of the spiritual Empire. Nay, they are not all Israelites who are of the seed of Abraham. But the Lord shows us through the Apostle that prior to the coming of Christ God had already selected Abraham, Isaac and Jacob and all the prophets and other faithful ones enumerated by St. Paul in Hebrews 11th chapter. These, having demonstrated their faith and willing obedience to do the Lord's will, have this testimony, "that they pleased God." These Ancient Worthies of the earthly seed of Abraham are already prepared of the Lord to be the earthly representatives of his Spiritual Kingdom. In due time, after the glorification of the Church in "the first resurrection," these will come forth not on the spirit plane, but as perfect human beings. Through these the Lord's blessings and instructions to mankind will be disseminated. They will constitute the earthly Jerusalem, as the Church will constitute the heavenly Jerusalem, Mount Zion; as we read, "The Law shall go forth from Mt. Zion, and the Word of the Lord from Jerusalem" (Micah iv, 2) for the blessing of all nations, for their instruction in righteousness, for their assistance in the highway of holiness, that they may gain at its farther end the great reward of life eternal.

It is but reasonable to expect that with the establishment of that Kingdom for which Israel has so long waited and hoped, its mercies dispensed through these Ancient Worthies will first appeal to the nation of Israel, and subsequently to all people of all nations, as they shall come to the faith of Abraham and receive the instruction of the Kingdom. Thus it is written, "And many nations shall go and say, Come, and let us go up to the mountain of the Lord, and to the house of the God of Jacob; and he will teach us of his ways, and we will walk in his paths" (Micah iv, 2).

It may help some to think of this Gospel Age as a parenthesis. God's dealings with the Jews in the flesh were interrupted by the development of the spiritual seed of Abraham—Christ and the Church (Galatians iii. 29). As soon as this work of developing Spiritual Israel shall be completed, and the "little flock" be exalted to glory on the spirit plane by their resurrection change, then the parenthesis will be ended, and divine favor will resume its operation with natural Israel, and through Israel to all nations, for their blessing.

Note how distinctly this matter is set forth in Romans 11th chapter. There the Apostle notes the rejection of natural Israel, and how it was foretold by the Prophets Isaiah and David—that their table of divine mercies and promises would become a trap and a snare to them, making them proud and arrogant instead of humble, and thus showing the unfitness of the majority of them for a share with Messiah in the spiritual part of the Kingdom. The Apostle pictures these in the olive tree, whose roots represented the Abrahamic Covenant, and whose branches represented the Jews. He points out that nearly all the branches were broken off—because of unbelief—and that the unbelief was because of an improper condition of heart. He says that those Jews who received Jesus were the branches not broken off, and that God during this age has been choosing out from amongst the Gentiles such as would be suitable substitutes for the broken off Jewish branches, so that eventually the olive tree would have the full number of branches definitely foreknown and intended — a few of them natural branches (including the Apostles and all the Jews who received Christ in sincerity) and the remainder of that spiritual olive tree, branches grafted in from amongst the Gentiles. The tree as a whole, then represents spiritual Israel, the "one new man" mentioned by the Apostle whose head is Christ, and whose members are partly Jewish and partly Gentile, transformed, renewed (Ephesians ii, 15).

Continuing his discussion of the subject, in this same chapter, St. Paul says, "I would not, brethren, that ye should be ignorant of this mystery, lest ye be wise in your own conceit; that blindness in part is happened to Israel, until the fullness of the Gentiles be come in. And so all Israel shall be saved as it is written, "There shall come out of Zion the Deliverer."

Let us not make the mistake of supposing the Apostle meant that all Israel will be saved to heavenly glory, or to eternal life. Israel will be saved from the blindness and rejection of God which came on them as a nation when they rejected Messiah. The great Deliverer who will bless them will be composed of Messiah, the Head, and the Church, his Body—composed of overcomers, some of whom once were Gentiles. This great Deliverer who comes out of Zion is the spiritual Son of Zion, the Messiah, the King, the Royal Priest, the Judge, the Mediator of the New Covenant. The first blessings of his Millennial Kingdom will be upon natural Israel, from whom the Kingdom was taken away, and to whom the earthly phase of the Kingdom will be restored in the hands of the Ancient Worthies, who will be the earthly representatives of the heavenly Kingdom. The Kingdom itself will be invisible to men, but its earthly representatives will be seen and known to all mankind; as it is written, "Ye shall see Abraham, and Isaac, and Jacob, and all the Prophets, in the Kingdom of God" (Luke xiii, 28).

The object of our Lord's reign is distinctly set forth in the Scriptures. Also its length of duration. He is to bind Satan, "the prince of this world," to overthrow entirely his dominion of sin, ignorance, superstition, as they now control the human family, bought with the precious blood. His Kingdom will cause the knowledge of the Lord Jehovah to fill the whole earth, that every creature may receive a blessing through that knowledge; that as many as will come into harmony with God may obtain eternal life, and that all other shall be destroyed in the Second Death.

We are distinctly told that this Millennial Kingdom will not last forever, but for a definite period of time—for a thousand years. The Scriptures clearly intimate that the work of havoc caused by the reign of Sin and Death during six thousand years—from Adam to the second coming of Christ—will be fully offset by the one thousand years' reign of the Kingdom of Righteousness. How stimulating the thought! How it must thrill the hearts of all who love God and their fellowmen, all who grieve to see the Divine will and standards violated, all who love righteousness and hate iniquity, and realizing that the dying and the crying, and the degradation, and the sin, which prevail through out the whole world, are enemies contrary to the Lord's Kingdom.

St. Paul assures us that in due time God will give this Kingdom to the Christ—divine power shall be established in the Millennial Kingdom and at the end of that Millennial reign Christ will deliver up the Kingdom to God, even the Father—the entire work and purpose of the reign being then fully accomplished. He tells us that meantime Christ "must reign until he shall have put down all in subordination" — everything contrary to the divine will, everything sinful; until he shall have uplifted mankind out of the miry clay and the horrible pit of sin and death; until all shall have been delivered who are willing to come into harmony with the Divine will—such as God is willing should have eternal life—I. Corinthians xv, 24-28).

This is the thought brought before us by St. Peter saying, "Times of refreshing shall come from the presence of the Lord, and he shall send Jesus Christ, which before was preached unto you, whom the heavens must retain until the times of restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began" (Acts iii, 19-21). These times of restitution are the Kingdom times, the times of resurrection, the times of human uplifting from sin and death conditions to life and joy, and peace, for all who will receive the Lord's favors upon his terms.

Damascus.

Damascus claims with very good reason, to be considered the oldest city in the world. The place remains very much what it was before the days of the patriarch Abraham, an island of verdure set in the Syrian desert and has martial and sacred associations extending through thirty centuries. According to Josephus, Damascus was founded by Uz, the son of Aram and grandson of Shem. It is first mentioned in Scripture in connection with Abraham, whose steward was a native of that place (Genesis xv, 2).

Some Valuable Pearls.

Of all the articles of luxury known to the Romans pearls were most valued. They were worn by all classes. The famous pearl earrings which belonged to Cleopatra are said to have been worth $800,000, and Julius Caesar presented the mother of Brutus with a pearl for which he paid $240,000. It has been said that one of the reasons why Julius Caesar invaded Britain was the wish to become master of the pearls which were supposed to abound there, a surmise incorrect, for few pearls of value have been found in Great Britain.

WIND AND WAVES.

A Gale's Action Upon Water, Desert Sand and Prairie Snow.

There are wind waves in the water, sand and snow. The great sea waves are produced at that part of a cyclone where the direction of the wind coincides with the direction of advance of the depression. Along this line of advance the waves in their progress are accompanied by a strong wind blowing across their ridges as long as the atmospheric depression is maintained. So the waves are developed until they become steep. The average height in feet is about half the velocity of the wind in miles.

A wind of fifty-two miles an hour gives waves of an average height of twenty-six feet, although individual waves will attain a height of forty feet. The prevailing wind in all longitudes is westerly, so wherever a westerly wind springs up it finds a long westerly swell, the effect of a previous wind still running, and the principal effect of the newly born wind is to increase the steepness of the already running long swell so as to form majestic storm waves, which sometimes attain a length of 1,200 feet from crest to crest. The longest swells due to wind are almost invisible during storms, for they are masked by the shorter and steeper waves, but they emerge into view after or beyond the storm.

The action of the wind to drift dry sand in a procession of waves is seen in the deserts. As the sand waves cannot travel by gravitation, their movements are entirely controlled by the wind, and they are therefore much simpler and more regular in form and movement than ocean waves. In their greatest heights of several hundred feet the former become more complex owing to the partial consolidation of the lower layers of sand by pressure, but they still have the characteristic wave features.

In the Winnipeg prairies of Canada freshly-fallen snow is drifted by wind in a procession of regular waves, progressing with a visible and ghostlike motion. They are similar to desert sand waves, but less than half as steep, the wave length being fifty times as great as the height. The flatness of the wind formed snow waves affords a valuable indication of the great distance to which hills shelter from the wind.—Chicago Tribune.

TOO GOOD TO BE WELL.

A London Hospital Doctor's Hurry Patient From the Outside.

The accident bell at the door of the hospital clangs, and the next moment an agitated parent is seen running down the passage with a child tucked under the arm, its bare legs streaming behind it in the wind of its mother's rapidity.

"What's the matter, missis? Has she swallowed some poison?"

"No, sir; it ain't that," she pants, "but I'm that scared I don't know 'ardly which way to turn."

"Well, but what's happened? Has she hurt herself?"

"No, sir, and 'er father 'e's that upset 'e couldn't do nothink, else I ain't used to running like that, and 'e'd 'ave brought 'er up, but 'e says as 'ow 'e daren't touch 'er, and I've run all the way, and me 'eart"—

"Come, now, missis, just tell me quietly what's the matter with the child."

The patient, a pretty little thing of four, looks inquiringly at her alarmed parent. There seems to be little the matter with her.

"It's all very well yer a-sittin' there and a-tellin' of me to be quiet," cries the mother. "If yer 'ad children of yer own yer wouldn't like ter see 'em die afore yer eyes. Oh, dear; oh, dear, and there ain't only two more and the baby!"

The doctor in despair examines the little girl, but fails to discover anything wrong. "Now, look here," says he firmly, "I can't find anything the matter with your child, so you'll have to go away unless you tell me why you brought her up to the hospital."

"Well, doctor, we was all a-havin' our tea a minute ago as it might be, and 'er father was eatin' a nice bit of tripe as was over from dinner when Susy, this one I 'ave with me, says as 'ow she loved God and was goin' to 'eaving when he doled. What!" in tones of horror. "Ain't yer going to give 'er no medicine?"

NEW WEIGH SCALES AT C. P. R. STATION

Will Simplify the Weighing of Heavy Articles.

The work of installing a new weigh scales at the C.P.R. station is being carried out and it is expected that in a short time they will be ready for use. They are being placed at the east end of the freight sheds and will be used for weighing heavy articles that are received through the company's freight service. Loads of furniture and other articles and dynamos from or for the C.G.E. works and other factory goods will be easily weighed now, whereas, in the past some difficulty was experienced owing to the necessity of taking the goods to the inside scales. A waggon can be driven on to the scales unloaded and the waggon itself can then be weighed, thus simplifying the matter considerably.

THE MYSTERIOUS NERVES

How like electricity is the mysterious nerve force which courses through the body, controlling the movement of every muscle and the working of every organ. The secret of keeping the marvellous nervous system in health and vigour is found in the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, the great blood builder and nerve restorative.

THE OBSERVANCE OF THE LORD'S DAY

The Rev. Jno. Todd, a New England Congregational pastor, writing in 1887, said,—"Let the ministers of Christ wash their own hands clean, and avoid the very appearance of evil. Let them not ride from town to town, and from village to village, on exchanges, or agencies, on the Lord's Day. I know from my own experience that this will subject their families to much inconvenience; that agencies cannot be carried forward so rapidly, but what then? Just in proportion as clergyman, pastors, and agents are benefitted, and their objects aided and advanced by travelling on that holy day, in sevenfold proportion do they employ their influence to desecrate the Lord's Day.

"And it it my solemn conviction, after observation and experience, after trying both methods, that the Lord's Day cannot be saved from its increasing profanation so long as ministers, pastors, and agents thus throw their influence against it, though they do it unwittingly, I say one thing more: that if any minister who disagrees with me on this point, and who thinks he may sawfully pass to the next village on the morning of the Lord's Day, or return in the afternoon, will abstain, and try the other method for one year, I will ensure that he will agree with me. I do not speak without having thought and felt much on the subject, and were this the place, I believe I could adduce reasons for the course recommended which would be incontrovertible.

"Let the ministers preach on this subject again and again, till they have destroyed the old conscience, and created a new one. One sermon will not do it; two will not. The subject in all its bearings must be pressed warm upon the hearts of our churches, till it is understood and felt.

"Let ministers be careful to set a holy example on this day before their families and people. That wonderful man, Edward Payson, whose very name brings a warm gush of feeling to the heart, used always to call his family together and ask the blessing of God upon them, as they were leaving for the house of God. This, of course, must have been known through his parish, through the state, and will yet be known through the Christian world. One single example of this kind speaks much in behalf of the sacredness of the Lord's Day. The strength, the usefulness, of a minister turn very much upon the manner in which he observes the Lord's Day. So do his comforts in life and his consolations in death. A short time since I was called to the death bed of a dear brother in the ministry. I was much struck with his views in regard to the sanctity of the Lord's Day. In view of his life, and the wants of his people, a part of his dying wish was that they be entreated to sanctify the Lord's Day. Among other minute directions which he gave, and which he strictly enjoined upon us, was this, that let his death take place when it might, there should be no messages sent, no grave dug, no coffin made, and nothing done for him on the Lord's Day. The funeral was not to be, nor any preparations made on that day. How different these views from those which permit people, if possible, to have the funeral on the Lord's Day, to have the bustle and parade which are too often seen on such occasions. Pride will thrive while gazing upon a coffin, and draw nutriment even from the act of burying the dead."

Gathering Cloves.

Cloves are now cultivated in many of the tropical regions of the earth. A clove tree begins to bear at the age of ten years and continues until it reaches the age of seventy-five years. There are two crops a year, one in June and one in December. The tree is an evergreen and grows from forty to fifty feet high, with large oblong leaves and crimson flowers at the end of small branches in clusters of from ten to twenty. The tree belongs to the same botanical order as the guava. The cloves, which are the undeveloped buds, are at first white, then light green and at the time of gathering bright red. Pieces of white cloth are spread under the trees at harvesting time, and the branches are beaten gently with bamboo sticks until the cloves drop. They are dried in the sun, being tossed about daily until they attain the rich dark color which proclaims them ready for shipment.

Cards and Their History.

Cards are square shaped pieces of pasteboard printed with various devices and employed as a business medium by money changers. They are usually made up in packs of fifty-two, one for each week of the year. A good many people play cards for pleasure, in which case their opponents are said to be buying experience. In most card games the rule is that the cards may be cut, but not otherwise marked. This rule is not strictly observed in games in which only three cards are used. Indeed, the marking of cards has attained a high degree of perfection since the introduction of numerous card index systems. Fashions change in card games as in everything else. Old maid, for instance, is nowadays seldom played in the best clubs. Playing cards should not be confused with score cards, which are rather larger, or with visiting cards, which are smaller.—Fry's Magazine.

COTTAGES NEARLY ALL OPEN FOR SEASON AT STONY LAKE

Evening Boat on Saturday Carried a Large Number of Week-End Visitors—Splendid Fishing—Many Good Catches—First Service at Juniper Yesterday—Guests at Burleigh Falls.

By Staff Correspondent.

Stoney Lake, July 5.—The Saturday evening boat, the "Empress" carried its largest number of passengers to the lakes this season, many coming up to spend the week end and some, judging from the amount of trunks and other baggage have come to spend the summer. Not for some years has there been as much activity at the lakes during the early part of July as there has been this month. The summer residents of the lakes have come to their cottages early and already the various resorts and Juniper Island the rendezvous for the people, have taken on a gay and lively appearance.

The first dance was held at the Juniper Island Pavilion on Saturday evening when a large number of young people enjoyed the hop. Music was rendered by several young ladies.

On Sunday morning Divine service was held at Juniper. There were over one hundred present. Rev. A. L. Reed, M.A., an Angligan clergyman from Toronto, who is the guest of Mr. Rex. Russell, delivered an excellent address. Miss Ida B. Sanderson, of Peterborough, who is a guest of Miss Ethel Goodfellow at "Idle Side" sang a solo in splendid voice.

Good Fishing

The fishing at the lakes this season could not be better. Many good catches have been made. Mr. Robert Duncan, who has been engaged in painting Rev. J. R. Webb's new cot take landed a fifteen pound 'lunge Mr. Wm. Cameron caught a fine bass weighing four pounds and a half the other day near Boschink. Mr. John Carlisle since his arrival at Clear Lake, on June 15th, has succeeded in catching over fifty bass and 'lunge These are but a few instances of the fishermen's luck at the lakes.

A Camping Party

A camping party consisting of Messrs. H. M. Grundy, H. J. Grundy J. Owen Grundy, of Jersey City, and Walter P. Grundy, of Chicago, Ill. a former resident of Peterborough, is under canvas near Juniper Island They came up last week. Two members of the party undertook to bring a launch up the canal but unfortunately the yacht has not arrived here yet. An accident was encountered somewhere between Peterborough and Lakefield and the boat is there yet The party intends remaining a few weeks at the lakes.

During the past week high winds have been blowing and the cottagers have been kept to their homes.

At McCracken's

The summer at this popular resort promises to be very busy. Mr. Picken the new proprietor of the Victoria House has made many improvements and nothing has been left undone to provide for the convenience and comfort of his guests. The fishing here is good and while the guests so far have only been transient, a large number have been booked for July and August.

At Burleigh Falls

Rev. Mr. Lord, of Apsley, conducted Divine service here yesterday morning in the Burleigh cottage. During the service, Mr. Lord's horse, which had been tied in the stable, broke loose and ran away. At the conclusion of the service the animal was nowhere to be found and has not been seen since. Mr. Lord had to be driven home.

The fishing at this resort has been exceptionally good, the largest catch in this vicinity being made by Mr. Cobb, of Fairport, N. Y.

The Rochester Club, consisting of Messrs. F. W. Yates, Fred Teats, P. A. Fowler, M. H. Van Bergh, P. K. Hill, Tobey Meyers and Gilbert E. Machler, returned home on Saturday after two weeks' outing here. Each took with him his allowance of fish.

The following guests are registered at the Park Hotel: Mr. and Mrs. T. D. H. Cobb, of Fairport, N. Y.; Mr. J. H. Quinlan, of Rochester, N. Y.; Messrs. A. Reddock, Toronto; R. A. Laryor, Eurt Kohl, J. Three Hundred Pounds Of Fish Caught At Rice Lake Recently

Three Americans in Three Days Got Thirty 'Lunge—The Largest Weighed 17 Pounds And All Were Good Catches — Speak Highly of the Beds Near Harwood—Other News.

VISITORS ARE ARRIVING

Examiner Special.

Rice Lake, July 5.—The summer residents are beginning to arrive at most of the favourite resorts and the old time activities will soon be at their height. Gore's Landing colony is steadily increasing, Harwood has a fair representation, "Jack" Gillman at Jubilee is enjoying a good patronage, Wedlock's river resort, "Frogmore," is attracting new visitors and the various summer cottages have had the windows unbarred and are again resoundingw ith life and gaiety. The lake has been inclined to roughness for the greater part of the time, the wind playing with the waves and preventing canoeing altogether on several days. The weather has been enjoyable but Saturday's cold spell rather dampened things. Coat sweaters were called into use and the cool atmosphere braced those who are fortunate enough to enjoy the privilege of summering at the lake.

I was at Harwood on Friday and was informed that fishing was never better. A party of Americans, three of them in this group secured thirty 'lunge in three days. The largest was about seventeen pounds and the total weight was over the three hundred pound mark. They were delighted with the sport and stated that they have not found better fishing grounds than those pointed out by the guides.

Jubilee Point is apparently restored to favour as a picnic grounds, and is getting a large number this summer. The management of the hotel so far has been able to successfully cater to the excursionists and satisfactory expressions have been reported from those who have made the trip.

The fishing in the river is very good. I was up as far as Campbellford on Saturday and met ten or twelve canoes coming down for the week end. Nearly every one of them contained fish caught on the down trip. Other reports are just as encouraging, the bass and 'lunge both biting well.

At Pleasant View, Gore's Landing, on Wednesday, Miss Minnie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Brooks, was married to Mr. Geoge A. Benson, of Bewdly. The ceremony took place on the lawn and was attended by a large company of guests.

Miss L. Little, Peterborough, Miss M. Hamill, Campbellcroft, and others have been spending a few days at Frogmore, Mr. Wedlock's home on the Otonabee river.

Mr. Henry Delaney, Cobourg, is occupying his cottage at Rainy Point here.

Mr. Herbert Paton, Cobourg, is spending his holidays here.

Mrs. and Miss Macdonald, Cobourg, have gone out to the Landing to spend a part of the summer.

Mr. E. R. Hutton, Toronto, will be at Shookl sland for a part of the season.

Mr. J.J. Daley and family, Cobourg, are spending the summer at the Landing.

Mr. H. B. Cruso, who with his family are at Ice Island, has had great success fishing for maskinonge.

Miss Macdonald and Mrs. A. H. Macdonald, Cobourg, have come out to the Landing to spend a part of the summer.

Mr. Will. Bingham, son of General and Mrs. Bingham, who have spent many summers at Cobourg, will spend this season at the lake.

Guests from Peterborough, Millbrook, Oak Heights, Centreville, Roseneath, and otherp laces assembled on the spacious lawn at "Pleasant View," the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Brooks, for the marriage of their daughter, Miss Minnie, to Mr. George A. Benson, Bewdly. The marriage took plac ebeneath an arch of spruce, with cedar bells trimmed with pink roses, and a background of orange blossoms. Miss Minnie McIntosh, cousin of the bride, was bridesmaid; Miss Dolly McKinley was ring bearer, and Mr. Victor Walker, Port Hope, was best man.

Salt Codfish Omelet.

Soak a piece of salt codfish about six inches square overnight. Split six crackers and lay them in cold water, just enough to cover them. In the morning pick the fish fine and mix well with the soaked crackers, three well beaten eggs and a piece of butter the size of an egg, also salt and pepper. Take one quart of milk and add to it one dessertspoonful of flour. Boil five minutes and pour over in the dish in which it is to be baked. Bake twenty minutes.—Boston Post.

Regatta in England.

The first regatta in England was in 1775, and it was imported into that country by Lady Mary Wortley Montagu, who had been impressed by the water show of Venice. There was no series of races. There was a procession of city barges to a "temporary octagon," where there was reveling that night and well into the next day. Only seven of the company were drowned on the return journey, which speaks well for the average sobriety of the crowd.—London King.

Breakfast Hours.

A traveler stopped at a hotel in Greenland, where the nights are six months long, and as he registered asked a question of the clerk.

"What time do you have breakfast?"

"From half past March to a quarter to May."—Harper's Weekly.

Boring the Bores.

"What do you do to get rid of bores?"

"Just as soon as they come into my office I start in telling them of the latest cute thing my baby said."

T. A. S. WIN FOURTH VICTORY IN A ROW IN THE SENIOR LEAGUE STRATHS ONCE MORE BEATEN

Park Street and High Commissioners Had the Most Exciting Game of the Season, With Kendry's Fielding as a Feature---Abstainers Had Little Difficulty in Cinching the Second Contest.

Park Street and the T. A. S. were the winners in Saturday's Senior City League double-header at Riverside Park on Saturday afternoon. The Baptists beat the Strathconas after a seesaw game by 10 to 9, in the most exciting contest of the season, while the Abstainers walloped the Oldhamites by 11 to 4, the worst beating of the season.

The First Game

The first game was about as exciting a contest as has been seen so far in the League and ambulance calls might have been frequent had there been any faint hearted individuals in the gathering. Up to the last of the eighth it was the best game of the season. Gorham, for the Straths and Dusty for the Park St. team had the lid clamped down tight and the men behind them were playing the snappiest kind of ball. Then followed the Straths' usual blow up and in their half of the eighth Park St. collected no less than five runs and a victory looked easier than robbing a kid's bank when the Straths came to bat in the first part of the ninth. Again the unexpected happened for the Commissioners with one out went at Dusty with a vengeance and assisted by some lurid errors succeeded in grabbing off six counters and went out in the fielding leading by 9 to 8 to the last half innings of the game. However, Park St., managed to get two across with no one out and won back the game.

As has been said it was snappy ball up to the eighth and Kendry at third base for the Straths was the bright shining star of the engagement. He accepted nine chances without the semblance of a slip up pulling down a line drive with one hand, with the bases full and making a pretty running one handed stop of a hard hit grounder. Weatherstone also did some classy fielding at second for the Straths, but Craig at short had a bad day, making a number of errors that were costly.

The winners also fielded well up to the time of the balloon ascension, both infield and outfield doing nice work. Dusty worked for Park St. while Gorham pitched the first eight innings and Hickey finished for the Strathconas.

There was no score until the last of the second when H. O'Brien was safe on Weatherstone's error, stole second, going to third on Wilson's wild throw and scored on B. Dusty's infield out.

The Straths evened up in the fourth. With one out Weatherstone singled, stole second and scored on Craig's single to right, a wild heave to the plate helping some.

In the fifth the Straths went ahead on Bell's miss of a third strike on Hickey, errors by Jim and Jack Pilling and Shaw's single with good base running sending two runs over.

Park St. came back with one in their half. T. Pilling singled, stole second, went to third on a wild pitch and sored on Jim Pilling's two bagger.

In the sixth Park St. tied the score. A safety by Harry O'Brien, an infield out and Crowe's single scoring one run.

There was nothing further doing until the eighth when the big ascension was pulled off. Jack Pilling first up hit safely over second and O'Brien followed suit between short and third. B. Dusty was out for bunting the third strike but Pentland hit one through Craig and Pilling and O'Brien scored. Curtis threw wild to the plate and Pentland came home, Crome was safe on an error to Gorham and scored on misplays. Bell grounded to Craig who threw wide to first. T. Pilling went out, Kendry to Heaslip, but Jack Pilling hit a grounder to Gorham and Heaslip dropped the throw, Bell scoring. N. Dusty fanned.

With five runs to make to tie the score the Straths' chances to win were not particularly bright. Heaslip, however, was safe on B. Dusty's fumble. Hickey fanned while Heaslip was stealing second and third. Wilson rolled out a grounder but Heaslip beat the throw to the plate and both runners were safe. Wilson stole second and Gorham singled. Curtis hit to centre field for two bases, scoring Wilson and Gorham. Shaw drove out a single, scoring Curtis and proceeded to pilfer some bases. Weatherstone was safe on fielders' choice and Craig sacrificed second to first, scoring Shaw and Weatherstone by fast running and a beautiful slide scored from second on the play. Kendry fanned ending the innings.

Park St. won out in the last half. Jim Pilling hit to Curtis at short in place of Craig and a fumble put him on first. H. O'Brien singled over third. Jim Pilling scored on B. Dusty's out and when Pentland hit safely to centre, O'Brien scored and the game was won.

Second Game

The T. A. S. A. C. took a tight grip on first place in the senior ball league on Saturday afternoon, when they defeated the West End aggregation by 11 to 4.

It was almost a first inning victory that fell to the cold water nine, when they gathered three runs on two hits, three errors and a wild pitch.

The victory put a sure enough polish on in the eighth, when the khaki-clad boys got six counters over the plate.

Although the score is a little lobsided it was a great battle for seven innings.

Rose, who did the heaving for the West Ends, made his first appearance on the slab in a league game this season. He performed very creditably indeed, and had he received anything like support from his team mates would have made the result considerably closer.

Quinlan was there to clear the path for Jack Oldham's entrance into the dark garden—Quinlan and concerted banking out of hits by his team mates—and the hits were mostly of the healthy solour. Everybody bit off a sample with the exception of Derocher and Quinlan, Callighan dumping the sphere along the third base line for three safe ones.

The Game by Innings.

The West End went to bat first and were retired in order.

Callahan was first up for the T. A. S. and beat out a bunt down the third base line and stole second. M. O'Brien got life on a fielders' choice. Callaghan back to second on Campbells' muff. Derocher was safe at first, Kirn dropping the throw. Callaghan scored and O'Brien wen to third. Quinlan skied to Gibson, and Corkery fanned.

McFadden singled to left, driving in M. O'Brien and Derocher. He took third on Tallon's wide heave to first. Doherty ended the innings by grounding out Geale to Kirn. Three runs.

Dobson was safe on Corkery's fumble. He stole second. Rose got first on a fielder's choice, Dobson being run down between second and third. Halpin singled over short, Rose tallying. Geale fanned and Dickie grounded out Quinlan to M. O'Brien. One run.

In the T. A. S. half of the second W. O'Brien went Rose to Kirn. Conroy hit the air. Callaghan beat out a bunt and stole second, but was left there; M. O'Brien going out Geale to Kirn.

West Ends went out in order in their half of the third.

The T. A. S. added two more in the portion after Derocher flew out to Geale and Quinlan struck out. Corkery singled and stole second. McFadden got a base on Dobson's error. Doherty hit safely, scoring both runners. W. O'Brien lifted one to Dickie for the third out. Two runs.

Dobson opened the fourth for the West End, with a double to left. He stole third. Rose fanned Halpin; got first on a fielder's choice. Dobson scored, McFadden dropping Corkery's throw. Halpin made third on the play. Geale ended the innings by pop fly to Corkery, who doubled Halpin at third. One run.

In the T. A. S. half of the fourth Conroy got first on Dobson's error. Callaghan bunted safely, advancing Conroy to second, who was caught napping off the bag on a snap throw by Rose, M. O'Brien singled, Callaghan going to third. O'Brien stole second, but, like Conroy, Rose caught him sleeping. Derocher ended the innings by grounding out Geale to Kirn.

In the fifth both sides were retired in order. In the sixth Derocher booted Gibson's grounder and the runner was safe. He went to second on a passed ball, and scored on Dobson's safety. Rose fanned. Halpin got life on M. O'Brien's fumble, Dobson scoring; Geale flew out to M. O'Brien, and Dickie dinted the atmosphere. Two runs.

The T. A. S. went out in order in their half.

There was nothing doing again until the T. A. S. half of the eighth, when Corkery led off with a clean single, and stole second. McFadden was safe on Gibson's wide throw to first; Corkery taking third. Doherty doubled to midway between left and centre, Corkery and McFadden crossing the plate. W. O'Brien hit safely, scoring Doherty; O'Brien stole second and went to third on Conroy's single to left; Conroy got second on Campbell's errors. Callaghan fanned. M. O'Brien's long fly to Fallon scored W. O'Brien; Derocher got first on a fielder's choice; stole second. Conroy crossed the plate on a passed ball, Derocher going to third. Quinlan received the only complimentary of the game. Derocher scored on blocked ball. Corkery ended the innings by by striking out. Six runs.

The West Ends went out in order in the ninth.

FAST BARRIE TEAM WILL PLAY A PICKED LOCAL NINE ON WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON

Peterborough citizens will be given an opportunity of seeing the famous Barrie ball team in action, as a game has been arranged with them for a picked Peterborough team. The Barrie ball tossers are coming here on Wednesday with an excursion from Barrie, under the auspices of the Carriage Works, and will have with them 400 or 500 supporters. They have undoubtedly the strongest team in Northern Ontario, and will have pitching for them Doc. Burton, one of the cleverest amateur pitchers in Canada, who could have had a trial with the Toronto Eastern League team this spring had he desired. Manager Quinlan of the T. A. S. Senior League is picking the local team, which will be strong enough to give the visitors an awful argument for the honours. Quinlan will do the twirling, and if he is in form the Northerns will not fatten their batting averages much. It will be the best game of the season and should attract a big crowd to Riverside Park. The game will commence sharp at 2 o'clock. The Peterborough line-up will be announced in to-morrow night's paper.

The standing of the Senior City League is as follows:

	Won	Lost	P.C.
T. A. S.	4	0	.1000
Park St.	2	2	.500
West Ends	2	3	.400
Strathconas	1	4	.200

Games this week: Strathconas vs. T. A. S.; West Ends vs. Park Street.

The fans say that the game between the T. A. S. and Park Street on Saturday was the best of the season. There was excitement galore, plenty of good baseball as well as lots of bad, sharp fielding and heavy hitting, and the fans found every minute of it exciting.

The City League games this week will be between the Strathconas and T. A. S. in the first game, and the West Ends and Park Street in the second game. As the last two teams are practically neck and neck it will be a warm battle between the two to see which will hold second place. The other game should also be a corker. The Straths, while they have lost four out of the five games played, have always made it interesting for their opponents and this will be the case Saturday. The Commissioners will fight hard to break the winning streak of the T. A. S. and if they were to play the same game as they did for seven innings on Saturday they will undoubtedly be contenders all the way.

The Peterborough and Otonabee Lodges, I.O.O.F., will hold their Annual Decoration Services on Thursday, July 8th, and will leave Central Park at 2.30 p.m. sharp. All visiting brethren are cordially invited to take in the services. The Brethren are asked to come in proper regalia.

THE LONG THREATENED STRIKE OF THE COAL MINE WORKERS NOW ON

Desperate Struggle Begins at Glace Bay Collieries---The Company Has Evicted the Strikers, the Men Being Forced to Leave Their Homes--A Corps of Seven Hundred Pickets is Ready to Stop the Operations of the Mines---Saloons Will be Closed by Order of Town Council---Newspaper Office is Armed.

Glace Bay, N.S., July 6.—The strike of the United Mine Workers of America members, so long threatened, is now on in earnest.

The opening gun in the strike was fired yesterday, and as a result Dominion No. 6 Colliery, famous for its connection with the steel-coal litigation, was closed down. This mine employed some 330 men. At this colliery the large majority of the employes have been known for some time to be in sympathy with the U.M.W.A. Notwithstanding the company's intention to operate that colliery yesterday, nearly all of the men failed to turn up and the result is that it shut down.

As the Dominion Coal Co. is not at present anxious for an output from this colliery no efforts were made to keep it in operation, so it may be regarded as permanently closed for the balance of the struggle. At the Hub and the International there are a considerable number of men who left their places yesterday, but at all the other collieries the situation remains unchanged.

The leaders of the U.M.W. were yesterday engaged in active preparations for the commencement of hostilities to-day. They intend, it is understood, to make their greatest demonstration of strength at Dominion No. 2 and they expect to turn out a picket force of 700 men to prevent the successful operation of the colliery. Dominion No. 2 is the largest and best-equipped colliery in the works and employes in its two seams over 2,000 men.

Whatever strength the P.W. A. possess lies at this point and it is expected that the struggle for supremacy will revolve about this centre. Should the U.M.W. be successful in closing down No. 2, they will have gone a long way towards establishing their claim that the great majority of the miners are enrolled and will fight under their colors.

On the other hand, the members of the P.W.A. are taking a philosophic view of the situation. They express their intention to be at their places right along and they anticipate no resistance on the part of their fellow-workmen.

As stated in the proclamation, issued by the company yesterday, all the men who quit work last night had to leave the company's houses immediately. This means that every U.M.W. supporter in the bituminous district was without a roof over his head last night. To meet this contingency upward of two thousand canvas tents were received from international headquarters and a white spotted city grew up amid the black surrounding adjacent to the collieries.

The streets yesterday and last night were crowded with thousands of excited men and meetings are being held in all the colliery districts where U.M.W. locals are organized and the strike order is being promulgated by heads of the order.

Independent opinion leads to the view that the larger proportion of men will go out eventually, and that as most the Coal Company will not yet care to operate more than two of their collieries and even these will be short-handed. Reserve and Dominion No. 1 are said to be the strongest P.W.A. centres, but even at these places it is thought a goodly proportion of the men will not work.

The force of constables appointed at the last session of the county council have been armed with rifles and revolvers, and those who are willing to act were being sworn in yesterday. Some of these men have refused to act as constables and consequently are not being sworn. The management of The Gazette newspaper of this place, which has been strongly opposed to the U.M.W. movement, have, it is said, put in a supply of firearms and also put a crowd of men in at night to watch the buildings.

The Coal Company will likely secure the services of an ex-Northwest mounted policeman who went through the South African war to lead its force of special officers at this place.

The town council will take steps to-night to close all liquor stores in the town as a precautionary measure, which step, it is understood, has the approval of the U.M.W. executive.

A man in town last night received a wire from a contractor in Moncton, N.B., asking for 500 men and guaranteeing these men steady work at fair pay. It is likely that he will get some of the men asked for.

Neither side to the dispute is doing any talking for publication, but all expect it will be a fight to the finish.

Dress Ignited By Spark Girl In Great Danger

Special to The Examiner.

Clanricade, Ont., July 6.—Miss A. Trotter was the victim of a painful accident on Thursday last that might have proved fatal and under the circumstances she may be considered as having gotten off very luckily. Miss Trotter was carrying a smudge pail, and on coming out of the milking house her skirt became ignited from a spark and was in a mass of flames in a moment. Fortunately her father, Mr. Robert Trotter, saw her danger, and, running to the rescue, succeeded in tearing the blazing skirt from the girl. The flames scorched her eyebrows and lashes and entered the girl's mouth, but she was not seriously burned.

Lives Lost In Bad Fire In Boston To-day

Special to The Examiner (2.45 p.m.)

South Boston, July 6.—H. P. Strange, 34 years old, and five children, ranging from 18 months to 14 years lost their lives when a defective flue set fire to S. E. Hamlet's house. Strange was spending the day with Hamlet. The children were Hamlet's family. The fire was not discovered until it had gained considerable headway and others in the house had narrow escapes. One of Hamlet's children was thrown from a second storey window receiving injuries that caused its death. The others were burned to death.

Smith Street By-law Presented To Ratepayers On July 29th

The Smith Street Bridge by-law will be presented to the people on Thursday, July 29th. At the same time a by-law for $21,500 for the extension of streets and the filling in of the waterfront will be presented. The Council gave these by-laws their readings last night, and arranged to have them presented to the ratepayers on July 29th, and also to fully explain the nature and clauses of each. The Smith street bridge will cost $38,500. Particulars have appeared several times in these columns in reference to it. Both these by-laws were presented last January, but were lost, owing to sufficient information not having been given out. The second by-law is for the extension of several streets, and for the filling in of the waterfront. Most of this money was expended a year ago, and now needs to be raised by debentures to wipe out the debt. The Council intends to do their best to acquaint the ratepayers with the full details of the two by-laws. Further particulars will be given later as they are prepared.

THE ISOLATION HOSPITAL.

The City Council seems to regard the intellectual health of the city of much greater importance than the protection of their bodily health. The question of an isolation hospital has been settled as to principle and decision for years. Yet not a single definite movement has been made to provide for the erection of the hospital. One would have thought that the recent experience of Peterborough, the large expenditure that has been incurred, the popular uneasiness and inconvenience—which might all have been avoided if an isolation hospital had been available—would have been a lesson. But the Council with serene disregard of all this can go forward with the public library building. The need of this is not as pressing. We have an excellent public library, which has served our purpose well for years; but we have no isolation hospital; something which is urgently demanded. While the desirability of a new public libray building is not denied, it is submitted that the health interests of our citizens are subjected to greater peril by the lack of an isolation hospital than their intellectual interests, by lack of access under more luxurious and convenient conditions to the works of Marie Corelli or Elinor Glyn.

THE "SAW-OFF" QUESTION

The Toronto News, the Montreal Star and a few of the journalistic small fry are discussing or at least writing about the "saw-off," or mutual withdrawal of election petitions denouncing this action as politically immoral and destructive of political purity. So far as a saw-off is really intended to suppress the exposure of all the political corruption in an election contest, it is gravely reprehensible. The primary object of an election petition is to deprive a member-elect of a seat to which he is held to be not justly entitled and to give it to a candidate held to be unjustly deprived of it. Thus, a protest entered to void a seat by or on behalf of a defeated candidate who does not claim the seat, argues a feeling of the corrupt nature of his own contest or of the contest waged on his behalf of such extensively questionable character as not to justify the claim to a seat It may well be asked how an honest desire to purify politics, can be expressed by a protest which does not involve a claim to the seat thus attacked. Will the investigation of alleged improper methods on one side serve a purifying purpose when investigation is evaded of the improper methods of the other, self-confessed by the failure to claim the seat from dread of the consequences of an investigation which would not justify such a claim? Scores of petitions and counter petitions are the aftermath of every Dominion and Provincial general election. Many of these petitions, if not most of them, are entered as speculative or precautionary measures, their being proceeded with being dependent upon future developments that would justify their prosecution or withdrawal, as proof is found available or wanting. They involve no effort or desire to purify political methods; they simply represent, on both sides, party tactics—a desire of one party not to be placed at a disadvantage by the other. They were entered for party and tactical reasons and are withdrawn by mutual arrangement, for similar reasons. They were never, except under conditions of subsequent development, seriously intended to be brought to trial and as the entering of these petitions and counter petitions involved no idea of service to the interests of political purity, so their withdrawal is not to be regarded as involving political immorality. There is another class or instance which is nearly allied to the above—in which a candidate to mollify the sting of defeat, or indulge a spirit of spite, enters a petition, with the sense of guilt of the crooked conduct of his own campaign, which leads to prudently refraining from claiming the seat on the head of the purity of his own election methods. To insist on the prosecution of a protest under this class, reveals no desire for the promotion of the interests of purity of political methods; nothing higher than the gratification of an obstinate spirit of revenge. Another class of protest is that in which a defeated candidate honestly feels that he has been unjustly and improperly deprived of the seat, and confident in the purity of his own political campaign enters his protest and claims the seat. A saw-off of bona fide petitions like this would be foul injustice to the petitioner and subversive of the interests of political morality.

There is a difference between a protest entered in bona fide, and one suggested by a spirit of spite, vindictiveness and revenge.

CANADA WILL DO ITS DUTY.

The Toronto News fears, or pretends to fear, "that the Federal ministers, who have sailed for England, will humiliate Canada before the Imperial Defence Committee, the rest of the Empire and the world at large." Thirteen years experience has shown Canada, the Empire, and the world at large, that imperial interests are safe in the hands of the present Government. The ministerial delegates from Canada at the Conference, will uphold the mandate implied in the resolution of Parliament adopted last session. This resolution adopted unanimously by both parties, expressed the deliberate decision of Canada in relation to the question of Imperial defence. The News represents only itself and its fire-eating jingoistic journalistic allies. Its dog-star jeremiads will fail to shake the equanimity and poise of the Dominion, which must be allowed a voice in deciding in what way its recognised responsibility in the matter of Imperial defence will be met. Canada will do its duty to itself and the Empire.

BRITAIN'S POLICY.

Great Britain's long practised policy of conciliation and concession towards conquered and consequently subject races and countries, explains here unique success as the greatest coloniser of history. A charge of British bullets and bayonets, the grim necessity of war, has invariably been followed except in the case of India, by the most potent instrument of peace, concession of the British freedom that was behind the bullets and bayonets. We conquered France in Canada on the battle field, but subdued her children in Canada by concession of privileges which have made our French Canadian fellow citizens the warmest champions of the British connection, that has brought benefits, political, civil, and religious, which they could not have hoped for and as events show would not have received, by continued connection with France. And magnaminous in boldness was Britain's concession of self government, and all that British freedom implies to the South African Boers. This seemed to many a tremendous risk, but events have shown that the magnaminity was not wasted. The most remarkable and the most significant speech made during the recent visit of the Imperial Press Delegates to Great Britain was that of a South African delegate. Mr. C. Fichardt of "The Friend," Bloomfontein, who, it must be premised, fought on the Boer side through the South African campaign. In responding to the toast of "Our Guests" at the Mayor's banquet, Sheffield, on June 17th, Mr. Fichardt, after remarking that he was a prisoner of war to England, said.

> England had brought to his country war and devastation. She had conquered the flag and country, but she did not conquer the hearts and spirit of the race. After the war there was an aftermath of bitterness—the bitterness of a sullen and discontented people, who waited the opportunity to strike another blow for that freedom for which they had given so much. But then, on a wonderful day, a wonderful thing happened. In spite of all the cost, in spite of all the millions of money that had been expended and the percious blood that had been shed, "you came to us open-handed, gracious, and kindly, and presented to us the freedom which we asked for—(applause)—and you then, for the first time, and, I hope, for ever, conquered the hearts of the South African people." (Applause.) What, he asked, of the future? They in his country watched with a certain amount of envy what the greater sister dominions beyond the seas were able to do. They were a little country, and they were poor. They could not present Dreadnoughts. But this he could promise—that if a foreign foe attacked the Empire in South Africa it would be the unerring rifle of the Boer which would give Great Britain's answer on the wild and lonely veldt. (Loud applause.)

No other nation of the world than Great Britain could have so compared the Boers by force and subdued them by generous trust and kindness.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Glory is a very uncertain quantity. The Sheffield (Eng.) Telegraph, in its report of a banquet to the Imperial press delegates, refers "to Sir Hugh Graham of the Toronto Star."

The mouthing school of Canadian "loyalists," who are shouting for Dreadnoughts and whatnoughts, should take a lesson from the trail of deadly results coming from the absurd spirit of noisy loyalty in the United States, where hundreds are annually killed and maimed and temporarily or permanently removed from the ranks of citizenship through the exhibition of foolish loyalty. Canadians celebrated their national holiday this year without the childish explosion of fireworks, and showed just as much loyalty and devotion to their country as our neighbours did on July 4th, with all their killing and maiming.

PREVENTION IS WORTH WHILE.

When you consider the risk to life, the expense, the anxiety which is involved in an attack of appendicitis and a surgical operation, it is certainly worth while to avoid it by keeping the liver and bowels regular by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. Doctors are now unanimously of the opinion that appendicitis comes from a neglect to keep the liver and bowels in a healthful condition.

"MOUSEY" McDONALD WAS ALLOWED TO GO

William McDonald, better known as "Mousey" McDonald appeared before Magistrate Dumble at the police court this morning on a charge of vagrancy. "Mousey" hasn't been in court here for over a year. He has been in Cobourg. He returned to the city a few weeks ago. He stated that he was working at a local hotel and on that condition he was allowed to go.

Why Not Fill Your Body WITH NEW ENERGY

And avoid the weakness and tired feelings of spring—You can do this by using DR. CHASE'S NERVE FOOD

You need not be a victim of circumstances and suffer all the weakening and depressing effects of spring.

Tired feelings, headaches, indigestion and nervous troubles all fly when the system is flooded with rich, red blood.

Energy and vigour only come after all the ordinary wants of the system are supplied. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is so wonderfully successful as a blood builder that you soon begin to feel strong and healthy by its use.

By means of its great restorative treatment you can rebuild the body when it has been wasted by worry, overwork, lingering colds or the depressing and debilitating effects of spring.

There is no reaction after the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, because it is not a stimulant. On the contrary it is a blood forming, system building medicine which by working hand in hand with Nature proves of lasting benefit to the system and thoroughly drives out weakness and disease by filling the system with new energy and vigour.

Mrs. H. A. Loynes, nurse, Phillipsburg, Que., writes: "I was all run down and could not do my work. Everything I ate made me sick. In nursing others I had seen the good results of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and resolved to try it. As a result of this treatment I have gained ten lbs., do my own work alone and feel like an entirely different person."

COUNCIL HAD BUSY MID-SUMMER SESSION AT JULY'S MEETING

Ald. Metheral Objected to Visit of Fire Chief and Ald. Buller Going to Grand Rapids—Several Claims Made by Families That Were Quarantined With Contagious Diseases—Claim There Should Have Been an Isolation Hospital—Discussion Over Friday Night's Band Concert

Although the City Council generally has an early closing hour during the summer months the regular meeting last night was not concluded until after eleven o'clock. Mayor Rush occupied the chair with all the Aldermen present. The usual preliminary business was transacted according to prescribed custom.

The communications were dealt with as follows:

James' Drain, John Strain, George Strain, F. Adams, and John T. O'Connell, property owners on the north side of Robinson street requested the council to construct the granolithic walk outside the tree line. Board of Works.

W. H. Ruse wrote stating that the market arcade was in a filthy condition and required attention. Property Committee.

Dorist Godfrey asked for permission to build a boat house on the river bank north of the C.P.R. bridge.

R. J. McLaughlin, K.C., on behalf of the Central Ontario Power Co., wrote stating that the company would extend the option re Burleigh Falls power proposition until July 15th, and stating that after that date they would feel at liberty to negotiate with other parties. Referred to the Special Power Committee.

Claims Damages

I write you making claim for the keep of my family from June 12th to June 26th, as we were closed in for that time by order of the Medical Health Officer, Dr. McPherson. Eight of us were closed in and we were depending on our boys' work for our living, and not in a position to stand it and no one working. Hoping you will give this prompt attention.

James Williamson, 83 Aylmer St.

Referred to the Board of Health.

Another Claim

Mrs. E. A. McKee, 31 Dennistoun avenue, claimed compensation for a financial loss due to one of three of her boarders contracting scarlet fever necessitating the loss of two of the boarders and two members of her family had to find other quarters for three weeks. Later her son contracted the disease and Mrs. McKee had to send out her boarders, one of the members of the family and the house was again closed for seven weeks. She claims damages on the grounds that the city was negligent in not providing necessary isolation for such diseases. Mrs. McKee wrote that she was in no way responsible and no right to suffer for the public benefit.

Referred to Legal Committee.

Fence Along the Creek

Dennistoun, Peck and Kerr, on behalf of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Roberts notified the council that they required the creek adjoining their premises to be properly fenced and guarded. The letter stated that action would be brought against the city for the death of Mr. Roberts' son, February 8th, 1909, unless the corporation undertakes to remedy the danger at this point.

Mr. P. J. Doris, Mrs. C. Brisbois and N. Mercier, property owners on Sophia street asked that the cement walks be placed outside the tree line. Board of Works.

Mr. H. L. Beal, secretary of the Peterborough and Ashburnham Horticultural Society, applied for the city's annual grant to the society. Finance Committee.

The following letter was received from the family of the late Judge Weller:

"Mrs. Dean and family wish to extend to the Mayor and Corporation of the City of Peterborough their sincere thanks for the resolution to them."

Want Ditch Filled

A long list of names was signed to an application to have the ditch on Concession street, north of Douro and south of Clifton streets filled in, claiming that in its present state it is a constant menace to the safety of traffic in that neighbourhood, several accidents having occurred at this place. Board of Works.

The presentment of the Grand Jury of the recent assizes was received from Mr. R. E. Wood, County Crown Attorney.

Mr. Willis Chipman presented a letter in regard to the united action of municipalities in connection with the Cameron Company's claims for an infringement upon their patent in the construction of Septic Tanks. On July 7th a meeting will be held in Toronto after which all those interested will wait on Premier Whitney. Alderman Phelan and the City Solicitor will represent Peterborough.

Sawdust Fires

The Fire, Water and Light Committee object to the brigade answering calls to the saw dust pile which frequently requires attention. Three quarters of the hose supply has to be used and should a fire occur in the heart of the city the brigade would be greatly handicapped as it would take one half to three-quarters of an hour to pick it up and a blaze would make untold headway. Mr. J. H. Larmouth of the Hydraulic Power Co. stated that the only thing to be done was to put the fire out or let it burn. They were willing to have it burn itself out. The residents of that part of East City according to Alderman Buller object to the nuisance the smoke creates as their houses have to be closed up. Alderman Morrow and Phelan moved that the company be asked to remedy the nuisance either by putting earth over the sawdust thus preventing a fire starting, or by some other means to relieve the nuisance. Alderman Bradburn suggested that labourers be hired if fire occurs in the meantime, one-half to be paid by the city, the other half by the company. Mr. Larmonth was agreeable to this.

It was stated that these fires were caused by carelessly dropped matches or cigar stubs. Mr. Larmonth remarked that if the company had to put out the fires they would close the bridge against the public and thus prevent the trouble.

Regarding the Band

An invitation was received by the Mayor and Council from the rector and Wardens of All Saints' Church to attend the laying of the corner stone of the New Church on Friday evening, July 9th, at 7:15 o'clock. Alderman Bradburn stated that he had been asked if it were possible to have the band concert postponed that evening. Alderman Turner remarked that it would not interfere as the ceremony would be concluded before the concert would be begun. Aldermen Hicks and Duncan moved that the band be asked to play in the vicinity of the church. Aldermen Turner and Bradburn moved that the band be not interfered with. This motion carried.

Speaking of the band reminded Alderman Duncan of the big convention of painters in the city on July 27, 28 and 29th. He thought that it would be appreciated by the visitors if the band would play their regular concert on Wednesday of that week. Bandmaster Gliddon had intimated that they would be willing. The arrangement was left with Alderman Bradburn. In the motion by Aldermen Gillespie and Morgan the Mayor was asked to read an address of welcome to the visiting painters.

Alderman Metheral's Objection

Alderman Metheral objected to the spending of $100 to enable Chief Howard and Alderman Buller at attend the convention of Fire Chiefs at Grand Rapids. "There are portions of sidewalks getting into deadrepair," he stated, "and $100 would pay for all of it. There are other ways of spending the people's money." Alderman Duncan suggested that only the chief be sent. The motion of Alderman Metherall and Duncan that the clause in the Fire, Water and Light Committee's report providing for the attendance of Alderman Buller and Chief Howard at the convention be struck out was lost by the following vote: Nays—Aldermen Phelan, Morrow, McIntyre, Turner, Gillespie, Buller and Hicks; Ayes— Aldermen Metheral, Bradburn, Duffus and Morgan.

Alderman Hicks stated that Alderman Buller would take the money out of his appropriations along some other lines and was in favour of the officials attending the convention.

Alderman Metheral also claimed that there were not four men to get their holidays this year. Alderman Buller said he would examine the records and find out for certain.

East City Trough

Alderman Morgan with an eye to East City wanted the water trough on Hunter St. East, property placed. "It's been connected up. All the water is not running, but it is for information. If a farmer has a team he has to drive up from the east to allow the horse on the right to drink. The other canpot get at the water and the man has to turn around in order that it may get at the water. We want a trough that is serviceable and we want the water running in the winter as well as in the summer." On motion of Aldermen Morrow and Buller it was left to the Board of Works.

Trimming Trees

Alderman Turner had a grievance against the trees which were not trimmed. He mentioned several on Harvey street and said there were many others in the city which should have low limbs lopped off. Alderman Bradburn said there was no money to do the work. "Not even $60.00 for trimming the trees," he remarked. Alderman Hicks said that the money should be taken from the fund of the Legal Committee (Alderman Turner is chairman). Alderman Turner did not say he would but he otherwise gave his assent.

Alderman Morrow asked about the Isolation Hospital and what progress was being made. Alderman Bradburn said the Property Committee had the plans ready but did not have the time to take them up.

Board of Works Report

The reports of the various committees were read. Alderman Phelan presented that of the Board of Works as follows:

That petitions for granolithic sidewalks on the following streets being sufficiently signed, be granted: Stewart St., eastside, from Dalhousie St. to Wolfe St.; Bethune St., west side, from Sherbrooke St. to Dalhousie St.; Bethune St., west side, from Smith St. to a point opposite the centre of Lot 14, Plan 78; Townsend St., north side, from Stewart St. to Rubidge St.

That a granolithic sidewalk be constructed as a local improvement on the west side of St. Joseph St. from Charlotte St. to Gilmour St.

That the sidewalk on the west side of Bethune St. north of Smith St. be constructed inside the tree line as recommended by the City Engineer, and that it be built as soon as possible.

That the request of Mrs. F. Downham for a driveway on Stewart St. be granted.

That the request of Dr. G. S. Cameron and E. B. Clegg for permission to construct a boulevard on Charlotte St. from Stewart St. east to a lane, be granted, the work to be done as directed by the City Engineer.

That the Chairman be instructed to have a survey made of Concession St. so that the encroachments on the street, of any, may be removed.

That the petition for a sewer as a local improvement on Aylmer St. from the south side of Lot 55, Plan 78, to Aberdeen Ave. be granted, as it is sufficiently signed.

That C. H. Clementi be given permission to remove on elm tree in front of his residence on Water St.

That a By-law be prepared to authorize the construction of a sidewalk as a local improvement on the south side of Brock St. from Water St. to Dickson St. in accordance with a notice given by the Council.

That the Chairman be authorized to have the streets in the centre of the City watered on Sundays.

That George H. McClennan, having resigned his contract for street watering in the eastern district, the Chairman be authorized to arrange with A. Valois to do the work for the balance of the season.

That the sidewalk on Lansdowne St. east of Lock St. be taken up, and that if the owners remove the encroachments from the street a granolithic sidewalk be laid there.

That the matter of a crossing at No. 373 Park St. be left with the Chairman to deal with.

That some action be taken to improve the crossings on the north side of Charlotte St. at Stewart, Rubidge and Reid streets.

That a By-law be submitted to the Electors to authorize the issue of debentures for $15,500 to pay for street extensions, and $6,000 for filling in the water front lots, the debentures to be for twenty years and to bear 4 per cent. interest, and that the sinking fund be based on 4 per cent.

That an account from W. J. Fracis for $100 for a report on the Smith St. bridge be paid.

Finance Committee

The financial statement was read by Alderman Morrow as follows:

NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC.—We wish to inform the public of Lakefield and Peterborough County and vicinity, that Thursday, July 8th, Friday, July 9th, and the last day of the sale ending Saturday night, July 10th, these three days will positively be the last three days of the National Salvage Co's Sacrifice Sale of F. E. Kline & Co's drygoods, clothing and shoe stock. For these three days of our closing out sale, the prices on every article left will be absolutely smashed to smithereens. The entire balances of this stock of clothing, drygoods and shoes, etc., have now been divided into special lots, and re-marked at a terrific reduction, which will sell out every article in the store in the last few days of the sale, as everything in the store will be sold at the most unheard of low prices ever placed on good quality merchandise.

Every article will be disposed of by Saturday night, July 10. Former wholesale cost of the goods have not been considered at all, as the National Salvage Co. have re-marked the balance of this entire stock, which has been put to slaughter at prices that will amaze you. Our reasons for making this great sacrifice on the balance of the stock is, that we may sell every article in the store in these last three days of the sale. Every article in the store must go regardless of former cost or value. It will pay you to come one hundred miles to attend this last three days' sale of F. E. Kline & Co's stock of drygoods, clothing and shoes, and in justice to yourself and pocket book you really cannot afford to stay away. Let all who possibly can get to this sale before it closes on Saturday night, July 10th, as the money you save in this sale on clothing, drygoods and shoes, is practically so much money earned for you All preparations have been made for these last three days of the sale, in order to serve the immense crowd of people who will naturally want to attend this sale before it closes Saturday night, July 10th Act quickly, and come before too late, and secure the greatest bargains in clothing, drygoods and shoes that has ever been your privilege to partake of. It is really a pity and a shame to sacrifice such a stock of good quality clothing, drygoods and shoes as F. E. Kline & Co. carries; but it has to be done. To those needing clothing, drygoods and shoes this sacrifice sale is in reality a veritable God-send, as it is right at the time of year when you are thinking of replenishing your clothing, drygoods and shoes for summer and fall needs. Make your arrangements to be here on one of the last three days of this stupendous closing out sale of F. E. Kline & Co's Stock.

It will be a bargain earthquake of low prices on good quality drygoods, clothing and shoes that will be remembered in Peterborough County for the next ten years.

Make no mistake, be sure you find F. E. Kline & Co's store, now in the hands of the National Salvage Co., who are now closing out the stock at Lakefield, Ontario, and remember that Saturday night, July 10th, is the last day of the sale. Do not delay; hurry in before too late, as this sale closes and positively ends Saturday night, July 10th, at 11 p.m.

Deputation From Cavan Asks City For The Promised Grant

One Thousand Dollars Was Promised a Number of Years Ago to Assist in Construction of Road Through Long Swamp, But Has Not Yet Been Paid—No Surplus Money at Present.

PERSONNEL OF DELEGATION

The Council was once more reminded of a promise of assistance to the township of Cavan by a deputation that waited upon the committee of the whole Council last night. The gentlemen composing it were Messrs. Chas. McNeil, ex-Warden of Northumberland and Durham; A. Kelly, Reeve of Cavan; G. Berry, Deputy Reeve of Cavan; R. Hooten, ex-Reeve of Cavan; and R. Vance. Mr. McNeil was the chief spokesman, and stated that their request concerned the promise made by the city to the Township of Cavan to give $1,000.00 towards the construction of a road through the Cavan swamp. The promise was made a number of years ago, but no action has yet been taken. This is the fourth time a deputation has waited upon the Council. Mr. McNeil stated that the Cavan drain has been completed, and is entirely successful, The water did not overflow the banks last Spring, and the Township is now anxious to build the road through the swamp, as originally intended. The estimated cost was $9,000, but when the drain was completed $18,000 had been spent, the original idea having been enlarged upon. The road through the swamp means a short cut to Peterborough, for the farmers in Cavan, Manvers, and Emily, and Mr. McNeil pointed out that this would mean increased business for Peterborough's merchants, as the farmers of that locality looked upon this city as their natural market. The importance of completing this road was emphasized. Cavan Township needed several thousand dollars to carry on the work, and Mr. McNeil asked the Council to consider the fulfillment of the promise of the grant of $1,000. The foundation of the road has been made, but it is not ready for use.

Reeve Kelly and the other members spoke on the question and stated that they would like to see the city take action as soon as possible. On motion of Ald. Morgan and Duffus, the matter was left with the Finance Committee. Mayor Rush stated that owing to a stringency of finances the city would not likely be able to make the grant this year.

LAWN SOCIAL GREAT SUCCESS

Enjoyable Time Spent Under Auspices of St. Andrew's Ladies' Aid.

The lawn social under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of the St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church last night on the grounds of the manse was a most successful and enjoyable affair. The beautiful grounds were artistically illuminated while the manse was decorated with bunting, the new awning adding to the effect. Mr. Cunningham's orchestra rendered some very enjoyable music while Mr. McKay gave a number of selections on the bag-pipes that were greatly appreciated. Ice cream and strawberries were served by the members of the Ladies' Aid. The weather was ideal and the event was most enjoyable throughout.

CLAIMS THAT BUSINESS TAX WAS UNFAIR AND GIVES REASONS

Council, However, Did Not Take Action, Except to Order Taxes to be Collected—Mr. F. Bartlett Considered That His Assessment Was Unfair—Should Have Applied to Court of Revision.

ROLL NOT YET RETURNED

To secure the ergular discount off the taxes they must be paid by Monday, August 2nd, that being the last day. The Council made this decision last night. Tax Collector Green stated that he had the roll for last year completed with the exception of three items, which he explained. He asked to be given the roll for 1909 in order to get into the work. Moved by Ald. Buller and Phelan that these items be collected as soon as possible and that the Mayor be authorized to give over the 1909 roll when Mr. Green returns the other.

One of the items was a business tax for which Mr. F. Bartlett was assessed for. The City Clerk read the following letter from him in regard to the assessment:

To the Mayor and Council of the City of Peterborough:—

I am asked by the city to pay a business tax which I consider unfair and unjust for the following reasons: Last year I did no work as an architect, not even having a sign out, but was in the employ of the Provincial Government as clerk of works. I am asked to pay a tax on the house I am living in, the value of which bears no more reltaive value to the business I may do than the clothes that I wear. The one bears no relation whatever to the other, and the house which I live in already pays its full quota of tax for the privileges it may enjoy of bein gwithin the city limits, and it is unjust to levy any further tax upit.

A business tax, as I understand it, is a tax to get at extraordinary earnings, earnings that might be in excess of that which is generally exempt in salaried officials. I would say that my earnings have been mediocre rather than extraordinary and I have had all I could do to keep out of debt and I consider it unjust to pay any extra tax. I paid last year what I considered unfair and I do not think that I should be called upon to repeat it.

It would be a pleasure for me to pay extra taxes on extraordinary earnings if I was making such, but I am not, and I therefore wish to be relieved of what I consider extortion.

Trusting you may see this matter in the light that I do, I remain,
Yours very truly,
F. BARTLETT.

DISCUSSION.

Ald. Morrow stated that Mr. Bartlett should have appealed to the Court of Revision. That was the remedy.

"We have a Court of Revision," said Ald. Bradburn and are paying them. They are supposed to go into all the evidence, and I do not see why we should upset their rulings. The business tax is 25 per cent. of the assessed value of the real estate. It was stated that Mr. Bartlett had his assessment decreased a certain amount. The question was dropped on the motion that the three items be collected.

The Brigade Answered 81 Calls During The Half Year

The Semi-Annual Report of Chief Howard Was Presented to the Council—Total Damage From Fire Amounted to $5,518.70—Detailed Statement of Affairs of Fire Department.

COUNCIL WERE PLEASED

Chief Howard of the Fire Department, presented his semi-annual report to the City Council last night as follows;

Peterborough, July 1st, 1909
To His Worship the Mayor,
And Alderman of the City of Peterborough.

GENTLEMEN:—

I have the honor to submitt herewith my half-yearly Report of the Fire Department. During the last six months the Department responded to eighty-one (81) alarms of fires, six more than the proceeding half year.

We have had some very serious fires to handle during the last six months, and no doubt some of them would have been attended with enormous property loss, were it not for the fact that the employment of permanent firemen permits the Department to respond more quickly than a volunteer brigade could.

And it will be gratifying to you to learn that the total damage by fire only amounted to $5,518.70, $1,300.00 of the above amount was caused by Auburn fire as there were no fire hydrant available. Although the damage is some Two Thousand Dollars in excess of the previous six months, I consider we have been very fortunate in preventing disasterous conflagrations.

We have not met with any serious accidents or loss of life. The excellent sanitary conditions at the Fire Station have no doubt assisted very materially, in the good health of your Firemen, something very essential to an efficient Fire Department.

After several months of friction at the beginning of the new Department, I am pleased to be able to inform you that the Department is down to a good working basis. I attribdte this to the determined effort of Alderman William Buller, Chairman of your Fire Committee, who has been eminently successful in banishing political and other interference on the part of persons ill disposed. This has had the effect of strengthening my hand, and allowing me to maintain the proper discipline, without outside interference.

We still continue the regular Fire Drill, which is of great benefit to the Firemen in the perfomance of their duties. You will observe the necessity of this, from the fact that fires occur at irregular intervals, thus leaving weeks at a time with little practise for the men.

The present conditions have been reported to the Canadian Board of Fire Underwriters, and the Gentlemen of that Board assured me on my recent visit to Toronto that they are highly pleased with what has been done in the way of establishing, and maintaining an efficient Fire Department. Within a month or six weeks, circulars will be sent out notifying the Insurance for Peterborough, and if the reduction promised by the Underwriters is as substantial as I anticipate, your Fire Department will undoubtedly be a profitable public utility, in addition to giving first class protection to life and property.

In conclusion I desire to express my sincere thanks to His Worship the Mayor, and the Alderman of the Council for a continuance of their courtesy, and kindness extended to the Firemen and myself, and also to the Public Press for the many kind references to the efficient work of the Fire Department.

The Chief of Police, and his staff of constables have rendered very valuable assistance on many occasions, and have at all times shown a disposition to be friendly, and give a helping hand.

You will please find attached a summary of the workings of the Department.

All of which is respectfully submitted,

I have the honor to be, sirs,
Your obedient servant.

KILL THE DANDRUFF GERM.

Or Your Hair will Fall Out Till You Become Bald.

Modern science has discovered that dandruff is caused by a germ that digs up the scalp in scales, as it burrows down to the roots of the hair where it destrops the hair's vitality, causing falling hair and ultimately, baldness. After Prof. Unna, of Hamburg, Germany, discovered the dandruff germ, all efforts to find a remedy failed until the great laboratory discovery was made which resulted in Newbro's Herpicide. It alone of all other hair preparations kills the dandruff germ. Without dandruff, hair grows luxuriantly. "Destroy the cause, you remove the effect." Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

Sold by McDermid & Jury, Druggists; also Payne's Drug Store. One Dollar bottles guaranteed.

First Day's Celebration in U. S. Costs Nineteen Lives.

THE INJURED NUMBER 427

Daily Tribune of Chicago Shows Big Death List as a Result of Sunday's Fireworks Alone — Former Insurance Magnet is Killed at Louisville, Ky.—Hotel Porter Holds Cannon Cracker in His Teeth

Chicago, July 6.—Statistics compiled by The Tribune regarding the 4th of July casualties after the first day of celebration are:

Dead, 19.—By fireworks and resulting fires, 3, by cannon 1, by firearms 3, by gunpowder 2, by toy pistols, 1.

Injured, 427—By fireworks 166, by canon 51, by firearms 62, by gunpowder 2, by toy pistols 1.

Fire loss $69,200.

Hand Shattered, He Dies.

Louisville, Ky., July 6.—The unenviable distinction of having made the most notable sacrifice to patriotism by reason of Independence Day celebration this year will probably fall to Louisville through the death at Seymour early yesterday of Arthur Granville Langham, former president of the Provident Life Assurance Society.

Held Firecracker in Teeth.

Lockport, N.Y., July 6.—John Mulvey, a porter in Sharkey's saloon, yesterday took a dare that he could not hold a big firecracker in his mouth. The explosion blew out his teeth, and lacerated the membrane of his mouth and throat. He was hurried to the hospital, where surgeons put fifteen stitches in his tongue and mouth. Tetanus is feared.

Fatalities at Wilkes-Barre.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., July 6.—An overcharged cannon exploded Sunday night in North Wilkes-Barre and four boys were so badly injured that two of them may not recover. Michael McNulty's left hand was blown off: Thomas Callahan lost an eye and Jas. Dougherty and Anthony Poerkowitz were perhaps fatally burned.

Exploding firecrackers set fire to the dress of ten-year-old Rosa Lituake and she was fatally burned.

Fated to Lose His Life.

Madison, Ill., July 6.—Frank Dixon, 14 years old, son of George Dixon of St. Louis, was drowned in Horse Shoe Lake, near Madison. He was frightened by the explosion of a cannon cracker behind him and fell from the bank, on which he had been dozing. The youth and his two brothers had been sent here by their father to avoid the possibility of their being injured by fireworks at St. Louis.

New York Victims.

New York, July 6.—A four-year-old girl was knocked down and her skull fractured by a toy cannon, causing death; while an Italian, Jabeerre was shot dead at his bedside by a stray bullet. A ten-year-old boy fell a victime to tetanus from powder from a toy pistol entering a cut in his finger. There were many injured attended at the hospitals.

Bartender Heavily Fined.

Chatham, July 6. Emma Fraubert, charged with stealing $9 from John Ophea while the two were out on a good time, was sentenced to two years in the Mercer Reformatory. Fred Cook, found guilty of stealing a gold watch and other jewelry from the home of Thomas Slater, was sentenced to six months in Central Prison. Augustus Newman, bartender for John Dunlop of the Merrill House, was convicted of selling beer to a nine-year-old boy, who had presented a forged order. He was fined $50 and costs.

Allowed Himself to Be a Target.

New York, July 6.—So certain was Andrew Hershi that a 22 calibre rifle would not carry 200 yards, that he offered himself as a living proof of his theory yesterday afternoon. Last night he was taken to a Jamaica, L.I., hospital with a 22-calibre bullet in the outer wall of his heart, dying. The police have the name of the man who fired the shot, but no arrest was made.

Fatally Stabbed In His Store.

Sydney, N.S., July 6.—Lucien Lebau, a prominent St. Pierre merchant, was stabbed to death in his store on Sunday by a seaman.

Four men, including the murderer, had entered the shop and were making a disturbance.

It was while they were being ejected that the proprietor received his death wound.

Neglected Colds Lead to Consumption

Unless a complete cure is effected the inflammation passes rapidly to the throat's bronchial tubes and then to the lungs.

You can't make new lungs any more than you can make new fingers or a new nose—hence consumption is practically incurable.

But Catarrh can be cured, except in its final and always fatal stage.

Catarrh sufferers, meaning those with colds, sore throat, bronchial trouble, etc., can all be cured right at home by inhaling "Catarrhozone."

In using Catarrhozone you don't take medicine into the stomach—you just breathe a healing piney vapor direct to the lungs and air passages.

Catarrhozone Guaranteed to Cure

The purest balsams and the greatest antiseptics are thus sent to every spot where catarrhal trouble exists—germs are killed, foul secretions are destroyed, nature is given a chance and cure comes quickly.

Colds and throat troubles can't last if the pure healing vapor of Catarrhozone is breathed—sneezing and coughing cease at once, because irritation is removed.

Use Catarrhozone to prevent—use it to cure your winter ills—it's pleasant, safe, and guaranteed in every case, 25c., 50c., and $1.00 sizes. Sold by all dealers. By mail from the Catarrhozone Company, Kingston, Ont.

TAKING UP LAND.

Two Hundred Clean Up Newly Opened Reserve at Lethbridge.

Lethbridge, Alta., July 6.—Not since the opening of the pre-emption land last September has there been such a rush at the land office as there was yesterday morning, when about twelve sections, near Bow Island and Burdette, and two townships in Bad Water Lake district were opened for entry.

From last Wednesday men have been camping on steps of the office. At midnight Sunday there were sixty or seventy packed into the passage from the street to the door.

About 3 o'clock in the morning there was wild scenes. A gang of a dozen half-breeds and others not any too gentle, either in looks or action, drove up and undertook to clean out the place and secure first positions. They made an attack on the congested mass in the passageway, but were repulsed.

By the time the office opened there was a crowd of 200 or more waiting. Acting Agent J. A. Reid turned the key and then 200 men and women made a rush for the narrow opening. The structure strained and nearly broke. The human barricade was nearly carried away, but finally the mass came to a stand, and a man got through, the first to file on what is as good as $3,000 or $4,000, at a cost of $10 and a night's sleep. One by one they were let in and passed up, the staffs handling over 250, and cleaning the bunch up in one day. All Bow Island land and practically all the Bad Water Land was taken up by 11.15.

Used Ontario Text Books.

Ottawa, July 6.—Because Brother Philadelphus introduced into La Salle Academy, of which he was principal, the text books of the Ontario Education Department, so that pupils could try the regular departmental examinations, he has been recalled.

This academy is a private institution for boys, taught by the Christian Brothers, the studies ranging from junior classes to a course equal to the departmental matriculation. Brother Philadelphus altered the course of study and the text books in order that the boys might be enabled to qualify for the Ontario Educational Department certificates, but he was too progressive for his superiors, who all hail from France.

They said it was the entering of the thin edge of the wedge, which would result in trouble and misery, as it had in France, where an effort had been made to conform with the requirements of the state.

Pan-Scandinavian Alliance.

Spokane, Wash., July 6.—Fifty thousand Danes, Norwegians and Swedes in Eastern Washington and Oregon, north and central Idaho, western Montana and southeastern British Columbia are backing a movement, launched in Spokane, to urge upon the mother countries the importance and necessity of forming a pan-Scandinavian alliance to preserve the territorial integrity of Denmark, Norway and Sweden. It is purposed to enlist the support of the Scandinavians and their church societies and lodges all over America in the plan.

Canadian Flour Via U.S.

Ottawa, July 6.—W. G. Fischer, Canadian trade agent in Glasgow, reports a feeling in Scotland that more flour should come from Canada and by British boats. At present the greater portion of imported comes from United States ports, and is credited to the United States. He also reports a probable good wheat harvest in Europe. H. H. Pousette, trade agent in Durban, reports a gradual revival of trade in South Africa.

Jolted From Wagon.

Kingston, July 6.—Russell Gummer was riding into Kingston from Inverary at noon yesterday with George Hunter, who had a load of cheese for market. On the way the load shifted, and the boxes rolled upon the horses and they ran away. Gummer was thrown under the wheels, and these going over his back broke it, and caused instant death. He was about 22 years of age.

Boat Suddenly Sank.

Charlottetown, P.E.I., July 6.—While Alexander C. Gallant and his brother were in their sailboat it suddenly and without warning sank. Alexander was carried some distance away as he had heavy boots and oilskins on, the boat sank. His brother, who caught the mast, held on and was rescued. Gallant was 45 years of age and leaves seven children.

Fire at Grimsby.

Beamsville, July 6.—Fire swept the centre of the Woolwerton block at Grimsby yesterday about 9.30 a.m. The building was occupied by the Grimsby Club, Schwab and Maddox, gents' furnishings; Gilmore's barber shop; Culp's harness shop; and a Chinee laundry.

Fifty-Six Teachers After One Place.

St. Catharines, July 6.—Fifty-six applications have been received for the position of teacher of junior English and history at the collegiate, rendered vacant by the resignation of Miss Ethel Allard.

RESCUERS ARE OVERCOME

Frank Malone of Almonte, Ont., Along With a Companion is Overpowered by Fumes at 200-Foot Level of Crown Reserve Mine — Seven Rescuers Nearly Lose Lives Trying to Bring Men Out.

Cobalt, July 6.—Frank Malone, aged 24, of Almonte, Ont., was asphyxiated early Sunday morning while working at the 200 foot level of the Crown Reserve mine. A companion and seven other men who went to the rescue were overcome by gas fumes, several having narrow escapes from death by suffocation, prompt action by fellow-workmen and a corps of medical men.

Soon after Frank Malone and Fred Dyer had descended to the 200-foot level of No. 2 shaft of the Crown Reserve, George Leggett, who had stayed up at the 100-foot level, heard a scream. He notified the men at the shaft head and rescuers descending found Malone and Dyer unconscious, badly "gased."

Reginald Harding and Leggett fought the effects of the gas till the two unconscious men were in the bucket and well on their way up the shaft, but after that they succumbed in climbing up the ladder leading from the 200 to the 100 foot level, and had to be sought for themselves. Keefe and McDonald, two other miners who helped get out Dyer and Malone, went down to get the first two rescuers up, and when they reached the surface were all in bad shape. All recovered but Malone, who died one and a half hours after he had been rescued. It was ascertained that he had suffered from lung trouble and, therefore, did not respond to the artificial respiration that was tried. He is a native of Almonte and a noted lacrosse player in the Ottawa League.

To Extripate White Slavery.

Toronto, July 6.—A new campaign for the extripation of the white slave traffic in Canada will be launched at a conference here next week. This was decided upon by the executive of the Dominion Council of Moral and Social Reforms yesterday afternoon.

The executive met at the Confederation Life Building. Rev. Dr. Carman, president, was chairman. Rev. Dr. Shearer reported that the sub-committees on political purity, child labor and criminal code amendments had all been actively at work. In considering the report of the committee upon criminal code amendments it was considered advisable to commence a public campaign immediately.

Fire at the Falls.

Niagara Falls, Ont., July 6.—Fire destroyed the $10,000 plant of the Brooks Gasoline Engine Co., at Falls View, last night. The plant is a total loss and there was no insurance. There is no water supply in the township and the fire-fighting appliances are ancient and inadequate.

"Owing to these reasons," said Mr. Brooks, president of the company, "the insurance companies would not accept any risks, and I was unable to take any precautions against fire loss. All my money was invested in the plant, and I am now penniless."

The cause of the fire is attributed to electric wires.

Montreal Probe to Go On.

Montreal, July 6.—The Provincial Government has decided not to allow the investigation of Montreal's civic affairs to close until the whole administration of the city has been probed. The term for the sittings of the royal commission was limited to July 15.

At a session of the Cabinet in Quebec yesterday, it was decided to extend the term to Sept. 15. Within a few days, therefore, a proclamation will be issued extending the period of Justice Cannon's appointment until that date.

Canada to Shoot In U. S.

Ottawa, July 6.—It is now probable that the Dominion of Canada Rifle Association will send a team to the Palma Trophy match, to be held at Port Perry, Ont., in September. Special pointed ammunition has arrived from England and will be ready for use should a team be sent. The team will probably be chosen during the D.R.A. meet and will remain here for practice with the special ammunition until they leave for the Palma match.

Bad Storm In Colorado.

Denver, Col., July 6.—Property damage estimated at $300,000, railroads demoralized and thousands of pleasure-seekers who left the city on Sunday with the prospects of two days' recreation marooned in the mountains, are some of the conditions resulting from Sunday's heavy rain and electrical storm.

Indians Stabbed Over Woman.

Syracuse, N. Y., July 6.—James McGerken of Montreal, an Indian, and Andrew Le Saun, a St. Regis, are at an hospital here as the result of a fight on the Onondaga Reservation. Both were stabbed in a quarrel with Thomas La France, another Indian, over a woman. Le Saun is likely to die. La France is missing.

$1 a Cake Could Buy No Better Soap

If you were to offer us $1 for a single cake of soap, we could make no better than our Infants' Delight.

For we have put our very best into this cake. We go to the gardens of France for pure vegetable oil. There we pay often double what we might pay. We bring cocoanut oil more than 12,000 miles from the isle of Ceylon. Then we mix these oils and boil them doubly long.

After this we send them through our own special milling process—one that we have perfected only in our 43 years of experience.

From here they fall like flakes of snow into huge bins and are then crushed under a weight of 30 tons to press out the moisture.

Then they pass through granite rollers and come out in miles of silky ribbons, after which they are dried eight times. The result is the most perfect and delightful soap.

It is so pure and clean that it leaves the skin fair as an infant's. So we call this soap Infants' Delight.

Order one cake today and see for yourself how different it is. Note the rich, creamy lather and see how it leaves the skin as soft as velvet and as smooth as silk.

Note the dainty perfume—it comes from Bulgaria and costs us $100 a pound. But it requires 3,000 pounds of rose leaves to make a single ounce of this Otto of Roses. The fragrance is simply exquisite. Please try it and see.

NON-POISONOUS,

Recommended by Ontario Agricultural College
Guelph, Ontario

They report Bug Death has made an excellent record in each of the past two years. The potatoes on which the Bug Death was applied were more vigorous in growth and greener in appearance throughout each of the seasons than those on which other applications were made.

DO YOU WANT BETTER CROPS?

Of course you do. Well, the way is clear. Use Bug Death and you'll not only have a heavier crop, but larger potatoes of better quality.

Write or call and we'll tell you some more good things of this celebrated Bug Killer and Fertilizer, both in one.

INTERESTING SKETCH OF "BILL" CINNAMON, LINDSAY PLAYER

The Lindsay Watchman Warder contains a good cut of "Bill" Cinnamon, and an interesting article on the famous old Scugog ball player. Peterborough fans have seen William perform on many occasions, both with Lindsay and Oshawa, and although his vocal ability used to bring him a warm reception from the crowd the followers of the game were forced to admit that in his prime Bill was a clever ball player. The Warder says:

They may talk of Mooney Gibson, Bowerman and a dozen other idols of the big leagues, but none has cut a bigger figure among their associates than has William G. Cinnamon—"Bill" Cinnamon—in the Midland league. True, "Bill" is not in the same class as a ball player, nor is the Midland League an organization with a world-wide reputation, but nevertheless everybody in this little circuit who has played the game or followed the players, knows of "Bill."

Like Madame Patti, Cinnamon has announced his retirement a dozen different times and a dozen times he goes back for just one more game and one more "last appearance." Last Saturday he donned a uniform and mit and without a single practice caught a remarkably fine game for Stouffville against Markham. True, he was not at his best and Hickey, who pitched for Markham, caught him cold off second, but Mr. Hickey, ex-eastern leaguer, would not do it if "Bill" had a few practices under his cap.

Cinnamon came to Lindsay from Oshawa and has played ball for this town for years. He took up the catching game here, but has also pitched creditably and is a fairly good all-round player. A year or so ago he went out to Dauphin and played a season with the pro. team there.

Talk as they will, but "Kicker" Cinnamon knows just as much about baseball as anybody in Lindsay, or Peterborough either,—and just a little more.

STRONG TEAM PICKED TO MEET BARRIE TO-MORROW—BEST GAME OF SEASON

Grete interest is being taken in the ball game at Riverside Park to-morrow afternoon between the fast Barrie team and a picked team from the local Senior City League. The visitors who will be here to-morrow with the Barrie Carriage Works excursion have one of the fastest amateur teams in Ontario and have beaten nearly everything that they have run up against. They will have on their strongest line-up to-morrow with Burton and Scott in the points and will give the locals an awful argument for the honours. The team selected by Manager Quinlan to represent Peterborough is, however, a strong one and will be there with the bells on all the way. Nearly everyone on the lineup has been hitting .300 or better in the City League and they should be strong with the willow while they are fast fielders. With Quinlan himself pitching, the locals will take a whole lot of beating.

It will be the first game of the season with an outside team and will give the fans, who have been yelling for a homebrew article see the local players in action against a fast bunch of foreigners. The game will commence sharp at 2 o'clock at Riverside Park.

Manager Quinlan announces the line-up of the locals as follows and the men are asked to be at Riverside Park in uniform at 1:30 o'clock to-morrow afternoon.

Callaghan lf, Flaherty 2b, M. O'Brien 1b, Shaw cf, Quinlan p, Craig 3b, Kendry ss, H. O'Brien, Curtis or Kirn rf, McFadden c.

It is likely that Dan McCabe, the official umpire of the City League will handle the game.

BASEBALL

The batting averages of the players selected to represent Peterborough to-morrow in the game against Barrie are as follows: Shaw cf, .417; M. O'Brien 1b, .353; H. O'Brien rf, .368; Quinlan p, .333; McFadden c, 333; Kendry ss, .333; Craig 3b, .300; Callaghan lf, .294; Flaherty 2b, .200; Curtis rf, .167.

There should be a big crowd at to-morrow's game. Barrie has a very fast team and as it will be the first time this season that an outside team has played here, there is considerable interest being shown in the engagement. If the attendance to-morrow warrants it other games with foreign teams will be arranged, as it is felt that the local players can hold their own with the best of the Ontario teams.

'ROUND THE STORES

A prospective advertiser enquired the cost of space in the Examiner a few days ago, and appeared surprised at the apparently high rate. He was positive, he said, that he could get it for much less in another publication; mentioning the name of a newspaper of comparatively small and uninfluential circulation. He didn't seem to realise the value of the circulation and was only concerned about present expense. But he got his eyes opened.

Don't run any risk experimenting. When you want wall papers for your halls, parlours, dining-rooms, bedrooms, or dens, avoid the ultra styles, and you'll never be sorry. There is as much real good style in wall papers as in anything else, and as much to avoid. This season's designs lead decidedly towards those patterns which give best expression to a room, without conflicting with your furniture. Keep your walls in style, by all means, and to know how little it costs to do so, visit the wall paper depository of the Peterborough Book-Store.

An interesting photographic study by Mendel is on exhibition at the entrance to the studio. It portrays a woman's head and shoulders in meditative pose. It is a straight photograph taken on ordinary rough drawing paper and is a new style of print-developing an expression of photography not often seen here.

Special to The Examiner.

Hastings, July 2.—A quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. Hayden, Port Hope, when Miss Jennie Short became the bride of Mr. Aubrey Doxsee, son of Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Doxsee, of Hastings. The bride entered the drawing room leaning on the arm of her brother-in-law, Mr. R. Hayden, and was daintily gowned in white mercerized mull, with lace trimmings. The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. G. Clarke, pastor of the Methodist Church, in the presence of the immediate relatives and friends of the contracting parties. After the customary congratulations the party repaired to the dining-room, where a dainty luncheon was served and much enjoyed. The young couple will reside in Hastings. Mr. and Mrs. Doxsee's many friends extend congratulations and join in wishing them a long and prosperous married life.

The team was stopped by some men doing road-work, fortunately without anything more serious.

The contract for the [illegible] of the Methodist Church has been let to Mr. Graham, of Havelock, who will begin the work at once.

DEFECTIVE CHIMNEY SUPPOSED TO HAVE CAUSED DESTRUCTION OF JAMES NELSON'S HOUSE, LANG

Fire Broke Out Shortly After Dinner on Sunday and in Short Time Entire Building Was Enveloped—Efforts to Save It Were Vain—Surrounding Barns Had Narrow Escapes.

Examiner Special.

Keene, July 6—The Mexican gypsies that have been in Peterborough passed through Otonabee Friday evening on their way to Quebec. They went by various routes, but all met at Plunkett's corner, and camped for the night. Only two loads went through the village. When in camp the women appeared to do all the work, while the men sat around and smoked. A party of the gypsy women were with difficulty restrained from helping themselves to the newly cut hay in a hay field near the camp.

Beyond this they didn't attempt to molest any one's property, although they appeared to be very careful not to offer excessive prices for what few articles they purchased.

The house in Long occupied by Mr. James Nelson, was burned to the ground on Sunday afternoon. Mr. Nelson and his daughter had just finished dinner and Mr. Nelson had gone for a walk, while his daughter went upstairs, when the alarm of fire was given and immediately the whole house was ablaze. Miss Nelson was unable to save anything, and was glad to get out unharmed. The neighbours quickly gathered, but were unable to get into any but one room, from which they only removed the organ and a couple of chairs. A buggy, which was in the woodshed was taken out, and although a large crowd quickly gathered the flames had spread so rapidly that nothing more could be saved. Fortunately, for the neighbours to the north, south and west the wind was in the west, and blew the flames away from all the adjoining buildings. Mr. David Hastie's stable, which was near, was in some danger, but was kept well covered with wet blankets and saved. Some anxiety was felt for a time for Mr. Robert Humphries' barns, which, although some distance away, were in the direction in which the wind was blowing, but although the straw in the barnyard was several times ignited the fire was never allowed to gain any headway.

Origin Unknown.

The cause of the fire is not known, but it is supposed to have come from a defective chimney.

Mr. Nelson had the contents of the house insured for $400, while the house, which was the property of Mr. Robert Humphries was not insured. All the residents of the village turned out on the first alarm of fire and worked willingly and manfully to prevent the fire from spreading.

Contract For Public Library Is Let To Rutherford Bros. By The City Council For $21,887.00

The contract for the election of the new public library was let to Rutherford Bros. last night, their tender being the lowest of eight, $21,887.

The Property Committee met yesterday afternoon at five o'clock with Alderman Bradburn in the chair and Aldermen McIntyre and Duncan and Mayor Rush present. The chairman called attention to the fact that when the advertisements were called for nothing was demanded in the form of security. It was moved by Aldermen Duncan and McIntyre that the tenderer who tenders for the public library is accepted be required to deposit a marked cheque for $1,000 to be returned to him when he has entered into a contract for the proper completion of the work and furnished security satisfactory to this committee and to be forfeited if he does not execute the contract and furnish such security.

Alderman Bradburn then opened the letters, none of which had been recived by three o'clock yesterday.

The tenders were as follows:

James Bogue	$22,680
Malcolm McIntyre	22,150
Richard Sheehy	26,194
Baptie Bros.	24,600
Rutherford Bros.	21,887
J. E. Hayes	22,450
H. Carveth	23,000
W. J. Johnston	23,500

Moved by Aldermen and McIntyre that the tender of Rutherford Bros. be accepted. Carried.

When the Property Committee presented their report to the Council it was adopted.

WINNERS OF THE RACES AT PIC-NIC OF ALL SAINTS SUNDAY SCHOOL

All Saints' Sunday School held their annual picnic to Jubilee Point on Monday, the 5th, and without any doubt it was one of the finest picnics of the year. Everybody tried to make the other person enjoy themselves which always makes successful picnics. The picnickers arrived at Jubilee at 11:15 and immediately opened up baskets. After dinner the officers with assistance of a few ringers tried to beat the young men at baseball, but had to take defeat themselves to the tune of 9 to 5. Mr. M. Armstrong's spit ball being too much for them.

Then come the races. This was of course the best part of the day for the children and those who did not win took their defeat like good sports. The following is a list of events:

Boys' Races, 8 years and under—1st Wm. Adams, 2nd Bruce Blondin, 3rd Harry Murdoff.

10 years and under—1st Clifford Wilson, 2nd Walter LeBarr, 3rd Frank Lundy.

14 years and under—1st Roland Jarvis, 2nd George Babcock, 3rd Fred LeBarr.

Girls' Races, 8 years and under—1st Mamie Lesurf, 2nd Sara Wilson, 3rd Mary. Fanning.

10 years and under—1st Olive Skiffon, 2nd Hazel Fannig, 3rd Tillie Lesurf.

14 years and under—1st Alice Lundy, 2nd Lily Spicer, 3rd Edith LeBarr.

Open—1st Gertrude Rush, 2nd Alice Lundy, 3rd Bernice Garside.

Needle and thread race—1st Alice Lundy, 2nd Linda Lundy, 3rd E. LeBarr.

Potato race—1st Lillie Spicer, 2nd V. Patterson, 3rd Geraldine Hooper.

Married ladies—Mrs. Runnett.

Teachers—Miss Bullen and Miss M. Dockerill tie.

The features of the races was the Boby Kerr stunt of MissDockerill and Miss Bullen, it being unable to decide a winner after numerous heats done in 9¾ time.

Too much cannot be said on behalf of Captain Young and crew of the Stoney Lake for the way they treated every person on board.

The return trip was made in good time and a most enjoyable outing was brought to a very pleasant close.

The many friends of Miss Gertrude Wells, eldest daughter of Mr. J. L. Wells, formerly of Peterborough, and a niece of Mrs. A. McFarlane and Mrs. D. Cameron, city, will be interested to learn that she was married on Monday of last week. The Fort William Times-Journal says:

St. Paul's handsome church was the scene of an interesting wedding at 8 o'clock last evening, when in the presence of a large assemblage the marriage of Miss Gertrude Irene Wells, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Wells, to Mr. Alexander Cardwell Moffat was solemnized, Rev. H. G. King the officiating clergyman.

Mr. R. T. Gibbons played the bridal music, and as the sweet strains of Lohengrin's beautiful chorus filled the church the bride's procession entered. Rarely has a prettier sight been seen. The ushers, Dr. J. D. Chisholm and Mr. M. Cochrane escorted the bridal party to the altar, where the groom and the best man, Mr. A. A. Vickers, awaited the coming of the bride.

A STRIKING MINER IS SEVERELY TREATED

ONE HALF ARE OUT

Dominion Coal Officials Declare That Fifty Per Cent. of Workmen Are Still at Their Posts—Little Violence Has Yet Occurred—One Man Receives Rough Handling — Several Are Hooted.

Glace Bay, N.S., July 7.—The first day in the big strike between the United Mine Workers of America and the Dominion Coal Co. ends with both sides expressing themselves as satisfied.

At 6 o'clock last evening the strike situation was a little better defined, but any attempt at reaching exact figures is attended with embarrassment. The coal company claims to have 50 per cent. of its regular force at work, a statement which is strenuously denied by the officials of the U.M.W., who claimed that only about 1,000 of the 5,200 regular men employed were on the job to-day.

President James Ross was at No. 2 Colliery all day. This mine was idle without a doubt. There was nothing doing at the banking station either, and it is said that an attempt was made yesterday afternoon to bring in men from Louisburg to start that work. This report cannot be confirmed.

At Dominion No. 1 the coal company say that not more men are absent from work than is customary after a pay-day. This mine employs about 750, and the U.M.W. claim that 250 men is well within the mark of the number that turned out yesterday, and of those 136 are Italian laborers and not coal miners. There is practically no skilled labor at this mine.

A number of men who were at work yesterday will not turn up to-day. The women folk around this town appear to be strongly in favor of the U.M.W., and turned out in large number yesterday to encourage the non-workers and to try to prevent others from going to work.

The women were most severe in condemnation of the men who turned out to work. Cries of "scab" and other uncomplimentary epithets were hurled to and fro, and one man said he could not stand the ridicule and contempt of the women, and had decided to throw in his lot with the strikers.

The men, except in one or two instances, were remarkably orderly and only on one occasion was an attempt at violence noted. From 3 to 6 o'clock they kept lined up at the main entrance of the colliery, and the workmen as they left the plant were compelled to pass through a long lane of strike sympathizers, three and four deep, who launched taunting cries of "scab," "scab" at the outcoming men. On one occasion a workman who retaliated was rather badly jostled and roughly handled.

President Ross of the coal company, said: "As is well known this is a quarrel between the men themselves. Some of the men are deliberately attacking law and order. They appealed to the Government under the Conciliation Act, and the verdict was against them. And such a condition as now exists where men working under an agreement are trying to interfere with others who are honestly endeavoring to carry out a parallel in the history of industrial disputes.

"I do not look forward to a protracted strike, but on the contrary I anticipate the production of an output sufficient for all our purposes in a very short time."

Glace Bay is practically a creation of the Dominion Coal Co. It is situated on the Sydney & Louisburg Railway, which is owned by the company, and in the town itself the company has erected upwards of 1,500 substantially built houses, which are rented to the workmen. The population is about 12,000.

Duggan Is Pleased.

Montreal, July 7.—F. L. Wanklyn, vice-president of the Dominion Coal Co., gave out the following telegram from G. H. Duggan, manager of the mines:

"Conditions this morning better than I expected. No. six pit only idle. Will get to-day practically full output from No 1 Reserve and Victoria, and about half from other mines, including international, which last night was regarded as doubtful. Strikers have very large number of pickets since midnight, but crowd reasonably orderly."

WANT NO MORE WAR

President Pays High Compliment to People of Lower Canada—Ambassador Bryce Hopes That Lake Champlain Has Seen Its Last Hostilities — French Ambassador Jusserand Also Speaks.

Bluff Point, N.Y., July 7.—With the arrival of President Taft, of Ambassador Bryce of Great Britain; of Ambassador Jusserand of France; Secretary of War Dickinson and Vice-Admiral Uriu of Japan, the celebration of the 300th anniversary of the discovery of Lake Champlain, which had been confined during the past two days to the States of New York and Vermont, yesterday took on an international scope and a world-wide interest.

For Ambassadors Bryce and Jusserand and President Taft, all committed their respective countries to policies of peace, and, in the shadow of an old fortress which had witnessed some of the bloodiest battles in all history, they expressed the hope that never again would the peace among the great nations of the world be interrupted by a war.

Ambassador Jusserand in his speech was most felicitous in his expression of peace and good-will toward America, toward Great Britain and toward all the world. He referred with much feeling to the fact that France and Great Britain soon are to celebrate the completion of 100 years of peace.

Ambassador Bryce took up the theme and declared that although he was surrounded by martial scenes and men of arms, he himself was a man of peace.

"Not until I visited the old fort yonder to-day," said Mr. Bryce, "did I realize how many memories cluster around its ruins, but I cannot but believe its creator meant this beautiful spot for something else than fighting, and I trust that it never will see fighting again."

Ambassador Bryce declared that the English and French, in the fighting about Ticonderoga, found each other worthy antagonists. While he admired them, he said, for their courage in the cause they went forth to fight for, he hoped they would never, never do it again.

Champlain was a man whom all nations can honor," said President Taft. He is not a man with respect to whose history you have to pass over something in silence.

"All his life could bear the closest examination and he brings out in the strongest way those wonderful qualities shown in the 15th, 16th and 17th centuries by Spaniards, Englishmen, Frenchmen and Portuguese, who braved those dreadful terrors of the seas, circumnavigated the globe in little cockleshells and carried the standard of the then civilization into the farther forests and into the dangers of the most distant tropics.

"There were Montcalm and Wolfe, two great Christians, back to whom you trace the whole history of Lower Canada. It is true Wolfe conquered Montcalm on the Plains of Abraham, but there is still in all the region of Lower Canada a population purely French, a population of industrious, God-fearing and loyal to the flag people, under whose Goverament they live. That fact is a compliment not only to the far-seeing statesmanship of the English colonial statesman who frames the government under which they live, but it is a compliment to the present industrial domestic virtues of the French nation."

Off For the Celebration.

Montreal, July 7.—There was an animated scene last evening at Bonaventure Station, as the Canadian dignitaries were leaving for the Champlain celebration.

Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux explained that he would represent the Canadian Government alone, since Ambassador Bryce was present and would represent the Government of his Britannic Majesty. There were the Postmaster-General and Madame Lemieux; Sir Lomer Gouin, Prime Minister of Quebec; Sir A. H. Pelletier, Lieutenant Governor of the province of Quebec, with Col. Hatch and Major Crossette, the military representative of the governor of the State of New York, who could not come here, but who will meet the Canadians on American territory this morning. U. S. Consul-Gen. Bradley was also of the party.

Six Years for Diamond Fakir.

Paris, July 7.—Henri Lemoine, who, on pretence of being able to make diamonds, defrauded Sir Julius Wernher, head of the De Beers Mining Co., of a large sum of money, was sentenced to six years imprisonment and a fine of $800, after a long trial.

The court pronounced Lemoine a vulgar fakir, whose pretentions lacked the semblance of scientific procedure."

Western Crop Report.

Winnipeg, July 7.—The crop reports received yesterday from all points in the West are very optimistic. Early wheat is heading out, and all grain crops are in a very healthy condition.

The harvest is expected to be much earlier than last year.

Seven Hundred at Cocking Main.

Ottawa, July 7.—Seven hundred persons are said to have attended a cocking main just outside Hull on Sunday last at which fifty battles were fought ... thousands of dollars changed hands.

WORK IS GOING ON

Sir James Says Commission Expects to Complete Transmission Lines Within the Specified Time — Mr. Sothman Investigating European Systems — Commission Will Advertise For Tenders.

Toronto, July 7.—Hydro-electric power was the chief topic of discussion at the Parliament Buildings yesterday. Hon. Adam Beck and his colleagues on the commission were closeted for some time with the Cabinet.

On the conclusion of the meeting Sir James Whitney stated that the whole question had been discussed at length.

"The situation," said Sir James, "is very satisfactory. From now on the work of constructing the transmission line will proceed with the greatest expedition, and there is no doubt that it will be completed before the time allotted in the contract."

Hon. Col. J. S. Hendrie and W. K. McNaught, M.P.P., the other members of the commission, in conversation afterwards commented pointedly upon the reports which had been circulated, that no progress was being made on construction and the entire undertaking was a muddle.

"It is a fact," said Col. Hendrie, "that we have gone about the work slowly, but that has been to the great advantage of the whole scheme. For instance, we started out to transmit power at a potential of 60,000 volts, but we later found that it could be transmitted at 110,000 volts, with the proportionate line loss of power reduced one-half."

"Further," said Col. Hendrie, "we have been able to make great improvements in the transformer design."

"As far as we can see," he continued, "with the progress we have already made, the work will be completed well within the stipulated time."

Referring to the trip which E. H. Sothman, chief engineer of the hydro-electric power commission, is taking through Europe, Mr. McNaught said: "Mr. Sothman is making no waste of time on this trip. He will obtain the latest information from Germany regarding power unions and power commissions and, incidentally, gather prices for insulators, lamps and other equipment. While we can obtain our equipment in America, there is reason to believe that we can save money by purchasing part in Europe.

The contract for the Dundas and Niagara transformer stations will be let on Thursday.

Next week the commission will advertise for tenders for the stations at Toronto, Preston, Guelph, Berlin, Stratford, St. Mary's Woodstock, St. Thomas and London, and it is hoped to award these contracts by Aug. 1.

$200,000 For Roads.

Brockville, July 7.—The Counties Council of Leeds and Grenville is to proceed with the improvement of its leading highways under the good roads system as provided by the Ontario Government, involving an outlay of $200,000, which will be raised by debentures. This will give the counties a Government bonus of $100,000.

The program just now is to construct upwards of 250 miles of roadway within the next five years. Passing the bylaw to make the scheme effective was deferred until the fall session.

Had Prepared a Funeral Raft.

Sacramento, Cal., July 7.—An attempt on the part of Hindu laborers to turn the Sacramento River into a second Ganges, was frustrated by Coroner Gormley, who prevented them from placing the body of one of their comrades aboard a funeral raft which they were preparing to send blazing down the stream.

Pittsburg Too Clean.

Pittsburg, July 7.—The "clean city" day, during which inhabitants of Greater Pittsburg were to prim up their backyards and front sidewalks, has been so overdone that the mayor had to give orders to call the game off.

One of the Light Brigade.

Lexington, Ky., July 7.—Benjamin Simcox, 70 years old, a veteran of the Crimean War, who claimed to have taken part in the famous charge at Balaklava, died here yesterday.

Aeronaut's Fatal Error.

Portland, Me., July 7.—Mistaking the promiscuous firing of revolvers by the crowd below as a signal for the climax of his aerial act, James Corcoran, an aeronaut, 28 years old, of Lowell, Mass., cut loose with his parachute when but a few hundred feet from the earth, and was dashed to the ground, meeting almost instant death before 5,000 horrified spectators.

Loan Being Paid Rate.

London, July 7.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Cash subscriptions for the Canadian loan, it is believed, have been on a more satisfactory scale than was at one time expected. The list is still open for conversion proposals.

Pullman Car on Fire.

Chatham, July 7.—When Wabash passenger train No. 9, the fast mail due here at 1.10 a.m., pulled in yesterday morning, the roof of the second coach, a Pullman sleeper, was found to be on fire.

MORE MONTREAL GRAFT.

"Usual Thing In Montreal," Declares Judge Cannon.

Montreal, July 7.—So many sensational stories of position broking in the city fire department and other departments were told before the royal commission yesterday that when a defence lawyer objected to one statement, Judge Cannon replied that it was becoming notorious that this was the usual thing in Montreal. Details of all sorts of big and small graft were brought out through the day.

Dr. Charles Lafleur swore that he had given Alderman Nault $300 for an appointment as statistician, putting the money into a conveniently open safe in the alderman's store. He did not get the job, and got his money back from the same safe drawer. Ald. Nault was called, and said he did not remember this episode, and that he had had no $300 transaction with Lafleur.

Joseph Desaultera, who had been paid $300 by a man named Metayer, for a job as fireman, had used the money to keep a home, the house being heated with wood taken, he said, by Sub-Chief Martin from the corporation wood yard. This story was partly corroborated by Desaultera' wife, while Metayer swore he had paid the $300, and then been suspended from the force because he wanted it back, but on threatening to expose the principals in the deal, had been reinstated. All this was excitedly denied by Sub-Chief Martin.

IGNORANCE AND BAD MANNERS.

In the United States the existence of freedom and tolerance is a boast. In Canada and other countries under the influence of British civilisation it is a fact. A national flag is something to be proud of only when it "lives up" to what it is assumed to stand for. Affection for one's own flag should, at least suggest respect for another flag, especially when under its protection. Common, good manners, and common decency should save the flag of one's hosts from insult. In Toronto on Monday a party of visitors from the United States were driving through the streets in a tally-ho profusely decorated with the flag of the United States, and with a British flag trailing in the dirt behind the conveyance. This indignity cannot be effectively characterized in temperate language. It marks the ignorance and bad manners of the perpetrators, and emphasises the parochial character of the United States national spirit, a combination of bounce and narrow-mindedness. It is a beastly breach of hospitality and an outrage upon the tolerance enjoyed under the flag thus subjected to hoodlum insult. Under the real liberty and broad tolerance that the British flag represents we permit visitors from the United States to fly their flag with impunity upon Canadian soil and waters. This tolerance, instead of evoking a generous spirit, and decent recognition of the flag of Canada, only seems to develop exhibitions of ill-mannered contempt for a friendly people, whose hospitality they are enjoying. The abuse of Canadian tolerance in the matter of flag display becomes all the more outrageous when one reflects that in the United States the British flag is not permitted to be displayed, even on exceptional occasions. At Stamford, Connecticut, on what is called "Independence Day," the captain of a British schooner was ordered by the police to haul down the British flag. His explanation was that he had hoisted the flag as a mark of respect to the nation on their national holiday, and that he considered that neglect to fly his flag on such an occasion would have been disrespectful to the Republic whose hospitality and protection he was, for the time, enjoying. But he had to yield to the petty tyranny or his momentary environment. The disrespect of the British flag exhibited in the ways indicated does not disgrace it or lessen its claim to respect by civilised people. It has floated in the van of human progress and human enfranchisement for a thousand years. It has led the march of a civilisation of the highest type known to man. It is as far above insult, as its enemies which attempt to insult it are beneath contempt. A gentleman treated with disrespect by a blackguard suffers no shame; that falls upon the miscreant. The British flag treated with disrespect suffers no shame; that falls upon the hoodlums who perpetrate the outrage upon the hospitality enjoyed under the emblem they treat with contumely. It is possible for a big nation to be very small. If our neighbours to the south wish to disgrace themselves and shame the millions of the decent and respectable citizens of their country, by the exhibition of an un-neighbourly and narrow-gauge spirit, that may gratify them, but does not injure us. It is the case of the big Cornish miner, who took a drubbing from his diminutive wife.—"It pleases she and don't hurt Oi."

THE EXAMINATION EVIL.

Now that the melting midsummer examinations are over the victims of the ordeal, past and prospective, are in a mood to consider feelingly the subject of the utility of examinations, and to consider the merits of an equivalent in test value if not in physical and mental suffering. The press is discussing the question. The Free Press points out that in London the mid-summer promotion examination causes no worry to either the children, their parents or either teachers, for the very good reason that there is no examination. The children are promoted according to their class records during the whole term. "It is a commendable method from every point of view," says The Free Press. "More nearly than in any other way is the ability of the child ascertained, because the class record is obtained under absolutely normal conditions. There is no broiling heat and no nerve-straining fear to the budding scholar."

"For the benefit of other centres," says the Brantford Expositor, "which are still following the examination system, it may be well to state that Brantford, after experiences similar to London, can substantiate the statement of the Free Press. The method of promoting by term records rather than on the result of a single test in the most unfavourable season of the year, is indeed 'commendable from every point of view.' All that is now needed is that the same system should be extended in the grading of entrance examination abolished. Leading educationalists have advocated this for years, and if some uniform standard could be established as to the course the promotion by merit and record rather than by cramming and test would be greatly to the advantage of the pupils."

It is hardly necessary to assert that the result of examinations, as conducted afford no reliable test of the scholarship or knowledge of a pupil or person undergoing them. The proficiency of "entrance" pupils is tested by papers prepared to meet all classes of mental character, as ready-made clothes are built to fit everybody in a general way and nobody in particular. A ready-made suit that fits is an accident. It is an accident when the paper set fits the jumble of knowledge possessed and available by the pupil under examination. He or she may by virtue of this accident pass within clean sweep and win honours. And another pupil, whose general knowledge, whose mental equipment and all round scholarship may be superior, but defective in the special elements covered by the examination paper, may be mercilessly plucked. Of two candidates of equal ability and acquirements, one may have a self-confident temperament, a cool, self-possessed poise, and may be able to tell with facility all he or she knows; another shy, lacking in self-confidence, but with equal or even greater knowledge, may be "struck all of a heap" under the crucial test of examination, the mind may become a blank under the stress of the situation and a failure in examination will black-list a boy as clever as one who has by virtue of innate "cheek" achieved a sweeping triumph. Examinations may be necessary, but the idea must not be fostered that they are a test of scholarship as true as promotion by a good teacher, who has necessarily a better knowledge than anybody else of the pupil's fitness for promotion or entrance to a higher school; and a teacher with the knowledge that his or her term records would be checked by the after achievement of the pupil in a higher grade school, would provide that such term records correspond with the mental equipment and proficiency of the pupil and would therefore be the best possible test of fitness or unfitness for promotion.

POINTS ABOUT BONDS

(Monetary Times.)

Considerable information has been given in these columns regarding bonds as investments. The premier attraction of a bond is its safety. Supposing the security to have been rightly selected, the principal sum of the invested money is properly protected, and provision is made for its prompt return when the loan or bond issue matures. The financial house which purchases a bond issue makes sure that the principal sum invested and the interest thereupon are safe beyond reasonable doubt and will be paid promptly. Several million dollars worth of government, municipal and corporation bonds are held by the principal banks, insurance and trust companies and other financial institutions in Canada. Bonds have an extensive following. Besides the institutions mentioned, both the wealthy capitalist and the small investor are continually in the bond market.

Another feature is the steady income derived from this investment. A definite sum is paid at regular intervals. There is no fluctuation of income as is the case with many other forms of investment. The convertibility of a bond is yet another strong feature. It may be used as security for a loan, and can be sold promptly for cash. It will be of interest to the reader who has not an intimate knowledge of the various bonds to review the different classes.

The purpose of a bond issue is to supply a government, province, city, town or school district with funds with which to carry on public works and improvements. Again, an issue is to enable a railway company, electric or gas company and similar corporations to conduct business. The three principal classes of bonds are government, municipal and corporation. A Chicago house recently summarized these, clearly and briefly.

Government bonds are issued by a national government, and payable, principal and interest, from government funds obtained from levies of taxes or other sources of revenue. Municipal bonds are issued by cities, towns, counties, school districts, drainage districts, etc., for the purpose of payment for some public work or improvement, and payable, principal and interest, from taxes levied by the community issuing the bond. Bonds of this class have the credit of the town or city and its power to levy taxes for security. The record of such bonds is so uniformly good that they have long been classed "next to government bonds." The name of municipal bonds may vary according to the purpose for which the bonds are issued. Thus a county may issue "court house four per cent. bonds," which would indicate that the bonds were issued for the purpose of constructing a court house, and that they bear four per cent. interest. Other classes of bonds are "Sewer," "School," "Fire Department," "Street Improvement," etc., according to the purpose for which the proceeds are used.

Corporation bonds are issued by railway, public service and industrial corporations for the purpose of procuring capital for constructing or extending the company's system or plant, and secured as to principal and interest by the credit and earnings of the company, in addition, generally, to a mortgage on the property of the company.

In considering railway and other corporation bonds as investments, a distinction should be made between bonds and stocks. Corporation bonds constitute a loan to a company whereas stocks are certificates of ownership of the company itself. In the case of bonds the interest rate is fixed and constant; whereas stocks may or may not pay an income, depending upon whether the company's business is profitable or not; and when they do pay, the income, as well as prices of stocks, may fluctuate widely. Stocks also are often the subject of great speculation, whereas the investor buys bonds because of their time-tried safety.

Railway bonds form a somewhat distinct class by themselves among corporation bonds, and when they are issued by well-established railways, they constitute a high-grade investment. A considerable amount of trading has been done in Canadian railway bonds, both steam and electric enterprises.

Public service corporations are companies furnishing the public with such necessities as water, gas, electric light, heat and power, telephone, street car and similar facilities. Bonds issued by companies of this character operating in well-established communities have an exceptionally good record for safety, from the fact that even in periods of business depression their earnings maintain a high level because the service they supply is necessary to the community which they serve.

Most corporation bonds bear the name of some kind of mortgage securing them, and are usually known in the market by such names, thus: "First Mortgage 5's," "General Mortgage 4's," "Collateral Trust 5's," "Prior Lien 4½'s," "Refunding and Extension 5's," etc. These brief titles indicate the character of the mortgage securing the bond and the rate per cent. paid on the face value; i.e., first mortgage 5's means the bonds are secured by a first mortgage on the property of the company, and that they bear five per cent. interest. Bankers in offering bonds for sale usually furnish complete details concerning the mortgages securing the bonds, interest rates, etc.

There are some excellent bond investments in Canada, and there is no lack of information for the investor. Every bond house will readily afford the fullest details by which the investor may be able to make the best choice.

A MEATY NUMBER

The July issue of Advertising & Selling, the new publication resulting from the merging of Profitable Advertising and Selling Magazine, which made its first appearance last month, has a meaty contribution to the literature of business. The feature of the July issue is the first installment of a two-portion article on "Intensive Advertising."

John E. Kennedy, the writer of this important article, is known to be "the highest paid writer of advertising" in the world, and this is the first magazine article from his pen for five years. In this first installment Mr. Kennedy in the wisdom of his experience and knowledge treats his subject comprehensively and practically under eight heads;—"Intensive" and "Diffusing Advertising," "Waste Circulation," "Wasteless Advertising," "Salesmanship Multiplied," "Good Advertising Is News," "How Short Should an Ad Be?" and "How to Plan and Write Strong Ads."

Among other contributions appearing in this number are such articles as "Trade and Class Journal Efficiency," by H. S. Fiske; "Selling for Export," by Jonathan A. Rawson, Jr.; "Sales Engineering," by B. C. Bean. The issue is fully illustrated with half-tones and line-cut drawings presenting examples of effective advertisements which have appeared here and there recently. These pictures not only embellish the pages and add to the text, but show in many cases, with no text matter whatever, standards that should obtain in advertising and how to obtain them.

How The Pupils Received The Results Of The Entrance "Exams."

The Examiner Office Thronged Waiting for the Papers to Come Off the Press—Not Many Disappointments—Large Percentage Passed—Heart-Throbs of the Disappointed.

LITTLE ONES PLEASED

The entrance examination results have been published and many little hearts were gladdened by the appearance of their names in the list of the chosen ones. They had worked hard during the year, and had made a strong finish under the direction of their teachers. Then came the examinations, the test of their knowledge of the subjects which they had studied during the term. And when all was done and the last paper finished the pupils breathed easier for the inquisition was over. Then, as the examinations recurred to them and would not be banished from their thoughts the youngsters began to wonder whether they had failed or not. In most instances confidence was asserted, but there must have been some who doubted and yet tried to convince themselves that they had succeeded.

The Examiner office was crowded yesterday afternoon with anxious boys and girls to get a copy of the paper. Many were the wonders expressed. "I wonder if I got honours!" "I wonder if Henrietta got through!" And thus the expectant students conjectured until the papers were rolled off the press. The showing was a splendid one and very few failures were recorded. There were some, however, whose eyes scanned the list only to be disappointed. They looked several times to make sure and then the realization was complete. And then they slipped away from their companions to break the news at home. Probably their parents sympathized, but more likely there was a scolding to add to the boy or girl's discomfiture. The home where sympathy was looked for was found wanting and it was probably a comrade that said: "Never mind, Tommy, you will do better next time."

One hundred and fifty-two pupils from the Public and Separate schools are eligible to attend the Collegiate Institute after the summer holidays, and the large majority will present themselves in September to commence that part of their studies which will broaden their primary education, carrying them along to the end of their school days, which they will always revert to as probably the happiest of their lives.

MURRAY STREET SUNDAY SCHOOL EXCURSION WAS A GREAT SUCCESS

One of the most enjoyable outings of the season was the excursion of the Murray Street Baptist Church Sunday School, held yesterday by steamer Stoney Lake, to South Beach and Sandy Point, via the canal. Supervision Committee

To the Chairman and Members of the Board of Education.

Gentlemen:—

As instructed your Committee advertised for tenders for the supply of text books, and other school supplies required for the school year of 1909-1910, and have awarded the contract therefor to Messrs. A. H. Stratton & Company, their's being the lowest tender.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

JOHN CRANE,
Chairman.

The following story of a North Harvery man's experience with a big 200-pound bear is told as an actual fact, without the furnishings of a story.

It was under The Ledge, on John Laplante's old place now owned by Philip Boucher, and it was last week. Early in the spring Mr Bush-a as it is pronounced, for Phil, as he is more commonly called, is a French Canadian, had the misfortune to have one of his fine mares die, and he drew the body out into the woods. A few weeks ago while in the neighborhood of the carcase he came upon three bears, a huge she-bear and her two yearling cubs. Phil has this old Bollard rifle with him, but he hesitated to tackle the three at once, at this time of the year, when they are particularly active, and have an appetite sharpened by a winter's fast. So he observed caution, and said nothing. Philip knew of a large strong bear trap, and getting it he set it near the dead horse, attaching to the chain of the trap a long balsam pole, which he had trimmed, leaving the limbs like short spikes so that they would catch on the underbrush and act like an anchor.

Next evening Phil took his old Bollard, and his good wife Marie carried another gun and they went out to the trap. There was a big bear sure enough, and it had fully an acre of ground torn and ploughed with the balsam drag. It was raging when Phil appeared, and drawing his rifle to hi shoulder, Phil carefully took aim at the shoulder of the bear, and fired. Down he dropped dead, and Phil had gone aawy a little distance towards home when he thought he would take another look at the bear. He was up again and alive, so Phil took the other gun and killed him some more. It was too late to do anything with him that evening, and Phil waited till morning and went out with the mare and the stone-boat and his rifle.

To Phil's surprise the bear was alive again, very much alive, and the mare she scare and tear all over the woods, like one crazy. When Phil got the mare quiet, he took the gun, and got up on a big rock. The bear just roar and tore and rimn up the rock within ten feet of Phil, when he planted a bullet fair between the eyes, and the animal rolled back dead for sure. It would weigh 200 pounds, gaunt as it was, and the pelt was in prime condition, long black, thick hair, shiny like silk. Phil may get the other two cubs and if he does will make pretty well the price of the lost mare.—Bobcaygeon Independent.

Property Committee

Mr. W. F. Nelson, chairman of the Property Committee presented his report giving a list of the improvements and renovations to be made in the city Public Schools during the holidays. The report was adopted.

The Board then adjourned.

Don't Delay! Act Quickly! Only Three Days More of the National Salvage Company's Sale of F. E. Kline & Co's Dry Goods, Clothing and Shoe Stock, Now Being Closed Out at Lakefield, Ontario, at 45c on the Dollar.—Not a Dollar's Worth of this Stock will be Moved Away

NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC.—We wish to inform the public of Lakefield and Peterborough County and vicinity, that Thursday, July 8th, Friday, July 9th, and the last day of the sale Saturday night, July 10th, these three days will positively be the last three days of the National Salvage Co's Sacrifice Sale of F. E. Kline & Co's drygoods, clothing and shoe stock. During these three days of selling out sale, the prices on every article left will be absolutely re-marked to suit the times. The entire balances of this stock of clothing, drygoods and shoes, etc., have now been divided into special lots, and re-marked at a terrific reduction, which will sell out every article in the store in the last few days of the sale, as everything in the store will be sold to the most awkward of low prices ever placed on good quality merchandise.

Every article will be disposed of by Saturday night, July 10. If you have any regard for the value of your money, if saving a full dollar on every two dollars bought, means anything to you, then drop everything and make your arrangements to be here for the last three days' terrific clean-up of F. E. Kline & Co's drygoods, clothing, and shoe stock. Former wholesale cost of the goods have not been considered at all, as the National Salvage Co. have re-marked the balance of this entire stock, which has been put to slaughter at prices that will amaze you. Our reasons for making this great sacrifice on the balance of the stock is, that we may sell every article in the store in these last three days of the sale. Every article in the store must go regardless of former cost or value. It will pay you to come one hundred miles to attend this last three days' sale of F. E. Kline & Co's stock of drygoods, clothing and shoes, and in justice to yourself and pocket book you really cannot afford to stay away. Let all who possibly can get to this sale before it closes on Saturday night, July 10th, as the money you save in this sale on clothing, drygoods and shoes, is practically so much money earned for you. All precautions have been made for these last three days of the sale, in order to serve the immense crowd of people who will naturally want to attend this sale before it closes Saturday night, July 10th. Act quickly, and come before too late, and secure the greatest bargains in clothing, drygoods and shoes that has ever been your privilege to partake of. It is really a pity and a shame to sacrifice such a stock of good quality clothing, drygoods and shoes as F. E. Kline & Co. carries; but it has to be done. To those needing clothing, drygoods and shoes this sacrifice sale is in reality a veritable God-send, as it is right at the time of year when you are thinking of replenishing your clothing, drygoods and shoes for summer and fall needs. Make your arrangements to be here on one of the last three days of this stupendous closing out sale of F. E. Kline & Co's Stock.

The last three days of the sale commence Thursday, July 8th, and end Saturday, July 10th—the last three days will produce such an avalanche of fantastic clothing, drygoods and shoes, as will take the town of Lakefield and vicinity by storm, and it will arouse such a response from the people that commercial circles will be astonished, and would-be competitors will fairly gasp. It will be a bargain earthquake of low prices on good quality drygoods, clothing and shoes that will be remembered in Peterborough County for the next ten years.

Make no mistake, be sure you find F. E. Kline & Co's store, now in the hands of the National Salvage Co., who are now closing out the stock at Lakefield, Ontario, and remember that Saturday night, July 10th, is the last day of the sale. Make your plans accordingly, and secure your clothing, drygoods and shoes at one-half their actual value.

Do not delay; hurry in before too late, as this sale closes and positively ends Saturday night, July 10th, at 11 p.m.

CAUSE OF CHIMNEY FIRES EXPLAINED

Chief Howard States That Carelessness Is The Main Reason.

According to Chief Howard's report to the Council, 37 of the 61 fires during the past six months were due to defective chimneys. In speaking to the Chief to-day, regarding this fact he stated that carelessness upon the part of the residents was the primary cause. They allowed soot to accumulate in the flues, and under that condition a fire was possible at any time. In the larger cities, Toronto, Hamilton, London, etc., a by-law is enforced by which chimneys must be cleaned twice every year. There is no chimney sweep here amid the by-law of a similar nature is not enforced. Other chimneys are constructed in an improper manner. They rest on a piece of scantling, and the mortar gradually crumbled. When a hot fire is in the stove the woodwork ignited and a fire results. Chief Howard stated that he had not seen many cases of this kind, but he felt that they existed. The main cause of fires in chimneys was the accumulated soot catching fire in the cold weather.

TWO BANANAS WERE FOUND IN ONE SKIN

Double Fruit a Rarity—Was Bought at Crawford's Grove.

A double banana is something of an oddity. It is in fact a rarity and who ever gets this will get double value for their money. At Crawford's Grove yesterday evening a young man bought bananas at the booth, and among them was one of exceptional length and girth. On removing the skin two bananas of ordinary size were found. The bunch was examined but no other doubles were found.

ROMAINE STREET SEWER AGAIN DISCUSSED

The Romaine St. sewer was introduced at the Board of Education meeting last evening by Mr. Robert Fair. He wanted to know what steps were being taken to improve the sanitary conditions existing at the school and arising from the defective sewer. Mr. Hill said that he thought the council was awaiting the report of an inspector who recently made an inspection of the sewer.

It was moved by Mr. Dumble, seconded by Mr. Nelson that the secretary write the council to learn what action was being taken to remedy the insufficiency of the George St. and Romaine St. sewers.

Preliminary Proceedings in West Peterborough Election Case

The proceedings in the election petition taken by Mr. J. H. Burnham against the Hon. J. R. Stratton, took a new turn Tuesday afternoon, Mr. Burnham declining to submit to further examination for discovery upon the technical ground that his examination could not take place in long vacation.

Mr. Burnham was first examined for discovery on June 29th. Owing to the fact that certain documents were not produced by him as called for by the subpoena the examination could not be satisfactorily proceeded with. Mr. W. H. Moore, solicitor for Mr. Burnham, suggested that the examination be adjourned until after long vacation. To this Mr. R. R. Hall objected upon the ground that the trial is to take place on the 7th of September, and the examination was accordingly adjourned until Tuesday, July 6th, practically by consent, or at least, without objection on the part of either Mr. Burnham or Mr. Moore.

Mr. Hall pointed out on Tuesday to Mr. W. F. Johnston, the examiner, that the Controverted Elections Act made express provision for the examination taking place at any time and that the provisions of the Judicature Act respecting long vacation had no application whatever. The examiner gave his ruling against Mr. Burnham's contention and ruled that there was no reason why the examination should not be proceeded with in accordance with the order for Mr. Burnham's examination. A motion will accordingly be made to the High Court at Osgoode Hall to compel Mr. Burnham to attend for examination at his own expense and to produce the books, papers and documents that he failed to produce on the occasion his first examination, as required by the subpoena, served upon him.

BRINTON CARPET CO. TO NIAGARA FALLS

Annual Excursion Will be Held on Saturday, July 24th.

Niagara Falls is the objective point of the Brinton Carpet Company's excursion on Saturday, July 24th. They will leave the city at 5.30 a.m. via G. T. R. and will spend the day in and around Niagara Falls, leaving Toronto at 11.30 the same evening to return home. The fare is $2.20 for the trip. Many have already expressed their intention of making the trip and it is expected that a large number will accompany the Brintons.

Anæmic women and children who frequently feel chilly, are pale and exhausted, will derive great benefit from the use of Ferrovim, the invigorating tonic, which consists of iron in a form they can assimilate, fresh lean beef and pure Sherry Wine. Nothing could be better than this combination of strength-giving agents in such cases. $1.00 per bottle.

Two Teachers On The Staff Of The Collegiate Have Resigned

Miss Bauer and Mr. J. H. Adams, B. A., Have Left the City—Miss Alford, of St. Catharines, to Succeed Miss Bauer—The Re-engagement of Teachers.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE

Two vacancies have been made on the staff of the Collegiate Institute by the resignation of Miss Bertha Bauer and Mr. J. H. Adams. The former's place has been filled by the appointment of Miss Ethel Alford, of St. Catharines. Mr. Adams' place has not yet been filled. The following report was presented by Mr. W. H. Hill, Chairman of the Committee on appointments, re-engaging the following teachers:

To the Chairman and members of the Board of Education.

Gentlemen,—Your Committee on Appointments beg leave to report as follows:

1. Your Committee advertised for two teachers for the Collegiate Institute staff to fill the vacancies caused by the resignation of Miss B. T. Bauer, and Mr. J. H. Cobalt Looter May Be Given Life Sentence For His Thefts

Cobalt, July 7.—Life imprisonment may be meted out to a man, Jack Skinner, charged with looting a safe on the night of the fire.

At the trial here three witnesses, Messrs, Jacobson and Simonson and Mrs. Jacobson, swore that he had entered their store and broken into the till, and, after a long chase, during which they had lost him in the crowd, had been captured.

"The case is a very serious one for the defendant if he is found guilty," declared Magistrate Atkinson, "and he will be liable to life imprisonment. On this account I will reserve judgment until Monday in order to study the evidence carefully. If I find him guilty I will make this a lesson to all others."

The authorities are watching for the return of a number of foreigners who are suspected of looting thousands of dollars worth of property by entering houses during the fire, and also by ransacking heaps of furniture that were taken out for safety.

LOOK OUT FOR PNEUMONIA

Your system is in a run-down condition. You catch cold. You think it will soon pass off. It doesn't. You neglect taking any special care of yourself. Bronchitis develops and then comes pneumonia and a fight for life. A fight which is too often unsuccessful. Why not take every cold seriously and cure it promptly by using Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine.

PETTY THIEVING RAMPANT IN WEST END OF THE CITY

The robbing of refrigerators of their contents in the west end of the city and the bold theft of bicycles from verandahs, and birds from cages, in open day, suggests the necessity of a little police activity. Instead of having the force broiling in the hot centre of the city around the city buildings, it would not be a half-bad idea to have one or two policemen in plain clothes, patrol the shady sections of the outskirts and keep an eye open for law-breakers. Such a course might also lead to the detection of sufficient breaches of the by-law against riding wheels on the pavement to pay for the street watering—which isn't—sometimes—done.

THE ANNUAL EXCURSION

Charlotte Street Methodist Church Sunday School at Sandy Point Yesterday—A Delightful Outing.

HOW AFTERNOON PASSED

The steamer Stoney Lake had a full complement yesterday in connection with the annual excursion of the Sunday School of the Charlotte Street Methodist Church to Sandy Point and Clear Lake.

The day was ideal in every respect and the children, parents and friends made the most of it. It was a happy and joyous crowd from beginning to end of the trip and all seemed to thoroughly enjoy the outing.

Captain Yonge and his able crew were most courteous and obliging and their efforts to accommodate and please the excursionists was most marked and consequently highly appreciated.

An ice cream and confectionery booth was ably handled by a committee of expert sales ladies, assisted by a number of young men. The result was most gratifying financially and otherwise.

The committee on sports presented a most delightful programme, which was carried out expeditiously and satisfactorily. A number of the events were quite novel and caused much merriment among the spectators. The main event of the day was a tug-of-war between some eighteen of the stalwart men of the party. They did their best to stretch the ship's hawser, but finally Conductor Jobbitt brought his party to the winning mark and the ice cream as a reward.

The Races.

On the return journey the following prizes were presented to the successful contestants in the various events.

THREE "INDIAN LIST" DRUNKS

Each Was Heavily Fined in the Police Court This Morning—Stories as To How They Got Liquor.

TWO GO UP ON THE HILL

P. C. Newhall apparently made a specialty of "blacklists" yesterday, three being taken by him and placed in the police station over night. For the second time within a week Michael Murphy appeared before the magistrate on a charge of being drunk after having been placed on the "Indian list." Last Friday he was fined ten dollars but this morning he was not given the option of a fine but was sent to gaol for ten days.

Murphy said that he got his liquor from a man going through on the 5.38 train, but it turned out that he was arrested before that train got here.

Sent Up for 30 Days

Another well known blacklisted man who keeps a shop in the city was sent up to the gaol for thirty days. He was fined twenty dollars to be paid forthwith, but did not have the necessary.

Visited Him Yesterday

P. C. Newhall stated that he saw the accused lying in a little back room off his shop, asleep. He shook him. He smelt very strong of liquor and appeared very drunk. He was asked where the rest of the liquor was and he replied that he had none. A flask was found under his head with a paper over it. He was arrested and placed in the cell with the two others. He got a drink of whiskey from one of the men who had a flask. The officer took it from them.

Chief Roszel also saw the prisoner in the shop in a dazed and drunken condition.

The accused said that he did not know where the flask came from. He did not know it was in the shop. He was not drunk yesterday. He laid down to rest every afternoon. He denied giving a man money to buy him liquor and if any was brought there by did not know of it. He also denied that blacklisted persons congregated there.

A third "Indian-list" man pleaded guilty to a charge of being drunk. He got his liquor coming in Toronto, where had been spending a week. He brought it here with him. He was given ten days in gaol or a fine of ten dollars.

SENTENCED OLD CHUM

Judge Sends Former Room-mate and Bedfellow to Jail.

Clarksburg, W. Va., July 6.—Judge Haymond Maxwell, of the Criminal Court, sentenced Fred B. Wood, former cashier of the West Virginia Bank, to serve six years in the State penitentiary at Moundsville. The sentence was pronounced after overruling a motion to set aside the verdict and grant a new trial. Wood was convicted of falsifying the books of the bank.

In passing sentence, Judge Maxwell said: "I do not know of a more painful duty a Judge could be called upon to discharge than to pronounce the judgment of the law upon a conviction for a felony against a friend, his neighbor, his one-time-school companion, roommate and bed-fellow."

Five more felony indictments stand against Wood in connection with transactions at the bank.

HIS HONOUR JUDGE HUYCKE

In the appointment of Mr. E. C. L. Huycke, K. C., LL.D., of Cobourg, to be County Court Judge of the County of Peterborough, in succession to the late Judge Weller, an excellent selection has been made of the incumbent of an important and responsible position. Mr. Huycke, is in the prime of middle life, being between forty and fifty years of age, and equipped with a score of years of fruitful experience gained in an extensive legal practice in his native county. Judge Huycke is a native of Percy Township, in the County of Northumberland. He received his academic training at Victoria College, Cobourg, graduating as B.A. in 1886, with first class honours in classics and as medalist of his year. After being for a time classical master of the Cobourg High School, he entered the law office of the late Hon. Wm. Kerr, K.C., and was called to the bar in 1889. He at once entered into practice in Cobourg and has since that time conducted an extensive and successful law practice. In addition to his legal qualifications, which amply justify his appointment, Judge Huycke is a man of wide reading and literary culture. In 1890, he was united in marriage to a daughter of the late John Field, M.P.P., west Northumberland, who with a family of six children will be an important addition to the social life of the city. Judge Huycke is, in religion, a Methodist and a member of the Board of Regents of Victoria University, Toronto. On behalf of the public of the city and county, the Examiner tenders congratulations to Judge Huycke and cordially welcomes him to Peterborough as a member of the bench and a citizen.

SUCCESSOR TO LATE JUDGE WELLER IS APPOINTED

Mr. E. C. S. Huycke, K. C., of Cobourg, Appointed by the Cabinet Council.

Examiner Special.

Ottawa, July 7.—At a meeting of the Cabinet Council on Monday, July 5th, Mr. E. C. S. Huycke, K. C., was appointed County Judge for Peterborough, in succession to the late Judge Weller.

DEFEATED BY-LAW FOR SCHOOL IMPROVEMENTS

Belleville People Will Not Spend $70,000 For Proposed Schools.

Belleville, July 7th.—The ratepayers of the city expressed their disapproval of the bylaw submitted to them for the purpose of obtaining their consent to issue debentures for $70,000 for the erection of three new schools and making other improvements in school buildings. In every section of the city an adverse vote was recorded against the proposed measure. A fair vote was recorded, namely 698, out of which only 164 were given for the bylaw.

Only Eight Failed Of Those Who Tried From City Public Schools

Only eight failures among pupils who tried the entrance examinations from the Public Schools of the city, is a remarkable fine showing and reflects great credit on the ability of the teachers in the Peterborough Schools. The record made by pupils in the Separate Schools was also highly satisfactory.

Inspector Mowat remarked at the Board of Education meeting last evening that he did not believe that any better showing could be made by any city or town in the Province.

Local Boy Makes Two Ascensions Daily In A Balloon At Hartford

Mrs. George Stevens, Douro street, East City, received a letter yesterday from her son, Charlie, who is at present in Hartford, Conn. He states that he has secured a good position at one of the city amusements parks, making two ascensions daily in a balloon. He only works two hours a day, from four to five in the afternoon and from 9:30 to 10:30 in the evening. He enjoys the sail through mid-air greatly. On leaving the ground one goes very fast. Two or three thousand feet up, the aeronaut cuts loose from the balloon and drops a hundred yards dead weight. Then the parachute opens and he comes down slowly. On July second he made his first trip alone. He received his training as to sail in mid-air from Professor Roy.

Toronto Jewellers Write East City Man About His Diamonds

Mr. O. S. Ferguson, Hunter street, East City, received a letter to-day from Ryrie Bros., of Toronto, in reference to the purchase of the former's diamonds. They offer to either send an expert to examine them here or suggest that Mr. Ferguson sent a sample to them, in order that a test may be made as to their quality. Ryrie Bros. are one of the largest manufacturing jeweller's firms in Ontario. Mr. Ferguson will most likely comply with their wishes.

Continued Drought Makes Farmers Apprehensive Of Crop

W. A. Stabler stated to the Examiner to-day that the crop throughout the county would only be one-half of that which was gleaned last year. He was through parts of Douro yesterday and considers the southern part drier and more burned than others. A few days ago there was a little rain but it was within seven or eight miles of this district. Only a sprinkle was received through this belt and conditions are even worse than a week ago. Many of the meadows are brown, the grass parched and burned and the question of pasturing the cattle is beginning to cause anxiety. Sheep are in the same list and young ducks suffer from the lack of verdure. It is stated that one farmer turned his cattle into a field of oats which were so unpromising that it was decided to let the cattle eat it. Mr. Stabler said that it was so dry that even the grasshoppers were not to be found. The root crop sadly needs rain. The seed has in many places not sprouted. The condition is considered anything but bright. The hay crop will be cut in half and a local dealer stated this morning that the winter price would undoubtedly be affected.

New York Expert Convinced Of Value Of Northern Gold Fields

Examiner Special.

Fort William, July 7th.—A small shot exploded before the eyes of A. D. Miles, a eNw York mining expert of repute and a representative of New York mining capital, in the surface lead of the Powell property of the Sturgeon Lake gold field, convinced him that there was gold there and gold in many places.

Mr. Miles, escorted by Charles Gurvitch, Sturgeon Lake trader and mining expert, visited the gold fields last week, and Mr. Miles' interest was aroused to a high pitch.

Returning to Fort William, Mr. Miles was seriously ill with peritonitis, being under the care of a physician and a nurse for three days in his apartments at the Avenue Hotel. It was not until yesterday that he was strong enough to receive callers.

Being paid for giving an opinion on the Sturgeon Lake properties, and making the trip from New York for the purpose of obtaining information on which to base that opinion Mr Miles naturally was reluctant to go into details for publication before he had made his report to the capital he represents, and had given it time in which to act to its best advantage.

Mr. Miles, however, was not reluctant in declaring that the Powell property had all the earmarks of a real gold-producing mine.

"Just one little shot, placed under my direction, brought forth free gold in pieces as large as the nail of my little finger," said Mr. Miles. The nail of his little finger is of normal size.

To-day the expert is in Wabigoon inspecting the gold mines of that vicinity. He will probably leave there the middle of the week for New York to make his report.

LINDSAY TWIRLER STRIKES OUT FORTY-THREE MEN IN TWO GAMES

Lindsay, Ont., July 6.—Valentia won the Mariposa League by defeating Cresswell at Valentia yesterday by the score of 12 to 0. It was owing to Gray's pitching that Valentia won, he striking out twenty-two men in the nine innings. In the last two games he has played Gray has struck out forty-three men, and his pitching has been equally phenomenal all season. He is a Lindsay man. Valentia went through the season without a defeat.

BASEBALL

The games in the Senior City League on Saturday will bring together the T.A.S. and Strathconas in the first game and the West Ends and Park St. teams in the second game. Two great battles should be the result and the fans who have been following the games expect the best contests of the season. With the unbeaten T.A.S. playing the Strathconas an easy victory for the Abstainers might reasonably be expected but the High Commissioners have a habit of making themselves a thorn in the side of the opposing team all the way, and although luck has not been with them it has taken the whole nine innings to stall them off. They will have their strongest team of the season Saturday and will do their best to bump the Abstainers.

West Ends and Park St. had a lovely argument the last time they met. West Ends winning by one run. Now they are neck and neck for second place and will put up a hard battle Saturday for the honours.

Human Life Increased BY FOURTEEN YEARS
Longer life is due to better understanding of Nature's Laws and use of such medicines as DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS
During the last century the average life of man has increased by about four years. Insurance statistics prove this.
What is the reason?
People are learning to take better care of their health and to follow the laws of sanitation and hygiene.
The first law of health and the most important calls for "Daily movement of the bowels."
Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills have helped to prolong the life of many because they have enabled them to follow this first law of health.
A torpid, sluggish condition of the liver and kidneys is certain to bring constipation of the bowels, clogging of the digestive and excretory systems, poisoning of the blood and give rise to the most dreadfully painful and fatal of diseases.
Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills purify the blood and cleanses the system as no other treatment can because of their unique and combined action on the filtering and excretory organs—the liver, kidneys and bowels.
Mrs. R. Morrow, Bracebridge, Ont., writes: "For years I was troubled almost constantly with constipation of the bowels and never got anything to do me the lasting good that has been obtained from Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. They not only relieved the trouble but have entirely cured the headaches from which I used to suffer, and have improved my health in a general way."
Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. One pill a dose; 25c a box; at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

IMPRESSED WITH THE CITY'S BEAUTY
Mr. and Mrs. Kylie, of Rochester, Speak of Little Lake Cemetery and St. John's Church.
Peterborough seems to impress itself upon visitors as a particularly pretty place and of late many complimentary remarks have been heard about our parks, and buildings and the general appearance of the town. Mr. and Mrs. George Kylie, of Rochester, are here on a visit to their uncles, Mr. John and Mr. Martin Kylie, and are delighted with Peterborough. Mr. Kylie is an old Peterborough boy, but left his native city when quite young. His wife is here on her first visit. Mr. Kylie thinks that we have made great advancement and his old home is a credit to its citizens. Mrs. Kylie considers Peterborough one of the prettiest little cities she has visited and finds within its boundaries beauty spots which are almost incomparable. A visit to the Little Lake cemetery was a revelation. Mount Hope cemetery, Rochester, is looked upon as a beautiful place, but Mrs. Kylie prefers the burying ground in this city. Its quiet beauty, the daintiness in the arrangements, the fine location and the general exquisite touches which seem to be everywhere unconsciously apparent appeal to the visitor's eye on going through the cemetery for the first time. Mrs. Kylie gives equal praise for the beauty of St. John's Church and grounds which are not surpassed by any church in the many cities she has visited. Mr. and Mrs. Kylie are spending several weeks in Peterborough and will also visit Mr. Jas. Kylie at Rice Lake.

FIRE INSURANCE
The following legend taken from an enterprising Seedsman's Catalogue is not without a bearing on Fire Insurance:—
"Two years ago an Ontario Market Gardener enrolled as an owner on the cost of half a pound of Cabbage Seed. In the fall he admitted that he was over $200 to the bad on the crop because the bargain seed had lacked vitality. Thirty-two acres saved—one hundred dollars lost. WAS IT WORTH WHILE?

APPROPRIATIONS TO BE RE-ADJUSTED

At the Board of Education meeting last evening Mr. Robert Fair, Chairman of the Finance Committee, reported that some of the appropriations made at the beginning of the year had been already utilized in the payment of some of last year's accounts. The appropriations will have to be readjusted, and the board will likely find it necessary to do, as in some other years, carry an overdraft.

It was moved by Mr. Crane, seconded by Mr. W. H. Hill, that the finance committee readjust the appropriation to the Property Comimttee, taking into consideration the money expended on domestic science and manual training, which will be returned from year to year, during a period of five years.

CANDY BOOTH TOOK FIRE AT A GARDEN PARTY

Belleville, July 7th.—At the garden party last evening at the Shelter for neglected children, some excitement was caused for a few minutes owing to an incipient blaze, which occurred at the candy booth. A Chinese lantern caught fire and the blaze was communicated to some bunting, the blaze threatening to destroy the booth. Mr. William McIntosh, in his endeavour to put out the blaze and his clothes set fire, burned. While the excitement was at its height a lady's purse was taken from the booth, which contained about $10.00. It was money taken in at the booth.

Wonderful Discovery Of Dr. Pelkey Cures The Consumptive

That the dreaded disease, known as tuberculosis can be cured, will be welcome news to many sugerers in Peterborough and elsewhere. Everyone knows the ravages it has made among people and its deadly effects. However, there is a treatment that has been effective in bringing relief to consumptive people and ridding them of the awful disease. It is Dr. Pelkey's wonderful discovery in the form of an inhaler.

Sunday, the doctor received a telegraph call to Tweed, wehere he found a patient almost at the last stage of consumption, and scarcely able to breathe. The inhaler was set up and used with immediate and wonderful effect, and relief given the sufferer at once. The doctor states that he will continue this relief and is quite confident of an ultimate cure.

A BOUQUET AND "A LEMON" FOR THE BOARD OF WORKS

The Board of Works deserves credit for making a beginning of raking up the filth of the residence streets into heaps, and bringing the thoroughfares so treated to a condition of decent tidiness. Two men are employed today at this commendable work on Hunter, West, Rubige, and Reid streets. If the good work is only finished by, prompt removal of the heaps of litter before it is again scattered abroad the public will be grateful.

Per contra, however, complaints, unfortunately not without reason, are made of the defective way of doing the street watering in the west end. A slight sprinkle of a street at eight or nine o'clock in the morning wont and does not keep down the dust for twenty-four hours. The citizens living on Park street, between Hunter and Simcoe street, have also a complaint to make. Yesterday afternoon a dog was killed in the street there by a street car, and the mangled body has been left festering in the hot sunshine till the hour of writing, though it is said, the authorities were promptly notified. Twenty-four hours, this dog-day weather, is too long to leave the dead body of a dog which has had his day to lie unburied or unremoved.

AUTHORITIES HAVE CALLED OUT THE MILITIA

SENT FOR TROOPS

Considerable Disorder Occurs at Scene of Dominion Coal Co. Strike and Eight Persons Are Arrested, Including One Woman—Riot Act Is Read at Two of the Collieries—Manager Is Struck.

Halifax, July 8.—Col. Humphrey, who is commanding the troops here, in the absence of Gen. Drury, received a requisition last night from Judge Finlayson for troops to proceed to the scene of the strike in Cape Breton. A special train was at once made up, and provisions and tents placed on board. About five hundred men from the Royal Artillery and Royal Canadian Regiment embarked as quickly as they could be got ready, and the train was on the way to Glace Bay before daylight this morning. Col. Wadmore went in command.

Rioting at Mines.

Glace Bay, N.S., July 8.—There is very little change in the condition of the Dominion Coal Co. strike, excepting that a much larger number of men are idle at all the collieries, with the possible exception of Dominion No. 1, Nos. 2, 3, 6, 7 and 9 are entirely closed down. These mines would employ over 3,000 men ordinarily. At Caledonia the pit is practically closed, not more than 65 people being out to work. At Reserve, about one-fifth less men are working than on Tuesday, and the number of strikers is increased by about 100 men.

There have been some little scrimmages going on, but nothing of a serious nature, although the company demanded that the militia be called out. The worst that happened yesterday was that men were jeered at and called "scabs." Rotten eggs were fired around, women and children helped in the disorders, and a number of people carried sticks.

There was no real harm done, although the Riot Act was read yesterday morning at Dominion No. 2 by Stipendiary Magistrate Macdonald. A number of people who were present say that there was no necessity for this step. Others, favoring the coal company, say that it was necessary.

The trouble was precipitated by the coal company police charging upon a crowd of the pickets. This was resented by the men, and whatever trouble occurred was from that cause. No one was seriously hurt, though Manager Duggan was struck by a man in the ranks, the latter being arrested.

Altogether seven men and one woman were taken to jail. All were bailed out and the trial was set for Monday night.

At Caledonia Sheriff Ingraham read the Riot Act yesterday afternoon, and the coal company police arrested some eight or nine men. These latter were released on bail and their trial was also set for Monday.

At Dominion No. 3 the strike leaders offered some obstruction to those who were going to work. The assembled crowd refused to disperse and the police found it necessary to draw their revolvers before the crowd obeyed. The colliery is operating, however, with about the same number of men as were on hand yesterday.

At Reserve the best of order was maintained. The men went to work without any molestation.

The situation at Dominion No. 1 remains unchanged. Good order prevailed, and there were no efforts at interference with anybody. The management report that more men are at work here than the day before.

The report from Bridgeport is to the effect that as the men were going to work they were met by the strikers and a slight disturbance took place. About the same number of men as were at work Tuesday are at work.

The trains on the Sydney & Louisburg Railway are all running and the piers are in operation. Seven schooners and one steamer were loaded at the International Pier on Tuesday and Tuesday night.

Mayor Douglass was requested yesterday by General Manager Duggan to send a requisition to the authorities at Ottawa to call out the militia. This Mayor Douglas refused to do, claiming that the civil authorities were quite capable of coping with the situation.

It is understood that Mr. Duggan objects most strongly to the appointment of special constables from the ranks of the striking U.M.W., and says that it is only a ruse on the part of the strikers to obtain legal authority in order to intimidate the non-strikers.

Tuesday the saloons were closed tight, but yesterday they were wide open and liquor flowed freely. As a result the passions of the men are highly inflamed.

Decision of Dominion Railway Board Regarding Fruit Rates From Queenston District to Toronto Goes Against Company—Chairman Scathingly Condemns the Unauthorized Increase.

Ottawa, July 8.—The appeal of the fruit growers of Queenston district against the raising of the express rates on fruit shipped to Toronto proved a most interesting case yesterday before the Dominion Railway Board. Justice Mabee, chairman, took several opportunities during the argument to express contempt for the action of the Canadian Express Co. in particular.

His summing up was as severe as it could be made, and his judgment was entirely against the company.

In brief, it was claimed that the Canadian Express Co., finding itself in the field without competition, had raised its rates from 30 cents per 100 pounds to 40 cents, despite having given an undertaking that the tariff would not be altered so long as the matter was before the board.

Judge Mabee, in scathing terms, disallowed the change of rate.

Incidentally, the decision of the board was a great victory for W. H. Buting, who, in a quiet yet effective way, stated the case for the fruit growers. There were a number of prominent fruit growers in the court.

Mr. Mabee announcing judgment, that the cancellation was disallowed, said he was doing it not on the ground that 40 cents was too high or 30 cents too low. It might be that 30 cents was too low, he said. He would not stop to inquire, but some time ago an understanding had been given that the rates then in effect should be maintained while the matter was before the board, and all he could do was to make an order, disallowing the cancellation.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

Three men have been arrested at Montreal on a charge of faking accident claims against railways.

Pierre Collins, a Montreal grocer, was robbed of $500 by two men who pretended to be sanitary inspectors.

A sensation was created in the Clifton House, Niagara Falls, when its proprietor ordered the playing of the "Star-spangled Banner" to cease.

A decision of moment to temperance workers was handed down in Detroit when a woman, the wife of a drunkard, was given heavy damages against a saloonkeeper.

The results of the examinations at Macdonald Institute in Guelph show a large number of young lady graduates in housekeeping, home-making and as teachers of domestic science.

A Liberal victory in the first district of Queen's, P.E.I., gives the Government a majority of three, and probably saves them from defeat at least until the end of the Parliamentary term.

J. Bruce Walker, Commissioner of Immigration, is already impressed with the need of men to handle the western harvest. He says applications are pouring in and cannot be filled. He thinks twenty thousand men will be required.

Wheat Clearance at Winnipeg.

Kingston, July 8.—H. W. Richardson and L. L. Henderson are in Ottawa waiting on Sir Richard Cartwright in regard to securing a clearing house for wheat at Winnipeg, so that the shortage in weight of vessels' cargoes may be prevented.

PICHE IS NABBED

Chief Calbeck of Cobalt Arrests French ex-Justice of the Peace at Haileybury and Holds Him Pending the Arrival of a Toronto Officer—Led Police Thousands of Miles Before Captured.

Toronto, June 8.—Charged with accepting a bribe or other corrupt consideration amounting to $25,000, to abstain from giving evidence in an action which the Provincial Attorney-General was attacking the claim of the Temiskaming & Hudson Bay Mining Co., to a mining property in the Cobalt district, John Piche, 50 years of age, a French-Canadian half breed, who was formerly a justice of the peace at Sudbury, Ont., was arrested yesterday by Chief Calbeck of Cobalt at Haileybury, Ont., and is held at Cobalt for Detective Mackie, who left last night to bring him back to the city.

With the arrest of Piche there closes a chase which for sheer romance and adventure rivals the most thrilling tales of early Canadian history. The warrant was sworn out by Inspector of Detectives Walter Duncan, April 12, 1907. Since then he has been pursued for thousands of miles through the wildernesses of the Northwest and driven into the frozen fields of the far north.

From the busy streets of Toronto, he fled when the crime was discovered, and the next heard of him was from the Northwest Mounted Police at Battleford, Sask. This was April 16, 1907. From there a sergeant and two men set out in pursuit. For more than 200 miles they tracked him through the pathless wildernesses to the north. He was hard to come upon, for in his early days he had roamed that country as an Indian huntsman. The unknown ways were as an open book to him, and it was a harrowing race he led the officers. Time after time they thought him within their grasp, only to find that he had evaded them through some hidden way, of which they did not learn until too late. At last they closed in on a valley in the mountains where they were convinced he must be bottled tight. Carefully they drew together, confident that they had left open no way of escape. At last they came out into the open. He had vanished as if the earth had swallowed him and those officers are waiting to learn how it was done. Wearily they made their way back, encountering many hardships. Then they arrived at the post. Letters were received here constantly from various branches of the R.N.W.M.P. One day he was east, next he was west. Will o' the wisp, himself, was not more elusive than he. Finally he was lost over the southern border into the United States and while a month ago some whisper of his whereabouts was heard by the police, until yesterday no definite word of him was had.

Much rejoicing over his capture is felt in police circles, as for more than two years his capture has been a triumph much longed for.

The action out of which the trouble arose was one in which Mr. Pinkerton of Pinkerton & Chute was suing for the Attorney-General to destroy the title of the Temiskaming & Hudson Bay Mining Co. to certain valuable mining properties in the Cobalt district. It was alleged that the company was not entitled to hold the claim and Piche, as one of the original discoverers of the claim, was believed to be possessed of valuable information. It is alleged that he was paid a sum of $25,000 to disappear.

THE TROOPS LEFT TO-DAY FOR CAPE BRETON STRIKE

Special to The Examiner (2.45 p.m.)

Halifax, N.S., July 8.—Five hundred men and 24 officers from the Royal Artillery and Royal Canadian Regiment left here at 3:45 this morning for the scene of the miners' strike in Cape Breton, the force which is under the command of Colonel Wadmore, R.C.R., with Major McDonnell as staff officer, takes with it two machine guns and a complete equipment. It will not reach Sydney until five o'clock this evening. All is quiet at the mines to-day according to the latest reports.

SEVERAL OUTRAGES BY STRIKERS THIS MORNING

Special to The Examiner (2.45 p.m.)

Glace Bay, July 8.—Several outrages marked the strike here this morning. The sheriff was mobbed at one of the collieries and Manager Maxwell of No. Four was assaulted. The railway track was blown up and last night strikers shot up one of the collieries, burning down one of the buildings. Fewer men are at work today on account of intimidation.

Boy Returns To Work And Meets With More Painful Accident

Cyril Sullivan, Park street, met with a painful accident this morning at the Lock Works, having the tips of the four fingers on his left hand cut off in a machine at which he was working. The tip of the little finger was cut off and the others were caught about the first joint. Dr. Greer was called and dressed the hand and the boy was removed to the Nicholls Hospital where further attention was given it.

A distressing feature of the accident was the fact that the boy had just returned to work after having had a part of one of his fingers on the right hand cut off and in this case more of it was removed. The accident occurred a short time before the noon hour.

BRITAIN'S TAX LEVIES.

We have heard a great deal of the iniquity of Great Britain's new revenue legislation, which proposes to tax the poor, down-trodden, British landlord into the very dust of his desecrated acres—by the foot of the tax-gatherer. It will, therefore, be a surprise to learn that out of a total annual revenue, arising from taxes, of $787,500,000, the land taxes amount to only $3,750,000, or one twenty-fifth of one per cent., while the items of property and income tax realize $169,500,0000. These latter sources of revenue yield the largest single item of the exchequer, next to customs and excise duties. A study of the sub-joined table will show that the burden of the revenue is contributed by the popular class, the class composed individually of persons least able to afford a reduction of their income in the shape of taxes, while the wealthier few escape comparatively scott free. In the subjoined table the amounts expressed in pounds would be, roughly, five times greater if expressed in dollars:

Customs	£29,200,000
Excise	33,650,000
Estate, etc., duties	18,370,000
Stamps	7,770,000
Land tax	730,000
House duty	1,900,000
Property and income tax	33,930,000
Post office	17,770,000
Telegraph and telephone	4,530,000
Crown lands	530,000
Suez Canal, etc.	1,171,466
Miscellaneous	2,026,829
Total	£151,578,295

The new budget, which has aroused so much protest from, and sympathy with, the land owning classes adds comparatively little to the land taxes, and perhaps nothing at all since the generous landlord may manage to take it out of the tenant.

A DESERVED FLAGELLATION.

The most pernicious pessimist is not the one that sees nothing but disaster ahead in the matter of the material interests of the country. It is the man that entertains or pretends to entertain dismal doubt of the moral quality of the people and consigns everybody but himself to utter depravity. Rev. W. J. Pedley, of Toronto, has been discussing the Imperial defence problem in relation to the utterances of a newspaper hypocrite. Speaking in the Western Congregational Church on Monday night Mr. Ridley said:

"The whole question is a political one, and I have nothing to say on that. But a moral issue has been raised—we in Canada are said to be not honest enough to spend money on ships properly. "The Montrel Star takes that position,' said Mr. Pedley, and he quoted from an editorial from that paper. "The ground taken," he said, "is that the Canadian people are not honest enough to spend the money as it should be spent in our own country, because of the bedevilling influence of our politics. Could any responsible man make a more serious charge against the country than that? It is a truculent, nefarious statement. It means that the Canadian people are thieves, robbers, rascals, and that most of the money voted for such a purpose would be stolen and the rest wasted. It means that we, as a people, are not capable of creating a navy, and if we created one we could not possibly maintain it. The question of peace or war is blown out of sight by this question. Are we in Canada raising up a generation of people lacking in the elementary principles and traits of character? If this is true, we must make it untrue, and we, as Canadians, must learn to administer our own affairs properly. Is England better than we are? Some say so. I am not quite so sure. I stand for my country. As one who has spent his life in this country, who is conversant with its public and commercial life, I throw back the suggestion as untrue. Canada has had only seventy years of self-government, and forty-two years a confederated Dominion. She has done marvellous things in that short space of time, and has done them well. There may have been some black sheep in the flock, but to brand the whole country in that reckless fashion is an infamous insult."

It is extremists of the kind thus criticised and condemned that are the curse of Canada—hypocrites who pose as purists, political or otherwise and emit wholesale denunciation of those who do not think with them, and incidentally discredit Canada in the eyes of the world. The holier-than-thou hypocrite was excoriated to the quick by our Blessed Lord in His earthly day, but the snake was only sketched, not killed. The hypocrite of his day married and begat children; his progeny was numerous and tough for they exist among us in far too evil abundance to this day. We are all bad enough, but none of us are as bad as the worst of us, the pessimistic hypocrite, who is the cobra of the human branch of the snake family.

LIBERAL LABOUR LEGISLATION

The advancement of Mr. W. L. Mackenzie King to be a Minister of Labour marks something like an era in Canadian administrative history. With the advent of a Liberal Government, came attention to the labour problem, consideration of the rights and interests of Labour and legislation adapted to protecting the one and advancing the other. With laws for the benefit of Labour, there necessarily arose the necessity of machinery to administer them. Then we got the Department of Labour established and necessarily the appointment of a minister to take charge of this Department devoted exclusively to the promotion of Labour interests. The policy of the Liberal Government in the promotion of the welfare of Labour has ceased to be a policy and become a practice. At this injuncture the Halifax Chronicle considers it timely to recall some of the principal labour enactments along the line of this policy, to show the scope and activity of the Liberal administration in connection with the industrial interests of the country:

The establishment of a Department of Labour.

The publication of a monthly journal known as "The Labour Gazette."

Abolition of the sweating system in connection with government contracts.

Adoption of a fair wages policy with regard to all government contracts.

Enactment of the Conciliation Act, 1900.

Enactment of the Railway Labour Disputes Investigation Act, 1907.

Enactment of the Alien Labour Act, 1897, and amendments of 1898 and 1901.

An act to prevent false representation to induce immigrants to come to Canada, 1903.

Sending Mr. King to England to urge the British government to enact legislation upon similar lines to the above, which legislation was enacted in 1905.

Royal Commission in 1900 to inquire into the effect of Chinese and Japanese immigration.

Imposition of $500 head tax on Chinese coming into Canada as a result of recommendations by this commission.

Royal Commission to investigate methods by which Oriental labourers were induced to come to Canada.

Special mission of Hon. Mr. Lemieux, Postmaster-General, to Japan in the interests of restrictive legislation and the satisfactory results of this mission.

Mission of Mr. King, Deputy Minister of Labour, to England, resulting in complete prohibition of Hindoo contract labour.

Legislation to protect the health of workingmen and women.

Legislation for the prevention of accidents on railways and the appointment of an officer to investigate causes of all railway accidents.

Investigation in 1907 into conditions of employment of the operatives of the Bell Telephone Co., resulting in material improvement in the conditions of labour of hundreds of women and young girls.

Other important measures such as protecting railway crossings, the Lord's Day Act, suppression of opium traffic in Canada, increase of salaries to the civil servants, increase of pay to postmen, letter carriers and others in the public service.

In the light of the facts of legislative and administrative record, it is not hard to account for the Laurier government's popularity with the industrial masses of the country. Never before, in any country, has there been a government which devoted such careful attention to the welfare of all the people, and took such a deep interest in securing to the men who work their full rights before the law, and their proper share of influence in public affairs. With Hon. Mr. King as Minister of Labour, this policy will be continued and elaborated.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

One thing perhaps more than any other that will modify the attitude of the college authorities toward the "higher" criticism cult will be the withdrawal of cash contributions to college support. Mr. Robert Kilgour, of Toronto, has declined to continue his thousand-dollar subscriptions to Knox College debt reduction fund on the ground that the "higher criticism" is "the greatest menace to evangelical work."

PROGRESS IN CUBA

With the beginning of the present fiscal year the Republic of Cuba established a Bureau of Information, President Gomes appointing, Leon J. Canova, an American newspaper man who has resided in Cuba eleven years and has a wide acquaintance with the Island, as its director.

Parties wishing information of any nature concerning Cuba can obtain it, free of charge, by writing to Leon J. Canova, U. and I. Bureau, (Utility and Information Bureau,) Department of Agriculture, Commerce and Labour, Havana, Cuba.

THOSE ANTIPODEAN DREADNOUGHTS.

(London Advertiser.)

The spectacular offer of Dreadnoughts by New Zealand and Australiasa have been held up before Canadians as an example worthy of imitation. And opponents of the Government in their anxiety to make a point have been loud in their condemnation of the more cautious policy of Canada. They quietly ignore the fact that their leader, Mr. Borden, voted with the Government, and that Parliament was unanimous in its action. "See what Australia does!" is the cry, and "See how mean Canada is!"

After events, however, are showing pretty clearly that our friends in the South Pacific colonies are cooling down and that their sober second thought is, after all, inclining them to the Canadian view. The Australian papers, as well as the correspondents of the English papers, are letting out little indications of a feeling by no means unanimous for Dreadnoughts. The Christ-church correspondent of the London Daily Mail suggests that the action of New Zealand was an error, and that instead of giving Dreadnoughts, there will be adopted a policy of annual expenditures for naval purposes.

There was a change in the Government of Australia about the same time New Zealand's first offer was made, in which the Labour party went out of power. The new premier, Mr. Deakin, promptly announced an imperial policy, which included a gift of a Dreadnoght to Britain. Now the London Times' correspondent says that this was simply done as a matter of local policy, thought necessary in the political combinations effected in the change of government. And he quotes approvingly an Adelaide paper, which says that if this were made an election test, it would result in the defeat of the ministry.

Of course, these statements are to be taken simply for what they are worth. The opinion of Australian papers, influenced by local politics, may not be worth much. The opinions of the correspondents of the English press, in so far as they are independent, may be of more value. But, be that as it may, there is little doubt that New Zealnad and Australia are not united on a Dreadnought policy. We may well believe that these colonies are ready to take their full share of the burdens of the empire; as ready, indeed, as Canada. But the Canadian method is more sane, and will doubtless be productive of better results. More than that, it is the policy which all the colonies will adopt. To join in conference with the Imperial Government, and to decide on some permanent method of carrying out a harmonious policy suitable to the varying sections of the empire, will accomplishr all that the most enthusiastic imperialist could desire.

LINDSAY MEN'S THRILLING ADVENTURE IN BIG FOREST FIRE IN GOWGANDA

Lindsay, July 7.—Messrs. Sam Soanes, John McDonald and B. Dovey have just reutrned from Gowganda district, and they give a very vivid account of the bush fires which have been doing great damage in that northern country. For the last two or three months the boys have been prospecting for the Washagaming Mining Company, on Harding Lake, which has its head office in this town. It was in the month of April that the boys picked up their baggage and went north in company with Mr. Jos. Grant, of town. They therefore know something of the life in the wilds of the north, and their stories are very interesting to listen to.

For the last week the bush fires which are the dread of the bushman and miner alike

Have Been Raging

the cause of which is not known. It is thought, however, they started in one of the shanties, but has not been proven. With lightning-like rapidity the fires spread, consuming everything that came in their way. The smoke was so dense that the residents could hardly see and the sun became black and clouded. On last Wednesday night the lumber camp of the Beck Lumber Co. was noticed to be on fire. On Thursday morning about ten o'clock, Messrs. Soanes and Dovey, who were watching the Washagaming camp hovering over their camp and at once they became alarmed. They climbed a mountain behind the camp and could see in the distance the huge fire. They could not tell, however, which way it was heading, but could feel the heat very strongly. They descended to the camp and had only been there a short time when with a cracking and hissing the fire was upon them. The two boys rushed for the camp and picking up what valuables they could reach, including mining papers and clothes, they made for the lake and shoved out in their birch bark canoe. The heat at the time was intense, and the big pine trees

Noticed the Black Smoke

Burned Like Kindling.

Harding Lake, into which the boys put, is only about half a mile wide, and the two canoeists were almost cooked alive. They went to land at the other side, but were met there also by another fire. The lake was now sizzling and almost boiling and with a fiery furnace on each side the boys had no way to escape. The heat was telling on them, but

and after a great deal of battling reached maskinonge lake. After reaching this lake they made for one of Gordon's camps, the fire having slowly burned down. While the fire had been raging Mr. Geo. Jordan and Mr. John McDonald had been prospecting about twenty-five miles up the lakes, but becoming alarmed by the smoke they started home. On Maskinonge lake they met Messrs. Poanes and Dovey who had just escaped from the fiery furnace.

Everything Destroyed

Everything except a few articles which the boys had saved before the fire came on were destroyed and the party had no other alternative but to return home. They therefore left the silver fields and returned home on Monday. It is altogether likely that the burned camps will be rebuilt again.

Black Flies

The returned miners said that morning that next to the bush fires the black flies were next in the list of grievances. They said they were something terrible and those who have not been there have no idea what they are like. One miner in the north said that he would rather serve a term in Cobalt jail than go back to the camp while the black flies were around. They cluster all over the body and take big chunks right out. As many as sixteen have been killed on one finger at a time. It is expected that before long they will leave for other regions.

YOU TAKE IT MIXED WITH AIR.

A Powerful Destroyer of Disease Germs, Which Cures Every Type of Catarrh, Bronchitis and Throat Trouble, Asthma.

Ever since Adam, the air of the pine woods has been known to possess marvellous healing properties. In fact, doctors claim that people living in the balsamic atmosphere of the woods never contract consumption or catarrh.

A new remedy that embraces all the healing curative powers of the pine woods has at last been realized. It contains the balsams, the ozone, and many other antiseptics that make it an absolute cure for all catarrhal diseases.

For years doctors have been looking for just such a remedy, and claim the newly-discovered Catarrhozone is the most effectual, the most scientific cure for catarrh, bronchitis and winter ills they have met.

USED IN ALL HOSPITALS.

So powerfully healing is Catarrhozone that simple colds in the head and coughs can be cured in less than an hour. Chronic catarrh is eradicated from the system in the most thorough manner. It doesn't matter whether the catarrh affects the nose, throat or stomach, it can be completely driven from the system by using fragrant, healing Catarrhozone.

The remotest parts of the lungs and air passages often contain germs of catarrh and consumption which cannot be reached by the ordinary treatment, but the searching vapor of Catarrhozone carries its antiseptic healing power right to these isolated spots. So thoroughly does Catarrhozone reach all diseased surfaces that it cures for all time, and no relapse need ever be feared.

CATARRHOZONE A SURE CURE.

No matter how long you have suffered from disease of any portion of the breathing organs, it matters not how many disappointments you have sustained from the hundred and one remedies you may have tried, an hour's use of Catarrhozone will afford better results than you could obtain from months' use of other remedies.

You can readily understand why this is possible—it is because you breathe it right to the parts that are diseased; immediately the droppings in the throat will lessen, irritation and soreness grow less, the stuffiness and difficulty of breathing will disappear almost as if by magic, and in the majority of cases a very short time is sufficient to effect a radical cure. Druggists sell Catarrhozone. Two months' treatment (guaranteed), price $1.00; smaller size, 50c; by mail from the Catarrhozone Company, Kingston, Ont.

Don't Delay! Act Quickly! Only Three Days More of the National Salvage Company's Sale of F. E. Kline & Co's Dry Goods, Clothing and Shoe Stock, Now Being Closed Out at Lakefield, Ontario, at 45c on the Dollar.—Not a Dollar's Worth of this Stock will be Moved Away

NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC—We wish to inform the public of Lakefield and Peterborough County and vicinity, that Thursday, July 8th, Friday, July 9th, and the last day of the sale ending Saturday night, July 10th, these three days will positively be the last three days of the National Salvage Co's Sacrifice Sale of F. E. Kline & Co's drygoods, clothing and shoe stock. For these three days of our closing out sale, the prices on every article left will be absolutely smashed to smithereens. The entire balances of this stock of clothing, drygoods and shoes, etc., have now been divided into special lots, and re-marked at a terrific reduction, which will sell out every article in the store in the last few days of the sale, as everything in the store will be sold as the most unheard of low prices ever placed on good quality merchandise.

Every article will be disposed of by Saturday night, July 10. If you have any regard for the value of your money, 45 saving a full dollar on every two dollars bought, means money to you, then drop everything and make your arrangements to be here for the last three days' terrific clean-up of F. E. Kline & Co's drygoods, clothing, and shoe stock. Former wholesale cost of the goods have not been considered at all, as the National Salvage Co. have re-marked the balance of this entire stock, which has been put to slaughter at prices that will amaze you. Our reasons for making this great sacrifice on the balance of the stock is, that we may sell every article in the store in these last three days of the sale. Every article in the store must go regardless of former cost or value. It will pay you to come one hundred miles to attend this last three days' sale of F. E. Kline & Co's stock of drygoods, clothing and shoes, and in justice to yourself and pocket book you really cannot afford to stay away. Let all who possibly can get to this sale before it closes on Saturday night, July 10th, as the money you save in this sale on clothing, drygoods and shoes, is practically so much money earned for you. All preparations have been made for these last three days of the sale, in order to serve the immense crowd of people who will naturally want to attend this sale before it closes Saturday night, July 10th. Act quickly, and come before too late, and secure the greatest bargains in clothing, drygoods and shoes that has ever been your privilege to partake of. It is really a pity and a shame to sacrifice such a stock of good quality clothing, drygoods and shoes as F. E. Kline & Co. carries; but it has to be done. To those needing clothing, drygoods and shoes this sacrifice sale is in reality a veritable God-send, as it is right at the time of year when you are thinking of replenishing your clothing, drygoods and shoes for summer and fall needs. Make your arrangements to be here on one of the last three days of this stupendous closing out sale of F. E. Kline & Co's Stock.

The last three days of the sale commence Thursday, July 7th, and end Saturday, July 10th—the last three days will produce such an avalanche of majestic clothing, drygoods and shoes, as will take the town of Lakefield and vicinity by storm, and it will arouse such a response from the people that commercial circles will be astounded, and would-be competitors will fairly gasp. It will be a bargain earthquake of low prices on good quality drygoods, clothing and shoes that will be remembered in Peterborough County for the next ten years.

Make no mistake, be sure you find F. E. Kline & Co's store, now in the hands of the National Salvage Co., who are now closing out the stock at Lakefield, Ontario, and remember that Saturday night, July 10th, is the last day of the sale. Make your plans accordingly, and secure your clothing, drygoods and shoes at one-half their actual value.

Do not delay: hurry in before too late, as this sale closes and positively ends Saturday night, July 10th, at 11 p.m.

Surgeon's Opinion OF KNIFE FOR PILES

Operating often a fail—The modern way of curing piles is with DR. CHASE'S OINTMENT.

Sir Henry C. Burdett, K.C.B., of London, England, in a recent address, said, "What we want are surgeons, who with wisdom to be conservative have courage to protest against the growing tendency to put a knife into everybody on the smallest possible pretext."

Too many doctors have a desire to use the knife at every opportunity. The rewards to them are rich, but think of the suffering of body and mind, the exogmous expense and the risk of life itself. An operation should be the last resort, for in spite of glowing promises the results are often very disappointing.

Many a sufferer from piles has been cured by the use of Dr. Chase's Ointment, after operations have failed. Hundreds of thousands have escaped operations by using this treatment first and thereby obtaining cure.

Mr. Arthur Lepine, school teacher, Granite Hill, Muskoka, Ont., writes:

"For two years I suffered from bleeding piles and lost each day about half a cup of blood. I went to the Ottawa General Hospital to be operated on and was under the influence of chloroform for one hour. For about two months I was better but my old trouble returned and again I lost most blood. One of my doctors told me I would have to undergo another operation, but I would not consent.

"My father, proprietor of the Richelieu Hotel, Ottawa, advised me to use Dr. Chase's Ointment, and two boxes cured me. I did not lose any blood after beginning this treatment, and believe the cure is a permanent one. I gratefully recommend Dr. Chase's Ointment as the best treatment in the world for bleeding piles." 60 cents a box at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

INVITATION TO THE GENERAL PUBLIC

To be Present at the Laying of the Corner Stone of All Saints Church.

Peterborough, July 8, 1909.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Sir,—May I use the columns of your paper to extend to the members and adherents of the various Christian congregations of the city a most cordial invitation to the laying of the corner stone of All Saints' Church on Rubidge street. Only a very limited number of invitations by letter (chiefly clerical) has been issued, and I wish to take this means to invite the Christian people of the city more generally. The building of this church means a decided strengthening of the spiritual and moral forces of the city; it will be also an addition to the community insofar as it will add materially to the attractiveness of the city. I trust, therefore, that this invitation will receive a cordial acceptance, on the part of the public, and the ceremony receive a most sympathetic support.

The corner stone will be laid with Masonic ritual by His Honour Judge Harding, on Friday at 7.15 p.m.

Yours truly,
H. R. TRUMPOUR,
Rector of All Saints Parish.

SOUTH BEACH RESORT

The Improvements Much Admired and Appreciated—Guests Arriving.

(From an occasional correspondent.)

Visitors to South Beach are very much struck with the change Mr. Brooks has made in the place. Many express the opinion that now he really has the finest place on the lakes. Besides the fine new addition to the building he has extended the verandah the whole length of the front of the house, which gives it a much nicer appearance, and lots of room for everybody to sit out and enjoy themselves. At the end of the verandah a large ladies' sitting room has been built and above it a nice balcony; also one in the centre of the building above the main entrance. At the top of the building there is a look-out, where visitors can see away up the lake and get an elegant view of the surrounding country. The house has room now to accommodate about one hundred guests. The additional bed rooms are all newly furnished. But the most important improvement of all is the dining room, which has been enlarged about three times the size of the old one, and is a fine, airy, bright room.

Mr. Brooks has purchased a steam yacht to be used in connection with the house for the accommodation of the guests. Last evening he had the whole bunch up the lakes.

There are about twenty here at present, but quite an addition will be made to these on Saturday, and from that out they will be arriving every day, and by August the house will be pretty well filled.

South Beach is becoming a favourite spot for excursions and picnics. The grounds to the east of the park is used and furnishes excellent facilities for amusement and recreation. The Murray Street Sunday School from Peterborough was here on Tuesday; the Quaker Oats employees will be here on Saturday, and the scholars of the George Street Methodist Sunday School are expected next week.

McMARTINVILLE WANTS DAILY MAIL SERVICE

Residents of Otonabee Settlement Held a Meeting Last Night and Discussed the Matter—Are Unanimous in Asking for the Boon—A Strong Resolution Was Passed and Will be Forwarded to the Authorities.

The residents of McMartinville in Otonabee Township, are determined to have a daily mail service to and from their village. In fact the feeling of the settlement is that the present service of twice a week between the City and McMartinville is practically useless, and if not improved upon by being made a daily service, might as well be abandoned altogether.

The feeling of the community was expressed in no uncertain tone, at a public meeting that was held at McMartinville last night, and which was attended by thirty-five or forty gentlemen of the community, most of whom spoke in plain terms of the requirements of the settlement in this respect. There had been only a short notice of the holding of the meeting given, but notwithstanding this fact, there was a representative gathering, those present being for the most part, heads of households.

The chair was occupied by Mr. John A. Bennett, and amongst others present were, Messrs. Edward Lynch, Sr., Edward Lynch, Jr., Felix Lynch, Steven Shaughnessy, Jas. Shaughnessy, John Shaughnessy, Leo. Shaughnessy, John Crowley, Chas. Peters, Thos. Rose, Jas. McMartin, M. Fitzgerald, John Fitzgerald, Walter Kidd, Roy Deyell, Robert Stenton, Lewis Perry, H. Peters, Walter Clifford, Alfred Woodhead, Fred Holmes, Thos. Spears, Jas. Hendrie, Jas. Rose, R. Wilson, A. Wilson, and H. S. Clayton.

The chairman, Mr. Bennett, referred to the object of the meeting. He felt that the only manner in which a daily mail service from Peterborough to McMartinville, could be secured, was by showing the Department that the agitation was not the part of a few, but on the part of every family in the community. Mr. Bennett stated that he had made a personal canvas of the settlement and he found that 125 persons, (not including any children), would take their mail at McMartinville, if a daily mail service were established. At the present time seventy-five per cent. of these people have daily mail and are obliged to go to Peterborough for their mail, the present service to McMartinville being wholly inadequate. He felt that the population of the community, and the fact that it is still growing, demanded a daily service, in view of the fact that a daily service would cost only a trifle more than the present service.

The chairman asked for expressions of opinion from those present.

Mr. Walter Kidd, one of the best known residents of the community, spoke of the postal requirements of McMartinville. Mr. Kidd instanced the fact that he took two daily papers, and owing to there being a two-day a week service only, to McMartinville, he was obliged to go to Peterborough for his mail. He knew for a fact that many residents who call at the store at McMartinville, in the evenings, are obliged to go on up to Peterborough for their mail. He hoped the Government would grant a daily mail service.

Mr. Edward Lynch spoke along similar lines.

Mr. John Fitzgerald recited the difficulty he had to contend with by reason of their not being a daily service.

Mr. Stenton, who has mail each day, stated that he found the two-day a week service of little use to him.

Other residents expressed their views on the matter and finally the following resolution was passed:

"Moved by Edward Lynch, seconded by Walter Kidd,

That this meeting, being composed of residents of the community, known as McMartinville, petition the Government, praying for a daily mail service between Peterborough and McMartinville.

That we desire to point out to the Government that the community is being more thickly settled and that the people residing in the community feel that they are entitled to a daily mail service.

That wherein, at the present time, twenty-five persons only, have their mail addressed to McMartinville P.O., at least 125 persons would take advantage of the daily service.

That a large number of the residents of the community at the present time come to Peterborough daily for their mail, rather than have it come twice per week to McMartinville.

That the estimated increased cost of the proposed new service is a matter of $100.00 only.

That a copy of this resolution be forwarded to Hon. J. R. Stratton, M.P., of Peterborough, and Mr. E. A. Tanner, of Lakefield asking them to use their best endeavours to procure for McMartinville a daily mail service."

The resolution was passed unanimously, after which the meeting adjourned.

The residents of McMartinville are hopeful that a daily mail service will be installed at an early date.

Report Of Walter J. Francis On Plans Of Smith Street Bridge

Approves of Engineer Hay's Proposed Structure and Gives Further Advice Regarding the Work—Reinforced Cement to be Used—Will be Presented July 29

DETAILS OF THE REPORT

The report of Mr. Walter J. Francis on Engineer Hay's plans for the Smith St. bridge will probably be of interest to the ratepayers. It was presented as follows to the Council:

Harry Phelan, Esq.,
Chairman Board of Works,
Peterborough, Ont.

Dear Sir,—In accordance with your instructions of the 15th ultimo I beg to report the result of my examination of the plans for the proposed reinforced concrete bridge over the Otonabee River at Smith street.

In view of your expressed desire to have my opinion at the earliest date possible and of the fact that your city engineer had been unable to complete the drawings and specifications as early as was expected, to expedite matters I conferred with Mr. Hay at his office on several occasions in your city while working on the plans. As a result he was able to incorporate a number of features arising from our discussion of the subject.

I consider that the plans and specifications for the Smith street bridge dated June 19, 1909, will provide a reinforced concrete structure eminently well suited for the site and first class in every respect. The structure will be permanent in character and will require practically no maintenance. It will be economical in cost. The general arrangement and appearance will be very pleasing.

There is no question as to the strength of the design. It will safely sustain your heaviest traffic. According to the present accepted rules of the art the sections of the steel and concrete are liberal, but this can only be criticized as being on the safe side. side.

As compared with steel under your conditions I consider the reinforced concrete arches to be preferable. In either case, the foundations and substructure would be practically the same, resolving the question into a comparison of the superstructure. I believe bids would be in favour of the concrete to say nothing of permanency, durability and appearance of the latter material.

A concrete railing on either side of the bridge is preferable to a steel one, being more fitting, more permanent and practically no more costly.

The design of the foundation I find to be ample, judging from Mr. Hay's statement that he finds rock at one end of the bridge and boulders firmly embedded in clay at the other. This can only be determined absolutely from the earth at the time of excavation, and the tender provides for actual quantities in footings so no question can arise as to change of footings.

I would strongly recommend the application of a proper coat of asphalt to the extrados (the exterior curve) of the arch before the gravel filling is placed.

I believe it to be my duty in submitting my opinion on a subject of this character to add that co-operation on the part of all directly interested in the construction is necessary to insure success.

Reinforced concrete is one of the highest types of construction to-day, but it is one of the newest systems. It differs from the older types in this important feature, namely, that it is really manufactured at the site. Consequently it is at the site that care and skill must be exercised. I do not wish to be misunderstood as saying that it requires more care than other types for it does not. The material for a steel bridge, for instance, is carefully handled by skilled persons in the smelters, rolling mills and bridge shops. It is made up by skilled mechanics under the most favourable conditions and the oversight of competent inspectors. The reinforced concrete requires only a corresponding amount of care.

This leads me to the matter of construction, consider only the proposals of competent, reliable persons skilled in the art.

I trust you may have the best of success and satisfaction in your undertaking and I wish to thank you for the honour of reporting on this matter.

Yours truly,
WALTER J. FRANCIS,
M. Can. Soc. C. E. M. Am. Soc. I.t.

SPRINGVILLE AND KENDRY VOICE THEIR GRATITUDE

Dear Sir,—Kindly give me space for a few words to voice the thanks of the people of Kendry Station, Springville and vicinity to Hon. J. R. Stratton for very substantial advantages, secured by his influence and efforts. In a general way he has helped us in the acquirement of transport facilities and mail service, but it is to his personal intervention that we owe the fact that the people of this vicinity have been practically placed on the line of the Canadian Pacific Railway. We had had taken the usual measure of communication with the railway authorities, but without result ,to secure the boon of having express trains stop at Kendry Station. In our anxiety Mr. Stratton was appealed to. He made a personal matter of it and personally interviewed Sir Thomas Shaughnessy with the result that instructions have been issued that hereafter C.P.R. express trains will call at this station, to our great convenience. A friend in need is a friend indeed, and I am sure I voice the sentiments of the entire community when on its behalf and my own I thus publicly recognize the valuable service he has done this community, not only in this matter but others, to which should be joined our thanks to the destinguished president of the world's greatest railway.

Yours very truly,
Kendry Springville,
July 7th, 1909.

Dandruff is Caused by a Germ That Saps the Hair's Vitality.

It is now a settled fact that dandruff is caused by a germ. Falling hair and baldness are the result of dandruff. Dr. E. J. Beardsley, of Champagne, Ill., got hold of the new hair preparation, Newbro's Herpicide—the only one that kills the dandruff germ. He says: "I used Herpicide for my dandruff and falling hair, and I am well satisfied with the result." Dr. J. T. Fugate, of Urbana, Ill., says: "I have used Herpicide for dandruff with excellent results. I shall prescribe it in my practice." Herpicide kills the dandruff germ. Physicians as well as the general public say so. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

Little 'Usefuls' Much Used

It would require several columns of this newspaper to adequately describe all of the many little "Usefuls" which go to make our Notion Counter one of the most interesting spots in the Hall Store. Sewing Room Supplies and the requisites of Miladi's Dressing Table constitute these complete stocks of Small Wares for which daily use is found in every household. For most women in Peterborough to think of such needs is to think of the Hall Bargain Counter. It will pay you in satisfaction and round dollars and cents to be of the same mind.

Strawberry Festival

Pleasant Evening Spent at St. Mark's, Otonabee—Enjoyable Programme Was Given.

A GREAT SUCCESS.

The congregation of St. Mark's Church, Otonabee, spent a most delightful time at a garden party on Tuesday evening, July 6, on the beautiful lawn of Mr. Joshua Smithson. About 250 people were present. Strawberries, cakes, bread and butter, cream and tea were the factors of the much enjoyed menu. Mr. and Mrs. J. Smithson made everyone welcome and all enjoyed the pleasant evening. After supper Rev. Dr. Langfeldt acted as chairman, and introduced the following programme:

Gramophone Selections — Mr. De Lisle.
Vocal Solo—Miss King.
Vocal Solo—Miss Quartermaine.
Piano and Violin Duet—Mrs. Luke and Mrs. Parker.
Gramophone Selections — Mr. De Lisle.
Vocal Solo—Miss King.
Vocal Solo—Miss Quartermaine.
"God Save the King."

Mr. M. B. Kilpack acted as accompanist. After passing a hearty vote of thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Smithson for their kind hospitality, the happy event was brought to a close.

IS DR. CHASE YOUR DOCTOR?

For over a generation Dr. Chase has, by means of his famous receipt book and great family medicines, been winning the confidence and esteem of the people of this continent. His Kidney-Liver Pills, Ointment, Nerve Food, and other medicines have long since proven their exceptional merits and to-day are to be found in the best homes everywhere. Why not let Dr. Chase be your doctor?

BOATING ON RIVER BECOMING POPULAR

Many Spend the Evenings and Take Tea on the Banks.

It is becoming the habit. The young people and many of the old ones too are spending many of their evenings on the river and Mr. Rye at the Otonabee boat house has had to increase the number of canoes for hire to accommodate the growing demand. Apart from the launches which have increased to a surprising number the river is dotted every evening with a flotilla of canoes and skiffs and the banks of the Otonabee shows groups of the young people here and there, enjoying tea laid in the open and partaken without customary conventions and with a care-free spirit that seems to be a splendid aid to digestion. The paddle on the river and the open air is an appetizer with which no bottled "fizzler" can compare.

There are many more making these trips this year than last and the habit seems to be contagious. Groups of young people arrange to go down together for the late afternoon and evening and thus make the affairs the more enjoyable. As the season continues it is felt that the custom will be taken up by many others.

Boating is certainly one of the most enjoyed pleasures that the young people of the city are afforded and they seem to be taking every opportunity presented.

Do You See That Little Boy?

He is only seven years old, yet he is wearing glasses. He has wise parents, for when he complained one day of pains in the eyes, he was brought directly to us. We had a pair of lenses made for him, and now he has not the least trouble with his eyes—and studies without any inconvenience. And the beauty of it is that he will soon be able to discard the glasses altogether. CHILDHOOD is the time to relieve eye troubles.

FIRE INSURANCE

The following legend taken from an enterprising Seedsman's Catalogue is not without a bearing on Fire Insurance:—

"Two years ago an Ontario Market Gardener saved four cents an ounce on the cost of half a pound of Cabbage Seed. In the fall he admitted that he was over $100 to the bad on the crop because the bargain seed had lacked vitality. Thirty-two cents saved—one hundred dollars lost. WAS IT WORTH WHILE?

GYPSIES ARRIVED IN KINGSTON AND WERE ASKED TO KEEP MOVING

"Our" gypsies have apparently reached Kingston, and from a report received to-day they proved unwelcome visitors. They made themselves obnoxious on account of the enormous complaints the city authorities order them to keep moving. The gypsies are proverbial rolling stones, but they seem to gather plenty of moss. The report is as follows:

A band of gypsies, numbering in all over forty, who began camping in the vicinity of Davis' tannery, were, today, ordered out of the city, by the police, as many complaints had been made about them. They left the city via Barriefield. They had fifteen waggons, about twenty horses, and carried a full camp equipment. Both the men and women were attired in gypsy garb, and presented quite a sight, when on the road. There were several children in the band.

"MOUSEY" McDONALD SENT TO COBOURG

"Mousey" McDonald was promised on Tuesday, when he appeared before Magistrate Dumble that on the next occasion that he came up he would be sent to Central Prison. However he appeared this morning, but His Worship did not deal with him as severely as he had first intended. Last night he was again arrested. Today he was given a ticket to Cobourg, from whence he came. He left on the noon train.

IN AGONY WITH PILES

Mr. G. W. Cornell, with the Shaw Milling Co., St. Catharines, Ont., writes, "For six years I was a victim of itching, protruding piles and was in dreadful agony day and night. Doctors were unable to help me and I was about as miserable as any creature could be. My druggist advised me to try Dr. Chase's Ointment, which I did and obtained relief from the first box and complete cure with the second. This ointment would be cheap at fifty dollars a box in view of what it did for me."

Enjoyable Outing at Rice Lake Yesterday---Results of the Sports at Jubilee Point.

Dinner was partaken of at Jubilee Point, and at 2 o'clock a sail across the lake took the excursionists to Gore's Landing, to view the new English church, which is built by Mr. G. T. Warde, a member of St. Luke's, which was much admired for its architectural beauty. Upon the return to Jubilee Point, the races began, and the winners in them were as follows:—

PLAY IS A SUCCESS.

Mrs. Cornwallis-West Wins Laurels In London.

London, July 8.—Mrs. George Cornwallis-West added another to her claims to be considered one of the most versatile women in London by launching her first play at the Hicks' Theatre. The play is a society comedy, entitled "His Borrowed Plumes."

Mrs. Cornwallis-West had the advantage of the finest possible acting and mounting, which made the most of her play. The gowns were gorgeous, and the hats marvel affairs. Mrs. Pat Campbell took the principal role, that of a literary woman whose husband, also with literary ambitions, loved another woman of the adventuress type. The "borrowed plumes" was a play which the husband cribbed from his wife's manuscript of a novel which the adventuress, unknown to him, had stolen. The story centres about this incident, and in the heroine's efforts to win back her husband's love were cleverly portrayed by Mrs. Campbell. The critics, however, say the action of the piece is slow.

Mrs. Cornwallis-West declares that if this effort succeeded she would write a political drama.

Winter Fair Prize Lists.

Guelph, July 8.—The Ontario provincial fair board yesterday decided that the prize list this year should total $10,000. The horse show prize list, which comes to the board as a recommendation from the Ontario Horse Breeders' Association, will be along the same lines as that of last year's horse show, held at the stock yards in Toronto. The amount for horse prizes is about $3,000.

The feature of the poultry prize list this year will be the department of twenty classes or more in pigeons, to include the birds of 1909, which have been excluded heretofore. Realizing that the showing of fat stock has been in the past the only weakness of the show, the board have greatly increased the prizes for that class.

Floods In Kansas.

Kansas City, Mo., July 8.—A long-distance message from Pomona, 63 miles southwest, says that ten coaches of Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe train No. 5, which left Kansas City at nine o'clock, went through a bridge at Pomona yesterday afternoon, four coaches overturning in the water. All were empty.

The train, which was one of the heaviest, traveled on the main line west of Kansas City, was running in the water over its rails, when the accident occurred.

Bread Problem at Galt.

Galt, July 8.—The bakers' bread question is setting this town by the ears, as 16, 20 and 24 oz. loaves, baked in different shops, are all sold at the same prices, five cents. The police yesterday seized patches in shops of D. Smith and J. Hall of 20 oz. bread, short by two to four ounces. The defendants pleaded a mistake, and the magistrate accepted the plea in imposing a fine of $1 and costs. He ordered the short weight bread confiscated.

English Capital for Railway.

Chatham, July 8.—A deputation of English millionaires arrived yesterday morning, and in company with John Piggott and other directors are making an inspection of the Windsor, Essex and Lake Shore Railroad.

If the Englishmen can be induced to put up the capital they talk of doing the road will immediately be extended to Chatham, and later it is the intention to build it on to London.

Grimsby Park to Be Broken Up.

Hamilton, July 8.—The Grimsby Park property was offered for sale yesterday afternoon before Judge Mulock, the local master. J. W. Vandyke, who would not say for whom he acted, offered $30,000, the only bid made. The judge said this was away below the value, and he ordered that the property be cut up and sold in small parcels.

Gas Prices Boosted.

Niagara Falls, July 8.—Another rise of two cents per thousand feet in the price of gas was made by the Provincial Natural Gas Co. yesterday, making the price 30 cents.

This is the second increase within nine months, when the price was 25 cents.

Champion Sawyer Hurt.

London, July 8.—John Kimball of Southwold, champion cross-cut sawyer of Canada, was very seriously hurt at a barn-raising by a heavy beam falling some distance and striking him on the head.

Mangled In Biscuit Machine.

London, July 8.—Charles Siboti, a young Italian who came here recently from Hamilton, was terribly injured yesterday afternoon by being drawn into a biscuit machine at McCormick's. One arm was mangled so that it will have to be amputated.

Canadian Killed by Auto.

Burlington, Vt., July 8.—Governor Prouty's chauffeur, Wm Henry Benwaie, was arrested yesterday on a charge of manslaughter in connection with the death Tuesday night of Hector Mongeon of St. Hyacinthe, Que.

The police say that Benwaie was using the machine with the knowledge of his employer.

Towers for Transmission Line.

Walkerville, July 8.—More than 1,000 steel towers for the transmission line of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission have been completed at the plant of the Canadian Bridge Co. Shipments have begun and will continue at the rate of 300 a month until the full order of 3,000 has been filled.

To Control Cable In War.

London, July 8.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—According to a Melbourne despatch yesterday, as a result of communications with the imperial authorities, the Commonwealth Government will shortly introduce a bill enabling the Commonwealth to seize control in time of war or emergency of the shore ends of the ocean cables touching Australia.

Another despatch from Melbourne yesterday says that official returns show a most marked improvement in musketry efficiency in the Australian militia and volunteers. The percentage of marksmen in the trained soldiers' course has risen in two years from 25 to 39, and the percentage in the recruits' course from 58 to 65.

N.T.R. Must Cross Tracks.

Ottawa, July 8.—Yesterday morning counsel for the National Transcontinental Railway Commission appeared before the Railway Commission and declared that Tuesday's decision of the Commission, refusing to sanction the plan of crossing the Canadian Northern and Canadian Pacific at St. Boniface, Winnipeg, was nothing short of a calamity to the National Transcontinental. The situation now is that the parties will have until July 26 to come to an agreement, and if this has not been accomplished by that date there will be a rehearing of the case on its merits.

Stopped U.S. Busses at Border Line.

St. Catharines, July 8.—A lot of people here were disappointed in an outing yesterday. The Daughters of Rebecca arranged a picnic to Queenston Heights for the day, and hired automobile busses to carry the crowds. Some of the busses had to be hired in Niagara Falls, N.Y., and yesterday morning when they tried to cross the border they were stopped by the Canadian customs officers at the bridge, and sent back. Accordingly, the limited number of busses could not carry all who wanted to go to the picnic.

Navvies on Rampage.

Woodstock, July 8.—Fifty Italian navvies who are engaged in track-laying went on strike yesterday afternoon, demanding a raise of ten cents a day from the contractor.

A bunch working at the G.T.R. struck simultaneously. At the G.T.R. the navvies got fighting and stones were thrown. One man got hit in the face. The striking men refuse to leave the cars and trouble is looked for if an effort is made to eject them. The police were kept busy yesterday afternoon.

Victim of X-Rays.

Montreal, July 8.—The funeral took place yesterday morning of Miss Edna Bole, younger daughter of D. W. Bole, ex-M.P., president of the National Drug & Chemical Co.

While horseback riding close on two years ago Miss Bole sustained an injury to her hip and an operation was successful. X-ray photos were taken of the injured member for medical research purposes, but unfortunately some burns resulted from X-rays which it was found impossible to heal.

Revolution In Colombia.

Colon, July 8.—A revolution has broken out in the Republic of Colombia, apparently against the Government of Rafael Reyes, the President of the republic, who is now in London.

The trouble began Sunday morning at Barranquills. There was little resistence, and the rebels were entirely successful. Two hundred men armed with rifles then marched down to Savanilla and took that port without firing a single shot.

Want Protection In Lumber.

Vancouver, B.C., July 8.—A resolution was passed by the Board of Trade asking the Boards of Trade of the Northwest to use their influence with the Dominion Government to secure the establishment of a duty of two dollars on rough lumber and thirty cents on shingles imported into Canada. This was passed in view of the fact that last year's importations of lumber into Canada from the State of Washington amounted to over four million dollars.

Detectives Guarded Stock Exchange.

New York, July 8.—It was learned yesterday that since Friday last a force of experienced detectives have been on guard in the vicinity of the New York Exchange following the receipts by the police of a letter which threatened that between Friday and Tuesday the Exchange would be blown up with dynamite.

A Charge of Abduction.

Collingwood, July 8.—Wm. S. Haddon and Joseph Morgan were arrested here on a charge of abducting Eva Readman, the 13-year-old daughter of George Readman of Owen Sound. The young men had visited Owen Sound on an excursion. Returning, the two were refused admission at local hotels.

Gives Millions to Education.

Chicago, July 8.—Daniel K. Pearsons, the "Sage of Hinsdale," already famous for benefactions totaling $4,600,000 to the small colleges of this country, has announced that he would devote the remainder of this, his ninetieth year, to distributing among the various educational and philanthropic institutions of this city his last million dollars.

This will round out the sum that he had always intended Chicago to have and leave him relatively a poor man when he celebrates his 90th birthday on the 20th of next April.

Flood of Burning Oil.

New York, July 8.—One hundred men who were at work on a pier of the Standard Oil Co. in Williamsburg section of Brooklyn jumped into the East River yesterday to escape a shower of blazing oil when an oil tank on the pier exploded. The clothing of many of the men was on fire as they jumped. One man was badly burned. The workmen were quickly rescued by lighters. The loss was said to be $200,000.

Woman Shoots at Priest.

Burlington, Vt., July 8.—An attempt to assassinate Rev. Joseph F. Gillis, a priest, connected with St. Mary's Cathedral, was made as the priest was on his way to celebrate mass at St. Mary's Academy. What Sunshine Furnace does Sunshine Furnace is designed and constructed to heat a house, church, school or store, and does this more satisfactorily than any other known furnace or other style of heating apparatus.

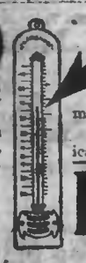
It does this more rapidly than the hot water boiler because, as soon as fire is started in Sunshine Furnace, heated air can be obtained for the rooms.



It does this better than other furnaces because, being made from exclusive patterns, it has more commendable features.

It does this more economically than the boiler because even air circulation keeps fuel bill low.

SUNSHINE FURNACE

It does this more conveniently than the hot water boiler, because it has no radiators to take up room, congregate dust and mar the paper and woodwork.

It does this more hygienically than the boiler because pure air is admitted to the furnace through a cold air pipe.

BARRIE BEAT LOCAL CITY LEAGUERS 3-1 IN AN ELEVEN INNINGS CONTEST

"Yebbie" Flaherty Pitched His First Game in Two Years and Demonstrated That He is Back in Form by Pitching Remarkable Ball---Burton, for Barrie, Had Local Batters at His Mercy, Neither Side Had an Earned Run, But the Game Was One of the Best in Years.

That affair at the local ball yard yesterday in which the well reputed and versatile athletes of the Barrie Club stacked up against a hand-picked aggregation of citizens who disport themselves on Saturdays in the local City League, had every earmark of being some ball game. While the stall-fed ball tossers from the shores of Kempenfeldt Bay walked away with the large end of a 3 to 1 score, it was only after eleven innings of classy baseball that the Barrie cohorts were enabled to bite off enough of the counting stuff to annex a victory.

The fans saw one of the best games in years and they were tickled to death with the engagement and with the showing made by the local players.

This Barrie aggregation has been collecting some fame in the past couple of years by trimming pretty near everything that they have come across and they have played all the Toronto senior teams as well as fast nines from all over the province. They have a well-balanced team who have been playing together for some time, and it speaks pretty well for the calibre of ball played in the local City League that a team picked at random and without any practice together should be able to hold Barrie to 3 to 1 in an extra innings engagement. It shows local fans that there is some quality to the City League and the games should be better patronized in future.

There was mourning in the ranks of the All Stars when it was learned that Quinlan would not be able to be on hand to pitch but "Yebbie" Flaherty stepped into the breach and handed out the gilt-edged article in twirling. Flaherty has not pitched for two years since that memorable occasion when he twirled for the Petes against Cobourg, when Barry, of Providence was on the slab for the Lakeshore team. He was in grand fettle yesterday and the way in which he shot them over had the fans as well as the Barrie hitters guessing. He had perfect control, allowing nary a charity, while he was touched up for but seven hits, several of them of a fluky nature. He had speed, curves and everything else, and the crowd was glad to see him back in his old time form. Thirteen Barrie sluggers succumbed to his seductive shoots. The team behind him gave him good support, although errors lost the game. McFadden, of the T.A.S., although he has never worked with Flaherty before, caught in almost faultless style and performed splendidly behind the bat. The infield was composed of M. O'Brien of the T.A. S. first, Callaghan of the T.A.S. second, Kendry of the Straths shortstop, and Craig of the Straths third, while in the outfield were Shaw and Curtis of the Straths, and Harry O'Brien of Park St.

Doc. Burton, the youth who was to have had a try with Toronto last spring, was on the slab for Barrie and right here is a good place to remark that Mr. Burton, although youthful, is clever and has an assorted collection of benders that kept the homesters swinging hard and hitting easy. Only five hits were made off him and outside of the second innings, when the Petes filled the bases with one out and in the sixth when they scored the only run was he in difficulties. He struck out thirteen, but gave three charities and hit one man. His assistants played good ball, especially Meeking at second.

The game was a series of blanks until the sixth when both teams scored one run. From then until the eleventh there was no more scoring, but Barrie rushed two over in that chapter and annexed the game.

About three hundred fans saw the game, the majority of them hailing from Barrie, and they rooted hard for their team.

Dan McCabe umpired and gave good satisfaction to everyone. He had a number of close decisions, but got away with them well and the crowd and players were satisfied.

The game by innings was as follows:

First Innings—Barrie—Cruise perished on a high fly to Kendry. The shortstop and Callaghan collided but the ball was held. Scott ozoned. Rowe went out on a grounder, Kendry to O'Brien. No runs.

Peterborough—Callaghan lifted one to left which McNabb grabbed. Shaw and Craig fanned. No runs.

Second Innings—Barrie— Meeking was safe on a grounder to Kendry, a fumble placing him on first. Coffery singled. Tyre sacrificed, Flaherty to O'Brien. Todd fanned and Burton did likewise, leaving two on the cushions. No runs.

Peterborough—M. O'Brien was out on a grounder to Burton. H. O'Brien beat out a roller to short and stole second. Kendry drove one between short and third for a single. Flaherty walked, filling the bases. With three on chances loked good, but Curtis fanned and McFadden bunted a fly to Burton. No runs.

Third Innings—Barrie — McNabb grounded to Flaherty, Cruise fanned and Scott's best was a grounder to Callaghan which the second baseman handled nicely. No runs.

Peterborough— Callaghan grounded to shortstop. Shaw fanned. Craig beat out a bunt along the third base line and stole second. M. O'Brien grounded to Burton. No runs.

Fourth Innings — Barrie—Rowe led off with a drive to right which went over O'Brien's head and counted for three bases. Meeking fanned. Coffery hit a grounder to Craig who threw to plate, catching Rowe. Tyre was safe, when M. O'Brien dropped a throw following his grounder. Todd struck out leaving two stranded. No runs.

Peterborough—H. O'Brien fanned and Kendry followed suit. Flaherty was given his second free ticket, but Curtis grounded to Burton. No runs.

Fifth Innings—Barrie—M. O'Brien made a nice catch of Burton's high fly. McNabb fanned and Cruise lifted one to Shaw in left. No runs.

Peterborough—McFadden went out Meeking to Rowe, and Callaghan and Shaw fanned. No runs.

Sixth Innings—Barrie—Scott led off with a single. Rowe hit a liner to Craig and was out, but in attempting to double up Scott at first the third-baseman threw low, the runner going to third. Meeking singled sending Scott home. Coffery lifted a foul to McFadden, and Tyre grounded to Kendry. One run.

Peterborough—Craig first up, drew a base on balls and stole second. M. O'Brien fanned and H. O'Brien fouled out to Tyre. Kendry lifted one to McNabb in left, who dropped it and Craig scored from second on the play. Kendry was out trying to steal third. One run.

Seventh Innings—Barrie— Flaherty made the Barrie hitters look small in this innings, Todd, Burton and McNabb striking out in a row. No runs.

Peterborough—Flaherty grounded to Burton. Curtis fanned. McFadden hit to right centre for two bases, but Callaghan lifted a foul for the catcher. No runs.

Eighth Innings — Barrie — Cruise grounded to Kendry. Scott hoisted a high one which Flaherty nailed, and Rowe skied to Shaw in left. No runs.

Peterborough—Shaw flied out to Meeking. Craig beat out a bunt and stole second. M. O'Brien fouled out to Scott, and H. O'Brien fanned. No runs.

Ninth Innings—Barrie—Meeking led off with a single and stole second. Coffery advanced him with a grounder to Flaherty, the batter being out at first. Tyre lifted one to Callaghan, and Warren batting for Todd fanned. No runs.

Peterborough—Kendry grounded out to short. Flaherty was out on a bounder to Meeking, and Curtis fanned. No runs.

Tenth Innings—Barrie Burton died, Kendry to O'Brien, and McNabb and Cruise fanned. No runs.

Peterborough—McFadden was hit by pitcher but was out stealing second. Callaghan fanned, and Shaw died on a grounder to Burton. No runs.

Eleventh Innings— Barrie — Scott lifted a high one into left which Shaw did not try to get and the runner was safe. Rowe hit a grounder to Flaherty who allowed it to get away from him, and both runners were safe. Meeking singled, filling the bases. Coffery fanned and Scott was caught between third and home, but managed to reach the plate in safety after a chase. A passed ball sent Rowe home. Tyre lifted one to McFadden and Meeking was caught on the bases after a long chase. Two runs.

Peterborough—Craig was out on a grounder to third. M. O'Brien grounded to Meeking and Harry O'Brien went down by the same route and the game was over.

RENEWED INTEREST IN CITY LEAGUE GAMES SATURDAY

The calibre of ball dished out by the picked team from the City League against Barrie shows that there is some classy baseball being played by the teams of the local organization, and the fans will no doubt attend in larger numbers from now on. It is no small feat for a picked-up aggregation to hold such a team as Barrie down so well and it is an indication that the City League is furnishing a splendid article and is worthy of more encouragement than it has been getting. In the double-header on Saturday the Stratheonas and T. A. S. will clash in the 2 o'clock fixture and will give the followers of the game a contest that they will remember for some time. The Straths state that they are out to beat the Abstainers of the feat is at all possible. They know that it will prove a big task, but they are going to do their best to accomplish the stunt. On the other hand the Abstainers, who have yet to meet with a defeat, are counting on going through the season without a loss, and therefore will not take any chances by being caught with a weak team on Saturday.

Park Street and West Ends, who have had one lively contest this season come together for the second time in the second game, and it should be a corker, judging by the game the last time the two met. The teams are fighting for second place, and will go at each other from the drop of the hat.

Result Of Turf Club Matinees Shown At The Port Hope Races

The showing of horses owned by members of the Peterborough Turf Club at the recent meet in Port Hope is an evidence of the good results of the matinees which have been held on the local track. A statement to this effect was made to the Examiner by one of the members of the club, who felt that the Peterborough horses more than gave a good account of themselves at the lakeside town. Seven horses were taken down. They were "Patterson," belonging to Jones and Storey; Dr. Leach's "Holland Boy"; Martin Connors' "Lady Gothard"; Dr. Johnston's "Harry Direct," "Queen's Barron," owned by Connors and Johnston; "Queen Bourbon," owned by Whittom and McKiver's "Lulu Chimes."

"Patterson" gave a good account of himself, winning first money in the "22" class, and all those connected with the local track state that his training in the matinees was invaluable. "Lady Gothard" and "Holland Boy" also brought home some of the money. The members of the Club are deserving of praise for the manner in which they connected the races. Dr. Johnston, Eddie Jones and Martin Connors have particularly taken a great interest in conducting the matinees and their efforts have resulted in many good races, which those who like the game appreciated.

BLAMES THE REFEREE FOR THE LOSS OF GAME

Bowmanville Statesman Offers Excuse for the Defeat.

The Bowmanville Statesman devotes a quarter of a column in explanation of how they lost the championship of the Midland League to Havelock. There are two alternatives in such a case. Either the home team was in a weakened condition or the referee was accountable. The Statesman knows they had their best aggregation out and thus the loss of the game is credited to the referee, the secretary-treasurer of the league. Recent discoveries in Egypt display similar methods in the days of old Ptolemy. In an account of the deciding game in the Northern Egyptian Football League, the Sporting Editor of the Cairo Granite blamed the referee thus showing that the sports in the old days were as weak and watery as some of the present day class. The Statesman also remarks that the President of the League was disgusted with the work of the referee. Dr. Devitt is also President of the Bowmanville football team, the eleven that nearly won the Stratton Cup, and it is very probable that in his disappointment at the result, he said many things which he forgot a minute afterwards, like many other good men. The Secretary of the Midland League has had too long a connection with Soccer Football to be ignorant of the rules and his integrity and fairness has never been questioned except by the Bowmanville Statesman, which follows the worn out custom of blaming the umpire to square the home team with their fellow townsman.

The secretary has given much of his, time to the Midland League which has had one of its best seasons and he is above a bias when he is handling the referee's whistle.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET.

New York, July 8.—The market was heavy in the early dealings to-day, but grew dull on the decline, and traders soon took the bull side of the granger stocks. There was no general upward movement, however, and in the early afternoon the market was practically at a standstill, traders all waiting for the crop report. It appeared at 2 o'clock and was found to be materially better than had been anticipated, though the amount of wheat in farmers' hands was quite small. The market did not display any decided activity, but quiet accumulation was noticeable. The buying in Smelters was brisk, and some short covering developed. There is some talk on an increase in the dividend. We still believe in buying any of the standard leaders on any dips especially Atchison, Rock Island, Mo. Pac., and Texas, as they are the most likely among the rails. We expect more activity that the government report is out of the way and feel that a considerably higher range of prices will prevail.

VISITORS TO TORONTO MUST RESPECT FLAG

Will Not Be Allowed to Trail Union Jack in the Mud of the Streets.

Examiner Special.

"If there is a repitition of the trouble, the police will be armed with authority to make the offenders respect the flag." This was the answer given by Mayor Oliver to a deputation comprising Controller Hocken, Rev. John Coburn, W. H. Elliott and James Hales, who appeared in his office yesterday to enter a protest against the conduct of some American visitors who disregarded national etiquette in a ruthless manner by allowing a Canadian flag to trail behind a tally-ho.

It appears that on Monday last a party of Americans who came to Toronto to celebrate their national holiday hired a tally-ho and decorated the seats with American flags, while a Canadian flag was tied to the back axle of the rig and allowed to drag in the mud.

A sergeant and policeman who witnessed the incident had their attention called to it by some pedestrians, but they declined to act, as they did not think that they had the authority to interefere in a case of this kind.

Subsequently the matter was discussed by Queen City L. O. L. 857, with the result that the above deputation was appointed.

"We think that the time has come when no visitor should be allowed to insult the Canadian people by dragging the Union Jack behind rigs," said Mr. Jas. Hales, the chief spokesman. "It is a perfect outrage to allow people from any country to do this sort of thing. The average American would be highly insulted if Canadians went over to his country and attempted to drag an American flag behind a tally-ho."

"THE SUMMER CARE OF POULTRY" SUBJECT OF INTERESTING PAPER

Read by Mr. J. H. Callander at a Largely Attended Meeting of the Poultry Association Held Last Evening.

OTHER BUSINESS

A well-attended meeting of the Poultry Association was held last evening in the hall over Mr. C. N. Brown's flour and feed store. The president, Mr. Geo. Paxman, was in the chair. A very interesting paper was read by Mr. J. H. Callender on the "Summer Care of Poultry." It was decided to have the old hen coops re-painted and a number of new ones made.

Mr. Callander's Paper

The following is the paper as read by Mr. Callender:

"Eternal watchfulness is the price of success," fully as much in the relation to the raising of poultry as anything else. You can't expect, because you make a fine beginning, and get a lot of early chicks hatched out, that, therefore, you will have a grand flock of well-matured birds in the fall. It does not follow by any means, as many a would-be poultryman can testify. Warm weather is apparently the ideal time for the chicks to grow, and it is then that the breeder sometimes becomes careless, with disastrous results. How often you can go into a yard, where the owner enthusiastically tells you, "these chicks were all out in March and April," perhaps, and who is evidently relying on that fact to insure him a well-developed flock in the fall, but an observant eye can easily see that there has been a retarded growth, that is one of the hardest things to recover from in all the category of chicken troubles. In the next yard visited the chicks have a much more thrifty appearance, and are perhaps several weeks younger. Where does the difference come in, and why does one man have better success than the other? The first one made a good start and when the warm weather came thought his work was done. The other never ceased his care and attention to the comfort of his flock, with the above result. The same idea applies to the care of the old fowl that are being carried over for another season. They have perhaps had clean, comfortable quarters in winter, and with careful feeding have been kept laying right up to the warm weather. That is good as far as it goes, and is the very time eggs are most useful in offsetting the expense account, but if the care stops then, and the quarters are allowed to become foul, over-run with lice and no comfort for the birds when they go to roost and need it, then the egg yield stops, the expense bill goes on and the profits of the winter season are eaten up by the loss thus sustained. The flock of poultry, to bring the balance on the right side of the ledger at the end of the year, should be making the very best possible use of the expense items, principally the feed bill. The rations should be either putting a rapid growth on the young stock, or made use of to some good purpose by the mature birds. To get this good result from the feeding, other conditions pertaining especially to the comfort of the fowl, must be correspondingly good, and that means work and ceaseless care. This word "work" is the rock that wrecks more poultry enterprise than all the diseases, vermin or other drawbacks combined, because it is always found that neglect brings the other ills.

To mention a few of the things that ought to keep the poultryman busy during the summer season might serve as a reminder, or come as a timely suggestion to some earnest beginner, but the writer does not pose as one who knows it all, and can lay down a set of rules, the following of which will bring success, so merely offers a few leaves from his own experience.

First, get acquainted with your fowls. Study their habits, and make their surroundings suit them as far as possible. Go out amongst them on a hot day in July and see if you can find a comfortable spot in the yard yourself. If you do, it is almost a sure thing that right there you will find most of the flock, if they are not too hungry to care for comfort. This will probably convince you that shade is appreciated on a hot day, and the thoughtful breeder will provide it somehow. Then take a look for the consequence, where this is not done. Are the chickens' backs and wing joints becoming bare, down all gone, and red skin exposed to the burning sun? They have been too hot, and been sunburned, and if you follow the development of a chick that has this disadvantage to contend with, you will find it takes a long time to get over this condition, and other chicks, perhaps younger than them, will outstrip the handicapped ones under better conditions, and not only lead them all season, but attain a much better final maturity in every way.

Sometimes only one chick in a flock will be afflicted in this way, and generally it is one that has been cowed by the rest. He does not get enough to eat, and when the others are full, and seek a shady spot to scratch in, he has to forage out in the sun for anything he can find. Such weaklings are better to be taken away from others of their own age and put with a younger lot.

Next fill up the water pans, and see how eager the youngsters are for a drink. They fairly climb over each other to get one dip of their beaks into the cool liquid. Then never stint the supply, and set it where it will keep cool as long as possible.

In some far corner two or three chicks may have discovered a nice mellow spot of earth, with just the delightful amount of moisture in it, that they appreciate. Watch them take a refreshing bath. In a few minutes their feathers are full of the cool earth, and it is giving the skin just what it needs, while the bird's pleasure is abundantly evident.

The birds have shown you another of their wants, and the frequent use of a spade, hoe or hand-plough will provide the necessary material.

Feeding is always important, but so much is said about it that often it is thought of as the only really important thing in the chick's life. It is, of course, absolutely necessary, but not the only thing to watch by any means. The birds want their grain ration, bugs, or meat to take their place, green food of some kind, grit for teeth, and lots of water.

Green food is best provided by a grass run, but failing that, try giving them a basket full of the clippings from your neighbour's lawn, and see how much of it they will stow away while it is fresh.

So far we have only talked of the care of the fowl in the day-time, and that is the most important end of the work.

However, comfortable quarters go a long way towards bringing a successful season, and they should be given great care. Have them clean, fresh from foul smells, dry, and above all roomy, as overcrowding the chicks as they grow in size is fatal.

Price Of Footwear To Take A Big Boost In The Near Future

Now it is shoes. Everything needed by mortal man seems to be going up the price ladder. Bread has been reported on the raise in a financial sense, and in some places the quotations have been made higher. Other articles are in a similar condition, and now the wholesale shoe men report that the price of footwear is destined to ballooning. A report from Hamilton is to the following effect:

Wholesalers are sending out notices that from this time on shoes will advance in price from 10 to 20 per cent.

The reason for this is the advance in the price of hides and raw material.

Hides that could be bought last year for 6½ to 7 cents a pound, now cost 14 to 15 cents, and it was inevitable that shoes should follow the hides in their upward career.

"The price of shoes will advance," said Mr. Joseph P. Cook, of the Cook-Fitzgerald Company, London, Ont. "The price of hides and consequently leathers has advanced very rapidly during the past year, and it is impossible to manufacture shoes at the present selling price. The advance will be from 10 to 20 per cent."

The retailers have not advanced their prices as yet, but it is certain that they will shove the prices up as soon as the wholesalers do so.

OBITUARY.

LOUISA FRIENDS.

The death occurred Tuesday in Toronto of Louisa Friends, a former inmate of the Peterborough Protestant Home. She had been ill here and was removed to the city. The funeral was held this morning from the C. P. R. station to the Little Lake cemetery.

BERTHA SMITHSON.

The large circle of friends of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Smithson, 135 Lansdowne Ave., will regret to learn of the death of their daughter, Bertha, which took place shortly after midnight. Miss Smithson was stricken with acute inflammatory rheumatism some five months ago and though progress toward recovery was slow, hopes for lutimate restoration were fully entertained. Her death is a great shock to her friends.

Miss Smithson possessed a fine type of Christian character, having an intelligent faith, a modest, cheerful, and lovable disposition, and was beloved by all who knew her. She was a very loyal member of St. Andrew's church.

The funeral will take place from the family residence, 135 Lansdowne avenue to-morrow, Friday, at 2.30, to Little Lake cemetery.

MRS. ROBT. WEATHERHEAD

The death occurred shortly after noon to-day of Mrs. Robt. Weatherhead, at her late residence, Harvey street.

No arrangements have been made for the funeral. Full particulars will be given in to-morrow's issue.

72 Days of Dish Washing

You spend two hours every day washing dishes. That's 720 hours a year or 72 days of ten working hours each. This means that half the time is wasted. For with Taylor's Borax Soap you finish your work in one hour instead of two.

Isn't it worth five cents to have 36 days a year to yourself—to have cleaner and sweeter dishes than ever before with less than half the work?

Taylor's Soap

This wonderful soap is unlike any other you have ever known. It digs into the corners of dishes and loosens the dirt almost like magic. It cuts away grease and leaves the surface clean and polished.

Hard water makes hard dish washing, but Taylor's Borax Soap softens the hardest water and so makes the work easy. But it does more than soften the water—it softens the hands and leaves them even whiter than before.

With this soap you save all the bother of rubbing and most of the scouring. You simply have no idea of the work this soap can save—it is the greatest surprise you have ever known.

The glassware has a lustre that fairly sparkles with brilliance. The china ware looks as fresh and inviting as new. Yet you work only half as hard with this astonishing soap.

No soap could be purer than this, for during the boiling process we run thousands of gallons of clean water through the soap. Thus every impurity is carried away and the soap is absolutely clean.

Borax also sterilizes and sweetens. It kills every germ and leaves no possibility of contagion. It destroys all odors and leaves a clean scent that is simply delightful.

This wonderful soap costs no more than the ordinary. We spend twenty-one days to make a single cake. We use the labor of more than 200 persons. Yet we make such enormous quantities—millions of cakes every year—that we buy at the lowest prices and give you the very best of quality. Try one bar and judge for yourself.

"A Child of the West"

This very interesting drama shows the love of a mother for her child, and the badness of a bad husband, and how they each get their reward. It is a most beautiful picture of life among the miners, showing the rough life they live and especially how they can ride horses and punish offenders.

"An Indian's Gratitude"

This Elegant Picture depicts life in the Far West where the Indians used to roam. One can see the most beautiful Mountain Scenery, and Tribes of Indians in pursuit of the enemy. It is a picture well worth seeing for the story of gratitude itself.

GLACE BAY PLACED UNDER MARTIAL LAW

STRIKERS ORDERLY

Company Officials Declare That They Are Raising One-Third of Normal Amount—Men Claim Many Desertions From Ranks of Workmen—Some of the Poorer People Are Already Suffering.

Glace Bay, C.B., July 9.—The beginning of the fourth day in the struggle between the miners of the United Mine Workers and Dominion Coal Co., finds both sides confident of victory.

Quietness reigns throughout the colliery districts, after a somewhat strenuous day yesterday.

Early last evening the detachment of troops arrived from Halifax, after an all-day run by special train.

The force is made up of 250 men from the Royal Canadian Regiment, 200 from the Royal Canadian Artillery, 50 of the Royal Canadian Engineers, and details from the Army Medical Corps and the Army Service Corps.

The commanding officer is Lt.-Col. Wadmore of the Royal Canadian Regiment, with Major Macdonell as staff officer.

The moral effect of the presence of the red coats is probably counted upon for the good that is expected to result, for 500 men, even though armed, can't very well give absolute protection to a district that has within a radius of four miles nine huge collieries, each of which cover from 10 to 20 acres of land, with towns and valuable property between.

Among outstanding incidents of a violent character occurring in the strike district late Wednesday night and yesterday were the attempted blowing up of Sydney and Louisburg tracks at Caledonia, the burning of a shack, and the stoning of a train at No. 6, the mobbing of the sheriff at No. 4, and the assault of Manager Maxwell of No. 1 during a general fusilade of stones.

The coal company is quite hopeful of success, although the output of the mines has been lessened by 65 per cent. The United Mine Workers are just as optimistic as the operators, basing their hopes on the fact that only two or three of the pits are being worked to advantage, while the majority of the pits have been tied up.

The company's normal output is about 13,000 tons a day. Last Friday, according to figures emanating from the company, the output was 8,568 tons, on Saturday, 11,095 tons, on Tuesday 5,610 tons; on Wednesday 4,055 tons, and yesterday it was estimated at 400 tons, a quantity of this being from the bankhead.

At No. 2 only sufficient coal was raised yesterday to keep the fires going. No. 3 was closed, but the company expect that with the troops here it will be possible to operate it to-day. Caledonia is reported by the company to have yielded 600 tons, of the normal 1,400 tons to-day. At Reserve No. 5 and 10, 1,000 tons was yielded, 900 being from No. 5. The normal output from these pits is about 1,200. International No. 8, with a normal of 700, produced 400. The remaining pits were practically closed.

As is usual in mining towns in times of strikes, large numbers of men, mostly foreigner and the cheaper grade of labor, are even at this early stage of the struggle, feeling the pinch of want. The U.M.W. headquarters all day long was occupied by men in waiting there for the purpose of impressing their wants on the committee. Assistance will be given, but only the necessaries of life will be provided. The U.M.W. believes that the men, in fighting their own battles, should provide for their own wants. Where absolute poverty is felt, aid is given.

At present, the U.M.W. is proceeding with the assumption that the strike will be of short duration. In case of a lengthy struggle there is talk of starting an immense provision store, with a service extending to the different collieries. Some of the miners who are not bound by family and other ties to Glace Bay, are leaving for various places. There is no "tented city" for strikers, as the company are not evicting the tenants from their houses.

May Be Double Murder.

Niagara Falls, N.Y., July 9.—The police last night are considering the theory that the English couple found dead yesterday morning may have both been murdered. Murder and suicide was the first belief. It is thought the woman may have had a paramour, who did the shooting when English surprised them.

PROULX ON THE STAND

Magistrate Says That Control of Police by the Alderman Is No Use and Should Be Abolished—Proulx Is Unwilling to Make His Bank Book Public—Ex-Fire Captain Benoit Testifies Yesterday.

Montreal, July 9.—Ald. Wilfrid Joseph Proulx was the chief witness before the royal commission yesterday.

He was called upon to deny or affirm the testimony of numerous witnesses who have sworn that they paid him money for city positions, for leniency in the prosecution of the law through his influence as chairman of the police committee or for help in getting city contracts.

Proulx denied everything. He swore he did not know some of the witnesses who claimed to have done business with him. He admitted taking $25 from one man, but said it was for services as a notary. He said he helped to dismiss charges against a police captain because he was moved by the latter's tears, not for any pecuniary gain.

But Ald Proulx doesn't want the public to see his bank book. "It contains professionals secrets," declared he.

The police magistrate, Judge Choquette, was also heard.

"I came to the conclusion from the first year of my judicial experience, that it was absolutely necessary that the city police force, both as regards their nomination and administration, be under control of an authority other than one composed of aldermen."

"What reforms would you suggest?" asked Mr. Perron.

"My suggestion is," replied Judge Choquette, "that a commission or special body of some kind should be appointed, quite independent of the City Council, to administer the city police force, and that the members of the force should be responsible to that independent board."

Speaking then, as a license commissioner, Judge Choquette said: "Up to two years ago, the more direct surveillance of the saloons and hotels in the city was done by the provincial police, but for the past two years the work has been done more by the city force. We were confident that certain hotelkeepers openly violated the license law by selling liquor on Sundays, and they were not prosecuted, while other offenders of a like character were.

"This open violation of the law was especially remarked in the neighborhood of the Windsor and Bonaventure railway stations, and on St. Lawrence boulevard."

Ex-Chief Benoit of the fire department was also on the stand yesterday afternoon, and although he denied taking money for anything in connection with the department, he admitted having received presents from people for his influence in securing them contracts from outside fire departments.

LEMIEUX FOR PEACE

As Representative of Canada at Celebration at Burlington, Vt., Postmaster-General Is Guest of Honor—Hopes There Will Never Be Hostilities Between the United States and Great Britain.

Burlington, Vt., July 9.—The Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, Postmaster-General of Canada, in speaking here yesterday at the Champlain tercentenary celebration, made an eloquent plea for the perpetuation of progress and peace in North America as now exemplified by the cordial relations between his country and the United States. He said in part:

"Whilst we must show appreciation of the explorers and pioneers of this continent and of the warriors who fought and died here for their country, whilst to forget such true and brave men or even to yield them indifferent praise would be but shame, yet is not this the fittest occasion to proclaim our determination that now on and forever the American Commonwealth and the Dominion of Canada shall always promote and advance the cause of peace, harmony and civilization on this vast continent.

"There are heroes of peace as there are heroes of war. In our modern times death sacrifice is not demanded as in days gone by. With less glamor, perhaps, but with no less glory, can the statesmen by standing faithfully to their unthanked tasks of public service make their country a better land. Assembled here on the historic shores of Lake Champlain the representatives of three great nations can well afford to proclaim before the whole world that the arts of peace are above all the most civilising."

The speaker compared the celebration of the Quebec tercentenary a year ago and the Champlain celebration as equally important in recording the historical development of the North American Continent. He outlined the part the Canadian explorers had taken in the early colonizations and settlement of the west, and in the development of the whole northern country.

There could be no better evidence of the friendly spirit existing between England and the United States than that for nearly a century the policing of the great lakes had been reduced to a minimum of armed cruisers, the speaker said. The same friendly spirit between his country and the United States was shown by the fact that there were already five treaties existing between the two countries, a sixth awaits ratification, and a seventh was almost completed, the Postmaster-General said.

"Canada" was the subject of an address delivered last night by Mr. Rodolphe Lemieux at the dinner given to President Taft in connection with the Champlain tercentenary celebration. The speaker paid his respects to President Taft by saying that the Canadians claimed a part ownership in him on account of the several hundred thousand of his countrymen who had gone over the border and became citizens of the United States.

One of the proudest memories in Canadian history was the fact that the little Canada of fifty years ago sent no less than 45,000 men to fight in the ranks of the north, to maintain the ascendancy of the Stars and Stripes, said the Postmaster-General.

The speaker said there could never be any real barriers arise between the United States and Canada, as their futures were already so closely linked together by all the ties of friendship and mutual trade.

SAW AND SHINGLE MILL AND DWELLING DESTROYED BY FIRE

Serious Conflagration Visited Property of Mr. Stewart Murphy, Near Warsaw, Yesterday Morning—40,000 Feet of Lumber Burned.

STARTED FROM A SPARK

Warsaw, July 8th. — A fire that wrought damage to the extent of over four thousand dollars, visited this vicinity yesterday morning. The conflagration broke out in the saw mill of Mr. Stewart Murphy, which is about five miles from here. It is said to have originated from a spark from the engine which quickly ignited some dry material and it was but a very few minutes that the whole place was in a blaze. The exceedingly great drouth of the past few days made everything good fuel for the flames. The sawmill was completely destroyed as was also the adjoining shingle mill. It was impossible to save Mr. Murphy's home, and his residence, furniture and all, was swept away. Forty thousand feet of lumber and a large quantity of shingles were burned.

The employees of the mill formed a bucket brigade and worked hard to save the mills and house, but their efforts were of little avail, and when it was seen that everything was going to be burned, their efforts were turned to the woods in the vicinity from which the timber out in the saw-mill is obtained.

The loss is estimated at $4,000, with no insurance.

CONSERVATION FOR CANADA.

Prof. Torenbom, a Swedish metallurgist, estimates that the iron ore resources of the United States amounts to only a billion tons; and a United States authority estimates that in the decade from 1906 to 1909 th eonsumption of iron ore in the United States will total a billion tons. In this event the Republic will have practically exhausted its iron ore in the next seven years. Supposing that this condition will be postponed ten or twenty years, then the United States will be looking abroad for supplies. The extensive deposits of Ontario would claim attention; and even now the United States Steel Corporation is on the look out for promising iron deposits in Ontario. While the development of our national resources is important, that development in relation to our iron and timber should be co controlled and directed as to give Canada the largest share of profit and advantage. We should take a warning from the policy of our neighbours. They have recklessly depleted their forest wealth and are within sight of the end of them for practical economic purposes. We should protect our timber, and iron, and other resources of which we have still an abundance. By proper husbanding, by careful and unwasteful development, we may derive advantages, which, together with these resources would be sacrificed by reckless exploitation. We must begin in time and pursue unflinchingly a national policy of conservation of our national resources, whether of ores, of iron, nickel, copper, and silver, or of water power, or timber.

THE "SWEAT BOX" METHOD

The "sweat-box" system of extorting confessions or admissions from persons accused of crime is repugnant to the principles of British ideas of the administration of justice—contrary to British fair play. The iniquity called "the third degree" as practised by United States detectives and "officers of justice" is a revival of the inquisition of Europe which went out with the advance of Christian civilization. It is creeping into Canadian procedure and is one of the evidences of corruption of our morals by environment. It is practised to some extent by Canadian detectives in secret and in the Kinrade inquest proceedings was even introduced in spirit into the open court. We should set our face against beginnings. We are allowing our neighbours to corrupt our spelling and our language, and by familiarity we are beginning to view the ulcerous evil of the easy divorce with increasing tolerance. But we should protect our justice, our judicial administration, our preliminary methods from practices which at their best are a recrudescence in another form of the "boot," the thumbscrew and the "question" of a by-gone barbarous age. We have the evil in a modified form in Canada but continued practice of it will lead to the development of its extremest form, as it obtains in the United States and as it was exhibited in the United States not long since. A Chinaman in New York, was suspected of knowing something of the movements of a companion suspected of a revolting murder. What was done? "Detachments of police officials attacked the prisoner, hurling question after question at him, and receiving his denials of being an accomplice with mawkish incredulity and leer. When one detachment had tired itself out it was instantly replaced by another, and the wretched foreigner was not permitted to sleep until he had told all he knew of the crime." This does not differ much in spirit from the practices of the dark ages, and it is not to be denied that mildly approximate methods of a similar character are sometimes employed by Canadian police officials. If there is any truth in the proverbial saying that "it is better to allow a dozen guilty men to escape than hang one innocent man," we should conform our methods to the principle which lies behind it. We must strive to retain our civilization.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The Montreal Harbour Commission might get a good deal of the work of harbour improvement done cheaply if some of her aldermen and civic officials were sentenced to hard labour.

A revolution in Colombia, South America, which resulted in the overthrow of what is called the Government attracts as little attention and excites as little surprise as the presence of a bug in a potato plot.

The position of Hon. Mr. Cochrane, Minister of Lands and Mines, that owners of timber limits who enjoy the benefit from government fireraging should contribute to its cost, is sound. It is easily defensible, on the same principle that municipalities which receive benefits from the operation of railways should bear a fair share of the cost of providing and maintaining protection from level crossings.

We of Canada and the United States have been wont to regard Mexico as more lightly overlaid with civilization and less richly endowed with its fruits. But in Mexico justice is not subject to influence by the possession of great wealth on the part of its objects. A millionaire Mexican murdered a man, his brother-in-law. He was sentenced to death. The Supreme Court appealed to, has confirmed the sentence and in addition decreed that the murderer's estate is to pay the widow of the victim the sum of $200,000. The prominence and popularity which wealth brought the criminal did not secure for him a lighter penalty than justice would deal out to a pauper criminal.

The Dominion Railway Commission has abundantly justified its existence as a buffer between the people and the extortions or exactions of corporations operating public utilities. It appears that the express companies arbitrarily raised their rates on fruit from the Niagara District to Toronto from 30 to 40 cents per hundred, while the Commission was considering the whole question of readjustment of rates. The Board has ordered the restoration of the rate of 30 cents per hundred. While the express companies concerned may make a slightly smaller profit—say 90 per cent. instead of 100 per cent. the housewife's fruit may be a trifle cheaper and the public, and not the corporations' interests alone, are consulted. At the same time the Commission will uphold railway corporations when their charges are shown to be reasonable.

GROWING UP IN IGNORANCE.

The schools will play an important part in Canadianising the various peoples who are flocking to the Dominion. An interesting light was thrown on what is being done in Saskatchewan and Alberta in this respect in a letter of Mr. M. O. Hammond, a staff correspondent of The Globe, who has been visiting the schools in those Provinces. Scores of schools are being established, and in each an English teacher is installed, and forthwith the work of teaching the children the English language is begun. The little ones prove apt scholars, and no doubt in turn become little teachers in their homes.

A perusal of the letters would have reassured the Toronto News that the subject is being successfully solved in those two western Provinces. Its attention might be drawn, however, to the fact that conditions in Manitoba are not so satisfactory. That the situation there has escaped its keen scrutiny is somewhat remarkable, although its laches may be accounted for by the fact that there is no chance of dragging the Dominion Government into the matter. The delinquents in the case are the members of the Provincial Government of Manitoba.

In that Province there is no compulsory education law, with the consequence that thousands of the children of the foreign population are growing up in that western land utterly illiterate. In wards four, five and six of the city of Winnipeg there are twenty thousand children of school age, and only seven thousand attending school. The best people of the Province deplore this condition of affairs. An influential deputation waited on the Government some time ago to urge the passage of a compulsory school law. Some soothing words were vouchsafed to it, but no action has followed. Public meetings have been held with regard to it. At the last session of the Legislature Mr. D. A. Ross introduced a bill adding compulsory clauses to the School Act, but the Government rejected them. At the recent session of the Manitoba Methodist Conference strong expressions of opinion were given in favour of the compulsory principle. The answer of the Minister of Education is that the matter "is not a live question." It would be difficult to conceive of a liver question. The fact that thousands of children are growing up in Manitoba illiterate is something in which the citizens of Manitoba should be profoundly interested, and to which the citizens of the Dominion generally cannot be indifferent.

Long Death List In Central Asia

Visited by Earthquake and Many Lives Were Lost—Information is Meagre Owing to Distance From Centres.

NUMBER NOT KNOWN

Examiner Special.

St. Petersburg, July 9.—Meagre but alarming reports from Central Asia indicate that the earthquake of July 7th, did enormous damage in Western Persian Turkestan and Northern India, while the death roll will be heavy. The country being thickly poulated. Owing to the remoteness of the territory affected and the poor means of communication, definite reports are not likely to be available for several days.

MANY DANGERS IN ROUND-UP OF BUFFALO

Winnipeg, July 9. — Wondrous stories are coming from Montana of the dangers encountered by the men who worked at the round-up of buffalo in the vicinity of Ronan, where 200 head were confined. Death in a hundred guises, seemed to stalk in the van of the herd, and it is only the steady nerves and perfect skill of the riders that saved them repeatedly.

The story of John Decker is one in point. With his horse impaled on the horns of a maddened buffalo he had a ride one day which he will long remember. Decker, an expert round-up rider, was engaged with others in forcing a small band of buffalo from the corral into the waiting cages. The band stampeded, and one bull, rendered frantic by rage, charged Decker's horse. Decker was not able to swing his mount clear and it was impaled on the sharp horns. Then with a display of strength which was beyond belief, the buffalo raised the horse and rider from the ground and partly lifting and partly pushing them the animal carried its burden across the corral for a distance of 300 yards.

Decker tried to draw his gun, but it was stuck in the holster and before his companions could come to his assistance the buffalo stumbled and fell. Decker was thrown clear and escaped with but a few severe cuts and bruises. Securing another mount he continued his work.

This is the sort of fight that went on for weeks. Several of the animals killed themselves in their rage, and the exhibitions of their strength and agility astounded the crowds of spectators who gathered from all directions to see the closing scenes of the round-up.

GOVERNMENT WILL GIVE HELP TO MUNICIPALITIES

The Toronto World says:

Assistance is to be rendered by the Ontario Government to the municipalities whose right to use septic tanks has been questioned by the Common Septic Tank Co., of Chicago.

After the deputation had made its request on Wednesday the premier brought the matter before his colleagues in council yesterday and subsequently made the following statement to The World:

"The request put forward by the deputation from several Ontario municipalities yesterday with reference to the question of infringement of the patent in connection with septic tanks was considered by the government and a decision was arrived at to the effect that the government would immediately adopt steps to get a report on the question of the alleged infringement. As soon as the report is received the various municipalities will be notified in order that they may decide whether they will go on with their schemes of sewage disposal by septic tanks or not."

TENT WAS ROBBED OF THEIR EATABLES

A number of campers about five miles down the river complain that their tent, the night before last, was robbed of almost everything that they had to eat. Who the guilty thieves are no one knows, but it is said that certain young men who put in their time down the river, make a practice of living on what the steal from other campers.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET.

New York, July 9.—After an irregular market when there was a sharp advance in Ills. Central, but quite as much of the break in Western Maryland, the market came under bearish influence of traders who were endeavouring to uncover stop-loss orders. They were in a way successful but when the market shows any tendency toward extreme weakness good buying orders are immediately distributed around the room. News developments to-day were of little importance marketwise. The Copper Producer's statement was considered favourable by those in a position to know existing conditions.

There was profit-taking in Atchison and Rock Island, but these issues together with the Frisco shares we regard as splendid purchases on the reactions not only on account of the crop prospects, but because of the support which they are receiving in the belief that they will be made strong even when other stocks may be weak. The banks have gained $3,000,000 in cash and to-morrow's bank statement outlook is favourable for an increase in reserves.

AFTER SUFFERING YEARS

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Fox Creek, N.B.—"I have always had pains in the loins and a weakness there, and often after my meals my food would distress me and cause soreness. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done me much good. I am stronger, digestion is better, and I can walk with ambition. I have encouraged many mothers of families to take it, as it is the best remedy in the world. You can publish this in the papers." — Mrs. WILLIAM BOURQUE, Fox Creek, N.B., Canada.

The above is only one of the thousands of grateful letters which are constantly being received by the Pinkham Medicine Company of Lynn, Mass., which prove beyond a doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, actually does cure those obstinate diseases of women after all other means have failed, and that every such suffering woman owes it to herself to at least give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial before submitting to an operation, or giving up hope of recovery.

Mrs. Pinkham, of Lynn, Mass., invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health and her advice is free.

STRANGE STORY OF LACE GIRL MAKES CHICAGO COURT WEEP AS STORY OF PLOT IS UNFOLDED

Tells of Men Who Caused Her Downfall—Politician of National Reputation May be Implicated—She Was Charged With Grand Larceny.

SWEARS SHE IS INNOCENT

Chicago, July 7.—All Chicago is aroused over the case of pretty eighteen-year-old Ella Gingles, the unsophisticated country girl who, by way of a defense against a larceny charge, is expected to bring the name of men of national prominence into the alleged plot to cause her disgrace.

So many women of prominence have heard her story that it is said nothing can prevent the names of the men she has in mind from being mentioned, and even the politicians are expecting a sensation, although they have been making every endeavor through influential sources to prevent exposures.

The Gingles girl is being tried, charged with the larceny of some Irish point lace from Agnes Baretto, her former employer, at the Hotel Wellington, where, it is charged, the plot against her was laid.

Religious as well as social circles are deeply interested in the case, and Judge Brentano's court was jammed to the doors when she took the stand in her own defence to-day. Women prominent in the best circles of the city crowded into the court room early to lend her every encouragement, and delegations were sent to the trial by the Women's Christian Temperance Union, the Daughters of the Confederacy, the Social Economics Society, the Socialist Women of the United States, the Irish Choral Society and the Catholic Women's League, and every representative present made it plain that the idea was to encourage the girl in her own interests to tell every grain of the truth and to make sure that she got a fair chance to tell all she knows.

Most of these organizations have heard privately her amazing story and are thoroughly convinced that she was the victim of several men, one of whom is said to be a politician of national reputation.

Women Sobbed

As the girl sat in the witness chair to-day telling her story, tears streamed down her face, and all through the court room women were sobbing in sympathy with her.

After telling of her child life, leading from Ireland to Canada, she told of reaching Chicago and engaging a small room. As a country girl she then set out to get work and met the Baretto woman and Mrs. Cecilia Kenyon, who were well known around the Hotel Wellington.

According to the girl's story, after she had refused to listen to the advice of the women she was suddenly charged with stealing lace. She testified that as a child she learned to make lace in Ireland and that the very lace she is accused of stealing she made evenings in the little boarding house room to earn enough to support herself.

One of the features of the case which has convinced so many women of the truth of the girl's statements is that Mrs. Kenyon died suddenly within a few days of the trial.

Mrs. Kenyon, the girl testified, came to her room one night and took her money, watch and little childhood trinkets; Miss Barretto, she said, accompanied Mrs. Kenyon.

The girl swore that the larceny charge against her had been manufactured to discredit the story she might tell about an occasion when she was found unconscious in a washroom, robbed of her clothes, her hands hands tied and a long gash across her body.

It is around this occasion that the alleged scandal in the case revolves.

Still Feeding The Homeless In Fire Wrecked Cobalt

Three Hundred People are Receiving Means of Sustenance From the Authorities in the Silver Capital.

THE DISTRESS IS GREAT

Cobalt, July 8.—The Nipissing Mining Company were not long in taking advantage of the opportunity afforded them by the fire clearing over forty acres of their property, and have a force of fifty men now employed trenching and stripping where this time last week stood Cobalt's busiest business section. The ground is being torn up and trenches from one to ten feet deep are running in all directions. As this ground has never been prospected,, it is quite likely that several good finds will be made in the clearing. The west side of the track has been trenched the most, but the east side will be ripped up before the end of the week.

The surveyors have finished the work of locating the street and lots through the burned area. The new plan calls for a widening of the street to sixty-six feet, and also three cross-streets. Before the fire, for a distance of half a mile, there was only one cross road. Since the fire almost every man who lost a building in the blaze has applied for a new lease. The Nipissing Mining Company, however, will not give any leases until the men get through trenching the burned area, which will probably be the fore part of next week.

The only lease that has been granted is for a new Catholic church and Separate school on the old site. The company will try to make that section of the town one of the best business sections. They will allow nothing but solid brick, cement, or brick veneered buildings to be erected. If this is complied with, there is no doubt that this will be the finest street in the town. At the present time there is only one brick building in the corporation limits.

Almost opposite the site of the Catholic church are seven of the tents which were supplied by the Provincial Government when aid was asked for by the town. Here several families are huddled together in the first five tents, while on a half-burned telegraph pole overlooking the sixth a sign is nailed bearing the words, "Montreal Beer, 5 cents per glass." This is against the resolution passed by all the owners of beer saloons in the town, which was done by a petition yesterday, whereby they all agreed to charge a uniform price for beer, ten cents per glass. And the beer is only two and a half per cent.

The fire underwriters will visit the town this week, and it is the intention of the Council to have everything in the best order for their visit. However, the circumstances have not changed any in regard to the fire apparatus since before the fire of last Friday. At the meeting several thought that the immediate purchase of another large engine, to be stationed on the lake, would be the best thing, while others thought that a competent fire chief should be brought into town from some larger place. Three months ago George Brady of Ottawa was hired, but at the end of two months he left because the town would not grant him anything with which to fight a serious conflagration. In the short time he was in town, however, he gave ideas to other firemen which were worked with great advantage at this last fire. This week a number of the prominent merchants have received notices that their insurance has been cancelled.

The Relief Committee are still hard at work supplying food to the sufferers, although the number has fallen considerably, only an average of three hundred being fed at each meal.

The number of tents pitched in the athletic grounds has grown to 39, while the shacks in the north end of the town, close to where the fire was checked, are terribly congested, the occupants refusing to move into the tents that have been supplied by the Government. The weather has turned decidedly warm again, and the people who are sleeping in the tents which dot the hills all about the town are probably resting more comfortably than those who are forced to sleep indoors.

A SECOND LIFE

"If I only had another chance!"

How often are these despairing words uttered when a man feels his strength ebbing, his vital forces depressed, his health undermined—often as the result of his own errors or follies—and he realizes the infinite possibilities which might lie in his grasp, could he indeed receive in Shakespeare's phrase, "a second life."

Happily for the world, this other chance, this "second life" is to b had for the asking by means of that which has been aply described by a famous physician as "the last word science has spoken" on the subject of such remedial agents, and to which by virtue of its health-giving properties, the name of Vitol—meaning life "health-producer"—has been given.

So potent is its force that it will not only restore the health and vigour which have been lost, but, if persevered in, will in addition impart the highest measure of nervous and physical vigour of which the individual is capable; for there is a maximum capacity of health for everyone, though he may not hitherto have had the fact impressed upon him. Doctors endorse this and daily prescribe Vitol in increasing quantities. The constituents which give this power are known to every physician, and one has testified to the supreme merits of Vitol as

after wasting illness and as a restorer of health, not only in nervous diseases (with their innumerable symptoms of discomfort and distress, including loss of memory, insomnia, irresolution, weakness of the will, &c.), but also in anæmia, digestive disturbances and consumption.

You Can Defy The SPRING FATIQUE

And nervous exhaustion, if you will make the blood rich and red by using DR. CHASE'S NERVE FOOD.

Fatigue and weakness tell of weak, watery and impure blood.

Are you going to go through the usual suffering and discomfort of spring this year or take a hand in the matter of your health and build up the system?

It is for you to decide, for you know that Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, by forming new, rich blod, overcomes the fatigue, the weakness, the feelings of depression, and discouragement which come with spring.

The nervous system is almost always exhausted in the spring. Your appetite fails because the nerves which control the appetite are exhausted, and so it is with digestion and the working of the other bodily organs.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is the greatest spring medicine because it is the greatest of nerve restoratives. It forms the new, rich, red blood from which vigor, energy and nerve force are created.

If you would restore the healthful glow to the complexion, sharpen the appetite, improve digestion, strengthen the action of the heart, revitalise the wasted brain and nerve cells and round out the wasted form you must use Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. No imitation is just as good. There is no substitute but will disappoint.

Mrs. John P. Shannon, Whiteside, N. S., writes: "I used four boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and found it an excellent medicine. It has proved to be a splendid treatment for headache and a run-down system."

Beautiful Decoration Day Ceremony Of The I.O.O.F. Held At The Little Lake Cemetery

The Graves of Departed Brethren Decorated Commemorating the Ties of Fraternity and Love That Existed Before Death—Addresses by Clergymen Who Were Present—Impressive Rites.

THREE ADDED DURING YEAR

Come unto Me all ye that labour and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest.—Mat 11:28.

The above passage from the Scriptures is carved on the base of the monument that marks the last resting place of the body of a member of the Independent Order of Oddfellows in the Little Lake Cemetery. The significance of the thought was impressively emphasized yesterday at the Decoration Day ceremonies of the Peterboro and Otonabee Lodges of the I. O. O. F. On another tombstone the following inscription might have been noticed "Then shall the dust return to the earth as it was; and the spirit shall return unto God who gave it." As the afternoon spent itself and the service was gradually unfolded it was manifest to the large concourse that the underlying thoughts in these passages were recalled to the members of the order as they once more paid a quiet tribute to the memory of their deceased brethren. The feeling that the departed were resting after enduring burdens of this life, that they were enjoying the promised happiness was simultaneously experienced with the suggestion that in a few brief years the grave, awful and inevitable, would claim the individual members of to-day.

The Decoration Day ceremonies of the I.O.O.F., the expression of fraternity and love for those brothers who had joined the great majority are always a reminder to those outside the order that they have friends in the lonely City of the Dead. And thus there were few graves yesterday that did not bear a bouquet or wreath of flowers a tender offering to a love that death could not destroy. The cemetery was beautiful in its wealth of verdure, its opulence of flowers, its hedges and ornate plots. Innumerable urns cought the eye and the effective care of Superintendent Wise was appreciated by everyone of the crowd that passed through the gates.

Introductory Service

Over eighty of the members of Peterborough and Otonabee lodges assembled at Central Park and towards three o'clock marched to the cemetery with the 57th Regimental Band preceding. The cemetery was thronged when the Odd Fellows arrived and in front of the chapel a short introductory service was held. "Nearer My God to Thee" was sung with fine accompaniment on the part of Mr. Gliddon's musicians. Prayer was offered up by Rev. H. J. Keith after which the Odd Fellows were told off in four groups by Lt.-Col. J. W. Miller. The sections were in charge of the following brethren.

Section No. 1—Bro. F. Wise, P.G.

Section No. 2—Bro. Wm. Hill, P. D.G.M.

Section No. 3—Bro. Wm. Freeburn, P.G.

Section No. 4—Bro. Harry Campbell.

Bro. J. W. Miller, P.D.D.G.M. ably fulfilled the duties of Marshall and Master of Ceremonies.

Each section was allotted a certain number of graves to visit and decorate. The short ritual at each grassy mould has been frequently published and does not require further reference.

The following are the departed members of the order:

Bro. W. Wrighton, No. 13.
Bro. John A. MacDonald, No. 13.
Bro. Fred Logan, No. 13.
Bro. Chas. Beauclere, No. 13.

To this list three names must be added. They are Bro. Alex. Rutherford and Bro. Walter J. Roberts, of Otonabee Lodge No. 13 and Bro. John Francis, of Hastings, who died during the past year and were buried in the Little Lake cemetery. The triple links are invulnerable even to Death's keen scythe and as each year rolls by the simple Decoration Day service will keep glowing the lamp of love for the departed.

Concluding Addresses

The service was concluded on the natural amphitheatre on the eastern slope of the cemetery. The band played several appropriate numbers and the Orpheus quartette contributed several hymnal selections.

Bro. A. A. Fowler, D.D.G.M. was shairman and after briefly explaining the significance of the ceremony which had been performed called upon the clergymen who were present to address a few words. Rev. H. J. Keith referred to the message which the offered flowers carried. Self sacrifice, benevolence and immortality were the suggested thoughts. He spoke of the fragrance of the flowers and pointed out the splendid effect which a life of righteousness would have on those who come in contact with it.

Rev. H. R. Trumpour spoke of the inspiration which the lives of those who have gone before us have on our own. The tomb whispered back that character was the all in all when we are called from this life. A character developed in Christ was the sole asset which we could take with us into eternity. Rev. J. R. Webb stated that the question presented itself, as the Decoration ceremony was unfolded. "How should we deport ourselves?" We are here but a little while and should prepare ourselves for the great final test. "You will be there where they are. We are a mere fragment of those who have inhabited the earth." Rev. C. H. Coon, speaking along lines of a somewhat similar nature was the last speaker after which Rev. J. G. Potter pronounced benediction.

During the evening many of those unable to be present during the day visited the cemetery in remembrance of their friends.

The Decoration Day ceremonies for 1909 are considered probably the most successful of any that have ever been held and apart from the intentions of the I.O.O.F. it is looked upon as an inspiration to all those who have friends among the departed.

FEARED PARALYSIS

Mr. F. A. Kruta, Schwartz, Que., writes, "For one year I was a complete nervous wreck, could not rest or sleep, had indigestion and terrible headaches and constantly feared paralysis. Six boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food made me well and strong. There is no treatment in the world so good as this for building up the nervous system."

Rush Of Visitors To Stony Lake Is Now Beginning In Earnest

Resorts are Filling Up and Practically all the Cottages are Occupied—Some of the Visitors and Where They are Summering.

PROSPECTS ARE BRIGHT

Examiner Special.

Stony Lake, July 9.—The number of arrivals during the past three days has been very large. The weather has been favourable and all that could be desired to make the "flitting" a day of pleasure rather than a dreaded mix-up. There are few cottages left that do not contain at least a couple of forerunners and some of them have already been subject to the responsibilities of sheltering gatherings of large proportions.

Among the cottages opened this week for the season are Mr. Sheriff Hall's "Menovah," Dr. Barnes "Buckeye," Mr. H. C. Loomis' "The Rafters," Mr. O. A. McCarthy's "Emerald Isle," and Mr. R. B. Rogers' "Chicopee."

A party of five Torontonians at "Beverley" are having a good time. They are Miss Mayne Lewis, Worthy Sharpe, E. Roberts, A. Lewis and W. Lewis.

Miss Laura Gouinlock, Toronto, is a guest of Miss Gouinlock at Edithena. Mr. and Mrs. Walter Gouinlock and Mr. John Gouinlock are also at the cottage.

Among the recent arrivals at Viamede are: Charles C. Dilley, Mr. and Mrs. C. K. Fox, Miss Edith Fox, Cincinnati, O.; Miss Charlotte Marston, Danvers, Mass.

Mr. W. Graham, Lakefield, came up on Wednesday.

Mr. A. Lisle Reed, of Barbados, B. W. I. is a guest at Kimo I.

Mr. Chas. Rihor, Peterborough, was among those who came up on Wednesday morning.

Among the party of Torontonians at Grassy Isle are: Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Rice, R. H. Rice, Mrs. O. F. Rice, Morley B. Rice, R. E. Rice, Stafford G. Rice, Herbert F. Rice, Miss Agnes Jones, Miss Ruth Van Zandt, Miss M. F. Savage, Mrs. A. J. Savage.

Mr. S. Hall, Peterborough, came up on Wednesday and opened "Menovah" for the season.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Sutherland and Mr. Harry Sutherland, Toronto, are at "Inglestane" for the season.

Mr. H. LeBrun, Peterborough, came up to "Belle Chasse" on Wednesday.

The "big house" on Eagle Mt. has sheltered many a jolly bunch in its day, but it is doubtful if a happier party than the following now in residence ever sojourned there: Mrs. A. Chalmers, Misses Edith Chalmers, Flora MacDonald, Pearl MacDonald, Margaret Kyle, Bessie McMillan, Maud Delaboye, Effie Bartlett, Lillian Downard, Mary Jones and Mr. A. E Humphrey, all of Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. H. M. East, Miss East, and Dr. Harold East, Toronto, are at "Indian Isle."

Mr. Millard Maguire, Toronto, who has been spending a week at "Dunlogue" returned home on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Hunter, Toronto, and Miss Hunter, Millbrook, came up last week and are at "Pepacton."

Mr. and Mrs. Adam Hall, Peterborough, are at Boschink.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. McCabe, Mr. Edgar McCabe and Mr. J. Anderson of Pittsburg, Pa., arrived in a touring car from that place on Sunday, and will spend a few weeks at Victoria House.

Mr. Wm. Lockhart came up on Tuesday and is meeting old acquaintances at the Juniper Island store.

EPIDEMIC OF COLDS IS EXPERIENCED

Something of the Summer Variety Reported by Many.

There seems to be an epidemic of mer colds judging by the number of people who are sneezing and complaining of blocked air passages in their heads. "I've got a peach," said a merchant this morning. "It has got anything beat a mile in the cold line. I can sneeze sometimes as if I would never stop. I've had it a week now and it does not seem to be getting any better, in fact I think it is worse. I could not tell you where I got it but I expect it was in some draught." These colds are all in the head. There is no cough, but experience is almost as bad as if it were in the throat.

FIRE INSURANCE

The following legend taken from an enterprising Seedsman's Catalogue is not without a bearing on Fire Insurance:—

"Two years ago an Ontario Market Gardener saved four cents an ounce on the cost of half a pound of Cabbage Seed. In the fall he admitted that he was over $100 to the bad on the crop because the bargain seed had lacked vitality. Thirty-two cents saved—one hundred dollars lost. WAS IT WORTH WHILE?

Old Resident Of This City Passes Away In Buffalo, N.Y.

Mr. Frank Lefave has returned from Buffalo where he was attending the funeral of his brother-in-law, Mr. Napoleon Preneveau, who passed away last week after a short illness. The late Mr. Preneveau was well known in Peterborough, where he resided for a number of years. Coming here from Three Rivers, P.Q., he was first engaged in the lumbering business, after which he purchased a hotel and for some time conducted a hostelry opposite the Old Midland station. Afterwards he was the proprietor of an hotel on George street, just north of where the Grand Hotel now stands. Mr. Preneveau then removed to Hastings where he was in business for some time. He then went to Buffalo, N. Y., where he purchased a hotel which he conducted until his death. Old residents of Peterborough will remember Mr. Preneveau and will regret to learn of his death. He is survived by three sons and three daughters. Physically Mr. Preneveau was one of the biggest men in Buffalo. He was small in stature but weighed three hundred and sixty pounds. One of his daughters, who is but eighteen years of age, weighs two hundred and sixty pounds.

Cressman's Staff Enjoyed Second Annual Outing Down The Otonabee

The second annual outing of Cressman's staff was held yesterday afternoon to Highland Park, where a most enjoyable time was spent on the occasion of the first Thursday.

Last summer Mr. A. W. Cressman gave his employees a picnic and the affair was so successful that it was decided to make it an annual event. About sixty members of the staff boarded the steamer Monarch about two o'clock and sailed to Highland Park between the bridges. The afternoon was spent in games and races after which tea was partaken under the pines at Highland. The weather was delightful, and after enjoying themselves to the full, the picnickers began the return journey about eight o'clock arriving in the city at 10, after an outing that from every standpoint surpassed the initial outing last year. Mr. and Mrs. Cressman were among those on board and in many ways they made the outing the more pleasant. The staff are a unit in voicing their appreciation of the kindness and thoughtfulness of their employer and for the personal interest he has shown in making the outing a most gratifying success. It is practically assured that the Cressman picnic will be an annual affair.

THE VALUE OF TURPENTINE

When all else fails the physician recommends his wealthy patient to take a trip to the turpentine groves as a cure for throat and lung troubles. The turpentine of commerce cannot very well be used but by adding linseed Dr. Chase succeeded in getting up the most effective treatment for throat and lung troubles that was ever discovered. It is known as Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine.

THE BAND DIVIDE FOR "THE TWELFTH"

The 57th Band is in such demand for July 13th that to satisfy the situation it has to submit to a modified form of the judgment of Solomon, to be divided into three sections, each of which will head a different one of three Orange lodges on the occasion of the big Orange rally at Port Hope—Peterborough, Nassau and Emily lodges. It is hoped that there will be a full attendance of the members at the park concert to-night, at which the composition of the three bands will be decided.

Suffragettes at New York.

New York, July 9.—A hurdy-gurdy and tambourine were used by two militant suffragettes yesterday, whose English tactics, adopted for the first time in New York, met with such a boisterous reception in City Hall Park, on the edge of the financial district, that a riot nearly resulted. A meek-looking man pulled the hurdy-gurdy while Mrs. Sophia Loebinger and Miss Helen Murphy, the suffragettes, wore badges and streamers lettered "Votes for Woman" and carried copies of The Suffragettes, as they jangled their tambourines.

Within five minutes they were the centre of such a crush that they had to shriek for the police. Not a copy of the official publication was sold and there were no speeches. A squad of police made a lane for the two women to the nearest subway station, and home they hurried gratefully.

The same two made their appearance in Wall street on Wednesday.

Hudson Bay Co. Wins.

London, July 9.—In the Court of Appeals yesterday, in the case of Stevens v. Hudson Bay Co., the court allowed the company's appeal from the decision of Mr. Justice Channel. The case raised the question of the liability of the company to bring into account for purposes of assessment for income tax the sum of £177,867 realized on the sale of land during the last of the three years which were taken to obtain an average of the profits to be assessed. Their lordships hold that the sum in question is not to be regarded as profits or gains denied by the company, and further, that Judge Channel was wrong in holding that the company carried on the business of dealing in and selling land.

Challenge to Duel.

Rome, July 9.—The Minister of Posts and Telegraphs yesterday sent a challenge to a Republican deputy as a result of the debate in the Chamber of Deputies Wednesday night on the proposal to give the Italian Lloyd Steamship Co. a twenty-five year subvention for the transportation of mail.

Signor Calliani, the deputy in question, yesterday explained that he did not allude to the personal honesty of the Minister, but to his political honesty, but this explanation did not satisfy Signor Schanzer. The bearers of his challenge were Admiral Mirabello, the Minister of Marine, and Gen. Spingardi, the Minister of War.

Cobalt Looter Sent to Jail.

Cobalt, July 9.—John Shepherd, colored, was given three months in the district jail with hard labor for looting during the fire. He was arrested at Haileybury with three trunks full of merchandize. He sold two pairs of shoes at North Cobalt, and his defence is that he did it to get money to advertise the goods as found.

About 300 homeless are still being fed by the town.

The Nipissing Mining Co. have granted only one lease, to the Catholic Church and school. The company intend to allow only solid brick, cement or brick veneer buildings.

Boy Drowns While Bathing.

Brantford, July 9.—Herbert Miller, 12-year-old son of Jacob Miller, farmer, residing near Dundas, who was visiting here, was drowned in the Grand River yesterday morning. Miller, who could not swim, went in to bathe and was carried by the rapids into a deep hole.

At Oakland village on Wednesday night, Mrs. Edward Malcolm, a farmer's wife, took a dose of Paris green and is dead.

Fred Fisher, son of Ald. Fisher, and former head agent of the Cockshutt Plow Co. of Ottawa, died yesterday, aged 26.

Cleveland Mayor's Salary.

Cleveland, July 9.—Mayor Johnson's salary will be raised to $10,000 a year if an ordinance soon to be introduced by Councilman Flower is passed by the City Council. The mayor is now receiving a salary of $6,000 a year.

Chatham Gas Co. Fined.

Chatham, July 9.—On information laid by Inspector A. F. Nash, the Chatham Gas Co. were yesterday morning brought before Wm. Potter, J.P., and fined $20 and costs, $35.05 in all, for selling natural gas found to contain sulphretted hydrogen. The fine goes to the Inland Revenue Department.

TROUBLE FOR PUCCINI.

Composer's Wife Imprisoned for Causing a Girl's Suicide.

New York, July 9.—The American prints the following cable from Lucca, Italy:

The curtain fell yesterday on a real life tragedy in the career of Giacomo Puccini, the opera-composer, that was quite as pathetic as the stage story of Cho-Cho San, the little Japanese heroine of Puccini's masterpiece, "Madame Butterfly." It was a story, too, that was not greatly dissimilar to Cho-Cho San's.

The climax came when Signora Elvira Donturi Puccini, the composer's wife, was sentenced in court yesterday to serve five months in prison for having caused the suicide of Doria Manfredi, a beautiful little serving maid in her villa, whom Puccini befriended after her father's death.

She accused Doria of being Puccini's mistress. The girl, a peasant and scarcely more than a child, crept out of the villa and swallowed poison.

Puccini, when he heard of the girl's death, had a bitter quarrel with his wife, and separated from her at once. When the authorities inquired into the suicide, he told them what he knew. Signor Puccini will also have to pay to the surviving relatives of Doria Manfredi a sum of money, the exact amount to be determined later by the court.

King Helps Suffragettes.

London, July 9.—Following a direct appeal to the King by Mrs. Despard, and a deputation of suffragettes, the Home Secretary, Right Hon. H. J. Gladstone, accorded a courteous audience last evening to eight of the women. Mrs. Despard was leader of the deputation.

After reading their petitions, the Home Secretary made a sympathetic speech, expressing regret at the present involved situation and the belief that the matter would finally be settled and in a way satisfactory to women.

Mr. Gladstone explained that he could do nothing to commit the Government. He admitted that the petition was an argument for an audience, and promised to forward it to the King.

The suffragettes had appealed directly to the King, who informed them that the Home Secretary was the constitutional channel of communication, and His Majesty apparently followed this up with a hint that Mr. Gladstone would be advised to receive the women's deputation.

Motor Bus Line.

St. Catharines, July 9.—The motor bus idea is taking hold here and this week a regular service will be inaugurated between this city and Queenston and Niagara-on-the-Lake.

Isaac Normandy, automobile builder, is the father of the idea, and has constructed a number of busses to carry 18 passengers. Heretofore the only communication between St. Catharines and Niagara-on-the-Lake has been by stage, making one trip each way every day. There have been many proposals for an electric car line, but none of these have taken definite shape and now Mr. Normandy will fill the want. It is 12 miles to Niagara and eight miles to Queenston. The busses will make the loop of the three towns.

Arsenic In Drugs.

Ottawa, July 9.—The examination by the Inland Revenue Department of a number of drugs, as found on the Canadian market, for the purpose of ascertaining whether any of these contained distinct traces of arsenic, shows that while most samples were practically free from the poison, arsenic was found to be distinctly present in certain sulphates and particularly in phosphate of soda.

The amounts were not so large as to be alarming, but were sufficient to make is impossible to regard these drugs as meeting proper requirements; 448 samples of sulphate of magnesia, sulphate of soda and phosphate of soda examined showed 336 containing no arsenic, while 86 did.

It Is Not True.

Niagara Falls, Ont., July 9.—There is no foundation for the statement that members of the American Whist League, now in session at the Clifton Hotel were offended at Manager Major for his alleged action in reference to having the orchestra cease playing the "Star Spangled Banner," and it is not true that the "Maple Leaf" was substituted for the American air.

The American paper which first published the statement was asked by members of the league to deny the report, and that paper issued a partial denial last night.

Kingston May Lose Car Service.

Kingston, July 9.—Mayor Cooper has received a letter from the Street Railway Co.'s solicitor in which it is stated that if no readjustment of the present situation is made, the car service will be discontinued. The city declined the company's proposal that the price at which the city could furnish power without loss to the city be ascertained by three experts. The company say they will not accept a bonus, or power at less than the cost of production.

Coal Strike In England.

Hanley, Eng., July 9.—Serious rioting occurred yesterday throughout the North Staffordshire coal fields. A dispute regarding the time allowed for meals under the new eight-hour act led thousands of the pit lads to cease work. They marched from colliery to colliery bringing out the adult miners. Much colliery property was destroyed, and there were many conflicts with the police.

A Plucky Woman.

London, Ont., July 9.—Rare presence of mind and magnificent pluck was all that prevented Mrs. Oscar Wanless and her two-year-old baby from being ground to death beneath the wheels of the merry-go-round at Springbank Park.

Mrs. Wanless was standing on the platform holding the baby on a horse when a section of the merry-go-round gave way and she and the baby were thrown between the wheels. She managed to grab the flooring with one hand and held on to the child with the other and was dragged around twice before the machine was stopped.

Contrary to Rules.

London, July 9.—By a vote of 224 to 24 the church council, which was attended by the leading Bishops, clergy and laymen of the Church of England, yesterday declared that marriage to a deceased wife's sister, recently legalized in this country, was contrary to the moral rules of the church and to the principles of the Scriptures.

Furthermore, the use of the prayer book in the service solemnizing such marriages was reprobated in the strongest terms.

Woman Shot by Burglar.

New York, July 9.—Mrs. Sophie Staber, wife of George Staber, an importer on Euane street, this city, was shot and instantly killed in her home in Flatbush, Long Island, while aiding her son in a struggle with a burglar early yesterday. Two suspects are under arrest.

Dies Under Ether.

London, July 9.—Prof. Lawrence Marshall Myers of Dubuque, Iowa, died in a nursing home in London while under ether. He was suffering from an ulcerated tooth.

Tobacco Tax Removed.

Washington, July 9.—The Senate yesterday accepted Senator Bradley's amendment permitting tobacco growers to sell their products without the payment of a tax.

TO-MORROW'S LEAGUE GAMES TO BE PLAYED AT THE OVAL

To-morrow's games in the senior City Baseball League will be played on Nicholls Oval.

This was decided last night at a meeting of the four teams when it was unanimously resolved to finish out the schedule on the Oval. The terms upon which the League has been paying for the use of Riverside Park has been too severe upon the clubs in view of the attendance, and the managers feel that they cannot afford to play any more games in the park across the river upon the existing conditions. The owners of the grounds have taken fifty per cent. of the gate receipts as well as insisting that each player should pay an admission fee and as a result all that each team secured from the gate last Saturday was 90 cents.

In going to the Oval the teams will have to depend upon the generosity of the fans. No admission fee can be charged but a collection will be taken up, and it is hoped that the followers of the game present will respond liberally. The teams have had a bad year financially, but have been putting up fine ball and are deserving of far more support than they have been getting. There should be a big crowd on hand for the games to-morrow. The Oval is an ideal place for baseball, the only drawback being that there is no grandstand. Lovers of baseball should turn out in large numbers at the Oval and help to encourage the teams, who are putting up the fastest kind of ball, Wednesday's game against Barrie being an indication of that fact.

The two games scheduled for to-morrow are the T. A. S. vs. Strathconas, in the 2 o'clock fixture, and the West Ends vs. the Park St. A. C. in the second game. Both should be hard fought as much depends upon the result. The teams will have their strongest lineups on the field. The games will commence sharp on time.

WHY ALFIE SHRUBB HAS BECOME UNPOPULAR WITH TORONTO PEOPLE

"Why is it that the Toronto public treats Alf. Shrubb with such rabidness?" enquired an Englishman today, says the Star. "They hurl vile names at him, and even went so far in his race with Longboat as to spit upon him and poke him as he passed. That is surely atrocious sportsmanship, and contrary to what I was led to expect here—in fact, to what I have seen in other games and contests here Is it that Toronto people despise Englishmen? They called Shrubb 'sparrow' and 'cockney,' Why is it that he is so badly abused? The Canadian Olympic team came back from England singing the praises of Englishmen as sportsmen. Yet to-day in Toronto an Englishman cannot get fair treatment."

The statement that Englishmen cannot get fair treatment in Toronto is much overdrawn.

Ask Alfred Sellers, the West End Y.M.C.A. runner. He has always received fair treatment from Canadians.

Ask Percy Sellen, the ex-I.C.A.C. runner—a little sparrow with an accent he could not conceal if he talked on his fingers. Sellen is one of the most popular little runners in Toronto.

Harry Lawson, another Englishman, has nothing but the highest praise for his treatment in Canada. And Jimmie Fitzgerald, the diminutive little Englishman, who is now at Edmonton, says, "Canada for mine."

Hans Holmer of Halifax, is an Englishman, an so is Fred Meadows. Have they any kicks about treatment here?

The secret of the dislike in some quarters from Alfred Shrubb is no secret to those on the inside. The Toronto public is sore on Alf. Shrubb because he came here in 1907 and attacked Tom Longboat, the idol of the Canadian sport-loving public. He hurled mud at Longboat, tried hard to force him into professional ranks to meet him—and there you have the source of all the rabidness evinced against Alf. Shrubb. Shrubb talks a lot, and that helps to keep the pot a-boiling, too; but a man who can make good can be forgiven for tooting his own horn a little. It is necessary in Shrubb's business.

Shrubb is a fine little fellow, a good honest sportsman, and a marvelous runner, but he is "in wrong" with a portion of the Toronto public. Now he has taken up his residence in the East end and it will be in order for the City Council to change Riverdale to Shrubbdale and make Parkdale—Longboat-town.

Heugh!

Price Of Eggs Will Likely Be Higher Than In Former Years

There will be no cheap eggs in Canada this year. The present prices in the country are the highest on record. The prices are two cents higher than the prices at this time last year. The production is not enough to supply the home demand, notwithstanding that nearly every farmer is keeping more chickens than he did then. The demand from the western markets this year will surpass all records, and we have already sent several million eggs there. Prices may come down a very little in the summer, but there will be no cheap eggs at all. Canada is now the consumer of all the eggs produced in this country, and in consequence is more independent in establishing the prices.

Gypsies Fled Before Gang Of Armed Men At Daisyworth

Daisyworth is a little hamlet in the Eastern Riding recntly visited by the gypsies, who were received with any thing but open arms. The following report from the settlement best explains what occurred:

A very exciting incident occurred here last Friday evening, when part of the noted band of gypsies, who have been raising so much disturbance around Bobcaygeon and Peterborough made their appearance in Daisyworth, and as they were overtaken by darkness, decided to spend the night on Daisyworth corner. They had only been there a short while, however, and made a few calls at nearby houses and also at the cheese factory, when a number of men, armed with guns, dogs, and closed fists, made their appearance and ordered them to decamp, which they did in short order. After following the fleeing caravans for some distance the men returned home with an easy mind that the gypsies had left Daisyworth.

Chief Howard Gives Lecture To Men On Modern Fire Fighting

Chief Howard gave a lecture to the firemen yesterday afternoon, it being one of a regular course that has been running for some time and is given at particular intervals. "How a Fireman May Protect His Life" was one topic in which the Chief gave examples, and showed how a fireman in dangerous positions may protect his life by the knowledge of certain facts with which every fire fighter should be acquainted. Another subject was "The Economical Use of Water." This is, in fact, instructions to the men not to use the water except where the fire is actually raging. A house may be filled with smoke, but the fire may be in one room and much damage can be done by the firemen turning the water on without definitely locating the blaze. These are two of the topics that the Chief dwelt with and the others were of a similar practical nature. The subject was "Modern Methods of Fire Fighting." Others will be held from time to time. The men assemble in the main hall up stairs and take a great interest in the lectures.

PRAISED THE TENNIS COURT

Mr. Boyes, of Barrie, Says That Courts of Bowling Club are Splendid.

Mr. Boyes, who was one of the Barrie excursionists here on Wednesday, and who took part in the bowling match between Barrie and Peterborough, is an old Ontario tennis champion, and while here took advantage of the opportunity to play a game on the new courts of the Bowling Club, situated just west of the green. He was delighted with the courts and some of the members of the club afterwards stated that they were among the best that he had ever played on.

Baseball

There is quite a controversy over the recent game between Markham and Stouffville, as to the respective merits of Pitchers Dickie Gray and Fred Hickey. Hickey pitched for Markham and Gray for Stouffville, and in the seventh innings the score was 2 to 2. Hickey claimed to have hurt his arm sliding to a base and could not go on and the game went to Stouffville by default. Lindsay fans claim that Gray out-pitched Hickey. The Lindsay twirler must have improved a whole lot and Hickey forgotten all he knew before the two would be in any where near the same class.

THE BOY WHO DIDN'T PASS

(Youth's Companion.)

A sad-faced little fellow site alone in deep disgrace,
There's a lump arising in his throat,
tears streaming down his face;
He wandered from his playmates for he doesn't want to hear
Their shouts of merry laughter since the world has lost its cheer;
He has sipped the cup of sorrow, he has drained the bitter glass,
And his heart is fairly breaking; he's
the boy who didn't pass.

In the apple tree the robin sings a cheery little song,
Bue he doesn't want to hear it, showing plainly something's wrong;
Comes his faithful little spaniel for a romp and bit of play,
But the troubled little fellow sternly
bids him go away.
All alone he sits in sorrow, with his hair a tangled mass,
And his eyes are red with weeping;
he's the boy who didn't pass.

How he hates himself for failing; he can hear his playmates cheer,
For they've left him with the dullards—gone ahead a half a year;
And he tried so hard to conquer, oh,
he tried to do his best,
But now he knows he's weaker, yes,
and duller than the rest.
He's ashamed to tell his mother, for he thinks she'll hate him too—
The little boy who didn't pass, who failed of getting through.

Oh, you boast a laughting son, and speak of him as bright,
And you who love a little girl who comes to you at night
With smiling eyes and dancing feet,
with honours from her school,
Turn to that little lonely boy who thinks he is a fool,
And take him kindly by the hand,
the dullest in his class.
He is the one who most needs love,
the boy who didn't pass.

MEDICAL ASSOCIATION URGES CONSTRUCTION OF AN ISOLATION HOSPITAL

An enthusiastic gathering of the members of the Central Ontario Medical Society was held in the Bank of Montreal Chambers last night. There was a large turnout of members, and the City Council came in for a share of just criticism. It was in the year 1903 that the medical society recommended the Council to build an isolation hospital for infectious diseases.

At the meeting the chief topic of discussion was the presence of scarlet fever and the demands for an isolation hospital. There is a lot of scarlet fever in this city and there have been more or less patients suffering from contagious diseases in the city for several years. One of the safest and suret ways of stamping out these troubles is by isolation. Here such action is impossible a there is no place to put a patient. The city needs an isolation hospital and the sooner it gets here the better.

In this connection the society passed the following resolution:

"That in the opinion of this society there is an urgent demand for the immediate establishment of an isolation hospital for the city of Peterborough, the infectious diseases being constantly in our midst for several years, and as rigid isolation stamp out cases of this kind and suitable means and equipment should be provided to further this end.

The Society also decided that it was in the public interest that the medical health officer should see every quarantined case before the quarantine is raised.

The doctors also discussed that dread disease tuberculosis. There hould be a hospital or two provided for the special treatment of tuberculosis, but as the counicl has no money this year the matter was allowed to stand over. A hospital and pathological labaratory should be provided.

Officers Elected.

Officers were elected for the ensuing year as follows:

President—J. M. McCullough.
1st Vice.—G. S. Cameron.
2nd Vice—E. V. Frederick.
Secretary—C. H. Amys.
Treasurer—W. D. Scott.
Executive Committee—W. Caldwell, A. Hammond, A. W. MacPherson.
Auditors—Doctors Amys, Caldwell, McCullough and Comeron.

Looking For A Jewel Thief

Detectives Were on Hand to Inspect the Passengers of the Mauretania on Her Arrival This Morning.

NO ARRESTS WERE MADE

Special to The Examiner (2.45 p.m.)

New York, July 9.—When the passengers on the Steamship Mauretania left their cabins to-day, they were subjected to a piercing scrutiny by detectives from New York police headquarters, who are searching for a coterie of crooks, said to have recently victimized a Londoner out of pearls, rubies, sapphires, and cats-eyes, of the value of $500,000. The perpetrators are supposed to have fled to America and to have taken passage on the Mauretania. When the passengers left the ship it could not be learned whether the men wanted or those suspected had been discovered.

DR. PELLETIER HELD UP AND ROBBED

Belleville, Ont., July 8.—Dr. Pelletier is in the hospital under treatment for a serious wound, which he claims he recived near Havelock, where he was attacked and robbed by unknown persons while driving to see a patient. He says that $600 was taken from him.

Dr. Pelletier, who has an office here on Queen street, left here yesterday noon for Havelock.

Pugilist's Discarded White Wife.

Detroit, July 9.—A beautiful white woman, arrested in a negro resort here yesterday, told a pituful story. She declares she is Jack Johnson's discarded wife, and the police bear out her allegation.

Collector's Books Show Shortage.

Ottaaw, July 9.—William Anstess, collector and city traveler for J. G. White & Sons, wholesale stationers, has disappeared. His books show a shortage of $800.

A Daily Glance at the home paper is a mighty pleasant interlude when you get away from Peterborough on your holiday trip. Arrange for the Evening Examiner to follow to your outing address, which you may change as often as you like. The cost is no more than you pay at home, 10 cents a week.

WEDDING BELLS

KING—ROGERS

The wedding took place at St. George's Church, Grafton, yesterday afternoon, when Nora Beatrice, youngest daughter of Lieut.-Col. R. Z. Rogers, was married to Captain W. B. M. King, of Cobalt, son of Col. F. King, M.D., of St. Catharines. The bride wore white duchess satin trimmed with Duchess lace, and a pearl necklace and pendant, the gift of the groom. She was attended by her niece, Miss Evelyn Smith, of Owen Sound, as bridesmaid, and Miss Emily Morrit and Miss Mary Rowe. Following the ceremony the guests were driven to Woodside, where a reception was held, after which Mr. and Mrs. King left for a honeymoon trip to the Eastern provinces.—Toronto News.

PERDUE—HALL

A pretty wedding was celebrated at 10 o'clock, June 30th, at St. Patrick's Cathedral, Rochester, N. Y., when Miss Ida Hall, of Rochester became the bride of Mr. Fergus Perdue, formerly of King's Wharf, Ont. The bride was attended by Miss Katie Ann Perdue, sister of the groom, and the best man was Dr. Joseph Hurley, of Buffalo, N. Y. The bride was given away by her uncle, Mr. F. L. Wiedrick and looked charming in Princess gown of white silk. After the ceremony, breakfast was served at the home of the bride's uncle, after which they left for their new home, 93 Bloss St., where a reception was held during the afternoon and evening, music being furnished by Master Gerald and Adrian Drumm. Among the out-of-town guests were Mr. John Perdue, of King's Wharf; Mrs. P. Fitzpatrick, of Douro, Ont., and Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Mawson, of Scottsville, N. Y. Presents were numerous and costly.

Local Firm Not Given Contract For the New School

Williams Bros., the local contractors, were awarded the contract for the new wing and other improvements to be made to the Boys' Separate school.

The award was made last evening at a meeting of the board held in the school.

Tenders were reeived from Contractor McGeough and Contractor Bogue, of Peterborough. Williams Bros.' tender being the lowest, they were awarded the contract and will commence at once.

The work should have been commenced on June 1, but the board had to ask for tenders a second time before a reasonable price could be obtained.—Lindsay Warder.

New Pastor Of St. James Church Was Welcomed

A very successful meeting was held on Tuesday evening in St. James' Methodist Church to welcome the new pastor, Rev. Mr. Brown. There was an interesting programme, Mr. Petley taking the chair. It consisted of gramophone selections, choruses by the choir and a duet by Mrs. Rehill and Mr. Pollard. Mr. Creasman welcomed the new pastor, on behalf of the trustees; Mr. Prest, on behalf of the Sunday School, and Mrs. Robinson, on behalf of the Ladies' Aid Society. Rev. Mr. Soper and Rev. Mr. Brown addressed the meeting and Mr. Kitney offered the opening prayer. A very profitable and enjoyable evening was spent. Light refreshments, consisting of ice cream and cake were served in the basement and a very pleasant evening was brought to a close with the singing of the Doxology.

Victim Of The Haliburton Drowning Was Brother Of Peterborough Lady

The following from the last issue of the Minden Echo, refers to a young man who has relatives in Peterborough:

A sad accident occurred on Kenese lake about fifteen miles north of Haliburton and which has just been learned of.

On Monday, 14th June, Messrs. R. Crookshanks, Ed. Maguire and Archie Bird left their homes in West Guilford to seek for work at high wages in the northern camps, towards Dorset and while on Kenese lake, in canoes, they were tipped out in some way, that will probably never be learned, and were all drowned. On not hearing from them Mr. Harry Sisson with another friend, started out to learn of their whereabouts, and not locating them at the camps they began looking the lakes, where they found the bodies which were then recognisable, floating on the water near an upturned canoe.

The accident is indeed a sad one. Crookshanks and Maguire were married last Christmas to sisters, Misses Henderson, of West Guilford, and Bird was a lively boy of only about 19 years.

Archie Bird leaves a father and mother and four sisters, Mrs. Cooper, Mrs. Alf. Sisson, of Guilford; Mrs. Parish, of Haliburton; Mrs. A. W. Tamblin, of Peterboro; and also three brothers, one in Guilford, and Benj. and James, of Gowanda.

Belgian Visitors Delighted With Grand Scenery Of Kawartha Lakes Chain

The Lindsay Warder says: "The finest chain of lakes in the world," is the opinion of the party of distinguished officials from Belgium who are on a tour of inspection over the Trent Valley Canal. This opinion was expressed to Mr. J. M. McClellan, superintendent of the canal while the party were on board the government steamer, Bessie Butler. The steamer was in town this morning, and a Warder reporter had a short conversation with Mr. McClellan.

"They were simply amazed at our extensive chain of lakes," said Mr. McClellan, "and the magnificent scenery. They have been all over the world and have seen nothing to equal it."

"Not excepting the lokes of Killarney?" suggested the reporter. "No, not even excepting Killarney," affirmed Mr. McClellan. "They've visited those lakes, also, and the prettiest of the lochs in Scotland."

They are touring this country for the purpose of gleaning information concerning the methods used in this country. In Belgium at present two construction and various other improvements are being made in the waterways system. Canals are extremely numerous in Belgium and a great many of them are being enlarged.

Mr. Kraft de la Saule, engineer of Buildings and Secretary of the Belgium Government, was the person who designed and built the first lift lock in the world. It was after his design that the Peterborough and Kirkfield lift locks were built, and he therefore took great interest in the trip and examined everything very closely.

The party left for Orillia after visiting the canal system and they will inspect various other canals in the Dominion before going home. They have been through the United States, but stated that they found methods more advanced in this country in regard to this particular matter.

Did Not Know Where Flask Found Under His Head Came From

William Watt was charged with supplying liquor to a blacklisted man on Tuesday afternoon last, at the police court this morning. He pleaded not guilty and the evidence of several witnesses was not sufficient to make a conviction. His Worship dismissed him but added that if it was ever proven that he was guilty of such an offence, the highest possible fine would be imposed.

Inspector Stewart swore to serving notice of blacklist on the man mentioned in the information on April 15th, 1909.

P. C. Newhall said that he went to the blacklisted man's shop on Tuesday afternoon and found him lying helplessly drunk with a flask beneath his head and another one at his side. Witness has on several occasions seen prisoner in company of several "Indian list" men hang around this shop.

Mr. Carey said that he had seen the prisoner several times going to the blacklisted man's shop, during the past two weeks. On one occasion, a few days ago, he saw the prisoner carrying a pail down the back lane from an hotel. He did not know what was in it.

Mr. Fleetwood knew the prisoner by sight. He saw him at the shop in question on Tuesday and very many times during the past month. Usually when the prisoner goes there, the blinds are pulled down and the shop closed. Witness named several blacklisted men who he said, frequented this shop.

Mr. W. B. Armstrong, clerk in F. R. J. Mitchell's liquor store was called. He said that tobacco was not sold in the shop. On Tuesday last prisoner bought liquor twice from him. He sold him 25 cents worth whiskey each time.

Mr. A. Sawers said that he had seen the prisoner several times. He was at the blacklisted man's shop very frequently. Last Tuesday he saw prisoner go to Mitchell's and then back to the "Indian list" man's place.

The blacklisted man went into the box. He said that he knew the prisoner about six weeks. He hadn't been around his shop very much. Prisoner knew witness was on the blacklist. He was at his place Tuesday last. He admitted that Watt went out and came back twice but neither time did he see a flask.

ROYAL THEATRE

An Unfortunate Husband

This very funny picture tells the story of a poor unfortunate husband who meets with many trials and misfortunes in his attempts to earn a living for a wife who does not always assist him. The many funny situations are very amusing.

DISASTROUS FLIRTATIONS

Another funny picture which is one of the best yet shown for fun, it would make the most sad and sorrowful laugh, they could not help themselves. It shows the happy Dude falling in love with every girl he meets, and then his troubles.

"A Child of the West"

This very interest'g drama shows the love of a mother for her child, and the badness of a bad husband, and how they each get their reward. It is a most beautiful picture of life among the miners, showing the rough life they live and especially how they can ride horses and punish offenders.

Mr. Loftus will sing a new illustrated child's song, entitled "Toodles". Don't miss hearing this song.

Monday will again be Fan Day at the Royal so don't forget to get a Souvenir Fan with a pretty picture head.

CHINESE MERCHANTS IN NEW YORK FACE BUSINESS RUIN AS RESULT OF THE SIGEL MURDER

Jerome's Assistants Are Searching Postal and Western Union Files for Message From the Fugitive Chinaman—Appeal to Minister Wu to Place Them Right With Americans.

TO TRACE COURSE OF FLIGHT

New York, July 8.—In the belief that Leon, the slayer of Elsie Sigel, may have communicated by telegraph with friends here since he dropped out of sight on the afternoon of June 10, the District-Attorney's office yesterday took steps to learn if any messages have been sent to or from him through the Western and the Postal Telegraph Companies.

Assistant District-Attorney Smythe and Turnbull have been led to believe that Sun Leung, the proprietor of the chop suey restaurant at No. 782 Eighth Avenue, where the body of the girl was found, waited an unreasonably long time before informing the police about the matter, and acting on the theory that he may have delayed so the murderer could get a good start, an investigation was begun yesterday to determine, if possible, whether the restaurant keeper aided in the fugitive's escape.

Subpoenas Are Served

Two attaches of Jerome's staff served the subpoenas yesterday, but up to closing time they had not reported whether they found any telegrams.

Despite the many rumours that Leon Leung may have aided Leon's escape by delaying in calling the police, Quong Vick Nam, the aged interpreter, who has helped materially in the examination of Chinese witnesses, doesn't believe that the restaurant keeper wittingly enabled the fugitive to get a big start on the detectives. Nam pointed out yesterday that Leung has thus far spent $200 in an effort to trace the murderer and has appeared to be absolutely sincere in his desire that he be apprehended. Nam said he believes Philadelphia appears to be the most likely hiding place for Leon, as he has a brother there, and was once in the laundry business there.

Despite the many rumors that Leon has been seen in various cities, inspector McCafferty admitted yesterday that they have absolutely no trace of the fugitive and know absolutely nothing of his whereabouts since 2 o'clock of the afternoon of June 10, when he brought the trunk containing Elsie's body back to his room at No. 782 Eighth Avenue.

Chinatown was like a deserted village yesterday. What with the crusade Capt. Mike Galvin, commander of the Elizabeth street station, has been making in driving out the white girls and the public sentiment that the Sigel tragedy has aroused against the Orientals there is an air of depression in the yellow belt.

DO GIRLS SPOIL THEIR OWN OPPORTUNITIES OF MARRIAGE?

Assuredly one of the principal reasons for the oft-lamented fact that men won't marry, is the extravagance of the modern girl, and her deplorable lack of the housewifely, slipper-warming, tea-making qualities!

Against this sweeping indictment there will be hurled, I know, a perfect tempest of wrathful protestations; but the fact remains that girls ruin their own chance of happy marriage nine times out of ten simply through their mistaken views of life and the things that, in the long run, make for happiness.

Take the typical maiden, whose parents are, as they themselves would declare, "comfortably off"—on something ranging between $20 and $30 a week.

Had she been of her own mother's day, she would gladly and as a matter of course, have devoted herself to housekeeping arts from the moments she left school—thus fitting herself to become a good wife, and, incidentally, saving her father's pocket the price of a servant.

To go needlessly into the big world would have seemed to her a foolish, as well as rather wicked, proceeding Providence having provided her with a safe and comfortable shelter, she stayed in it contentedly until she left it for a home of her own, a home she by no means expected to be the equal of that she left—to insist on beginning where parents leave off being a failing of the damsel of to-day.

She scorns the idea of housework!—the very wrd is anathema. Mademoiselle requires much service at the hands of those she considers fitted to perform such tasks; she elects to become a wage earner.

Possibly she proves both diligent and clever, and speedily earns a decent salary. More probably she is just one of the many thousands of "pin-money" workers, who spoil the market for the living wage earners, and so keep down the marriage rate!

In either case—small salary or big—it all goes on her dress and personal amusements, and extravagance in both directions, out of all proportion to her position in life, becomes second nature to the foolish fair one.

Love, we are often told, is blind. But the man in the marrying mood, if he can find a suitable mate, is exceedingly keen-eyed and timorous.

To the young fellow of her class, the expensively dressed vision who prattles gaily of new plays and foreign tours, is distinctly frightening.

How could he dare venture to ask her to share his lot—the lot of the $15 a week clerk's wife!—when she is used to gaily spending half that on the luxuries of life in the same period?

It has been truly said that this is an age of show rather than comfort. Everything is sacrificed to appearances. The whole tendency is to live beyond one's means, and thousands jeopardize the incomes they have to seem to possess more; but the greatest and most foolish sinner is the modern miss!

To do him jutice, the average man is a very simple-minded, much-as-his-fathers-were sort of individual. When he thinks of marriage, it is of a bright and winsome little helpmate he dreams. A someone who will understand the cares and anxieties that beset the path of the climber on Fortune's hill—someone "noot to bright and good for human nature's daily food."

He dreams of her in all sorts of homely guises—with sleeves rolled up above her pretty elbows, wrapped in a white apron, making pastry; tripping along beside him under an umbrella, on marketing thoughts intent; sitting by their own fireside, darning his socks.

And with such dreams in the background of his mind, he begins to look around among all the pretty sisters of his friends, in the hope of realising them—only to discover that the dear little home-making, home-loving ways that would win his heart are apparently left out of the makeup of the beautifully dressed ladies who turn the local tennis club into a flower garden and the local church parade into a beauty show!

More than likely the special charm of one lures him into close acquaintance, and she becomes, in more senses than one, a dear friend!

With gay unconsciousness she permits him to squander no inconsiderable portion of his weekly income upon her. Dances, theatres, little trips up the river, milady regards as pleasing attentions that should, of course, be showered upon her by an admirer, nor is she by any means chary at hinting she will expect them in a husband also!

How dare any young fellow suggest that she should endeavor to learn other ways, forego her grand ideas, and settle down happily to the joys of her own fireside, varied by an annual fortnight at the sea!

Let him tentatively murmur of love in a cottage, and she will laugh cheerfully, and begin to talk of the fine house now owned by some girl friend who has "married well."

For those whose marriages have not been of an equally prudent descrip-

SHOCK FROM WIRELESS

Woman Rendered Speechless While Cooking Dinner.

New York, July 8.—Mrs. William Hughes, of No. 36 West Twenty-fifth street, Bayonne, is suffering from a partial paralysis of her organs of speech because of a peculiar accident she met with while preparing dinner on a gas range in the cellar of her home. Her husband, an electrician in the employ of the Tide Water Oil Company, is interested in wireless telegraphy and recently set up a receiving station on the top of his home. He made connections with a neighbour's house and placed the ground wires in his cellar, near the gas range.

Mrs. Hughes had just turned on a faucet, when a heavy electric storm arose and there was a vivid flash of lightning. She received a shock in her arm, shoulder and throat. The flash was seen by her daughter, who ran upstairs for assistance. Dr. J. G. L. Borgmeyer was called and found Mrs. Hughes speechless and her arm and finger stiff. After treatment the woman was able to talk some and she is expected to recover.

SIR NIGEL

BY A. CONAN DOYLE.

"If you will use [illegible] wars I will see to my own reward," said Aylward. "Till then I ask for none, save a corner of your table and six feet of your floor, for it is certain that the only reward I would get from the Abbey for this day's work would be the scourge for my back and the stocks for my ankles. Samkin Aylward is your man, Squire Nigel, from this hour on, and by these ten finger-bones he trusts the Devil will fly away with him if ever he gives you cause to regret it!" So saying he raised his hand to his steel cap in salute, slung his great yellow bow over his back, and followed on some paces in the rear of his new master.

"Pardieu! I have arrived a la bonne heure," said Chandos. "I rode from Windsor and came to your manor-house, to find it empty save for a fine old dame, who told me of your troubles. From her I walked across to the Abbey, and none too soon, for what with cloth-yard shafts for your body, and bell, book and candle for your soul, it was no very cheerful outlook. But here is the very dame herself, if I mistake not."

It was indeed the formidable figure of the Lady Ermyntrude, gaunt, bowed and leaning on her staff, which had emerged from the door of the manor-house and advanced to greet them. She croaked with laughter, and shook her stick at the great building as she heard of the discomfiture of the Abbey court. Then she led the way into the hall where the best which she could provide had been laid out for their illustrious guest. There was Chandos blood in her own veins, traceable back through the de Greys, de Multons, de Valences, de Montagues and other high and noble strains, so that the meal had been eaten and cleared before she had done tracing the network of intermarriages and connections, with quarterings, impalements, lozenges and augmentations by which the blazonry of the two families might be made to show a common origin. Back to the Conquest and before it there was not a noble family-tree every twig and bud of which was not familiar to the Dame Ermyntrude.

And now when the trestles were cleared and the three were left alone in the hall, Chandos broke his message to the lady. "King Edward hath ever borne in mind that noble knight your son Sir Eustace," said he. "He will journey to Southampton next week, and I am his harbinger. He bade me say, noble and honored lady, that he would come from Guildford in any easy stage so that he might spend one night under your roof."

The old dame flushed with pleasure, and then turned white with vexation at the words. "It is in truth great honor to the house of Loring," said she, "yet our roof is now humble and, as you have seen, our fare is plain. The King knows not that we are so poor. I fear lest we seem churlish and niggard in his eyes."

But Chandos reasoned away her fears The King's retinue would journey on to Farnham Castle. There were no ladies in his party. Though he was King, still he was a hardy soldier, and cared little for his ease. In any case, since he had declared his coming, they must make the best of it. Finally, with all delicacy, Chandos offered his own purse if it would help in the matter. But already the Lady Ermyntrude had recovered her composure.

"Nay, fair kinsman, that may not be," said she. "I will make such preparation as I may for the King. He will bear in mind that if the house of Loring can give nothing else, they have always held their blood and their lives at his disposal."

Chandos was to ride on to Farnham Castle and beyond, but he expressed his desire to have a warm bath ere he left Tilford, for like most of his fellow-knights, he was much addicted to simmering in the hottest water that he could possibly endure. The bath therefore, a high hooped arrangement like a broader but shorter churn, was carried into the privacy of the guest-chamber, and thither it was that Nigel was summoned to hold him company while he stewed and sweltered in his tub.

Nigel perched himself upon the side of the high bed, swinging his legs over the edge and gazing with wonder and amusement at the quaint face, the curled yellow hair, and the sinewy shoulders of the famous warrior, dimly seen amid a pillar of steam. He was in a mood for talk; so Nigel with eager lips plied him with a thousand questions about the wars, hanging upon every word which came back to him, like those of the ancient oracles, out of the mist and the cloud. To Chandos himself, the old soldier for whom war had lost its freshness, it was a renewal of his own ardent youth to listen to Nigel's rapid questions and to mark the rapt attention with which he listened.

"Tell me of the Welsh, honored sir," asked the Squire: "What manner of soldiers are the Welsh?"

"They are very valiant men of war," said Chandos, splashing about in his tub. "There is good skirmishing to be had in their valleys if you ride with a small following. They flare up like a furze-bush in the flames, but if for a short space you may abide the heat of it, then there is a chance that it may be cooler."

"And the Scotch?" asked Nigel. "You have made war upon them also, as I understand."

"The Scotch knights have no masters in the world, and he who can hold his own with the best of them, be it a Douglas, a Murray or a Seaton, has nothing more to learn. Though you be a hard man, you will always meet as hard a one if you ride northward. If the Welsh be like the furze fire, then pardieu! the Scotch are the peat, for they will smolder and you will never come to the end of them. I have had many happy hours on the marches of Scotland, for even if there be no war the Percies of Alnwick or the Governor of Carlisle can still raise a little bickering with the border clans."

"I bear in mind that my father was wont to say that they were very stout spearmen."

"No better in the world, for the spears are twelve foot long and they hold them in very thick array; but their archers are weak, save only the men of Ettrick and Selkirk who come from the forest. I pray you to open the lattice, Nigel, for the steam is overthick. Now in Wales it is the spearmen who are weak, and there are no archers in these islands like the men of Gwent with their bows of elm, which shoot with such power that I have known a cavalier to have his horse killed when the shaft had passed through his mail breeches, his thigh and his saddle. And yet, what is the most strongly shot arrow to these new balls of iron driven by the fire-powder which will crush a man's armor as an egg is crushed by a stone? Our fathers knew them not."

"Then the better for us," cried Nigel, "since there is at least one honorable venture which is all our own."

Chandos chuckled and turned upon the flushed youth a twinkling and sympathetic eye. "You have a fashion of speech which carries me back to the old men whom I met in my boyhood," said he. "There were some of the real old knight-errants left in those days, and they spoke as you do. Young as you are, you belong to another age. Where got you that trick of thought and word?"

"I have had only one to teach me, the Lady Ermyntrude."

"Pardieu! she has trained a proper young hawk ready to stoop at a lordly quarry," said Chandos. "I would that I had the first unhooding of you. Will you not ride with me to the wars?"

The tears brimmed over from Nigel's eyes, and he wrung the gaunt hand extended from the bath. "By Saint Paul! what could I ask better in the world? I fear to leave her, for she has none other to care for her. But if it can in any way be arranged——"

"The King's hand may smooth it out. Say no more until he is here. But if you wish to ride with me——"

"What could man wish for more? Is there a Squire in England who would not serve under the banner of Chandos! Whither do you go, fair sir? And when do you go? Is it to Scotland? Is it to Ireland? Is it to France? But alas, alas!"

The eager face had clouded. For the instant he had forgotten that a suit of armor was as much beyond his means as a service of gold plate. Down in a twinkling came all his high hopes to the ground. Oh, these sordid material things, which come between our dreams and their fulfilment! The Squire of such a knight must dress with the best. Yet all the fee simple of Tilford would scarce suffice for one suit of plate.

Chandos, with his quick wit and knowledge of the world, had guessed the cause of this sudden change. "If you fight under my banner it is for me to find the weapons," said he. "Nay, I will not be denied."

But Nigel shook his head sadly. "It may not be. The Lady Ermyntrude would sell this old house and every acre round it, ere she would permit me to accept this gracious bounty which you offer. Yet I do not despair, for only last week I won for myself a noble war-horse for which I paid not a penny, so perchance a suit of armor may also come my way."

"And how won you the horse?"

"It was given me by the monks of Waverley."

"This is wonderful. Pardieu! I should have expected, from what I had seen, that they would have given you little save their malediction."

"They had no use for the horse, and they gave it to me."

"Then we have only to find some one who has no use for a suit of armor and will give it to you. Yet I trust that you will think better of it and let me, since that good lady proves that I am your kinsman, fit you for the wars."

"I thank you, noble sir, and if I should turn to anyone it would indeed be to you; but there are other ways which I would try first. But I pray you, good Sir John, to tell me of some of your noble spear-runnings against the French, for the whole land rings with the tale of your deeds, and I honorable advancement may be gained and one's lady exalted!"

"It is right that you should think so, Nigel. At your age a man should have a hot head and a high heart. I also had both and fought for my lady's glove or for my vow or for the love of fighting. But as one grows older and commands men one has other things to think of. One thinks less of one's own honor and more of the safety of the army. It is not your own spear, your own sword, your own arm, which will turn the tide of fight; but a cool head may save a stricken field. He who knows when his horsemen should charge and when they should fight on foot, he who can mix his archers with his men-at-arms in such a fashion that each can support the other, he who can hold up his reserve and pour it into the battle when it may turn the tide, he who has a quick eye for boggy land and broken ground—that is the man who is of more worth to an army than Roland, Oliver and all the paladins."

"Yet if his knights fail him, honored sir, all his headwork will not prevail."

"True enough, Nigel; so may every Squire ride to the wars with his soul on fire, as yours is now. But I must linger no longer, for the King's service must be done. I will dress, and when I have bid farewell to the noble Dame Ermyntrude I will on to Farnham; but you will see me here again on the day that the King comes."

So Chandos went his way that evening, walking his horse through the peaceful lanes and twanging his citole as he went, for he loved music and was famous for his merry songs. The cottagers came from their huts and laughed and clapped as the rich full voice swelled and sank to the cheery tinkling of the strings. There were few who saw him pass that would have guessed that the quaint one-eyed man with the yellow hair was the toughest fighter and craftiest man of war in Europe. Once only, as he entered Farnham, an old broken man-at-arms ran out in his rags and clutched at his horse as a dog gambols round his master. Chandos threw him a kind word and a gold coin as he passed on to the castle.

In the meanwhile young Nigel and the Lady Ermyntrude, left alone with their difficulties, looked blankly in each other's faces.

"The cellar is well nigh empty," said Nigel. "There are two firkins of small beer and a tun of canary. How can we set such drink before the King and his court?"

"We must have some wine of Bordeaux. With that and the mottled cow's calf and the fowls and a goose, we can set forth a sufficient repast if he stays only for the one night. How many will be with him?"

"A dozen, at the least."

The old dame wrung her hands in despair. "Nay, take it not to heart, dear lady!" said Nigel. "We have but to say the word and the King would stop at Waverley, where he and his court would find all that they could wish."

"Never!" cried the Lady Ermyntrude. "It would be shame and disgrace to us forever if the King were to pass our door when he has graciously said that he was fain to enter in. Nay, I will do it. Never did I think that I would be forced to this, but I know that he would wish it, and I will do it."

She went to the old iron coffer, and taking a small key from her girdle she unlocked it. The rusty hinges, screaming shrilly as she threw back the lid, proclaimed how seldom it was that she had penetrated into the sacred recesses of her treasure-chest. At the top were some relics of old finery: a silken cloak spangled with golden stars, a coif of silver filigree, a roll of Venetian lace. Beneath were little packets tied in silk which the old lady handled with tender care: a man's hunting-glove, a child's shoe, a love-knot done in faded green ribbon, some letters in rude rough script, and a vernicle of Saint Thomas. Then from the very bottom of the box she drew three objects, swathed in silken cloth, which she uncovered and laid upon the table. The one was a bracelet of rough gold studded with uncut rubies, the second was a gold salver, and the third was a high goblet of the same metal.

"You have heard me speak of these, Nigel, but never before have you seen them, for indeed I have not opened the hutch for fear that we might be tempted in our great need to turn them into money. I have kept them out of my sight and even out of my thoughts. But now it is the honor of the house which calls, and even these must go. This goblet was that which my husband, Sir Nele Loring, won after the intaking of Belgrade when he and his comrades held the lists from matins to vespers against the flower of the French chivalry. The salver was given him by the Earl of Pembroke in memory of his valor upon the field of Falkirk."

"And the bracelet, dame mine?"

"You will not laugh, Nigel?"

"Nay, why should I laugh?"

"The bracelet was the prize for the Queen of Beauty which was given to me before all the high-born ladies of England by Sir Nele Loring a month before our marriage—the Queen of Beauty, Nigel—I, old and twisted, as you see me. Five strong men went down before his lance ere he won that trinket for me. And now in my last years——"

"Nay, dear and honored lady, we will not part with it."

"Yes, Nigel, he would have it so. I can hear his whisper in my ear. Honor to him was everything—the rest nothing. Take it from me, Nigel, ere my heart weakens. To-morrow you will ride with it to Guildford; you will see Thorold the goldsmith; and you will raise enough money to pay for all that we shall need for the King's coming." She turned her face away to hide the quivering of her wrinkled features, and the crash of the iron lid covered the sob which burst from her overwrought soul.

CHAPTER VII.

It was on a bright June morning that young Nigel, with youth and springtime to make his heart light, rode upon his errand from Tilford to Guildford town. Beneath him was his great yellow war-horse, caracoling and curveting as he went, as blithe and free of spirit as his master. In all England one would scarce have found upon that morning so high-mettled and so debonair a pair. The sandy road wound through groves of fir, where the breeze came soft and fragrant with resinous gums, or over heathery downs, which rolled away to north and to south, vast and untenanted, for on the uplands the soil was poor and water scarce. Over Crooksbury Common he passed, and then across the great Heath of Puttenham, following a sandy path which wound amid the bracken and the heather, for he meant to strike the Pilgrims' Way where it turned eastward from Farnham and from Seale. As he rode he continually felt his saddle-bag with his hand, for in it, securely strapped, he had placed the precious treasures of the Lady Ermyntrude. As he saw the grand tawny neck tossing before him, and felt the easy heave of the great horse and heard the muffled drumming of his hoofs, he could have sung and shouted with the joy of living.

Behind him, upon the little brown pony which had been Nigel's former mount, rode Samkin Aylward the bowman, who had taken upon himself the duties of personal attendant and body-guard. His great shoulders and breadth of frame seemed dangerously top-heavy upon the tiny steed, but he ambled along, whistling a merry lilt and as light-hearted as his master. There was no countryman who had not a nod and no woman who had not a smile for the jovial bowman, who rode for the most part with his face over his shoulder, staring at the last petticoat which had passed him. Once only he met with a harsher greeting. It was from a tall, white-headed, red-faced man whom they met upon the moor.

"Good-morrow, dear father!" cried Aylward. "How is it with you at Crooksbury? And how are the new black cow and the ewes from Alton and Mary the dairymaid and all your gear?"

"It ill becomes you to ask, you ne'er-do-weel," said the old man. "You have angered the monks of Waverley, whose tenant I am, and they would drive me out of my farm. Yet there are three more years to run, and do what they may I will bide till then. But little did I think that I should lose my homestead through you, Samkin, and big as you are I would knock the dust out of that green jerkin with a good hazel switch if I had you at Crooksbury."

"Then you shall do it to-morrow morning, good father, for I will come and see you then. But indeed I did not do more at Waverley than you would have done yourself. Look me in the eye, old hot-head, and tell me if you would have stood by while the last Loring—look at him as he rides with his head in the air and his soul in the clouds—was shot down before your very eyes at the bidding of that fat monk! If you would, then I disown you as my father."

"Nay, Samkin, if it was like that, then perhaps what you did was not so far amiss. But it is hard to lose the old farm when my heart is buried deep in the good brown soil."

"Tut, man! there are three years to run, and what may not happen in three years? Before that time I shall have gone to the wars, and when I have opened a French strong box or two you can buy the good brown soil and snap your fingers at Abbot John and his bailiffs. Am I not as proper a man as Tom Withstaff of Churt? And yet he came back after six months with his pockets full of rose nobles and a French wench on either arm."

"God preserve us from the wenches, Samkin! But indeed I think that if there is money to be gathered you are as likely to get your fist full as any man who goes to the war. But hasten, lad, hasten! Already your young master is over the brow."

Thus admonished, the archer waved his gauntleted hand to his father, and digging his heels into the sides of his little pony soon drew up with the Squire. Nigel glanced over his shoulder and slackened speed until the pony's head was up to his saddle.

"Have I not heard, archer," said he, "that an outlaw has been loose in these parts?"

"It is true, fair sir. He was villain to Sir Peter Mandeville, but he broke his bonds and fled into the forests. Men call him the 'Wild Man of Puttenham.'"

"How comes it that he has not been hunted down? If the man be a drawlatch and a robber it would be an honorable deed to clear the country of such an evil."

"Twice the sergeants-at-arms from Guildford have come out against him, but the fox has many earths, and it would puzzle you to get him out of them."

"By Saint Paul! were my errand not a pressing one I would be tempted to turn aside and seek him. Where lives he, then?"

"There is a great morass beyond Puttenham, and across it there are caves in which he and his people lurk."

"His people. He hath a band?"

"There are several with him."

GLIMPSES OF LIFE AND CONDITIONS IN ENGLAND

Some Impressions of Ipswich—Its Churches and Parks—Covent Garden and the Costermongers—The London Police and How Justice is Meted Out—An Amusing Advertisement

(Written for The Examiner by Mr. F. M. Dela Fosse.)

Bath, England, June 25th.—A few days ago I was staying at a little village outside Ipswich, called Sproughton. It is only about one and a half miles distant from the capital of Suffolk and I had very many opportunities during my stay of getting items of interest in the town.

Ipswich, although it is not generally advertised as an attractive place for tourists, is really a very interesting spot. It has many old buildings and is fortunate in possessing a beautiful park, twenty-three acres of which were purchased by the city some years ago from the Fonnereau family, and the mansion and grounds in front were bought and generously presented by Mr. Felix Cobbold. This mansion, by the bye, has a haunted chamber, where a lady is sometimes seen, wringing her hands in front of the fire place. The ancient house is another interesting building, situated in the heart of the town. It is adorned in old fashion "parquetting" and has a fine oak panelled chamber, and also a room in which Charles II. is said to have been concealed after the battle of Worcester.

The Ipswich Churches are, some of them, very fine, but here and there, in the interior the handiwork of the Puritans, is abundantly evident. Many carvings and paintings were destroyed under the genial overseership of that arch iconaclast, Will Dowsing, whose memory East Anglican archaeologists have every reason to execrate.

I should imagine that about the surest cure for "sleeping sickness," if any there is, is to be found in getting hotel accommodation which earshot of Covent Garden market.

It was my misfortune to arrive in London last week and find myself absolutely homeless. Every hotel was crammed to its fullest capacity. This was partly owing to the fact of its being Ascot week and partly also to the large influx of Canadian and American tourists. After searching for several hours, I at last, by the aid of a friendly policeman got wind of a small hostelry near Drury Lane Theatre. The proprietor however, had the same tale to tell, as the others, namely that every room was occupied, but as a great concession and after considerable cajolery he at last offered to make me a bed in the Smoking Room. The offer was accepted with thanks but I soon discerned that the vicinity of Covent Garden is not the most conductive to slumber. From about 1 a.m., there began a constant succession of rumbling caused by the country waggons laden with produce taking up their stations along the thoroughfares leading to the market. Sleep was utterly out of the question, for the uproar was tremendous.

Covent Garden in the early morning is really a most wonderful sight. It gives one a very fair idea of the capacious may of London, to view the endless rows of waggons that are crowded into all thoroughfares, and to know that these vehicles contain only a part of the produce that that great city needs for the day's sustenance of its teeming millions. But the array of waggons is not the only spectacle that is of interest to the visitor from abroad, for the costermonger is here seen in all his glory, giving vent to a language strange and weird and quite in keeping with the singularity of the surroundings.

Much has been said and written of the splendid discipline of the London Police. They are not over-rated. They are certainly a grand body of men, probably the finest guardians of the peace in the world. The way they manage the traffic in the congested centres is marvellous. There is no confusion, no loud cry of command—at a simple raising of the hand, motors, busses, taxicabs, hansoms, vehicles of every description stop as if by magic, and remain so until the hand is lowered.

The law and order that are maintained throughout the whole of London by the police of the metropolis entitles them to the very warmest encomiums that can be bestowed upon them. Having a desire to see how justice is administered in London I wandered the other day into Bow Street Police Court and took up a coign of vantage near the bar. There was not much variation in the class of offenders from that which usually figures in our own courts of Justice but there was, I think, a somewhat larger-hearted measure of Justice meted out to them than is sometimes apparent in certain Canadian Courts. I need scarcely say that Peterborough is not included in the stricture.

Perhaps I witnessed an off-day when the magistrate's liver is not bothering him and all things looked rosy, but there was no approach whatever to the abominable sentences which are sometimes inflicted on unfortunate malefactors.

The weather in England has been, what we in Canada would call "vile," but which the people over here term "a little unsettled." It is wonderful how resigned one can get to things which are absolutely beyond man's power to remedy, but of the weather we have been having is a specimen of the real English article it would not take me long to migrate to a more genial clime.

The following from the Daily Mail will be of interest as showing how a loyal Canadian views the slackness that is creeping into the exercise of a time-honoured conventionality. Personally, I believe in a rigid observance of this custom as one of the outward and visible signs of our loyality to our Sovereign. But there are times when the hat raising process could very reasonably be dispensed with. Yesterday, for instance, I was at Glastonbury, to witness the ceremony of handing over the Abbey to the custody of the Church of England. The service was a lengthy one, held right out in the open, amidst the rains, and the way the wind blew through the decayed arches of the Lady Chapel and down the long reach of what was once the nave, was cruel. That was a time when I really questioned if a man would not be justified in keeping his hat on. I shall have more to say about the Glastonbury Service in my next letter.

Hats Off!

To the Editor of the Daily Mail.

Sir.—While on the subject of the duty of Territorials and civilians to salute the flag, it might be as well to remind them that it is also their duty to salute the National Anthem.

While on holiday last year, when the band on the parade finished their programme, my boy and I raised our pass unheeded.

The following advertisement appeared in an English paper a few days days ago and may be of interest as showing that not all eccentricity in advertising lies on the Western side of the Atlantic.

LOTS OF FINE FRUIT PRICES WILL BE LOW

Cherries Will Be Very Plentiful This Season—Strawberries For Two More Weeks.

All lovers of the luscious cherry pie will have cause for thanksgiving this year, for cherries, it appears, are to be plentiful. For that matter, so is all fruit, with the possible exception of apples. Just one thing, indeed, is darkening the grower's horizon, that is the lateness of the season. It has affected the Niagara Peninsula more than this part of the country, so the fruit from across the lake, which is usually nearly finished before that grown here is ripe, will be placed upon the market at the same time.

Good for the People

According to the growers, this will be bad for them, but good for the people, it will mean the fruit sells cheaper. Yet the buyer will suffer, for the season will not last as long as ordinarily.

This crowding of the market is what has happened with the strawberries, and prices have sunk accordingly. They will, it is stated, drop further still. The crop is expected to last two weeks more, the best berries being yet to come.

Apparently this is the time for those wishing to preserve to buy.

In another week the sour canning cherries will be on the market. Everywhere the tree made famous by George Washington is to be seen loaded down with its red fruit. The cherry birds have not done any harm. In fact everything points to a bumper crop.

Raspberries Uncertain

It is a little early, the farmers say, to predict the raspberry crop. Some feel the berry will be plentiful, but others fear the effects of some pests which are assailing the leaves Certainly the bushes look promising at the present time. They are covered with green fruit.

"A good crop, but not a bumper," say the farmers when asked about apples. So many of the trees bore exceptionally well last year that they can hardly be expected to do so again. Still the indications are for a good, average crop. The apples are developing nicely, the pests having done little harm.

LINGERING WEAKNESS FOLLOWING DISEASE

Can be Banished by the Wonderful Tonic Powers of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

How often it is that the victims of disease—fevers, measles, la grippe or any other contagious troubles are weak and ailing, even after the disease itself has disappeared. They do not pick up strength as they ought, remain listless, tired and discouraged. The reason for this is that the blood has been impoverished by the ravages of the disease through which the victim has passed. Strength will not return until the blood is enriched. The blood can be enriched by no other medicine as quickly and as surely as by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People—to enrich the blood and strengthen the nerves is the whole duty of these pills—thousands have found them beneficial in bringing strength after disease had left them weak and run down. Among those who owe good health to these Pills is Miss Laura Hisco, New Ross, N. B., who says:—"Following an attack of measles I was left greatly run down and suffered from a bad cough. I was advised to use Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and procured half a dozen boxes. Before they were all gone I had regained by strength; my cough had disappeared and I was once more enjoying perfect health."

The experience of Miss Hisco is that of many others. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills make new, rich, red blood. This new blood strengthens the nerves and banishes such ailments as rheumatism, neuralgia, lumbago, dyspepsia, etc., and brings the glow of health to pale cheeks. The Pills are sold by all medicine dealers or at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

ANCIENT CONCRETE

Bridge in South France Was Built In 56 B. C.

Paris, July 6.—In the south of France is a concrete arch bridge known as the Pont du Gard, which was erected in the year 56 B.C. The concrete in this was not composed of crushed stone or other small aggregate of the variety now employed in concrete bridge work, but was one of the old style, consisting of alternative layers of large and small stones, gravel, etc., and of cementitious materials

Vitruvius describes the materials and methods in use before the Christian era, and other writers, like Alberti in 1485, and Palladio in 1570, accurately describe the method which "the ancients" (as they call them) employed, "of using boards laid on edge and filling the space between with cement and all sorts of small and large stones mingled together."

It is very improbable taht the Pont du Gard would have withstood the rigors of climate of the Northern United States, but its actual state of preservation, as well as that of many other specimens of ancient concrete work, proves that if modern work is honestly executed, it will many times outlast any reasonable bond period, so that a very small yearly sinking fund per cent, is all that is required for properly designed and erected concrete work.

It is not always possible to trace the origin of illness, but it is easy enough to give valid reasons why the fly can be the introductory agent. Purely medical aspects apart, the fly is not particularly scrupulous as to its environment—it alights at one time on most offensive material and at another it is on the food in the kitchen and at the table.

One of the earliest experiments we remember to have seen showing the connection of flies and disease, was that in allowing a common blue bottle to walk across a freshly sliced potato. The potato subsequently developed colonies of micro-organisms all along the track taken by the fly, while elsewhere no development took place.

The important question remains how best to get rid of the fly. Flypapers and sticky things are unsightly, and the struggle of a fly to release itself from a sticky substance is not an entertaining spectacle.

In our experience the best exterminating agent is a weak solution of weak formaldehyde in water (say two teaspoonfuls to the pint), and this experience has been confirmed by others.

It would appear that flies are attracted by a weak solution of formaldehyde, which they drink. Some die in the water, others get as far only as the immediate vicinity of the plate of water, but all ultimately succomb; and here they occur in large numbers hundreds may be swept upon the floor. It is consoling to know that by this time the flies have died under a dose of fluid which is fatal to disease organisms, a fluid also which is inoffensive and for practical purposes non-poisonous. The method at once provides a means of diminishing the scourge and securing to some extent what is most desirable, the disinfection of the slain.

WOULD YOU CONVICT ON CIRCUMSTANTIAL EVIDENCE?

RED HANDED

A TRUE STORY

(Copyright, 1910, by the New York Herald Co. All Rights Reserved.)

"GRAHAM GRUBER, one of the best known lawyers in New York, says:—"No human being should be convicted on circumstantial evidence alone. Human duplex and positions as well as human loves enter the witness box. Besides that there are deliberate put up jobs. Circumstantial evidence is akin to metaphysical discussions of right and wrong, religious tendencies and all speculative things.

"During thirty years I have known many innocent men to be accused by circumstantial evidence. Recently I was in Albany and wrote out a check with a New York heading; five years hence it would be very difficult for me to show that I was not in New York on that day.

"I might cite many things done daily, innocent in themselves, which to some speculative and imaginative juryman would be positive proof of crime.

"It is better that ninety-nine guilty men should escape than that one innocent man should suffer. This is old rock bottom morality and law. It is better for justice and truth that no human being should be found guilty of crime on circumstantial evidence, no matter how seemingly honorable the source of it."

POLITICAL discussion ranged high and the group about the bar of the little roadside hotel became more animated under the lash of partisan feeling. Affairs in the county had grown into a sharp local issue and there was talk of a kind that would have served for matters of much greater moment.

Several times the landlord had protested at the extravagance of the disputants and finally he thought it wise to refuse further refreshment until the prevailing tone of conversation had been lowered. In this he was taking a bold step, for those he entertained were persons of consequence, wealthy farmers, country politicians and residents of the nearby village. His attempt to check the wordy turbulence was effective except with two of the men, who continued their interchange of invectives with violent gestures and heated language.

One of these was John Wickliffe, owner of a large property in the neighborhood, leader of one faction in the township, unpopular with the prosperous element and feared alike for his vindictive nature and political power. He carried some forty-five years with vigor and his frame was wiry and knobbed with muscles. His face was clean shaved, and as he talked he had an unpleasant way of drawing back his lips, baring his teeth like an animal. In anger his appearance became almost repulsive, and so his opponent now found him.

Harry Blake, who confronted Wickliffe with flushed face and hostile eye, was the son of a wealthy storekeeper and landowner of the village. He was just in from a hunting trip. A handsome, well proportioned young fellow, generous, frank, quick tempered and fond of good company, he had followed his father into political affairs on a small scale and recently had given promise of ability in this line. His interests were opposed to those of Wickliffe, who in the last campaign had found himself checked more than once by an unexpected subtlety and craftiness on the part of one whom he professed to despise as a schoolboy. Blake now held his ground against the other, whose mastiff snarl might have given pause to a less sanguine and determined antagonist.

Grayson, a magistrate, watched the two uneasily for some minutes after the rattling fire of argument had been abandoned by common consent among the rest of the party. Grayson did not like Wickliffe and he was fond of Harry and it was not to his mind to stand by while the young man became involved with one of ill repute and violent ways. He stepped forward finally and took a hand in the dispute.

"See here, Wickliffe, you're not gaining anything by this bickering. That fact alone ought to serve to make you save your breath for another and more promising subject. In addition, I say stop it."

Wickliffe turned on him with his lips lifted.

"What's bothering you, old man Grayson? Isn't the boy old enough to hold his side of a fight? If he isn't he'd better keep out of politics. He's old enough to vote, anyway, and he's put on a show of having opinions. And if his opinions don't suit me I'm going to quarrel with them, for all you may say or do."

Grayson held a steady eye upon him throughout the pause that followed these words. The situation became strained and Blake, unwilling to drag another into his own difficulty, cut the thread of tension himself.

The Bitter Quarrel.

"Why, I didn't mean to quarrel," he said, shifting with the readiness that his personality allowed him from lowering brows to smiling countenance. "I'm afraid I got a little too heated about this thing. It really doesn't amount to much. I'm sure I'm quite ready to call it quits, although," he added, with a shade of pompousness, "I, of course, am not ready to abandon the position I took in the discussion."

Grayson nodded approval and Blake stepped from Wickliffe's side to the group of watchers. One of them spoke to him as he stood with his back to his late antagonist and conversation in a lighter vein was soon running from one to another.

Wickliffe hung upon the bar by himself where Blake had left him, mumbling and baring his teeth to small purpose. The superior scorn implied in Blake's abandonment of the quarrel and the fact that he now had no auditor for his bitter remarks, together with what he had drunk, accentuated the naturally evil disposition of the man. With his glass lifted in sudden bravado he made a remark that, coming through the light banter of the group, struck each hearer dumb with indignation. He had passed the unmentionable reproach, the word that means retaliation from any man with as much as a red corpuscle in his veins. Blake had not heard distinctly, but the white faces of his companions told him that Wickliffe had said or done something out of the ordinary.

Several of the men turned to Wickliffe with cries of "Shame! Shame!" Wickliffe glowered back at them defiantly. Blake, sensitive to the pervading sentiment, felt instinctively that some serious insult had been offered to him. He thrust up to Wickliffe and looked into the hideous face fearlessly.

"I don't know what you said, Wickliffe," he remarked, "but if it was anything reflecting on me and you dare repeat it this will be the sorriest day of your life."

The courage of the young fellow and the challenging note in his voice held the elder man silent for a breath. He passed the threat off with a sneer, however, finding his reputation for overbearing contrivance of his own actions attainted by such a remark. With a shrug he repeated his previous remark in words not so sharp, but still insulting and clear enough.

Blake, thrusting aside Grayson's friendly and detaining arm, sprang full at Wickliffe, struck him in the face and hurled him to the ground. The aggressor, overborne by his own rush, lost his footing and the two rolled together. Before either of the combatants could renew hostilities after the fall the other members of the group had swarmed upon them and pulled them apart, the landlord beseeching them to check the scandal that had come upon his house. Each fought to wrench loose from the hand laid upon him, but the affray had sobered the company and Grayson, sternly taking command, ordered that Wickliffe be ejected. The suggestion was carried out none too gently. Helpless in the face of universal enmity, his face drawn into his ugliest snarl, Wickliffe gave over thought of immediate reprisal. With vicious oaths and words of defiance, which Blake, still struggling at his restraining friends, returned in good measure, he mounted his horse and rode away.

"You can get a fit for a coffin now," was Wickliffe's final word. "You'll need it after this."

Fifteen minutes had passed before the cautious Grayson, certain that the other had proceeded too far to allow of pursuit, gave Blake permission to go. The young fellow had lapsed into hard mouthed silence following Wickliffe's departure. Grayson accompanied him down the steps.

Blake Rides Away.

"Keep away from him, Harry. That's my advice. He's dangerous, and he has a lot of good for nothing followers. He's too powerful for you to go against and he's too worthless to deserve any decent person's attention. Ignore him and forget what he said. There are some men that it is the part of wisdom to overlook in their nastiness, and this is one of them."

Blake made no reply, seemingly had not heard the kindly meant remarks of Grayson, who was his father's friend. He mounted his horse, cut the animal over the flank with his riding whip and vanished down the road in a cloud of dust. His way led straight to the village. Wickliffe lived on the same highway, but at the other side of the town, some mile or so beyond.

After Blake's departure the company was ill at ease, finding no further interest in discussion or in friendly anecdote. Shortly it began to break up, this and that man riding off singly or holding back until joined by some companion. Grayson went over the incident with Walton, an elderly man and a close friend of his.

"I don't like it, Walton," said the Magistrate. "There never was good feeling between Wickliffe and old Blake, as you know. I believe the fox led the boy on and worked up his own bile until he had the bitterness on tap to pass an insult. There's nothing Wickliffe likes so well as to be on bad terms with as many persons as possible, and Harry Blake would be a welcome recruit to his list of private enemies."

"I have heard there was a row between them before over the Dowell girl," added the other. "Wickliffe was pestering her last year and Harry stopped him one day and told him to quit. I guess her father put in a heap more effective argument, for he let up. But if I know the skunk he's probably been nursing his grudge ever since."

After further comment of the kind Grayson and Walton untethered their horses and started slowly toward the town.

It was late of a summer afternoon. The sun was within half an hour of setting, barring the road with long shadows from the fence rails and tinting fields and trees with russet. The highway was empty ahead of them to the next turn, a quarter of a mile away. A pleasant breeze was stirring the foliage and tall grasses. The two men rode in silence, taking quiet note of the colorful stretches of landscape and content to forget the disturbing scene in which they had just taken part.

They had reached the turn when from beyond a small grove of fruit trees that fringed the road to the right came a man's wailing cry of agony, borne past them on the wind. The startled riders drew rein and stared at each other.

"Something wrong here," said Grayson, sharply. "I made out a cry for help. Did you hear a name?"

"No."

"I did, and it was Harry. Do you suppose that boy"——

He had set his horse at the fence and driven home the spurs and the rest of his sentence was lost as the animal took the jump. Walton was after him instantly and together they rode around the edge of the little orchard. As they circled the copse they were confronted by a wild growth of bushes, the tops of which partly screened a slight slope rising beyond. Through the film of the natural curtain, however, they could see the open amphitheatre of field.

Not twenty yards from them a man lay outstretched upon the grass and motionless. Over him, with his hand still grasping a knife planted in the victim's breast, was a younger and a slighter one. The riders had burst through the hedge and were upon this scene before the second of the two figures was aware of their approach. He started up, bringing the knife with him, his hand and the weapon dripping. It was Harry Blake.

"Harry, Harry, what have you done? Don't strike again for God's sake!"

He Denies the Murder.

Grayson leaped from his horse and thrust Blake back. The man on the ground was John Wickliffe, stiffening in death. The magistrate bent over him, thrusting a hand under his coat, but even as he performed the act Wickliffe had ceased to breathe. Walton had dismounted. He now threw himself upon Blake, who had started back at the sudden appearance of the two men. Walton gripped him firmly by the sleeve as Grayson looked up from the body.

THE AGGRESSOR LOST HIS FOOTING AND THE TWO ROLLED TOGETHER.

"Dead," said the Magistrate, "and by your hand, Harry. This is a sad day for all of us, but the one whom I am thinking of even in this minute is your father."

Blake looked from one to other of his captors, reading his condemnation in the stern faces.

"Why, I didn't kill him," he said, his lips trembling. "I rode here to give him help, and just then you came up."

Grayson shook his head.

"It won't do, Harry," said Walton. "We heard the cry when you struck him, and we were here before you had recovered from the blow. In the absence of the proper officers we shall have to place you under arrest."

Blake tossed the knife from him and wiped his hands on a handkerchief, slowly regaining command of himself.

"Oh, I guess you won't," he said. "I'm not pretending I'm not glad the little beast is dead, for I am. But you know me. It's not as if you'd found another here with him."

Grayson found his tongue at this speech.

"What's that?" he thundered, "asking us to connive at your crime? We take you red handed and you think we will shield you? No, Harry Blake, no. We are your father's friends and yours, too, but you should know us better than that."

"All right," said Blake, carelessly. "I'm not asking you to connive at a crime. I didn't kill Wickliffe, that's all. I'm only asking you to believe that when I tell you so."

"And I'm telling you we will accept no such lead and allow you to give us no such hint as to our position in the matter," said Grayson, impatiently.

"But I didn't kill him," answered Blake, defiantly.

"What! Do you really mean to try to face it out? You say you didn't kill him, with Walton and myself here?"

Blake nodded.

"Then I can only say that such a device will be as futile as the other. You had just stabbed him as we rode up, and that's what we shall have to swear to."

The young man showed the first trace of active fear he had exhibited since he recognized the two horsemen.

Suggests a Search.

"You saw me strike him?"

"No, but it was plain you had just done so."

"But I was only trying to pull out the knife."

"You'll have difficulty in proving that."

Blake made a gesture of despair.

"Then I suppose it's all up with me," he said.

"Wait," he added a moment later, with some bitterness, "if I can't rely on your friendship I shall have to begin contriving my defence in spite of you, I suppose. Do you mind helping me to search the vicinity, for the man who did this thing?"

Grayson looked at him in surprise.

"For what man? Are you going to try to deny this thing in spite of what I have told you?"

"Do you think I am going to accept it meekly," the young fellow flared back at him. "You won't aid me, and you're the very one I would have looked to for aid. In that case I'll have to do what I can without it. Wickliffe was too much everybody's enemy to make such a fuss about, it seems to me, but if you're on his side now he's dead why all right, that's your lookout."

Walton, who had listened to the dialogue without comment, but had been observing Blake closely, interrupted at this point. He had hunted among the grass where the knife had been tossed and he now held the weapon.

"Have you your hunting knife about you, Harry?" he asked. "That would help to clear the affair somewhat."

The boy paled and stammered under the question. His hand rested on his belt at the left side and closed upon an empty leather sheath.

"No," he faltered, "I must have lost it. It must have dropped out along the road somewhere."

With full desire to give Blake the benefit of any circumstance, however slight, the two men searched the bushes on all sides of the spot, but discovered nothing further that had the slightest bearing upon the case. Then sadly, but determined to do what in their capacity as citizens the law demanded of them, they prepared to take their prisoner to the village. Grayson buckled one end of a strap to the bit of Blake's horse, which was found in the orchard, and took the other in his hand.

"If you attempt to escape, Harry, I am armed," he said firmly, and this was the only word that passed among the members of the little cavalcade until the village was reached. Blake was lodged in the jail on the Magistrate's orders.

The body of Wickliffe was taken to the town hall that night and Ribbold, the prosecutor, was summoned. He arrived next day and Grayson laid the case before him in its entirety. Blake had been on ill terms with the victim for a year, following a dispute concerning the attentions of the elder man to a young woman to whom Blake was attached. They had had no further collision until the meeting at the roadside inn. The former quarrel apparently had been forgotten in the meanwhile, but, warmed by drink, they had carried a matter of politics to personal ground. Then had come an insult, a scuffle, and Wickliffe had left, promising trouble. Motive was thus fully afforded and testimony as to Blake's actions after Wickliffe's departure would weigh heavily toward proving that he had followed the other with deliberate intention of mischief.

The weapon with which the murder had been committed had been made the final step in perfecting the evidence. Grayson had found the dealer who had sold a hunting knife to the young man. He had identified it positively as the one shown to him by Grayson. Servants at the Blake house had further identified it. Members of the gathering at the inn could swear that when Blake was in the place his knife was in its sheath. Nothing could be clearer or more satisfactory.

Wickliffe's horse, covered with dust and lather, had returned to its owner's stable the next morning. Two pistols, still charged, were found in the holsters.

Easy to Convict.

The prosecutor found the only question in the degree of murder involved, and felt assured that he could establish a premeditated crime. This view was borne out by the fact that no arms had been found on the body of Wickliffe, not even a knife. It seemed likely that Wickliffe had delayed his journey and waited for Blake along the road, but the natural supposition was that his intention in this had been only to renew the quarrel with words and threats, or, at most, to submit their differences to an encounter with fists. This would account for the fact the two men had left the road as they would have done if in search of a spot where they might be free from interruption. The theory was that Blake, finding his enemy without adequate means of defence, had taken advantage of his helplessness to kill him. But the haste with which he left the inn, the impatience to follow Wickliffe and the raw welt of insult from which he suffered all pointed to a determination to murder at the first opportunity.

At his trial Blake told a story of having heard a cry while riding along the road and of riding behind the orchard to find Wickliffe on the ground with the knife in the wound. He had not started out with the intention of overtaking Wickliffe, he said. He declared that he did not see any one near Wickliffe or in the vicinity until Grayson and Walton rode up. As to the knife, he could not attempt to explain the loss of his own, but counsel for the defence took the position that the one found in his hand was not the one he had carried. Attempts to shake the identification, however, were unavailing, and no other knife was produced. In fact, the case was so free from doubt as to place little responsibility upon the jury. There was but one possible view of the circumstances. The testimony of Grayson and Walton amounted to direct evidence, so strong was it; no single fact was incompatible with guilt, nor was any other construction than guilt possible when all facts were taken together. The prosecutor cleverly worked out his theory of a premeditated crime, and as no claim of self-defence or sudden anger was advanced the verdict of guilty in the first degree was returned.

Blake's imprisonment affected him mentally and physically and his execution hastened an end that apparently was inevitable within a few months.

* * * * * * *

The judge who had presided at the trial of Blake received a communication from the county jail one day about a year after the execution of the young man. He was requested to visit a murderer then resting under sentence of death who, according to the message from the head jailer, had matters of importance to confess. The judge, albeit sceptical concerning the information imparted by condemned criminals, consented to visit the man within an hour. When he arrived he found Grayson and Walton, to whom similar messages had been despatched that morning. There was as yet no inkling of the case which the murderer, Deemes, wished to throw light upon.

The three were conducted to the death cell. The prisoner rose to meet them. He was a tall man, with hollow cheeks and sharp, narrow eyes.

"You are the judge who passed sentence on Harry Blake for the murder of Wickliffe?" he asked.

The judge nodded.

"And you gentlemen were the two important witnesses against him?"

Grayson and Walton signified their assent.

Why He Killed Wickliffe.

"Then you sent an innocent man to his death, and you others were the means of so sending him," said Deemes. "I killed Wickliffe. I know perfectly well that you think this is another case of a criminal seeking to take the crimes of another on himself, a familiar peculiarity, you will say. But this is the truth.

"I was one of Wickliffe's right hand men some years ago. It does not matter how I came to be, but I did his dirty work for him, as you can find out if you take the trouble to investigate. I'm not trying to make a grand stand play, but I'd been used to better things and finally we quarrelled. I left him. He wasn't willing to let it drop there. One of the ways of that slimy snake was to keep his grudges in storage and find a means of settling them sooner or later. He followed me out of the county to Albany, where I was trying to be decent, and took me off the only straight job I'd had for years and told me there wasn't a place in the State he couldn't find me. He was afraid of me because I knew too much about him and he was trying to get me out of his territory.

"I told him all I wanted was to be let alone, but he wouldn't. So I came down here to even up with him. I let him think my game was to blackmail him first, and perhaps I should have for a while. I was coming along the road that day and met him riding. He wanted to pass, but I told him I was through with letting him take the upper hand and that he'd find it to his advantage to have a talk with me. So he rode off behind the orchard and dismounted and we started to talk.

"He got mad, the way he always did when he was crossed, and words led to blows. He struck me in the face and when we grappled my hand fell on a knife stuck in his belt. I stabbed him with it and left him dying. I rode away on his horse just as young Blake was coming through the orchard in answer to his cries.

"I kept in hiding till it was all over, but I followed the case. You two witnesses came up just after Blake and saw him stooping over Wickliffe. He probably was just as glad the man was dead as I was, but he had nothing to do with it."

Grayson, pale with horror at these revelations, still clung to a final chance that the prisoner's statement was untrue.

"But the knife?" he gasped. "It was Harry's own knife."

"I know," nodded Deemes, with a sneer. "You never thought of that scuffle they had, did you? It's perfectly plain. All the gentlemen who were at the inn that afternoon testified to a fight between Wickliffe and Blake. But nobody stopped to think that Wickliffe might have pulled Blake's knife out of the sheath in the mixup, or that it might have fallen and he picked it up. If you hadn't interfered so promptly, though, you would have known it, for Wickliffe would have tried to kill Blake on the spot, if I knew anything of the temper of the man."

A careful investigation of this confession showed it to be true in all parts that could be tested. A re-examination of the members of the party at the inn showed that Deemes' suggestion concerning the knife probably was correct. Several of them recalled that Wickliffe, when dragged aside, had held one arm stiffly at his side, with the hand doubled under the cuff.

Blake's delay along the road to account for the fact that Grayson and Walton had nearly caught up with him when he heard Wickliffe's first cry remained the only unexplained point. This was cleared up by the belated testimony of a farmer's boy, who said he had seen Wickliffe ride behind the orchard with a man on foot and later had seen Blake stop and pluck some apples from an overhanging branch.

Visit Of The Press Delegates To Home Of The Big Guns Description Of Manufacture

The Sheffield Telegram of June 17, says of the visit of the Imperial Press Conference delegates to Vicker's works:

The Imperial delegates, with their ladies and those who were privately entertaining some of the visitors, assembled shortly before eleven o'clock at the River Don Works of Messrs. Vickers, Sons, and Maxim, where they spent a busy, instructive, and extremely interesting morning. They were received by Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Vickers, and conducted on an extensive tour through some of the chief departments of this great manufactory of the huge armaments of war. The guests—the ladies not less than the men—appeared to be vastly impressed by all that they saw in what is one of the most important workshops of the world; and coming so closely after the imposing naval spectacle at Spithead—where they viewed a comprehensive mobilisation of the finished products of war, the mighty battleships in all their strength and majesty—the inspection of armour plates and 12-inch guns and gun shieldings in the making must have brought home to them with redoubled force the resources of the Empire in naval defence, and the sacrifice which the maintenance of that defence must necessarily involve.

What strikes the imagination of most outsiders in witnessing the processes of the heavy Sheffield trades for the first time is the sense of tremendous power and control exercised by a force in which the human element is so little noticeable as to have been brought down apparently to the irreducible minimum. We saw yesterday furnaces pouring fiery streams of molten steel into great ladles that were carried as easily as a child's cradle by powerful overhead cranes from one side of a workshop as large as a church to the other; another crane 70 feet high carried a gigantic tube for a Dreadnought gun with perfect ease and balance; a glowing armour plate, that it would have been death to touch, was passed in and out of the rolling mill, and squeezed and pressed as if it had no more dignity than a pancake. These and many other characteristic operations seemed to be automatic. There are no hordes of workmen bustling to and fro and betting in each other's way at Messrs. Vickers. You see a workman here and a workman there, each quietly and steadily attending to his particular machine, large or small. There is no fuss and no fume. Everything proceeds with clockwork regularity. Yet there are 5,000 men at the River Don Works!

A Fine Spectacular Display

First of all the steel melting house was visited, where two furnaces were tapped, providing a good spectacular display for the ladies. Then the visitors were shown how a tube casing is shrunk into a 12-inch gun—drawn hot from a furnace by a crane that can lift 100 tons, and operates with half-a-mile of steel chain, and let down slowly over the gun, contracting as it cools. In the planing shop was witnessed the machining of the armour plates, and some time was spent upon an inspection of the great gun shields—11 or 12 inches thick—that are being built for the Neptune, the battleship seen at Portsmouth by the delegates. Next the rolling mill. The rolling of an armour plate is an operation which has been described many times, and watched many times. There is something perennially fascinating in the spectacle. The great armour plate making firms reserve the sight for visitors as a tour de force which never fails to produce a thrill or two. It did not fail on this occasion, when a mass of steel, glowing with the intensity of heat, was passed backwards and forwards between the rollers. There were the usual faint screams from the ladies following the sudden shower of sparks that arose when the brush-wood was thrust on to the plate to eliminate the scale and the usual historic joke was served up concerning the fair visiter who once thanked a director for furnishing such a pretty shower of fireworks specially for her, but thought he was wasting the steel. After the rolling mill, the gun shops, where large and small guns were being bored, turned and finished. Around the rolling mill, the gun shops Around one gun we saw 150 miles of wire being coiled to give it the proper elasticity. But most interest was perhaps excited on the breech mechanism—amazing in its ingenious simplicity and inevitable action—of a 12-inch finished gun. The final operation that the visitors saw was a little out of chronological order with regard to the guns. It was the forging of a 12-inch jacket in a hydraulic press that could squash an elephant or open a nut with equal thoroughness and precision.

Stock Market Last Week Was Decidedly Irregular--Railroad Earnings Increase

New York, July 3 (Special)—Movements in the stock market during the past week have been very irregular, but the majority of active issues closed with fractional losses. Reading, Union Pacific and United States Steel common showed exceptional weakness during the latter part of the week. There has been very little buying for the foreign account, while the London market developed strength on account of the satisfactory outlook for July settlements. An extraordinary spectacle was witnessed on the stock exchange of a call money rate, on the day previous to the largest disbursements but one of the year at no time exceeded two per cent. Absolutely no effect was produced on the money market by the return by the banks of $25,000,000 of Government money. A considerable portion of this money has already been transported from the interior to this city, and will doubtless be covered into the Treasury by the New York banks acting for their out-of-town correspondents.

Gross earnings of nearly all the railroads continue to meet expectations in the way of increases this year over the corresponding periods of last year; but shrewd investors this year do not believe that with the expansion of business to its former normal proportions, net earnings will continue to show the same ratio that they have been doing throughout the depression. There are two reasons why the gross returns cannot be expected to continue to yield such a large ratio of net returns. It is well known that after the panic of 1907 the railroads did not devote to maintenance any more than was actually necessary. Another factor tending to reduce the ratio of net earnings to gross receipts is that from now on there will be a resumption of the shipment of much low grade freight, such as steel and iron, whose transportation, though profitable to the railroads, entails a greater cost for maintenance on account of the heavy class of freight, causing more wear and tear on both rails and rolling stocks.

Considerable buying of railroad equipment is expected for July. The Chicago, Burlington & Quincy is in the market for 1,000 freight cars. The Santa Fe has ordered 10,000 tons of tie plates. The Chicago & Northwestern has ordered 1,000 tons of bridge material and the Interborough Company of New York are placing orders for steel subway and elevated cars. The United States Steel Corporation does not expect any loss on account of the strikes that may be declared in some of its sheet and tin plate mills.

Reports of deterioration in the condition of cotton in some of the states of minor production are hardly to be taken as indicative of a general change since the June Report was published.

Miss Ella Johnson of Peterborough, is the guest of her sister, Miss Mary Johnson.

Miss Loretta Kelly left on Friday to spend her vacation in Peterborough and Stony Lake.

The 1st of July Celebration in Havelock, proved a much better success than for many years past. The weather was everything to be desired and consequently the attendance was very large. People from Hastings, Marmora, Campbellford, Norwood, Peterborough and other towns including many from the country, took this opportunity of visiting Havelock, the busy, thriving and pretty little railroad centre. The town was prettily decorated for the occasion with bunting and appropriate mottoes, as was also the store windows and many of the citizens took great interest in making their homes look bright and cheerful with artistic decorations. The morning brought most of the people in, as the school children parade was billed for 10.30 a.m., but on account of the delay of some of the schools, it was postponed until 1.30 p.m. A prize of $10.00 was awarded and was won by the Victoria School of which Miss Laura Kelly is the teacher.

The day's sport at the Park and pleasure grounds commenced at 1.30 o'clock with a football match between Norwod and Havelock, ending in a tie, 1-1.

This was only a pick-up team of Havelock as the regular went to Hampton to play with Bowmanville.

A baseball bmatch between Havelock and Marmora, Havelock winning by a score of 22-13.

The Horse Races proved very interesting especially to the men, Mr. Rolly Smith of town winning first prise which caused rears of cheering. A number of small sports were also run off which greatly amused both old and young and valuable prises were warded, a 1st, 2nd and 3rd prize in each race.

The Citizens' Band was in attendance and were indeed generous with their many pretty selections.

In the evening, a concert was given in the Town Hall by the Havelock minstrels, and was greeted by a full town before the opening of t hespring house. The gate receipts in the afternoon amounted to $300 and concert receipts were $75,00. About 5.30 in the afternoon word was received by by Mr. Ed. Fennell stating the result of the game at Bowmanville, score 5-2. Another victory for Havelock and the citizens were indeed pleasantly relieved of the great suspence waiting to hear the results.

The Football Boys were met at the Local by the Band and the station platform was crowded with people to welcome the winners home. Fog signals were put on the track, and loud cheers were heard as the train pulled into the station. The boys were met and a torch light procession headed by the band paraded the town. Havelock wins the cup, Hurrah for the boys. The boys will next play the winners of the Western district. Date and place as yet are not arranged.

I'll Explain Why I Always Drive a GENDRON

"You see the breaking of the springs causes the baby drives more trouble than any other weakness in carriage cars. But there is no spring weakness in the GENDRON car. Note that double curve. It is exclusive with the GENDRON. It so distributes the strain that the spring never breaks.

And then the wheels,—you see they are specially welded, and cannot warp or break.

Note also that little rubber cap over the nut of the axle. Sometimes when I have a restless passenger, I want to drive the car around the house without scratching the furniture—it is a little point, but a good one. The materials for all the GENDRON cars are the very best in the bodies, tops and every other part. There is style and service in every GENDRON model—Canadian made, so that any unexpected accident can be easily remedied."

Havelock, June 28th, 1909.

Mr. P. S. Baines:

Dear Bro.,—We, the members of the Epworth League and choir of the Methodist Church here, having learned that you are about to sever your connection with Havelock, cannot allow this opportunity to pass without expressing to you the high-esteem in which we hold you. The genial manner and stirling Christian character which you have always manifested have been pleasing to us. The exercise of your musical and literary talents as a member of the choir and the league, have been highly satisfactory to us. Now that you are leaving the noble profession of teaching for the still higher and nobler one of preaching the Gospel of Jesus Christ, and the winning of men to the service of their Master, we pray you may be a true ambassador of Christ. Please accept this locket and chain, as a tangible expression of our appreciation of your services, and of our wishes for your future happiness and success.

Signed on behalf of the choir and Epworth League,

MRS. R. CAMPNEY,
MRS. H. CURTIS.

Mr. Baines replied in a few well chosen remarks, expressing his regret at leaving Havelock and his gratitude for the gifts presented to him.

Farmers Near Fraserville Say Dogs Worry The Sheep

Examiner Special.

Fraserville, July 6.—Messrs. W. J. Tinlin and T. Bothwell attended the races at Port Hope Thursday afternoon, July 1st.

Miss Olive Howell, soloist, of Peterborough, will assist the choir, at both afternoon and evening services, at the re-opening of the Fraserville Church.

Miss Lillian Weatherill, of the P. O. T., spent Sunday with her parents, in the village.

The many friends of Mrs. Harry Brown will be pleased to learn that she is quite a lot better.

The evening service at the Presbyterian Church, Springville, is withdrawn, in order that the Presbyterians may attend the re-opening service, at Fraserville, without missing their own service.

The hay crop this season is reported very poor on account of the dry weather. Some of the farmers have started haying, and state that it is not half a crop; some state that it is literally burned with the sun. According to this report we may expect the price of hay to be soaring next winter.

The farmers surrounding the village complain that their sheep have been driven away for miles from home, and one farmer states that one of his sheep was worried. Large flocks of strange sheep are wandering about in the vicinity of the village at the present time.

Sunday School will be held in the Orange Hall next Sunday, July 11th, at 9 o'clock a.m., in order to not interfere with the re-opening of the church at 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

A special collection will be taken at the Fraserville Methodist Church next Sunday, for the expenses in connection with the church re-opening.

Weather Conditions In June Favourable For Fruit Growing

Ottawa, July 6th.—Weather conditions in Canada have been favourable during the month of June for fruit development.

Apples.—Eastern Canada will have a large crop of winter apples from present indications. Early and fall varieties will not yield as heavily.

The apple prospects in British Columbia will hardly reach the average.

Pears.—An average crop is expected in the commercial pear sections of Ontario.

Plums are estimated somewhat lower, generally, since the heavy bloom, but are showing for an average crop, except in British Columbia where the crop will be light.

Peaches.—Early peaches are reported medium to full crop, late peaches medium. "Curl leaf" is very prevalent, affecting Elbertas particularly.

Grapes.—Concords promise a full crop, white and red grapes, medium to full crop.

Cherries will be a good average crop.

Tomatoes promise a good crop.

Small Fruits promise well everywhere. Strawberries in Southern Ontario are a very large crop.

Insect and Fungus Diseases are fairly prevalent, but comparatively little damage is reported yet, except from the cankerworm in Nova Scotia.

United States.—Present indications show about an average crop to compete with Canadian winter stock.

Great Britain and Continental Europe.—The prospects are for not more than an average crop of fruit.

Foster Predicts Stormy Weather From The 13th To The 18th Inst

Examiner Special.

Washington, D.C., July 10.—Last bulletin gave forecasts of disturbance to cross continent 8 to 12, warm wave 7 to 11, cool wave 11 to 15. This disturbance was expected to inaugurate the most severe storm period of the month, and following that storm period to bring the coolest part of July, about 18 to 21.

Next disturbance will reach Pacific coast about 13, cross Pacific slope by close of 14, great central valleys—longitude 105 to 85—about 15 to 17, eastern states and provinces, 18. Warm wave will cross Pacific slope about 13, great central valleys 15, eastern states and provinces 17. Cool wave will cross Pacific slope about 16, great central valleys 18, eastern states and provinces 20.

This will be a bad one and I repeat the warning. The dangerous features of this great storm period will reach very few people, but as I cannot now point out the isolated spots where the storms will be dangerous the many people must suffer some inconvenience in order that a few may be protected.

Most people can arrange their affairs so as not to be where they cannot run for shelter at any time from July 13 to 20. I have timed the passage of the low barometer across the continent as best I can. It is expected to immediately follow the warm wave and on the border land between the low barometer, which is the storm centre, and the warm wave will probably occur the dangerous features of the storm.

I cannot give the exact date of the severest part of the storm, but I believe it will occur not far from July 17. July 11 and 24 are also dates that should be watched.

Within one or two days of July 17 will be an earthquake period in countries where these shake-ups occasionally occur. Farther than this no one can yet locate earthquakes. I do not expect these earthquakes to occur in Canada, nor in the United States.

Temperatures will continue downward till after July 20, and showers will be frequent in most places till that date.

Moon and Weather.

As a rule we cannot depend on the moon for weather changes. It is a very fickle minded member of the solar system, and, like some people, usually agrees with whatever company it happens to be with. The moon, as a rule, does not control the weather, but, as a rule, the planets control the moon. This may seem strange, but who ever investigates the subject will find the above statement to be true.

There is one condition, however, in which the moon stubbornly contends for the mastery in weather making. If you will talk to an old sailor, who is a master in operating sail boats that cross the great oceans, he will tell you that when new moon and perigee and the moon's node occur together then look out for squalls.

That was the first problem in planetary meteorology I undertook to solve and I found, by the weather records, that the old sailors, the "old tars", as they are called, are onto their job; they know much about weather matters.

"Look Out For That Little Cold"

The wise physican says "cure it before it grows large and dangerous. To-day is the time to commence treatment." The remedy, the best one, which doctors say surpasses all others, is "Nerviline." Rub it on the chest and throat, use it as a gargle, and then take 20 drops in hot water—Cold will disappear.

"Last spring I caught a severe cold," writes George V. Smart, of Gibson P.O. "Every cough rasped my throat, which became perfectly raw. When almost in desperation I was advised to try Nerviline. I rubbed it on and used it as a gargle. Immediate relief followed. For breaking up colds it's the great remedy of to-day.

Use "Nerviline" It Cures Colds

Nerviline will surprise you. It's the best household remedy for coughs, colds, sore chest, croup, and internal pains of every kind. Large bottles have been sold by all dealers for nearly fifty years at 25c. Don't forget Nerviline when you go to the druggists.

Only the Best Sugar Makes the Best Preserves

Does all sugar look alike to you? It isn't you may be sure. One sugar differs from another sugar in sweetness.

Sugar is sugar, but it is not sugar when it is something else. And, alas, for the weakness of money-making mortals it is sometimes something else.

One sugar differs from another in what it is made of. One sugar made from sugar-cane differs from another made from sugar-beets.

One sugar differs from another in purity and wholesomeness. Sugar can be made clean like any other food product. And, as it is almost the commonest thing we eat, sugar ought to be about the cleanest thing we eat.

And your preserves, which you want to be the very best, require the best of sugar.

St. Lawrence Granulated Sugar meets the exacting requirements of the best preserves.

Dr. Milton L. Hersey, the Government Analyst, in a careful and impartial analysis, reports St. Lawrence Granulated Sugar to be 99 99/100 to 100 per cent pure cane sugar, with no impurities whatever.

This season promises to be a good one for berries and other fruits—just the season to get them of good quality and cheap to preserve.

Your home-made preserves are by far the best, and you know all about their real goodness, if you select the fruit and the sugar with equal care.

The best fruit and St. Lawrence Granulated Sugar, with your skill in preserving, will stock you finely for the coming winter.

And don't simply order "some sugar" from the grocer, letting him send you some nameless, ordinary sugar.

Get sugar with a name. Get St. Lawrence Granulated Sugar, in 20 lb. cotton bags, with the name on it, to guarantee the brand, the full weight, and the cleanliness of the sugar itself.

When you buy it in bulk, scooped out of a barrel, you cannot be sure of all these important points in your sugar.

You save money by this and get better, cleaner sugar. Try it and see! Then you'll be sweet enough to thank us for telling you all about this matter.

How Some Inventions Have Been Involved

Interesting Story of How the Many Well Known Things Have Become Perfected—Dates are Often Mixed as Well as Question to Whom the Credit Should be Given.

Great ideas are not born; they evolve. Invention, strictly speaking, is little more than a new combination of those images which have been previously gathered and deposited in the memory, says Sir Joshua Reynolds.

While Sir Joshua's remark was intended to apply more particularly to art, it is equally applicable to other things.

Edison is certainly entitled to all the credit accorded him as the inventor of the phonograph, though Fenby had patented a phonograph for reproducing piano music fourteen years before Edison's patents were applied for.

McCormick is properly credited as the inventor of the reaping machine, though he was beaten in the race to the patent office in 1834 by Obed Hussey Both McCormick and Hussey, however, were familiar with the patents taken out in 1830 by Richard French and John Hawkins, and some English historians claim priority over all for the impractical invention of the Rev. Patrick Bell in 1827.

Who Invented Telegraphy

The electric telegraph is credited to Morse, who made his first public demonstration in 1835 over a wire half a mile long.

The first utterance that set this idea in motion adtes back to the middle of the seventeenth century, and several crude systems were in use before 1800.

Jonathan Grant, jr., on Oct. 4, 1800, sent a message from Boston to Marthas Orchard, a distance of ninety miles, and received an answer within ten minutes.

In 1816, Dr. John R. Coxe, and in 1821, the inventive genius of Wheatstone made interesting experiments that were links in the chain of telegraphic development.

In 1827, Harrison Dyar transmitted signals over a line two miles, on Long Island.

Then came Morse, whose three years of experimenting resulted in the public exhibit of 1835.

Dr. Charles T. Jackson, who was recognised and rewarded by the French academy of sciences, claimed that Morse had appropriated his ideas.

The telegraph was not born; it was evolved.

Wireless was not conceived in the brain of Marconi; for Lindsay of Dundee had taken out a patent on this idea—for idea are really patentable things—in 1854, twenty years before Marconi was born.

Clocks and Gravitation

Clocks are credited to the thirteenth century; yet it is known that Pope Paul 1., in 760 A.D., sent a timepiece to King Pepin of France.

The theory of gravitation is a discoverery attributed to Newton and bears date of 1687, notwithstanding that the same idea was advanced by Kepler seventy years before.

In 1862, Halley discovered the comet that still bears his name; yet Apian described the same comet in 1531.

The airship and the aeroplane of our day are but the offspring of the old Montgolfier ballon of 1782.

An invention that made 1820 famous was Walker's lucifer match; but the same idea in crude form, was utilised by Kanckwitz in 1680.

Our great-grandmother's grandmothers used to roll up a piece of paper in the shape of a funnel through which to send out the call for meals to the men in the field. Edison elaborated the idea somewhat and patented the megaphone.

Fulton and the Steamboat

Can any man show reason why John Fitch should not share the honours showered on Fulton? Twenty years before the Clermont made its memorable run up the Hudson. John Fitch had proved the feasibility of steam navigation on the Deleware. He had propelled a boat at a speed of eight miles an hour

In 1790 he ran a boat regularly between Burlington and Philadelphia, carrying passengers and kept up a speed of seven and a half miles an hour on the average In 1794 Samuel Morey propelled a sternwheel boat from Hartford to New York city; and in 1804 John C Stevens launched a screw propelled boat and ran it across the Hudson from Hoboken to New York, the principle of the screw propeller having been demonstrated by Hooke in 1681

Then, in 1807, came Fulton's Clermont, making its run from New York to Albany; a most marvellous achievement but proved by actual demonstration at least seventeen years before.

"Fulton's Folly," as the skeptics called it, was evolved from earlier steam boats, "even as the pianoforte was the child of the harpsichord, which in turn was the offspring of the spinnet.

Engine and the Sewing Machine

Because of the extremely practical turn of Watt's inventive skill, he is entitled to the honour of inventing the steam engine, though Thomas Newcomen had built the Dartmouth engine in 1712, more than a half century before Watt's invention, and in his "Century of Inventions," published in 1663, the Marquis of Worcester had described a steam engine in considerable detail.

The invention of the sewing machine is one of the most interesting evolutionary romances in the history of human progress.

Stone, Henderson and Greenough had experimented extensively with the double pincer idea, one to seize the needle above and one below, Heilmann used a double pointed needle, with the eye in the centre, and Thimonier and Ferrand had invented a chain stitch machine.

In 1834 Walter Hunt originated the extension arm idea with a needle similar to the one now in general use; but before he applied for his patent, in 1854, he had been forestalled by Elias Howe, who will always be known as the inventor of the sewing machine.

If Hunt had not been so great a laggard he might have won fame as an inventor; but Howe is entitled to all the credit that has been given him.

Like all great inventors, however, the sewing machine was the product of many minds.

Stenography — Typewriter

Stenography (or phonogrraphy, as it was then called) was invented in 1837 by Isaac Pitman; but as far back as 1588 Dr. Timothy Bright had published a work on shorthand.

In the invention of the typewriter Remington must share the glory, if not his profits, with Sholes, Glidden, Foucault and Wheatstone.

Not only in inventions, but in discovereries and beliefs the germ of evolution is every busy.

That the earth is round, was not generally accepted theory in the time of Columbus, though Thales taught and Pythagoras demonstrated the theory several centuries before the Christian era.

Pantheism is attributed to Spinoza and Kant; but the doctrine was preached by Xenophanes, 500 B.C.

The idea of evolution itself is inseparably linked with Darwin's name, though the theory was taught by Lucetius before the Nativity.

In calling America after Vespucci we do Columbus little honour, and in according the fame of the discovery to Columbus we are not wholly fair to those who preceded him.

THE PAINS OF THE AGED

Are usually due to the tendency of the kidneys to wear out as age advances, giving rise to the accumulation of poisons in the blood and causing backache, lumbago, aching limbs and rheumatism. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are particularly prized by aged people because they can be relied upon to invigorate the action of the liver, kidneys and bowels, and so remove the cause of pains and aches.

DO MEN UNDERSTAND WOMEN?

There probably never lived a man who didn't flatter himself that he understood women.

"They're a pussle, of course, to most men, but I think I know a little about them," one hears him say in a lordly, superior sort of way. There is only one answer to be made to this satisfied gentleman. The man who think she knows most about women really knows least.

In point of fact, It is impossible for any man, however clever and experienced, fully to understand woman. One woman he may learn a little of—very little—and then he is continually taken aback by new developments in her on which he has not calculated; but let him only begin to apply the knowledge so learned to his treatment of another of the same sex, and he will be bewildered and confronted to discover that the same rules will not apply to them both.

Shakespeare, who had a subtler insight into human nature than any writer ho ever lived, was right when he said of woman. "Time cannot stale her infinite variety." And it is this very complexity of character, this fleeting change of mood and disposition, which makes her so desperately perplexing to slower witted man.

To the ordinary man she is a perfectly sealed book.

"I can't make her out at all," She is a mass of contradictions," "She never does or says what you expect."

These are a few of the plaints made by men about the girls in whom they begin to take a special interest. If she were constructed on the simple lines of a man in mind and heart, her lover would better know how to win her; but, in that case, it is to be doubted whether he would care to take the trouble. It is her bewildering and puzzling nature that makes her chief charm in his eyes.

"Do you understand women?" asked a tiimd youth of a man who had seen the world.

"Oh, yes. I understand that there's no understanding them, and that is as far as a man can ever get," was the crushing answer.

Women understand each other with such ease; they read each other's motives and interpret aright their looks and tones anr unspoken speech—it is all such plain sailing to them that they look on with a kind of compassion on a man's blundering ignorance of the sex. That is why a woman who is popular among men is so very often quite the other thing with women. The poor, deluded men who take her precisely at the valuation she intends them to cannot comprehend why her own sex cannot see her many lovely qualities, and, in their blindness, they complacently set down the reason to jealousy. The real fact is that a woman can't deceive women, try as she may. They read her through and through, and estimate her accordingly.

That men never have fully understood women is plain to any one who has made a study of the male novelists' works. Even the foremost names in the profession have this one point of weakness. Their women are admirably painted from the outside. They are charming very often, and attractive, and full of grace. They move and walk about the stage and conduct themselves in a life-like manner enough, but any women can see that, after all, they are only pasteboard dummies; they lack the touch of Promethean fire that would make them flesh and blood.

CLANRICARDE ITEMS

Examiner Special.

Clanricade, July 7.—Repairing the roads is the principal work of the day—gravel and sand in abundance.

Miss G. Jonas, of Apsley, paid a short call to friends in this vicinity one day last week.

Dominion Day was very quiet in our settlement, no signs of a holiday being visible except the school flag flapping. The majority of the ladies spent the day picking berries.

School vacation commenced on Saturday last. Miss A. Bullied, teacher, left for her home in Apsley, on Friday.

If You Rid Poisons FROM THE BLOOD

By awakening the liver and kidneys, you will be freed of pains, aches and the tired spring feeling.

Poisons only accumulate in the blood. Pains and aches have the same cause.

Poisons only accumulate in the blood when the liver and kidneys get torpid and slow in action and when, as a result, the bowels become constipated.

Get the liver and kidneys working right and away go the poisons. That is their work, to rid the blood of poisons.

When they fail because of the excessive accumulation of poisons in the spring, use Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and they will soon resume their natural functions with renewed energy and vigour.

No other organs of the body can filter the poisons from the blood so you must get the liver and kidneys active if you are going to restore healthful digestion, regular bowel action and free the body of pains, aches and feelings of fatigue and depressing.

It is only natural that the liver and kidneys should give out in the spring, when the blood is usually loaded with impurities, but you can quickly and certainly set them right by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

This is the greatest of spring medicines because it is unique in its direct and combined action on the liver and kidneys.

Put it to the test this spring, and you you will be astonished at its wonderful prompt and thorough action on the digestive and excretory systems. You can be certain that it will move the bowels, awaken the action of the liver and kidneys and completely purify the blood. One pill a dose. 25c a box, at all dealers or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

FESTIVAL A SUCCESS

Enjoyable Evening at the Gilmour Memorial Baptist Church—Rain Failed to Mar the Affair.

A FINE PROGRAMME

Special to The Examiner:—

Central Smith, July 6th.—In spite of the cool, threatening weather on the evening of Friday, July 2nd, a record crowd assembled at the Gilmour Memorial Baptist church on the occasion of the annual strawberry festival given by the Young Men's Bible Class.

This class is an organised body under the able leadership of Mr. Alex. Campbell and is one of the strong factors in all branches of work at Gilmour. In social events the young men's class has a reputation to maintain, and on Friday evening the good record was upheld both in the manner of serving refreshments in a dainty way and in presenting a pleasing and varied programme.

The church lawn was tastefully decorated with flags and chinese lanterns and a grand time was anticipated in the open air, but unfortunately (and it was also quite fortunate) a shower of rain came on and all were compelled to retreat to the basement where the tables were again set in order and the decorations re-arranged. There was not a single murmur at this interruption in the procedure because both the rural and the city visitors knew that the greatest blessing which could visit them was rain—and plenty of it.

The first consideration was to lighten the tables of their burden, and they were laden with all the eatables that the most fastidious taste could desire. In fact it was a real supper with strawberries and pure fresh cream from the nearby farm of Warden Scott, added as an extra touch.

As a sort of side line to this extensive business, a booth was conducted, and it proved to be a popular feature, as ice cream, fruits and candies could be obtained from the obliging and attentive clerks.

Even though the proceedings of the early part of the evening had been hastened along, it was nine o'clock when the crowd reassembled in the auditorium to listen to a carefully prepared programme. For this considerable outside talent had been secured and included the Salvation Army Band of Peterborough, the Murray St. Bap. Quartette, Mr. Ferguson and Miss Kiou, also of Murray St., and Miss Branch, of Selwyn.

The chairman of the evening was Mr. A. H. Campbell and on the platform there were Rev. J. R. Bonnar, pastor of Gilmour, and Rev. Mr. Cruikshanks, pastor of the Bridgenorth Methodist church.

PROGRAMME.

The numbers on the programme were as follows:

"All Hail the Power," by the Band.
Prayer.
Band Selection.
Address by president of the class, Mr. W. Scott.
Solo—Miss Branch.
Address—Rev. Mr. Cruikshanks.
Band Selection.
Murray St. Quartette.
Address—Rev. Mr. Bonnar.
Band Selection.
Solo—Mr. Ferguson.
Recitation—"Billy's Rose" by a member of the Band. This number brought forth very hearty applause.
Song and Chorus by the Band.
Solo—Mr. Ferguson.
Band Selection.
God Save the King.

The seating capacity of the commodious country church was taxed to the limit and this gives an idea of the splendid patronage which attended the efforts of the young men. For the management of this affair two committees were appointed—one being the programme committee, consisting of Messrs. A. H. Campbell, Jos. Mann, Chas. Moore and W. Scott and the managing committee comprised of Messrs. B. Mann, W. Paul, G. Mann, E. Scott, R. Darling and N. Young.

From a financial point of view the festival was an entire success, as the sum of $20 remained after all expenses were paid and some new dishes purchased. This sum will be expended in improving the interior decorations of the church .

The young men are to be congratulated on the good results of their venture and it will give them encouragement to continue this sphere of work and usefulness.

SIMPLE MYSTERY OF CHEWING GUM

Chewing-gum has been called the mystery of confectionery, for, of all the millions of chewers there are very few who have any idea of what it really is they are masticating.

Chewing-gum is nothing but chicle mixed with sugar and flavouring; and chicle is the gum of a tree that grows plentifully in Mexico and Central America and that of recent years has been cultivated on a large scale in Yucatan, where the American Chicle Company, commonly known as the Chewing-gum Trust, owns several million acres of it.

The chicle tree is not unlike the India rubber tree, and the gum was first shipped to America by men who believed that in it they had a perfect substitute for rubber. In this however, they were mistaken, as it was found that the chicle gum was insoluble. Not to this day has any medium, acid or alka, spirit or ether, been found that will dissolve it. It can be melted, yes, but dissolved, no. The consequence was that the first shipments of chicle gum lay unsold and unsalable on the pier of the docks in Brooklyn. It was a reddish, rubbery looking substance and at first roused no little curiosity, but nobody was able to use it for any practical purpose, so there it lay for months.

One day a New Yorker happened to notice it. He picked up a piece and put it into his mouth and began chewing it. Its peculiar consistency struck him, and it occurred to him that if the stuff were only flavoured it would make a nice chew, its insolubility being in its favour for this purpose. He experimented with some more of it, refined it and found that it would be easy to impregnate it with flavouring and sugar. He made some inquiries as to where it came from, and whether a regular supply could be had, and bought the lot. This was the beginning of modern chewing-gum.

Practically all the crude chicle gum is shipped to Canada, where it is refined in Toronto before being sent to the factories in the United States. The reason for this is that there is a high ad valorem duty on chicle, and, as it is worth about 40 cents a pound and loses 25 per cent. of its weight in refining, the Chicle Company saves about $250,000 a year by refining it before shipment.

Murder Of Elsie Sigel May Be Added To List Of Unsolved

New York, July 8.—It now looks as if the police are willing to admit that the killing of Elsie Sigel, granddaughter of Gen. Franz Sigel, whose body was found in a trunk in the rooms occupied by the Americanised Chinaman William Leon over a chop suey restaurant at No. 782 Eighth Avenue, on the night of June 18 will be added to the long list of unsolved and unpunished murders that terrify readers of the criminal annals of this big city. The murder of Samuel Bersin, the east side painter, whose dismembered body as found wrapped in separate packages at the corner of Oliver and Henry streets on June 2 last, will never, it is now said in police circles, be solved by the arrest of the slayer, although the Detective Bureau has still a score of its best experts trying to ferret out some leading clue to Bersin's murderer.

Records of the Coroner's offices in Manhattan and the Bronx show that since January 1, 1906, there have been more than 112 murders committed in these two boroughs in which the perpetrators have not been brought to justice, and in many of which there has not even been an arrest.

Men have been arrested "on suspicion" of these cases,, but were discharged at once, the police having no evidence against them.

Bench warrants for twenty persons, indicted for murder in the first degree, in that time remain unexecuted in the Courts of General Sessions because of the failure of the police to apprehend those indicted. Although the police of nearly every city throughout the civilised world have searched for many of these indicted men they appear to have disappeared off the face of the earth. Several of the twenty men sought are known to have returned to Italy after slaying their victims here and are hidden by their neighbours in safety in that country. Their victims, for the most part, were Italians.

Asked if he ever found the police lax in their investigations, in cases of murder, Coroner Julius Harburger, President of the Board of Coroners in Manhattan, said yesterday:

"Not lax in big cases, and certainly not lax after I have pointed the way to them. But, oh, so slow in the cases in which the newspapers display little or no interest.

"Somehow the police are loth to suspect murder. Now, I am always looking for murder. I do not wish to appear to be criticising the police force as a whole in what I am saying, but I think the homicide bureau should get to work instantly after I have indicated a suspicion in my mind of murder in a case I have personally investigated."

Crusade Before the Murder

Capt. Galvin began his war against the white women of Chinatown six weeks before the Sigel murder and succeeded in putting an end to the gambling industry and opium smoking long before the girl's body was found. While Gavin's crusade eliminated the evils of Chinatown, it seriously hurt the business of the Celestials. With the girls gone and no "hop" smoking and gambling, the glitter that attracted many to the Chinese quarter was rubbed off and there remained little to be seen.

Sightseers who journeyed down to the yellow belt in "rubber-neck" waggons nightly found sight-seeing in Chinatown a farce.

On top of Galvin's vice crusade came the Sigel tragedy and the consequent public sentiment against the Chinese, which has resulted disastrously for many of the merchants doing business in Mott, Pell and Doyers streets. Things have come to such a sorry pass that yesterday a delegation of the wealthiest merchants in Chinatown started for Washington to plead with the Chinese Ambassador to take some action with a view to changing the sentiment of the white people toward the Orientals as a result of the Sigel murder.

A meeting was held at No. 16 Mott street, presided over by the Chinese Consul at New York, for the purpose of adopting measures to allay public feeling. All the merchants, especially those dealing in curios and who numbered white people among their best patrons, reported that ruin was staring them in the face and they saw no relief from present conditions until something is done to convince the Americans that the Chinese race should not be judged by the murderous act of one.

Next week a committee will wait on the Mayor and plead that he do something to set the respectable, law abiding Chinese right in the eyes of the American public.

LIVE STOCK IN CANADA

From Farm and Dairy.

Canada is declared by the Scottish Commissioners that visited the country last fall, to be pre-eminently suited for the breeding of good draught horses. Conditions are also favorable for the production of good mutton and wool, though the sheep industry has been falling back, partly owing to the almost incredible way in which the "pestiferous dog" is allowed to flourish. There is ample room, too, for improvement in the common flocks; though the Ontario pure-bred specialists are looked to—after Great Britain—by all North America for the supply of pure-bred rams. In contrast to the reduction of sheep, pigs have enormously increased, their quality throughout Canada is high, and hog culture is profitable.

For poultry keeping the Commissioners say, Canada possesses unique opportunities. The idea that warm housing is necessary for winter egg production is contradicted by experience. In the North-west turkeys seem to thrive so well that it might be profitable to specialise in them.

WHEN A MAN PROPOSES.

Does the American man ever really propose to the woman he marries?" was the astonishing question which came up for discussion recently at a gathering of individuals who are not only regarded as sane but above the average of intelligence. The discussion was started by the remark of a debutante that she enjoyed the acting of the comedian, William Collier, except when it came to the proposal scene, which she considered silly. Whereupon, a married man in the party said that a man proposing was always silly, and, knowing this, he rarely if ever finished asking a girl for her hand. Moreover, his wife—and various other wives around that particular dinner table—admitted that they had been obliged to mercifully assist in the painful operation, setting the floundering lover on his feet.

When approached on the topic and asked to explain the philosophy of his love scene, Mr. Collier replied:

"The American woman may enjoy reading a finely worked up love scene in a novel, but she mistrusts the man who follows such lines in making his proposal of marriage. The man who dilates on the colour of her eyes, the flush of her cheek, the beauty of her hand, is suspected by the real American girl. 'I wonder how many other girls have heard the same story?' she says under her breath, and then she puts him off while she finds out in a fashion purely feminine.

"The American girl knows when a man is liable to propose any minute. She knows that he has not loved her since they first met, but that the ailment has had a slow and sure growth. I'll guarantee that she has been silently studying his various efforts to secure a verdict, without closing his case, and if she loves him she is sorry for him. If she does not intend to marry him she is merely diverted. She could put him out of his misery in two minutes, but she wants to hear him say, 'I love you.'

"That is all she needs to know, and that is all he wants to say. A man in the act of proposing, unless it is a business arrangement, an international marriage, with a dot involved, is worthy of sympathy. He has no doubt of his own feelings, and once he thought he knew hers, but when he is face to face with the awful moment he suddenly thinks: 'What if she says "No!" The beads of perspiration start out on his forehead, his hands and feet get in is way, his tongue cleaves to the roof of his mouth, and from 'way,' way off he hears his voice in imbecile accents, sputtering, 'Don't you think Dr. Blank performs the marriage ceremony finely?' And a few minutes later he comes to—just as if the effects of laughing gas were passing off—and realizes that somehow, by a miracle of heaven, he has survived the ordeal and is engaged. And if she is a wise woman she never reminds him of the scene or tells him what a sorry figure he cut.

"Flowery speeches may slip off a linotype machine, but they stick in an American man's throat."

CORDOVA BOY VICTIM OF SERIOUS MISHAP

Was Driving a Load of Lumber Down a Hill When Tongue Came Out and Waggon Was Upset, Throwing Unfortunate Young Man Out and Breaking His Leg Above the Knee---Was Badly Shaken Up and Crushed by the Lumber Falling Upon Him.

Special to The Examiner.

Havelock, July 9.—A very serious accident occurred at Cordova to-day, when Harry Vansickle, son of Mr. John Vansickle, was injured so badly that it may yet prove fatal. He was driving down a hill with a load of lumber, when the tongue came out of the neck-yoke, and the waggon was upset, throwing the boy off. The lumber fell on top of the unfortunate young fellow and it was feared that he was killed. He was quickly rescued from his predicament when it was found that he had sustained a fracture of his leg above the knee, and was severely crushed. Dr. McKechnie, of Marmora, was called to attend to his injuries, and Mr. Vansickle is resting easily.

RAIN IS BADLY NEEDED AND WILL MEAN THOUSANDS TO FARMERS

Reports From Surrounding Townships Give an Idea of the Crop Conditions in This County--Situation is Almost Similar in All Sections---Outside Reports.

RAIN IS NOW PROMISED

Investigations reveal the following conditions as generally existing in this county:

Hay—Only half a crop.
Early Peas and Oats—Very poor.
Later Varieties—Will be good with rain.
Barley—Short and unpromising.
Fall Wheat—Fairly good.
Roots—In some sections poor; in others are doing fairly well.

Rain in the immediate future will be a veritable shower of gold. It will mean thousands of dollars to the farmers of this district and none need it worse than the farmers of our own county. It has been stated that two months have gone by since the last heavy shower and the amount of water that has fallen upon the land during that time has been most inadequate for the requirements of ordinary growth. The Examiner endeavoured this morning to secure an idea of the situation by interviewing farmers in the surrounding townships. The condition may be judged by the following reports which will be greatly improved if rain is received within a few days.

Otonabee.

Mr. Jas. Rose stated that early oats and peas were a failure for the most part and the fields which had been planted with them will likely be ploughed up and planted with something which will provide fodder. The late oats and peas are more promising and with rain will be a fair crop. Hay is thin and not much more than a half crop will be obtained. Barley is short, but the roots are fair, and potatoes look good, but in every instance rain is needed at once.

Douro.

Mr. J. J. Allen's report of conditions in Douro was something of the same nature. Hay, peas, oats, and barley are similar, but in regard to the roots some of the farmers have ploughed up their mangels and planted buckwheat. Fall wheat is none too promising. Rain will help the late oats and peas and save the crop.

Harvey.

Mr. Robert Shaw, Reeve of Harvey, stated that the northern township had fared better than those farther south and had received a certain amount of rain. Fall wheat that had not been winter killed was looking good. Hay would not register more than half a crop. Barley was very short, but peas have been promising, although the drouth was beginning to have an effect. Turnips and potatoes are good. Oats with rain in the near future, will be a fair crop.

Monaghan.

Mr. Fred E. Wilson remarked that the farmers of Monaghan would like to see a day's rain. It would save the situation for them and brighten the prospects. Oats are short and barley will only be about two thirds of a crop and early peas would not make much more than a half crop, and the late peas are just in bloom. Roots are in a fair condition, although the turnips are suffering from flea. Fall wheat is fairly good.

Other Places.

Mr. Jackson, of Emily, gave a report that showed conditions to be about the same as those stated to be existing in the other townships. A gentleman who was through Enniskillen lately states that the crops looked good from the road, but the need of rain was being experienced by all the farmers. The above is resolved into the fact that a good shower in a day or so will mean a large sum of money to the farmers of the county and to the entire province. The following despatches show that the conditions above mentioned are more than local.

Prescott, July 10.—Owing to the continued dry weather, the hay crop in this vicinity is ruined, and farmers are plowing up their meadows and sowing corn for ensilage.

Drought in Hastings.

Belleville, July 10. — The drought here is causing the farmers wakeful nights. Already the hay crop has suffered, and the late grain will deteriorate unless rain comes soon. Pastures, too, are poor. Fruit and potato crops promise well.

THE WRITER AND ATHLETE

The above photograph is one that should prove interesting to most Peterborough citizens as it is an excellent likeness of Mr. W. A. Bailey, whose name has become a household one here since he took up his residence in this city. Mr. Bailey is known to fame as the author of innumerable post card contributions, the bright and cheery style of which have made his effort with the pen eagerly read. It may not be so generally known that Mr. Bailey is an athlete of no mean ability. He made his appearance at the T.A.S. picnic on July 1st and distinguished himself by the bird-like manner in which he captured the high jump. He also won a one hundred yards' race in finished style, but was disqualified for some reason or other. Mr. Bailey is a canoeist, a bicyclist and a cricketer in addition to his other accomplishments and his versatality makes him a useful citizen of Peterborough.

The photograph was taken at the T. A. S. picnic.

FOR THEFT OF A HORSE

Samuel Innes in Police Court To-day—Remanded Until Wednesday.

Samuel Innes was arrested last evening by P. C. Newhall, and this morning appeared before Magistrate Deniste, charged with the theft of a horse and buggy, the property of Amos Baldwin. He elected to be tried summarily and pleaded not guilty. Neither the prosecution nor the defence were ready for trial and the prisoner was remanded to the cells until Wednesday next.

It appears that the son of the owner of the animal brought it to the city from the back country a day or so ago and left it in a local livery yard. The prisoner got it and is alleged to have tried to sell it. He had been boarding with the complainant.

WIZARD EDISON HAS MADE GOOD IN EARNEST FURNISHES SOLID CEMENT HOUSE FOR $1,200

Five Big Rooms, Including Attic and Bathroom, Large Hall and Basement in Addition---Six Different Styles of Architecture are Available---All Conveniences in and the Building Rentable for Little Over $6 a Month---Builders' Objections Overcome by the Inventor in His New Plans.

ONE OF THE SIX STYLES OF ARCHITECTURE PLANNED BY EDISON. (Side and Rear View.)

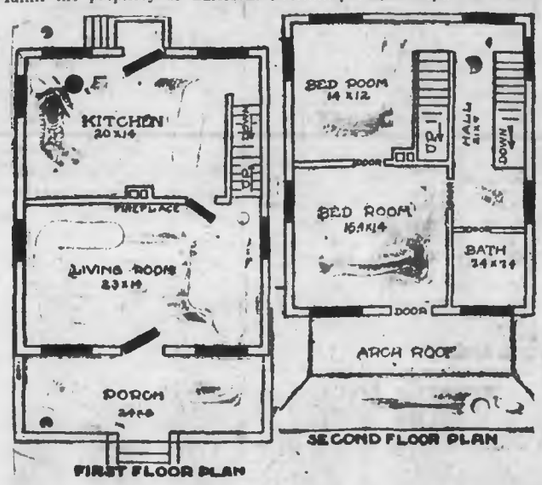
THE HOUSE THAT EDISON BUILT

The inventor figures that his cement house can be built complete for $1,200. Figuring a 6 per cent. return in rent to the owner, that would put his house within the means of the man who is now paying $1.50 a week for two dirty, smelly, ill ventilated rooms in a crowded city tenement.

The whole house—four floors, including basement and attic with five big rooms, and built in a style pleasing even to the $5,000 a year man—this is the house that Edison sees for the poor man of to-morrow.

Greater than he who builds ships and guns of war is the man who shows how to build homes—builds them cleaner, cheaper, roomier.—Emerson.

East Orange, N. J., July 10.—A home builder whose work will affect vitally the inner life of the next generation—this is Thos. A. Edison, come to fulfill the prophecy of Emerson.



FIRST FLOOR PLAN — SECOND FLOOR PLAN

PLANS OF HOUSE SHOWN IN ACCOMPANYING PHOTOGRAPH.

The wizard of East Orange has prepared his paraphernalia, his black cloth, his magic table. Soon he will wave his wand, and presto—

A house, springing out of nothing.

A house complete, upstairs, downstairs, basement, attic, finished even to decorated landings, portals, closets, bath tubs, chandeliers—all ready for Mr. Groom and his bride to step into.

Edison will pour this house from molten cement—just pour it out with no more effect than the iron master pours red fluid iron and produces bars and plates, or the statue maker casts his plaster figures.

The poured cement house—after eight years of experimenting, and two years of uninterrupted hard work, is ready. He will pour his first building at East Orange early in August.

When Wizard Edison's plan became public two years ago, a howl of disbelief and ridicule went up.

"Impracticable," the contractors said.

"A village of house all exactly alike—what nonsense," exclaimed the architects.

But Edison Made Good

And while the world accepted the verdict of these experts, Edison put on his overalls and went to work. He closed the doors of his factory to the world, and kept them closed till he was ready to overwhelm the criticisms by a practical demonstration.

Here is a thumb nail description of the house as it will come from the mould:

Size—25 by 30 feet ground plan.
Rooms—Big living room and kitchen on first floor, two big bed-rooms, wide hallway, closets and bath upstairs, front and back porch.
Cost—About $1,200.
Material—Light gray re-enforced concrete.
Time to mould—14 days.
Decorations—Facades and ornamental work along porch, carved stone pillars in hallways, window seats and paneled doors, with mythological figuring, gabled roofs.
Special advantages—Fireproof and vermin proof; no repairs.
The people it will benefit particularly—The poor who now often live in wretched quarters.
Inventor—Thomas A. Edison.

The Edison house, if it accomplishes half what its creator expects, will revolutionize house building.

One big important thing he had in mind was to make it possible for the people of the slums to live in houses that would be clean, have plenty of light and air, and which could be had at a moderate cost.

The inventor will not build houses himself. He has more important work to do. He has shown the world the way to do it, and will leave it at that.

Objections Overcome

Several great objections which arose two years ago had to be overcome by Edison in his later plans.

One—a practical builder's objection—was that the cement could not be forced through an intricate set of

THE CORNER STONE OF NEW ALL SAINTS CHURCH WAS LAID BY HIS HONOUR JUDGE HARDING, P. M. G.

Silver Trowel Presented to Judge Harding by Rev. Mr. Trumpour on Behalf of Congregation—New Church Will be of Handsome Design—It Will Accommodate Eight Hundred People.

Beautiful Ceremony Performed by the Masonic Order at All Saints Church Last Evening—A Large Concourse of People Witnessed the Interesting Proceedings.

BE READY NEXT YEAR

Not for many years have the citizens of Peterborough witnessed a corner stone laid with Masonic ceremonial, until last evening when a most interesting ceremony took place in connection with the laying of the corner stone of the New All Saints' Church. The weather was ideal for such an occasion and the hour, a quarter past seven could not have been more convenient for those wishing to attend.

A large assemblage had gathered and before the Masonic Order arrived every vantage point was taken by members of the congregation and their friends, who evinced a keen interest in the proceedings.

The laying of the corner stone of the New Church marks a new epoch in the progress being made by the Anglican Church of this city. The south end of Peterbo[illegible]gh seems to be going ahead in strides and with its rapid growth increased church accommodation is a necessity. The present building has, for some time been inadequate for the large number that each Sunday attend and the congregation of All Saints' is to be congratulated on the work it has accomplished in the Spiritual welfare of the city.

The stone was laid by His Honour Judge Harding, Lindsay, Past Grand Master of the Masonic Order. The clergy present were Venerable Archdeacon Warren, of Toronto; Rev. Dr. Langfeldt, M.A., Rural Dean; Rev.

MR. W. A. BAILEY ON THE BRITISH FLAG

Peterborough, July 9, 1909.

Sir,—Yesterday's Toronto World, criticizing Rudyard Kipling's latest verses, says "Even if the moral of Pook's Hill be trustworthy, and England is to go down, like Rome, there will be something to follow England, as England followed the Roman Empire-Canada has a great deal to say about that." Wouldn't that be the worst part about it, just as the worst part of the flag business is the lamentable fact that there is a British flag in Toronto at all?

TWO MEM WERE KILLED IN MONTREAL AUTO RACE

Car Driven by C. K. Backelder, of Newport, and J. Twohey, of Montreal, Skidded Into Fence at Blue Bonnets Track and Leaped Embankment, Fatally Injuring Both Men---Was Attempting to Pass Another Car When Driver Temporarily Lost Control.

Montreal, July 10.—O. H. Bachelder of Newport, Vermont, and J. Twohey of Montreal, a McGill student, were killed at the second annual races of the Canadian Automobile Club on the Blue Bonnets track yesterday afternoon.

Bachelder was driving a sixty horsepower Stearns car in the ten-mile open race for stock touring cars, Twohey acting as his mechanic.

On the eighth mile, rounding into the back stretch, Bachelder pulled out to pass Burman.

What then happened nobody knows. The Sterns was seen to dash into the fence, fly over the embankment and come to a stop forty yards beyond. The two occupants were thrown into the air.

When assistance arrived Twohey was found dead with his neck broken. Bachelder was still breathing, but was horribly mutilated, one stake having torn out his bowels and another knocked a great gash in his chest. He was placed in an ambulance and rushed to the Royal Victoria Hospital, but died just after being admitted.

The car was the property of Lance Hale. His entry was refused on Thursday night, but yesterday, when he secured the services of Bachelder, who was a science graduate of McGill, it was accepted.

MR. MARK SPENCELY 66 YEARS IN PETERBOROUGH, MONDAY, JULY 12

Arrived in the City When a Baby of 18 Months—Has Grown With the Place and Witnessed Development From Hamlet to a Thriving City—A Few Recollections.

HIS HONOUR JUDGE HUYCKE
Lately Appointed County Court Judge of Peterborough.

STORES WERE ALL OF WOOD

Sixty-six years ago Monday, the 12th of July, Mr. Mark Spencely arrived in Peterborough at the age of eighteen months, a child in his mother's arms. His father, Joseph Spencely brought his family from Yorkshire, England, deciding to try the new country and the oportunities that were spoken of. After landing in New York the father made his way up through Albany, crossed to Cobourg and continued overland to Rice Lake. The rest of the journey to Peterborough was made by water up the Otonabee. The family with all their earthly possesions were crossing Rice Lake in a light boat propelled by oars.

Owing to a wind the lake was rough and the boatman said that some of the goods would have to be thrown overboard. A large trunk packe woollens and other Old Country clothes was sacrificed with some regrets. Mr. Spencely first resided in a house at the corner of London and Aylmer streets owned by Mr. Jos. Cobb. It is still in the old place to-day. The family grew up in this city and the father passed away exactly 40 years to the day after landing in Peterborough, the 12th of July.

The City in Those Days.

Mr. Mark Spencely this morning in speaking to the Examiner, stated that as a boy he used to sleigh ride down the hill on George street from a point about where Rednor's store is now situated. There was no walk on either side of the street in those days and the buildings were all of wood, being clapboarded. The first brick building Mr. Spencely remembers was an hotel on Charlotte street, owned by a man named Harper. It was west of the Snowden House and the building is otherwise occupied to-day. Mr. Spenceley has paid taxes nearly a half century and he considers that he cannot be looked upon as a civic parasite as the only corporation work he ever did was four days' cutting weeds on the streets this Spring. Mr. Speceley has grown up with the city, but he is beginning to recede whereas the city is budding out into greater growth. "Men may come and men may go," Mr. Spenceley remarked. "I guess that's the truest thing that could be said. This city will be here when I am forgotten. Eternal youth is not for the people of this generation."

Mr. Spencely was the youngest of the five children of the family when they came to Canada. Two girls were afterwards born in Canada. Those who survive are Mrs. J. King, Bethune street, Mrs J. Chatten, also of Peterborough, and Mrs. Vanverleet, of New York. Mr. Spencely hopes to see more anniversaries of his landing in Peterborough and to see the city continue in its prosperity. "I feel as young as ever," he stated, "but I know that I am growing old."

Arrangements That Have Been Made for Murray Street Baptist Church During Pastor's Absence.

To-morrow will be the last Sunday before his vacation that Rev. J. R. Webb will occupy the pulpit of Murray St. Baptist Church. On Sunday, July 18 and 25th, Rev. Dr. Hughson, of Windsor, will preach, on Sunday, August 1st, Rev. C. M. Carew, of London, will preach, and on Sunday, August 8th, Rev. G. B. Kennedy, of Toronto, will conduct the services. Rev. Mr. Webb will return then to his congregation.

PECULIAR POISONING

Fenelon Falls Child Believed to Have Been Poisoned by Weed--Body Swelled and Doctor Had to be Called.

Fenelon Falls, July 10.—The little daughter of Mr. Alfred Miller, of Louise street, came into the house a few days ago complaining of a pain in her hand, on which there was a small spot between the thumb and forefinger, that looked as if it might have been the sting of a bee or other insect. In a short time the child's hand, face and body commenced to swell, her eyes were swelled almost shut, and her lips and throat swelled to such an extent as to endanger her breathing. Dr. Gould was called in, and the swelling shortly afterward commenced to subside. The doctor is at a loss to account for the occurrence, unless on the supposition that the child came into contact with some poisonous weed, such as the deadly nightshade, or belladonna, as it is thought the sting of an insect would not have such a serious effect.

RAISED MONEY FOR BUILDING FUND

At the conclusion of the ceremony in connection with the laying of the corner stone of All Saints' Church last evening, the ladies sold ice cream and strawberries and in this way realized a large sum of money, which will go towards the building fund.

A SIGN OF PROGRESS.

With merited congratulations to All Saints on the occasion of the laying of the corner stone of a new church, naturally come reflections on the importance of the event beyond its ecclesiastical significance. It emphasizes the growth of the South Ward in population and material and moral importance. Only a dozen years ago All Saints built a new church. Now it has to build greater. Within that time the Baptists have built a new church and have had to build greater. Knox Church Presbyterians are in the same happy trouble. The Roman Catholics have built a magnificent new church, and just over the way the Methodists have erected a new and beautiful place of worship. Within that time two schools buildings—the South Central and Lake street schools—have been enlarged, and the commodious King Edward school building erected. Houses in hundreds have been built in the ward, and in all respects, religious, moral, educational and material, the South Ward has been favoured with great progress.

A STIFF BREEZE NEEDED

Rt. Hon. Joseph Chamberlain, on the occasion of his 73rd birthday, received as he deserved to do, many congratulatory assurances. Mr. Chamberlain is a great statesman and, though his new imperial policy of preference does not met the approval of all, it is doubtless the outcome of honest conviction and patriotic interest in the Imperial welfare. He has his admirers and some who are not his admirers, especially in the matter of policy. Among the telegrams of congratulation was one from Sir James Whitney, who as is his wont went to his usual length of extravagant statement in describing Mr. Chamberlain as "standing next to the King in the estimation of overseas Britons." This may be the case with Sir James and his colleagues, but does not include a large few of "overseas Britons," though collectively Mr. Chamberlain has had a multitude of admirers by virtue of his having, in his time, rather completely boxed the political compass—from red radicalism to the altru-marinist blue Toryism. Sir James may be his ardent admirer in his latest role, but it looks a little like asumption for him to undertake the responsibility of voicing the sentiments of all the people of Ontario as well as the Dominion beyond the seas—it is slightly suggestive of "we, the people of England," as embodied in the chesty "Three Tailors of Tooley Street." Sir James aims to steer a stranght course, on an even keel; but it takes, at times, a mighty lot of wind to fill his sails.

BEAUTIFY THE CITY.

No one feature of general beauty can be singled out as of special significance to the exclusion of others any more than one member of a musical chord can be eliminated without detraction from its harmonious perfection. We have all the material elements, the foundation, so to speak of a surpassingly beautiful urban ensemble. Nestled, as to site, in the hollow of bold hills, which slope gently down to a common centre; pierced by a grand and copious river, with long lines of streets finaked by majestic ranks of shade trees, and backed by handsome residences, with a general continuity of tidy, well kept lawns, we can pride ourselves upon the beauty of our city till we come to details in, say, the matter of boulevards and streets.

These boulevards, which are potentially important, if not essential elements of a beautiful whole, have many enemies to tidiness and neatness.

The presence on some streets of the poles of three systems of public utilities—telegraph, telephone, electric light—is a disfiguremant, which only familiarity with its essential ugliness and obstructiveness robs of its hideous incongruity with handsome streets. In this regard things can never be, even approximately, right till we have underground conduits on all the streets with some compulsory regulation for their use by all companies using wires for electrical current conveyance. Any person who has taken the trouble to note the vast improvement in appearance caused by the removal of the poles of the Bell Telephone Company from the south side of Hunter street, between George and Aylmer streets, can testify to the revolutionary result that would follow the removal of poles throughout the city.

Next in order of hostility to boulevard beauty is the street authorities. They fail to recognise, as is done in other less important towns and cities, that it is the duty of the city to construct boulevards and provide for their maintenance in undisturbed, unobstructed and undesecrated condition. In grading streets the street workers pay no attention to the formation of the boulevard. The gutter is thrown out in irregular heaps like the earth from a sewer trench and any levelling done is of the most perfunctory and careless character. And worse than that; in many cases where a public-spirited and civilized citizen has provided a boulevard, grassed it, and kept it watered, shaven, and tidy, the street authorities permit their workmen to disfigure it by leaving loose earth, etc., scattered over the trim turf of the boulevard. An East City resident complains that on a boulevard in front of his place the street workmen in cleaning out the gutter threw the mud clods and litter up on his boulevard and left it there, like the vandals they were—in this respect.

Till the city does its share and encourages, rather than discourages, private citizens, the blame of untidy boulevards must rest upon their shoulders and, it is to be hoped, upon their consciences, also.

Another enemy to boulevard beauty is the public—perhaps the most persistent and intractable of all. It seems to be impossible to construct and beautify a boulevard in any part of the city, that will not have the life and beauty tramped out of it by the careless, indifferent or malicious public. "Short-cuts" are taken and the grass tramped into bald spots, destructive of the beauty and neatness of the turf. All classes of the community are at fault and there seems no remedy except the conversion of the public in this respect from Vandalism to the adoption of the cult of the Golden Rule. No man or woman who is a Christian in the Christ sense of the title, will do to another what he or she would not have them do to him or her. No man or woman who has planted and watered, tended and tidied a boulevard would like to have it tramped into unsightliness, and therefore shouldn't sin in respect of others.

This is something that needs the interposition of Divine power; the heart must be changed, the moral duty towards others recognised, and a spirit of respect for the rights, feelings and tastes of others developed, or rather created. In this there is work for the preachers and teachers. The preaching and church going that cannot and does not create a recognition of the sacred duty of respect for others, "but skins and films the ulcerous spot" in the human heart—selfishness. In this there is work for the schools. We don't teach religion in our schools, but we might, instead of devoting ourselves exclusively to cramming the little heads of our children, full of literary lumber and bending every effort with the fear of "examinations," before the eyes of teachers and pupils, teach a little of primary ethics—the first principles of moral obligation—respect for the rights, feelings and tastes of others. Till we do something like this we can't expect the general development of the finer feelings of ethics and refined tastes.

This is especially improbable when to the neglect of the pulpit and the teachers' desk is added the evil indifference of the city authorities to the preservation of the beauty—or even decency of our boulevards. Nor can we expect it when teachers in our highest school are known and observed violators and trampers-down of boulevards; when even members of the Board of Education—one in particular who prides himself on his taste for, and interest in, the beauty of public places—are seen to stray from the beaten path across Central Park, and make sheep paths through the turf. A six-foot path was cut across Central Park diagonally. It has been widened to twenty feet and in places, to twenty-five feet, the life tramped out of the sward which is become as the horse yard of a country hotel.

All this could be prevented if the public were preached and schooled into a sense of public duty—if those in authority discharged their responsibility. Central Park, in some respects, is a disgrace to the city, no more inviting in the sense of beauty than the unwatered and trampled "diamond" of a "ball field."

We must have the enlistment of all contributry influences into a common phalanx of protective aestheticism before we can have the city beautiful in all parts and in all respects. The city must cooperate with the public. The public must act with the city. The teachers of our adult citizens, the teachers of our children, must lay the foundation principles of religion, and morality—respect for the rights, feelings and property of others.

What we need in the interests of the promotion of civic beauty is some systematic effort on the part of those who are the natural leaders in the sphere of civic aesthetics; just as we need system in the administration of our streets, without which, in either case, we can never get value for our money or successful accomplishment in the work of making the city beautiful.

GOOD ROADS

Leeds and Grenville county is alive, or will be more alive in a few years from the action of its county council. At its last meeting it provided for the expenditure of $200,000 on county roads. Under the Good Roads Act the Province will contribute a pro rate share, so that when the two hundred thousand dollars or really three hundred thousand dollars, are spent in the roads of the county, Leeds and Grenville should, and will, be the possessor of one of the most advanced systems of the most essential elements of advanced civilisation—good highways. The circumstance of the united counties of Leeds and Grenville taking such a commendable step, is worth noticing since it constitutes an exception to the general indifference of the farming community to the matter of good roads. Of course the expenditure of $200,000 on improving the highways of the county will add to the tax roll, but this increase of taxes will be compensated ten times over by the advantages gained—the time saved in going to market, the saving in wear and tear, on horseflesh and vehicles, the saving in the quality of farm-products conveyed over smooth roads instead of being bounced and pounded over rough and rutty highways. In all these ways and in the aggregate, every farmer who uses the highways of the county for access to his market town or the shipping railway station will be the gainer, many times beyond the slight addition to his taxes the expenditure of $200,000, spread over several years, will call for. The Canadian farmer is progressive and enterprising in everything they but the matter of roads. The sickle, grain cradle, scythe and hand rake, have been replaced by the self binder, machine mower and horse rake, but in the matter of highways he is, as a rule a hundred years behind the times. The same old rule-of-thumb system of road making, or rather, road-making make-believe, is practised now as it was a hundred years ago. If a farmer dead three-quarters or half a century were to return to Ontario, he would see everything changed, except the system of road—"building"—if he saw a statute labour gang dawdling away leisurely, killing time, he would feel that he was again in the good old days The indifference of farmers to the utility of good roads is unaccountable. He is advanced and modern in every other way; he keeps abreast of modern advance in all other of the activities of the time, but in the matter of roads he is absurdly out of date. Any farmer who will take the time to sit down and think over the matter for ten minutes will realise that he is losing time, losing comfort and losing money by refusing or neglecting to spend money in providing himself with good, smooth, easy-driving and permanent highways. He will recognize that laying out money to provide good roads is not spending money in the ordinary sense, it is an investment that will yield good returns. He will recognize that no field on his farm will return him the profit in proportion to the labour and expense put on it that he would derive from an equivalent amount of both spent in making good roads. Peterborough county did well at its late session to move for having the Provincial grant to county roads systems increased, but it would have done better in adopting a country roads system and for the expenditure or rather investment of a large sum in improving the leading roads of the country. We can easily anticipate the answer to such a suggestion coming from the city—let the city show an example of production expenditure on its streets and then it can afford to advise the county. But that is neither here nor there. The county should have good roads, whether the city has good roads or not. Lack of enterprise and neglect of duty in our case cannot excuse them in another.

WIZARD EDISON HAS MADE GOOD IN EARNEST

moulds and be of the same consistency and strength throughout. Also that the surface would not be smooth.

But Edison has produced a cement of a consistency almost like water, which holds the stone and aggregates equally throughout. It will also secure a surface so smooth that it can be painted or frescoed or tinted.

Another objection was that it would be impossible to build moulds which would make inner rooms and closets. This, too, has been overcome.

Still another—this time from architects—was that all the houses would be alike, necessarily; that people would not live in them on that account.

But the Edison moulds are adapted to a number of variations. With six sets of moulds, which the inventor reckons as the right number for a good working arrangement, an immensely wide variety of houses can be constructed.

Now for a description of an Edison house. The one shown in the illustration is a one-family, two-storey house, 25 by 30 feet outside, to go in a lot 40 by 60. This gives a lawn and small garden room.

The front or living room is large, 14 by 23 feet, while the kitchen is but three feet narrower. The ceilings are 9½ feet high.

The storway extends both ways—to the living room and the kitchen. The second floor contains the two big bedrooms—one 15 by 24, the other three feet narrower. The upper hallway is nearly 20 feet long, leading from the back of the house to the bath room, which is 7½ feet square.

The attic is 27 by 23, which, with a dividing partition, would make two rooms.

There are many windows—the downstairs rooms have four each.

The material throughout is reinforced concrete. The only woodwork is the window frames, which makes it impossible for fires to break out.

The decorations are cast with the rest of the house. So are all appliances, such as bath and laundry tubs, steps, coal bunkers.

Method of Pouring.

The moulds are not set up until the cellar foundations are dug and gas and electric and plumbing piping ready. These are then set up with the moulds, and all locked together. It takes four days to set up the moulds.

Then the pouring. The cement, already prepared in large mixers, is conveyed to a tank placed on top of the forms. This tank connects with several openings in the roof, so that the cement rises in all parts of the house at once. The pouring process itself takes six hours.

Four days are then allowed for the cement to dry, then the dismantling can be done. Then six days more are allowed to give every part of the concrete to settle into its rocklike form.

Cost of Building.

Edison's estimate of the cost is based on the builder having the equipment and trade to keep six moulds busy all the time, and on being able to use the gravel taken in digging the foundations.

One set of moulds will cost $25,000. The rest of the plant would come to $15,000. Successful operation, Edison figures, would require six sets of moulds kept busy all year. Such an outfit could turn out 144 houses a year.

Members of Lansdowne Lodge, S.O.E. B.S., are requested to attend at the S.O.E. Hall at 6.15, Sunday, July 11th, when the Lodge will attend Divine Service with the Orange Lodges. Badges only to be worn. 1d-8

POPULAR MISTAKES ABOUT WIRELESS

Operator Tells Why Air Messages Do Not Get "Jammed."

There is a common idea that often the air is so "jammed" with wireless messages that they are horribly mixed. For instance one is supposed to have come over like this: Order 600 Steel at closing price for dinner at 8 Waldorf." E. H. Edwards, chief operator of the wireless station at Sea Gate, L. I., laughs at this error.

"Impossible," he said, "such mistakes never occur. Imagine yourself on the floor of the Stock Exchange with everybody yelling at the top of his lungs. You have asked some one a question regarding the quotation of some particular stock. Somebody says '80¼, somebody else says '82¾. You know instantly which message was intended for you, because you know the approximate cost of your stock. So, by the natural sequence of the wireless message, one can invariably tell if the message received is as it was intended, no matter what the 'jam' in the air.

"Even to-day people know little about the principles of the system beyond the fact that it has something to do with air waves, and they cling to the notion that there must be some connection between the ships and the stations other than these air waves."

Illustrating the strange ideas people have about wireless telegraphy, Mr. Quinn, assistant to Mr. Edwards, related the following:

"I was stationed," he said, "on the steamship Bruce, carrying mail between Port au Basque, N.F., and North Sydney, C.B. One day a party of Newfoundlanders boarded the vessel and seemed very much interested in the Marconi apparatus. I gave them what I supposed was a comprehensive explanation of the system. After I had quite finished one man in the party came up to me and said, "But say, isn't it cold on the top of that pole?' 'Yes,' I said, 'I suppose it is, but why do you ask?' 'Because,' he said, 'I was pitying the poor operator in winter who had to climb to the top to get the message down.

"But that," said Mr. Quinn, "isn't as bad as the mistake a really intelligent looking woman made. It was during the time when the coherer receiver was used. This receiver had a paper tape and inking brush and was worked rather like the tickers which brokers use to-day. The tape recorded the dots and dashes. This woman seemed to grasp perfectly all that I explained to her, and I was quite elevated with her perspicacity until she asked: 'Tell me, how does the tape get from the ship to the station without getting wet?'"

HER BABY HAD ECZEMA

Mrs. F. Clark, Belmont, Man., writes:—"My baby had eczema on her ear. The sore was very bad and nothing seemed to help her. Hearing of some remarkable cures Dr. Chase's Ointment had made we began using it and with the third application the sore began to heal. The cure was thorough and complete and we give all credit to Dr. Chase's Ointment."

BEST TRADITIONS OF NAVY MAINTAINED BY GALLANT CONDUCT OF SAPPHO'S CREW

How the Injured Cruiser Was Brought to Dover—A Thrilling Story of British Pluck in the Hour of Danger—Women Assist in the Task of Getting Out The Lifeboats and Tugs Do Plucky Work in Keeping War Vessel Afloat.

The London Daily Chronicle of June 21 has the following graphic story of the collision on the previous night, as a result of which the cruiser Sappho had to be beached at Dover. The Chronicle's correspondent at the latter port says:—The cruiser Sappho, which has just been towed in here after collision, left Portsmouth at six o'clock on Saturday morning after mobilising for the manouevres. A large portion of the men were royal naval reservists, and the ship was to proceed to the North of Scotland to join the blue fleet, calling at Dover on the voyage.

The Sappho made a good voyage up the Channel, but fog sprang up last night and became very thick. In the neighbourhood of Dungeness Point the cruiser's syrene was being used continuously, and the ship steamed slowly, the fog being so dense that the men could hardly see from one end of the ship to the other.

With startling suddenness a steamer loomed up quite close to the cruiser, and although everything possible was done to avert a collision only a minute or so elapsed before the liner crashed into the cruiser on the port side. This was about nine o'clock, when all the men not on watch had turned into their hammocks for the night. The impact occurred in the most vital part of the ship, near the engine room, an extensive breach being made below the water line in the stokehold into which the seas rapidly poured.

Maintained Naval Traditions

The shock of the collision was so great that many of the men were thrown off their feet. An alarm was sounded throughout the warship, the men were piped to quarters, while orders were at once given for the collision doors to be closed and collision mats to be placed in position over the breach in the vessel's side. There is no doubt that the great presence of mind shown by those in command of the cruiser averted a dreadful disaster. If the doors had been open a few minutes longer the ship must have gone to the bottom with an appalling death roll. All the finest traditions of the British navy were maintained in the coolness and pluck displayed by the crew under these nerve-trying conditions.

An eye-witness stated that the men turned out immediately and stood to their quarters with almost the same coolness as if they were on parade in safety in harbour instead of on a sinking ship walled around with a thick veil of impenetrable fog. Those who were detailed to close the water-tight doors and place the collision mats in position carried out those duties with alacrity, and the discipline everywhere is spoken of as being magnificent.

Peril Was Great

The ship's peril was great, as it was found that the water was gaining very rapidly, and the vessel sinking. In these circumstances Commander Christian gave orders for the men to lower the boats, and the signals of distress were fired for assistance. The position was made worse by the fact that the seas had almost immediately flooded the engine room and extinguished the fires. This left the cruiser quite helpless and created the additional trouble that, as there was no steam power for the dynamos, the electric light all over the ship went out, leaving the cruiser in darkness. She was also unable to utilise her wireless telegraphy apparatus in order to summon assistance, owing to the dynamos becoming inoperative.

Crew Took to the Boats

In these critical conditions it was decided by Commander Harold Christian that the men should take to the boats. The men having been mustered on deck, lifebelts were served out, and they were ordered to enter the boats. The most perfect order and discipline under a terrible ordeal was again shown in carrying out this order, the boats remaining alongside the sinking vessel. Some of the men wore only their trousers and flannels, and some only their trousers. These were stokers and engineers who had been on duty in the stoke-hold and engine-room before they were flooded out, and had no time to get more clothes. A number of blankets were thrown into the boat for the men to wrap around themselves, as the fog made it cold and raw. Nothing could be seen of the colliding steamer, though a vessel's syren could be heard and a search subsequently failed to ascertain her whereabouts.

Women Launch Lifeboats

In the meantime, the firing of the cruiser's distress guns had been heard at Dungeness, where lifeboatmen and coastguards turned out with most praiseworthy promptitude to launch the two local lifeboats, the R.A.O.B. and the Thomas Simcox. Many of the regular lifeboatmen were away at sea, but volunteers promptly took their places, including a number of the coastguards, under their district officer, Lieut. Sims. From the lifeboat houses to that point at which the boats could be launched is some distance across the beach, and dragging the heavy craft over this beach is an exhausting task even for men. With numbers away fishing, there was a lack of helpers, but the women of Dungeness pluckily stepped into the breach and took their places alongside the men in the arduous work of hauling the lifeboats over the beach to the launching place. Thus the boats were able to get away promptly to the aid of the sinking cruiser. Many of the women gallantly waded into the sea in the darkness to assist the launch.

Two Hundred Sailors Landed

The only thing to guide the lifeboats to the damaged cruiser was the continued firing of the minute gun. They found the Sappho very deep in the water and in such a condition that she might founder at any moment. Coxswains Pope and Biller at once took many of the sailors into their boats. The motor-launch Alert also arrived from Dungeness, and her owner, Mr. J. Bates, offered his services and took in tow some of the cruiser's boats. With the lifeboats and other boats the whole flotilla contained about 200 of the Sappho's crew, about seventy being left in boats alongside the cruiser, whilst some of the officers remained on the cruiser. In spite of the nasty sea and the dense fog, the flotilla of boats safely reached Dungeness, where accommodation was found for the 200 sailors thus landed.

How the Ship Was Saved

In a supplemental despatch the story of how the cruiser was kept afloat until she was beached at Dover is thus told:—Telegrams were quickly despatched from Dungeness notifying the ship's precarious position, and Captain John Iron, the Dover harbourmaster, sent out the tug, Lady Curzon, the Admiralty tug Herculaneum, and the Dover harbour tug, Lady Crundall with a powerful salvage plant. The Sappho was sunk to the level of her top range of portholes when the Lady Curzon arrived, and there appeared very little prospect of saving her. Captain Sharpe immediately got a hawser aboard the sinking ship and began to tow her towards Dover. The Herculaneum also assisted in the towing.

But there is no doubt that the cruiser was saved from foundering by the prompt arrival of Lady Curzon with her powerful salvage plant, pumping 800 tons of water in an hour. This was at 2 a.m., Captain Lambert at once took the plucky course of lashing his tug alongside the sinking cruiser for pumping purposes, and whilst the other two tugs towed, seamen stood by on the Lady Crundall to cut the ropes in case the cruiser's bulkhead should burst and cause her to sink. The voyage of about 18 miles was a very dangerous one, and those on board had a very anxious time, as the water was gaining on the pumps rapidly. If the collision doors of the forward compartment had failed to stand the strain the cruiser must have sunk like a stone. Even as matters stood the vessel reached Dover only just in time.

The Crew Congratulated

The two hundred men landed at Dungeness were taken to Dover last night and towed across the harbour to the stranded cruiser. As soon as they got on board they proceed to the poop, where the muster rol was called, and some kindly words and congratulations were addressed to the men by the officers.

Curiously enough the vessel which collided with the Sappho bore the same name. She was a Hull liner. She signalled later that she had collided with an unknown war vessel, had sustained no material damage, and was proceeding to her destination, Algiers.

KISS AN INTOXICANT

Worse Than Alcoholic Beverages, Says Pastor.

Said the Rev. Henry W. Ireland, of the Disciples of Christ, in his pulpit the other day at Mount Gilead, Ohio, "I have seen young fellows who come to church for no other purpose than to disturb the service, lean forward over the the back of the pew and press a kiss on some fair maiden's lips, and the smac kcould be heard all over the house.

"And that is not the worst of it. This hugging and kissing nuisance is not confined merely to the younger set, but occasionally some older persons have annoyed me in the same manner.

"The kiss is an intoxicant, and, like the saloon, must go. The nectar-quaffed from the red lips is more fruitful of consequences than any alcoholic beverages ever distilled.

"I think kissing is the worst thing a young woman can do, and the amount of hugging and kissing some of our girls girls do—of our best families, too—is literally a menace to our morality.

"I have carefully inquired into the matter, and find that many young girls imagine this is the way to get husbands. It may help some, but kissing is not all that is necessary."

Critic Says Puppy Cuddlers Are "No Better Than Cannibals"

Charlotte Harris Discusses the Case of the Woman and the Dog and Scathingly Denounces Dog Loving Women—The Burial of a Dead Pup.

STORIES OF THESE WOMEN

Members of a certain fashionable set of the women of New York are a tormented, uneasy and inconsistent mob. They are the real "outsiders" of the American nation.

The unspeakable folly of these women in the taking of a cur and bestowing upon it affection, care, time and solicitation that tiny souls direct from God are really heir to! We can only call them women out of courtesy, with their ingrown souls and deliberate ignorance of duty to the poor, miserable mites of earth already here.

As for common sense and charity, the greater number of this tumbling crowd of New York women are woeful bankrupts. As interpreters of a meaningless existence, they have no rivals.

When a man marries one of this kind he is handed a gilded brick which he thinks solid gold. For serious and high minded men such a woman would make a pleasing life companion as a nail in a shoe.

I consider them in a light no better than cannibals. They consume human life by their wanton waste of wealth in many deplorably wrong directions. Their lives are lived at a dangerously high pressure. They have drunk long and deep at the fountain of folly, and at some time or other they will have to pay the inevitable penalty. Their sole object in life is to be a perfect reflection in the "glass of fashion," to be on dress parade constantly; to live on the streets and in cafes; the cafe habit is chronic among them; to be dined and wined, ride in everything from a hired to a borrowed automobile with a vicious, bowlegged bull pup perched on their knees. Alas! the brutes need fresh air. Only their mistresses are the fit ones to give it to them, while the infants and their children, if they have any, are handed out to foreign nurses or hirelings to spend every day of their young lives with.

Not long ago the daily newspapers printed columns about the anxiety of one of those modern fashionables over the illness of her pet poodle. How she had chartered a special train all the way from San Francisco, in an effort to save its life by expert treatment. The dog specialists employed pronounced its case hopeless and the pup died. After its death this quadruped was placed in a metal lined, white satin coffin, costing $500. Later her information to the press was that she intended to have a vault built to hold the coffin and its beast.

I was resting one morning after a Turkish bath in a well known establishment downtown when several women of the class I speak of came in. At first they seemed uncommonly good to look upon. Not a hair out of place, fashionably and richly gowned—two with their poodles sniffling about the necks. One of the very blond creatures, after divesting herself of all her clothes, including her unnaturals—such as an armful of puffs, a long fat rat resembling a butcher's hanging sausage, and a Psyche knot the size of an elongated football—looked like a "before using" ad.

While most people were trying to rest, she was romping and skipping up and down the place in an effort to keep her four legged "baby" from losing patience. This was the conversation between herself and her "precious" as she called it. "Ah, mother's little petsey doesn't like it here?" "Woof! Woof!" came from the dog. "Never mind, my baby gets a nice big plate of ice cream when he gets home."

MARRIED FOR LUCK. SHE GOT IT—BAD.

So Mrs. Foerster Testified, And to Keep Things Going Court Dismissed Her Suit.

New York, July 7th.—The newest method of "shaking" a hoodoo was explained in the Supreme Court on Monday by Mrs. Sophie Forester in her suit for separation from Otto Foerster. She was a music teacher. He is a tobacco expert.

"I was always unlucky," the wife testified before Justice Seabury, "and nothing seemed to be able to change my luck. So I got married to see if that would change it, but my marriage proved that nothing could break the spell. It was the crowning event in my streak of bad luck."

Still more bad luck was in store for her. Justice Seabury dismissed her complaint.

Mrs. Foerster testified that she became a music teacher because she wished to earn her own living. One thing and another went wrong, she said, until she was almost in poverty. Otto Foerster, one of her pupils, had a splendid voice. When he proposed she accepted him hoping to change her luck, but it grew worse. She and her husband quarrelled over her mother, who lived with them at No. 143 Covert street, Brooklyn. Once, she testified, her husband spat in her face and bolted out of the house. Finally Foerster ordered the mother-in-law out of the house and his wife followed. For this reason Justice Seabury held that the husband had not abandoned his wife.

Foerster told a much different story. He said that when he proposed to his music teacher she wanted to know what would become of her mother.

"Well, I loved her, but I did not love her mother," said Foerster. "I told her so, and she said that she loved me, but not more than she did her mother. Well, what could a fellow do? I loved the girl and decided I would take the mother as an incident to the prize. So I told her she could have her mother in the house and that I would not be disagreeable to her if she was not disagreeable to me."

CORNER STONE OF ALL SAINTS NEW CHURCH LAID BY JUDGE HARDING

Canon Davidson, M.A., of St. John's Church; Rev. W. L. Armitage, of Picton, a former rector of All Saints; E. J. Soward, and the rector, Rev. H. R. Trumpour, M.A. Other ministers present were: Rev. J. G. Potter, of St. Andrew's Church; Rev. J. R. Webb, of Murray St. Baptist Church, and Rev. H. J. Keith, of Knox Church. Preceding the arrival of the Masonic Order which turned out in large numbers, a short service of the Anglican Church was said by Venerable Archdeacon Warren and the rector, Rev. Mr. Trumpour. For the singing of the hymns the organist, Miss Bisson, and Mr. J. Crane presided at the organ.

The Ceremony

When the members of the Masonic Order had assembled on the platform, and after the singing of an opening hymn, Rev. Mr. Trumpour presented His Honour Judge Harding with a handsome silver trowel engraved as follows: "Presented to His Honour Judge Harding, P.M.G.A.F. and A.M. on the occasion of the laying of the corner stone of All Saints' Church, Peterborough, July 9th, 1909." In making the presentation Rev. Mr. Trumpour referred to the great pleasure it gave him in doing so. He wished to extend to the Masonic Order a hearty welcome. He felt that great honour had been done the congregation by the presence of Judge Harding and the Masons of Peterborough.

Judge Harding replied, stating that he esteemed it a privilege to be present. He thanked the people most heartily for their beautiful gift and wished them all prosperity.

Prayer was then said by Worshipful Brother Rev. W. L. Armitage, after which the hymn "All People That On Earth Do Dwell," was sung.

Then followed the laying of the stone by Judge Harding with the ceremonial according to the ritual of the Masonic Order. He was assisted by Worshipful Brothers H. C. Winch, Grand Director of Ceremonies and W. H. Walkey, the latter reading the scroll which was placed in the stone. The usual custom on such an occasion, of placing the papers in the stone was followed out, those being put in being the three city papers of July 9th, copies of the Canadian Churchman and Church Life, the proceedings of the Synod for the past year, the papers containing reports leading up to the election of Bishop Sweeney, the induction of Rev. Mr. Trumpour, the principal items in the history of the church, the coins of the realm and the list of officers of the various organizations of the church.

The Addresses

Following the ceremony of laying the corner stone a number of speeches were made, Mr. Trumpour calling on various persons.

Judge Harding was the first to speak. His Honour referred at some length to the strength and growth of the Masonic Order. It was well established and stood for the highest standards of moral and Christian living. He cited as an example of its strength and great influence that if England and the United States wanted to go to war, the Masons if they so desired could prevent them from doing so. While no atheist could become a Mason, the order was tolerant. Its members were Christian believers and the Masonic Order was a great instrument in the salvation of men. It was the only benevolent society in the world. It looked after its widows and orphans. The only way a man may enter the Masons is by living a good moral character. In conclusion he remarked that he was glad to be present and he hoped that the church would prove a great blessing.

Archdeacon Warren

Venerable Archdeacon Warren expressed his pleasure at being present to offer congratulations to the congregation of All Saints' on such an auspicious occasion. He had watched All Saints' rapidly progress and he hoped that same progress that had characterized in the past would continue. It was an important function, the laying of a corner stone. The Church of God was built on the true foundation, Jesus Christ. He hoped the new All Saints' would be the means of bringing many persons to the true one of Jesus Christ.

Rev. Canon Davidson, the first rector of All Saints' in a few brief remarks, offered his congratulations to the congregation, assuring them of the warm interest he took in their welfare.

Rev. W. L. Armitage.

The former rector of All Saints' Church was greeted with applause as he rose to speak. He assured them of the great pleasure he felt at being present. He had been welcomed by everyone and he felt like one returning to his home. He was glad to be among the brethren of the Masons. The future of All Saints' was very dear to him, here being practically his first work. He referred in eulogistic terms to the ability, and faithfulness of the rector, Rev. Mr. Trumpour.

Other Speakers

Rev. Mr. Potter, of St. Andrew's; Rev. J. R. Webb, of Murray St. Baptist Church, and Rev. H. J. Keith, President of the Ministerial Association, each spoke briefly. They added their congratulations and best wishes for future prosperity.

Mr. T. E. E. Bradburn, M.P.P., also spoke a few congratulatory remarks and Hon. J. R. Stratton, M.P., was called upon but was unable to be present. Rev. Dr. Langfeldt, one behalf of the rural deanery of Peterborough and Northumberland, spoke briefly.

The New Church

The new church will be built of red granite from Stony Lake. It will be in design, early English Gothic, and will be 95 feet long and 60 feet wide with a central tower, twenty feet square. It will have a seating capacity of eight hundred.

THE WAY TO MAKE JELLY.

(By an Expert.)

By Alice Gitchell Kirk

Jellymaking is robbed of its terrors and uncertainties by perfect utensils, gas ranges, a plentiful supply of fruit with a knowledge of the exact time of ripeness to buy this fruit to give the best results.

With all the modern appliances for work in the kitchen, united with the desire to give pure jelly to our family, jellymaking has become a great pleasure.

Pectin is the basis of fruit jellies. It is this element in the juice of the fruit when a trifle underripe which allows it to gelatanize or "jell." If overripe fruit is used or the fruit cooked too long it looses its jelly properties. The small juicy berries and currants should be looked over carefully to remove all leaves or imperfect fruit; then heated slowly in the preserving kettle and mashed well with a wooden spoon or masher. Pour the fruit into a three-cornered jelly bag made from two thicknesses of cheesecloth that has been washed and softened for use. Always drip the juice.

Have a strong harness hook, which can be purchased from any hardware department, fastened over the sink or table, and suspend the jelly bag from this, where it can drip into a large bowl or crock. You will find this very convenient for many other things besides jellymaking.

When the larger fruits are used wash and cut them into small pieces and barely cover with water and cook gently until the fruit is soft and the juices well started. After the juice is strained measure, and for most fruits allow three-fourths of a pound of sugar for each pint of juice. Some will take less and some more. Bring one quart of this juice to the boiling point and boil 20 minutes, skimming often. In the meantime, have the sugar heating in the oven in a basin. Be very careful not to melt it, but have it just heated through. Add the sugar to the juice, stir until dissolved, bringing once more to the boiling point, and usually it is then jelly and ready for the glasses. Stand in the sunshine to finish and cover.

Red Currant Jelly

Prepare the currants as given for small fruits. Heat them, mashing well. Pour them into the jelly bag hung from hot water and drain over night, or for several hours. Return the juice to the kettle and boil, a quart at a time, 20 minutes. Add the heated sugar; stir until dissolved. Boil, put a teaspoonful in a saucer and stand on ice or in cold water. If it congeals or jellies at once remove from the fire and pour into sterilized glasses. Cool and cover with paraffine melted and poured over them.

THE VISIT OF THE BELGIANS

The Trent Canal, and more particularly the Peterborough Hydraulic Lift Lock, has from time to time, been visited by many prominent gentlemen, from various parts of Canada and the United States, but, perhaps, no party ever visited the Lift Lock at Peterborough and Kirkfield, who showed a greater interest in these works than the party of Belgian gentlemen, who this week went over the entire portion of the completed route of the Trent, paying particular attention to the Lift Locks, which are known to engineers throughout the world.

The Belgian part was made up of the following gentlemen, Messrs. Hector Genard, Inspector General of Bridges and Highways; Leon Van Wetter, Engineer of Bridges and Highways; Kraft de la Saul, Chief Engineer of the John Cokerill Company in Seraing, and Georges Marquebrencq, Private Secretary to Mr. Genard. This party was delegated by the Belgium Government to visit the Canals of Canada and the United States, and to study the various classes of locks in operation on the canals of these two countries.

The party arrived in Peterborough on Saturday evening last, at 4.38 p.m., and were taken in hand by Mr. J. H. McClellan, Superintendent of the Trent Canal. The party paid a visit to the Lift Lock, and then returned to Hotel National for dinner. A number of prominent local gentlemen dined with the Belgian visitors.

Tour of the Lakes

On Monday morning the members of the party accompanied by Mr. J. H. McClellan, Superintendent, and Mr. Clem. Gordon, Overseer, made a tour of the Canal to Fenelon Falls, the visitors admiring very much the scenery of the Kawartha Lakes. Monday night was spent at Fenelon, after which the party proceeded to the Kirkfield Hydraulic Lift Lock and Lake Simcoe. Mr. R. J. McLaughlin, K.C., and Mr. Thos. Stewart, of Lindsay, and Mr. Sam. Clegg, Overseer of the Central Division of the Canal joined the party at Fenelon Falls. The Belgians spent some hours inspecting the Hydraulic Lift Lock at Kirkfield, which differs somewhat from the Peterborough Hydraulic Lift Lock, in as much as, a great deal more steel is used in its construction. After proceeding down the Canal to Lake Simcoe, the party cruised across Lake Simcoe to Orillia, where the Belgan gentlemen took the train for the Welland Canal.

Canals in Belgium

A chat with the gentlemen from Belgium is most interesting, and they gave some valuable information about their country and its political affairs. They referred particularly to the system of canals that are maintained in that country. Their system of Canals differs greatly from the class of Canals we have in Canada. For instance, the boats that operate on the Belgium Canals are made strictly according to dimensions supplied by the Government. The boats are all, therefore, of the one size, being not more than 7 feet in width and 50 feet in length and being of 70 tons burden. However, the Government is now enlarging these Canals and the improved waterway will be capable of accommodating boats of 360 tons burden. The new locks, therefore, will be 17½ feet wide and 140 feet in length. It might be mentioned that the locks on the Trent Canal are 33 feet by 124 feet and for the greater part 6 feet on the lock sill. The new locks on the Trent Canal are being made to provide for boats drawing 8 feet. They have several lift locks in Belgium, and three new lift locks are at the present time under construction.

One feature concerning these lift locks, which differs from the lift locks we have on the Trent Canal, is that the gates at the entrance to the basins, lift up, instead of dropping down as on our lift locks. The Belgian Engineers claim that this is an advantage. It might be said that at Kirkfield and at Peterborough the visitors were shown through the lift locks and furnished with every information in connection therewith by Mr. James Garrow, Mechanical Overseer.

Another feature in connection with the Trent Canal that struck the visitors was our splendid large lakes and rivers. They admired very much the broad expanse of water in Lake Simcoe, as well as, Balsam Lake, Pigeon Lake, Sturgeon Lake and in fact all the lakes that go to make up the Trent waterway.

Interesting Features

The Belgians, who speak French that being the language of their country, stated that they found more to interest them on the Trent Canal than on any other Canal so far visited, they having already gone over the Whitehall Canal, in New York State, the Rideau, Soulanges and Lachine Canals. They expect to visit the Welland and Erie Canals, and sail home from New York on July 14th.

The visitors are all jolly good fellows, and have made warm friends all along the Trent Canal. They spoke in high terms of the well kept appearance of the Trent Canal, and the system employed in its operation. They expressed to Mr. McClellan, Superintendent, their appreciation of the manner in which they had been received by the Dominion Government, and particularly the hospitality that had been extended to them while on the Trent Canal.

Canon Davidson, M.A., of St. John's Church; Rev. W. L. Armitage, of Picton, a former rector of All Saints; E. J. Soward, and the rector, Rev. H. R. Trumpour, M.A. Other ministers present were: Rev. J. G. Potter, of St. Andrew's Church; Rev. J. R. Webb, of Murray St. Baptist Church, and Rev. H. J. Keith, of Knox Church. Preceding the arrival of the Masonic Order which turned out in large numbers, a short service of the Anglican Church was said by Venerable Archdeacon Warren and the rector, Rev. Mr. Trumpour. For the singing of the hymns the organist, Miss Hinson, and Mr. J. Crane presided at the organ.

The Ceremony

When the members of the Masonic Order had assembled on the platform, and after the singing of an opening hymn, Rev. Mr. Trumpour presented His Honour Judge Harding with a handsome silver trowel engraved as follows: "Presented to His Honour Judge Harding, P.M.G.A.F. and A.M. on the occasion of the laying of the corner stone of All Saints' Church, Peterborough, July 9th, 1909." In making the presentation Rev. Mr. Trumpour referred to the great pleasure it gave him in doing so. He wished to extend to the Masonic Order a hearty welcome. He felt that great honour had been done the congregation by the presence of Judge Harding and the Masons of Peterborough.

Judge Harding replied, stating that he esteemed it a privilege to be present. He thanked the people most heartily for their beautiful gift and wished them all prosperity.

Prayer was then said by Worshipful Brother Rev. W. L. Armitage, after which the hymn "All People That On Earth Do Dwell," was sung.

Then followed the laying of the stone by Judge Harding with the ceremonial according to the ritual of the Masonic Order. He was assisted by Worshipful Brothers H. C. Winch, Grand Director of Ceremonies and W. H. Walkey, the latter reading the scroll which was placed in the stone. The usual custom on such an occasion, of placing the papers in the stone was followed out, those being put in being the three city papers of July 9th, copies of the Canadian Churchman and Church Life, the proceedings of the Synod for the past year, the papers containing reports leading up to the election of Bishop Sweeney, the induction of Rev. Mr. Trumpour, the principal items in the history of the church, the coins of the realm and the list of officers of the various organizations of the church.

The Addresses

Following the ceremony of laying the corner stone a number of speeches were made, Mr. Trumpour calling on various persons.

Judge Harding was the first to speak. His Honour referred at some length to the strength and growth of the Masonic Order. It was well established and stood for the highest standards of moral and Christian living. He cited as an example of its strength and great influence that if England and the United States wanted to go to war, the Masons if they so desired could prevent them from doing so. While no atheist could become a Mason, the order was tolerant. Its members were Christian believers and the Masonic Order was a great instrument in the salvation of men. It was the only benevolent society in the world. It looked after its widows and orphans. The only way a man may enter the Masons is by living a good moral character. In conclusion he remarked that he was glad to be present and he hoped that the church would prove a great blessing.

Archdeacon Warren

Venerable Archdeacon Warren expressed his pleasure at being present to offer congratulations to the congregation of All Saints' on such an auspicious occasion. He had watched All Saints' rapidly progress and he hoped that same progress that had characterized in the past would continue. It was an important function, the laying of a corner stone. The Church of God was built on the true foundation, Jesus Christ. He hoped the new All Saints' would be the means of bringing many persons to the true one of Jesus Christ.

Rev. Canon Davidson, the first rector of All Saints' in a few brief remarks, offered his congratulations to the congregation, assuring them of the warm interest he took in their welfare.

Rev. W. L. Armitage.

The former rector of All Saints' Church was greeted with applause as he rose to speak. He assured them of the great pleasure he felt at being present. He had been welcomed by everyone and he felt like one returning to his home. He was glad to be among the brethren of the Masons. The future of All Saints' was very dear to him, here being practically his first work. He referred in eulogistic terms to the ability, and faithfulness of the rector, Rev. Mr. Trumpour.

Other Speakers

Rev. Mr. Potter, of St. Andrew's; Rev. J. R. Webb, of Murray St. Baptist Church, and Rev. H. J. Keith, President of the Ministerial Association, each spoke briefly. They added their congratulations and best wishes for future prosperity.

Mr. T. E. E. Bradburn, M.P.P., also spoke a few congratulatory remarks and Hon. J. R. Stratton, M.P., was called upon but was unable to be present. Rev. Dr. Langfeldt, one behalf of the rural deanery of Peterborough and Northumberland, spoke briefly.

The New Church

The new church will be built of red granite from Stony Lake. It will be ... design, early English Gothic, and will be 95 feet long and 60 feet wide with a central tower, twenty feet square. It will have a seating capacity of eight hundred.

THE WAY TO MAKE JELLY.

(By an Expert.)

By Alice Gitchell Kirk

Jellymaking is robbed of its terrors and uncertainties by perfect utensils, gas ranges, a plentiful supply of fruit with a knowledge of the exact time of ripeness to buy this fruit to give the best results.

With all the modern appliances for work in the kitchen, united with the desire to give pure jelly to our family, jellymaking has become a great pleasure.

Pectin is the basis of fruit jellies. It is this element in the juice of the fruit when a trifle underripe which allows it to gelatanize or "jell." If overripe fruit is used or the fruit cooked too long it looses its jelly properties. The small juicy berries and currants should be looked over carefully to remove all leaves or imperfect fruit; then heated slowly in the preserving kettle and mashed well with a wooden spoon or masher. Pour the fruit into a three-cornered jelly bag made from two thicknesses of cheesecloth that has been washed and softened for use. Always drip the juice.

Have a strong harness hook, which can be purchased from any hardware department, fastened over the sink or table, and suspend the jelly bag from this, where it can drip into a large bowl or crock. You will find this very convenient for many other things besides jellymaking.

When the larger fruits are used, wash and cut them into small pieces and barely cover with water and cook gently until the fruit is soft and the juices well started. After the juice is strained measure, and for most fruits allow three-fourths of a pound of sugar for each pint of juice. Some will take less and some more. Bring one quart of this juice to the boiling point and boil 20 minutes, skimming often. In the meantime, have the sugar heating in the oven in a basin. Be very careful not to melt it, but have it just heated through. Add the sugar to the juice, stir until dissolved, bringing once more to the boiling point, and usually it is then jelly and ready for the glasses. Stand in the sunshine to finish and cover.

Red Currant Jelly

Prepare the currants as given for small fruits. Heat them, mashing well. Pour them into the jelly bag strung from hot water and drain over night, or for several hours. Return the juice to the kettle and boil, a quart at a time, 20 minutes. Add the heated sugar; stir until dissolved. Boil, put a teaspoonful in a saucer and stand on ice or in cold water. If it congeals or jellies at once remove from the fire and pour into sterilized glasses. Cool and cover with paraffine melted and poured over them.

THE VISIT OF THE BELGIANS

The Trent Canal, and more particularly the Peterborough Hydraulic Lift Lock, has from time to time, been visited by many prominent gentlemen, from various parts of Canada and the United States, but, perhaps, no party ever visited the Lift Lock at Peterborough and Kirkfield, who showed a greater interest in these works than the party of Belgian gentlemen, who this week went over the entire portion of the completed route of the Trent, paying particular attention to the Lift Locks, which are known to engineers throughout the world.

The Belgian part was made up of the following gentlemen, Messrs. Hector Genard, Inspector General of Bridges and Highways; Leon Van Wetter, Engineer of Bridges and Highways; Kraft de la Saul, Chief Engineer of the John Cokerill Company in Seraing, and Georges Marquebreneq, Private Secretary to Mr. Genard. This party was delegated by the Belgium Government to visit the Canals of Canada and the United States, and to study the various classes of locks in operation on the canals of these two countries.

The party arrived in Peterborough on Saturday evening last, at 4.38 p.m., and were taken in hand by Mr. J. H. McClellan, Superintendent of the Trent Canal. The party paid a visit to the Lift Lock, and then returned to Hotel National for dinner. A number of prominent local gentlemen dined with the Beilgian visitors.

Tour of the Lakes

On Monday morning the members of the party accompanied by Mr. J. H. McClellan, Superintendent, and Mr. Clem. Gordon, Overseer, made a tour of the Canal to Fenelon Falls, the visitors admiring very much the scenery of the Kawartha Lakes. Monday night was spent at Fenelon, after which the party proceeded to the Kirkfield Hydraulic Lift Lock and Lake Simcoe. Mr. R. J. McLaughlin, K.C., and Mr. Thos. Stewart, of Lindsay, and Mr. Sam. Clegg, Overseer of the Central Division of the Canal joined the party at Fenelon Falls. The Belgians spent some hours inspecting the Hydraulic Lift Lock at Kirkfield, which differs somewhat from the Peterborough Hydraulic Lift Lock, in as much as, a great deal more steel is used in its construction. After proceeding down the Canal to Lake Simcoe, the party cruised across Lake Simcoe to Orillia, where the Belgan gentlemen took the train for the Welland Canal.

Canals in Belgium

A chat with the gentlemen from Belgium is most interesting, and they gave some valuable information about their country and its political affairs. They referred particularly to the system of canals that are maintained in that country. Their system of Canals differs greatly from the class of Canals we have in Canada. For instance, the boats that operate on the Belgium Canals are made strictly according to dimensions supplied by the Government. The boats are all, therefore, of the one size, being not more than 7 feet in width and 50 feet in length and being of 70 tons burden. However, the Government is now enlarging these Canals and the improved waterway will be capable of accommodating boats of 360 tons burden. The new locks, therefore, will be 17¾ feet wide and 140 feet in length. It might be mentioned that the locks on the Trent Canal are 33 feet by 124 feet and for the greater part 6 feet on the lock sill. The new locks on the Trent Canal are being made to provide for boats drawing 8 feet. They have several lift locks in Belgium, and three new lift locks are at the present time under construction.

One feature concerning these lift locks, which differs from the lift locks we have on the Trent Canal, is that the gates at the entrance to the basins, lift up, instead of dropping down as on our lift locks. The Belgian Engineers claim that this is an advantage. It might be said that at Kirkfield and at Peterborough the visitors were shown through the lift locks and furnished with every information in connection therewith by Mr. James Garrow, Mechanical Overseer.

Another feature in connection with the Trent Canal that struck the visitors was our splendid large lakes and rivers. They admired very much the broad expanse of water in Lake Simcoe, as well as, Balsam Lake, Pigeon Lake, Sturgeon Lake and in fact all the lakes that go to make up the Trent waterway.

Interesting Features

The Belgians, who speak French that being the language of their country, stated that they found more to interest them on the Trent Canal than on any other Canal so far visited, they having already gone over the Whitehall Canal, in New York State, the Rideau, Soulanges and Lachine Canals. They expect to visit the Welland and Erie Canals, and sail home from New York on July 14th.

The visitors are all jolly good fellows, and have made warm friends all along the Trent Canal. They spoke in high terms of the well kept appearance of the Trent Canal, and the system employed in its operation. They expressed to Mr. McClellan, Superintendent, their appreciation of the manner in which they had been received by the Dominion Government, and particularly the hospitality that had been extended to them while on the Trent Canal.

PANIC IN A NEW STORE

False Alarm Raised in a Big Crush For Bargains and Shoppers Jump From Windows—A Score Injured.

TRAMPLED IN STAMPEDE

Detroit, July 8.—Our child is dying and about twenty more women and children are suffering from severe injuries received to-day in a panic in the Kresge five and ten cent store in Woodward Avenue, following the cry of "Fire!" after a scuffle between two women on the crowded second floor of the establishment.

The concern was having its opening in a new store at Woodward Avenue and State Street and its five storey building was jammed.

About six hundred women were busy searching for bargains on the second floor when the panic started.

Two women are said to have reached for the same article and to have begun scuffling over it. This caused excitement in their immediate vicinity and attracted the attention of those near by.

Onlookers pressed about them and suddenly the cry "fire" was heard. This turned the hundreds of shoppers instantly into a maddened, frightened mob, intent only upon reaching the stairway at the rear.

The crowd of women and children with here and there a man or boy, swept across the floor to the stairs and jammed into a panic-stricken, screaming, fighting mob, which broke down the guard rails of the stairway and trampled over all those who lost their footing.

Many of those whose passageway to the stairs was blocked by the crowd rushed to the windows and tried to jump to the street below. Fortunately, however, the warning cries of persons on the street deterred them.

Rose Rascondi, seven years old, is dying in St. Mary's Hospital from a fractured skull received when she was knocked down and trampled on and nearly a dozen more women and children are in the same institution less seriously injured. A number were also given emergency treatment for their bruises and small cuts at the store and went to their homes.

Clothes were torn, hats were ripped off and those who lost their footing were trampled upon.

Employees of the store, assisted by the police, finally convinced the mob that the building was not afire and succeeded in calming the shoppers.

LETTER REGARDING CITY'S HEALTH

Peterborough, July 9th, 1909.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—Now that our small-pox scare is practically defunct, would it not be well for those in charge of the health and sanitary condition of our city to stop and ask themselves—is there no cause for this recent outbreak.

The sewage system of Peterborough is far from perfect. Peterborough has had practically no rain for the past six weeks and if a worse epidemic than the one we have recently had, is to be avoided, a thorough flushing of our sewers should be carried out without delay. The flushing should begin with the lower part of the system and be worked back to the head of the lines. This should be repeated at regular intervals so long as this abnormal weather continues; in fact I am doubtful if our sewage system could properly be regarded as self-scouring under ordinary conditions. I am not a medical man, but I am pretty sure that in houses where diseases occur—caused by excrementitious poisoning — such as typhoid fever, diphtheria, diarrhoea, cerebro-spinal meningitis, scarlet fever, etc., it will be found that the well, the cess-pool and privy vault, are not far apart; or if the house has water service and sewage connection, a thorough inspection of the pipers should be insisted upon— and in ninety cases out of a hundred, it will be found that the pipes have been perforated or that the sewer air has been getting into the house in some other way.

It is a well known fact that in doing away with cess-pools and substituting sewers, unless proper precautions are taken, we simply make an elongated cess-pool—rarely sufficiently cleansed, and often grossly foul, and communicating with the interior of every dwelling house. There are many families in this city using water taken from wells—distant not forty feet from cess-pools or privy vaults. This state of affairs should not be allowed to continue. If these people are too poor themselves to pay for water service and sewage connection the work should be undertaken by the corporation and charged up to the whole people—for it is the people, as a whole, who will suffer in the long run. This may seem, to those who have not examined the subject, like an extreme measure; but, all who have studied the evidence as to the means of propagation of infectious diseases, will recognize its soundness.

I have no doubt that Peterborough's new medical health officer is a thoroughly competent man and that he will give these matters his serious and deliberate consideration; and I believe the authorities of the city should have his recommendations carried out, regardless of cost.

Yours truly,
CIVIL ENGINEER.

Hospital For The Treatment Of Tuberculosis Is Proposed

An hospital for the treatment of tuberculosis was one of the questions considered at the recent meting of the Medical Association. An Examiner reporter in conversation with one of the members learned that there is strong probability of such a provision being made. This institution would be open to the county and would receive all cases of a tubercular nature. The proposition is yet in an embryo form but it is learned that the doctors are a unit in their opinion that this hospital is a necessity and will very likely take steps to carry out the idea they have been discussing. The danger of not separating persons who have tuberculosis is appreciated by all the medical profession and an hospital of the kind referred to would not only assist the persons afflicted but would protect those in contact with them. Segragation is considered one of the first steps in stopping the ravages of the White Plague.

The financing of the hospital, it was explained, would be similar to that of the Sick Children's Hospital in Toronto. There would be Government grants, city and county grants and the rest would likely have to be made up by the public benefaction. The primary plans of the Medical Association have been discussed but it was felt inadvisable to further broach the subject this year. However, the Examiner has learned that the Medical Association is determined not to let the matter drop as they intend to see that an institution is provided for the treatment of tuberculosis in the County of Peterborough.

Western Crops In Splendid Condition Says Western Man

One hundred and thirty to one hundred and forty million bushels of wheat is the estimated Western crop according to Mr. W. D. Drummond, a Winnipeg real estate agent, who is in the city for a month. The conditions are splendid and the outlook has never been brighter. The Spring broke late and seeding was delayed, but the grain scarcely seemed to have been planted before it sprouted and continued to grow with amazing rapidity. Mr. Drummond stated to the Examiner that everyone in Winnipeg is elated with the situation and the same feeling is general throughout the entire West. The rain-fall has been generous and opportune with the result that growth has continued at a splendid rate and the crops could scarcely be more satisfactory.

Winnipeg is experiencing a remarkable building boon and real estate is flourishing. The West is coming back to its own, Mr. Drummond states, and, with suitable weather from now until harvest time, the result will be most satisfactory, and the farmers of the West will receive a mint of money for the grain which they will grow this summer. Manitoba is holding its own in the acreage of grain, but Saskatchewan has passed it. The latter province has been opened up at an amazing rate, and will make a grand showing this year. The next big crop will be 200 million bushels. Mr. Drummond states and it is felt that it will not be long before that is reached.

REV. J. R. WEBB'S COTTAGE

"Bon Repose" Prettily Situated on Island Near Juniper.

"Bon Repose" is the expressive name of Rev. J. R. Webb's handsome new cottage at Stony Lake. It is situated on an island between Juniper and McCracken's in a delightful location. The cottage was built by Mr. Thos. Wilson and was completed a short time ago.

It has just been painted by Alderman Duncan and is now ready for occupation. The name is suggestive of the spirit that permeates Rev. Mr. Webb's delightful island and when with his family he opens it for the first time next week he should find it one of the prettiest spots on the lake.

Rev. Mr. Webb will spend his vacations at "Bon Repose."

WOLFE STREET WHARF OBSTRUCTED BY CRAFTS

Considerable complaint is heard of the obstruction of Wolfe Street Wharf by the practice of owners or crews of scows leavig their crafts moored to the wharf after discharging their cargoes of stone, wood, etc. When left as they often are, opposite the steps at the south end when small boats take the water or land their occupants both access to the water and for landing are shut off by the presence of the scows. These and all other craft when not employed in loading or unloading, should be anchoredout of the way in the river or tied up in some place where they will not be in the way of other users of the wharf.

Crops Are Doing Well

Early Rains and Low Temperature During Seeding Time Made Grains and Roots a Little Backwards, But This Will Be Overcome—Drouths Bad Down East, But Little Harm Is Done.

Ottawa, July 10.—A bulletin on the condition of crops and live stock in Canada at date of July 1 has been issued by the census and statistics office, based on the reports of a large staff of correspondents.

Low temperature and cold rains prevailed over the whole of Canada in May and the early part of June, which delayed seeding and checked vegetation. Then followed a period of drouth, throughout the northern and eastern parts of Ontario, the western and southern sections of Quebec and nearly the whole of the Maritime Provinces. Grain, hay and root crops were consequently in poor condition in all those regions. On both sides of the St. Lawrence, in the lower parts of Quebec and in the southwestern counties of Ontario, there were copious showers in June, and all crops were looking well at the end of the month. Fall wheat would be ready for reapers in the second week of July.

A feature of the season, however, has been a series of showers over local areas, and the conditions of crops are irregular. But there is a note of hope in the reports of many correspondents; encouraged by the widely extended rains of June 28 and 29, and in the Maritime Provinces, where the drouth was most severely felt, there were heavy rains on July 7. British Columbia has had a like experience of dry weather in June, with rains at the end of the month, and fall wheat is the only good crop there.

In the northwest provinces, fine growing weather followed the seeding of spring wheat, oats and barley, and correspondents throughout Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta are jubilant at the prospects. Rainfall was ample to the end of June, except in a few localities, and although seeding operations were delayed, cereals and grasses are nearly as well advanced as in any previous year.

"Ideal" is the favorite word of many correspondents, and it was generally expected that spring wheat would be cut in ear by July 10. In Alberta fall wheat was badly winterkilled, and much of the land has been re-sown with spring wheat, oats and barley. Spring wheat was heading out at the end of June in the southern parts of Alberta.

In the case of all the grains, except fall wheat, the per cent. condition is higher this year than it was last year; hay and clover and pasture are lower. In the three northwest provinces the average condition of spring wheat at the first of July was 95.53 and of oats 99.66.

Portuguese Duke Arrested.

Madrid, July 10.—The Portuguese Duke of Albuquerque was arrested in this city, at the request of the Portuguese authorities, and taken to Lisbon.

The newspapers of Madrid say that the duke's arrest was based on the charge of complicity in the assassinations early last year of King Carlos and Crown Prince Luis of Portugal.

Eaten by Alligators.

Pensacola, Fla., July 10.—With the bones stripped of flesh by alligators, the body of Herman Wilcox of Chicago was found in Good Time Lake, two miles from Camp Walton, a summer resort, where Wilcox has been residing with his mother for the past two months. Not knowing that the lake contained hundreds of alligators Wilcox went in for a swim.

Detroit, July 10.—Philip Miller, said to be of Toronto, who represented the J. H. Durham Co., wholesale dry goods merchants of New York City, dropped dead at the Detroit Boat Club dance Thursday night. He had just remarked that he had not danced for twenty years, when he toppled over.

STARVING THEMSELVES.

London Suffragettes Have a New Advertising Device.

London, July 10.—Sir Albert De Rutzen, chief magistrate of the metropolitan Police Court, yesterday decided against the suffragettes on the point raised by Miss Pankhurst, regarding the right to present a petition to Premier Asquith, and the court sentenced Miss Pankhurst to pay a fine of $25 or go to prison for a month on the charge of resisting the police.

Miss Pankhurst declared that her assault on Police Inspector Jarvis on the night of June 9, when 116 suffragettes were arrested for trying to force their way into the House of Commons, was her "guage of battle to the Government and defiance for its constitutional ways.

"I was aware," continued Miss Pankhurst, "that when I started that deputation of eight helpless women, about whom men armed with opera glasses had congregated to watch, as though it was a good show, it was bound to result in humiliation; but until women have the power to elect representatives to Parliament it is their duty to maintain the right of a subject to petition the King through Parliament. If the magistrate repeats his former sentences we will go to prison, but we will not conform any longer with the prison regulations. As political offenders we will insist on being treated as such and not as ordinary prisoners, and in the last resort we will act as did Miss Dunlop."

Miss Dunlop secured her release yesterday by starving herself for 91 hours.

Mrs. Havergal, daughter of Lord Abinger, was given the same sentence as Miss Pankhurst. Both the women notified the court of their intention to appeal from the judgment, and they were released by the magistrate on promising to abstain from sending further deputations to the House of Commons during the present session.

Millionaire a Loafer.

Seattle, Wn., July 10.—The board of control of the Epworth League of the United States and Canada yesterday, decided to hold the next international convention in Boston on May 18, 1910.

Dr. Chown of Toronto, deprecating the trend to socialism, said:

"Every reform must have a religious basis. An industrial system with a secular foundation must fail. The doctrine that each man must look out for himself is a theism applied to business. The millionaire and the tramp are alike loafers in the sight of God, whose only way of making the desert bloom is by labor. The men who corners the market, or in other ways takes advantage of the necessities of his fellow is a thief and a robber."

Fined for Shooting Italian Flag.

New York, July 10.—"I don't care what flag it was, you had no right to shoot it down and I will fine you $25 for doing it," said Judge Wilcox of Portchester, N.Y., when Harold Conant, a patriotic grocer, was arraigned before him on a charge of shooting down an Italian flag.

The trouble was caused when Giuseppe Maduro put up an Italian flag in front of his home. Conant, who is the senior member of a grocery firm, demanded that the Stars and Stripes be run up on the top of the Italian flag, and when the Italian refused Conant went to his home, several blocks away and returned with a shotgun. He shot away the halyards supporting the flag.

Attacks Ontario Power Scheme.

Toronto, July 10.—Every member of the City Council received a gift yesterday in the form of a marked copy of The Montreal Star. What was singled out for their attention was a long editorial article attacking the Ontario Government on its Niagara power policy and laying emphasis on the petitions being sent to the Dominion Government asking disallowance of the hydro-electric legislation.

The sender of the newspapers was careful to keep his identity hidden, but it is presumed the local interests which have been fighting the power project were responsible.

Gotham Girl to Wed Prince.

London, July 10.—The Austrian embassy announced the engagement of Prince Miguel of Draganza, eldest son of Duke Michael, the pretender to the Portuguese throne, to Miss Alta Stewart, daughter of Mrs. Jas. Smith of New York.

Prince Miguel is the grandson of the ex-King Miguel of Portugal, and an officer in the Austrian army. His name has been mentioned in connection with no less than three other American heiresses in the past few months.

Kingston Grocers Fined.

Kingston, July 10.—In the Police Court yesterday Messrs. Shay and Parkins, who run corner groceries, pleaded guilty to selling adulterated coffee and were fined $5 and costs each.

The analysis showed that the grocers were selling roasted grain for coffee. They had purchased the adulterated articles from wholesalers, who, like themselves, had been deceived.

On a Serious Charge.

Brantford, July 10.—In the Police Court yesterday Joseph Bowes, chairman of the Brantford Board of Health, was charged with an attempted offence. Thursday night an information laid by the parents of a seven-year-old girl Bowes was taken in custody, and later released on bail of $1,000. Yesterday morning he pleaded "not guilty," and was remanded until Tuesday.

Suit Case Filled With Guncotton.

Detroit, July 10.—As an outcome, the police think, of labor troubles, a suit case containing guncotton was placed under a pile of steel girders early yesterday in the yard of the Whitehead & Kales' plant on Beecher avenue, and exploded. The terrible explosion wrecked windows for half a mile around.

Sues For Divorce.

Ottawa, July 10.—George R. Buttonshaw of Bowmanville is seeking a divorce from his wife, Rosina M. H. Buttonshaw of Toronto.

More Men On Strike

Presence of Troops at Glace Bay Has Almost Entirely Suppressed Tendency to Riot and Only a Few Arrests Are Made—Strikers and Soldiers Play Football Match —Port Hood Heard From.

Glace Bay, N.S., July 10.—The usual calm that follows the storm obtained at all the Dominion collieries yesterday morning. Quite a number of men were on hand ready to go to work under military protection. Several of the men who were passing through the gate on their way to work were accosted by U.M.W. men and asked not to go to work, but there was no attempt at interference.

The number of men working yesterday is larger than on any day since the declaration of the strike, and by to-day the company expects to have a full complement of men in the mines.

The U.M.W. executive have notified the Nova Scotia Steel & Coal Co. that in the event of their furnishing coal to the Dominion Iron & Steel Co., a strike will be declared at the Sydney Mines collieries.

A new feature yesterday occurred at Inverness. There has been trouble brewing for a fortnight at Inverness colliery, which is operated by the Inverness and Richmond Coal & Railway Co., controlled by Mackenzie and Mann. Last week E. H. McCullough, vice-president of the U.M.W., who is in Glace Bay as chief organizer of the strike, visited Inverness, accompanied by another organizer, Peter Patterson. They returned to Glace Bay Thursday reporting everything quiet at Inverness. Yesterday morning, without giving any notice to the coal company, one-half of the men at Inverness, numbering about 400, remained off work, and only members of the P.W.A. were working yesterday.

F. WANKLYN.
Vice-President of the Dominion Coal Company.

Disturbances similar to those that have occurred during the past few days at Glace Bay are now feared at the Inverness colliery, which is situated on the other side of Cape Breton Island. There is a strike now on at Port Hood, 16 miles from Inverness. The cause of the strike at Inverness is the refusal of the company to officially recognize the U.M.W.

Everything is quiet at Glace Bay as far as outward appearances go, but a hundred little frictions make the situation look less bright than it might otherwise appear, though there is no need for disquietude. The soldiers have gone into camp and as yet no complete arrangements have been made regarding the disposition of the majority of the militia. The company officials were in touch with Col. Wadmore yesterday, and no doubt arrangements have been made for their distribution. Gen. Drury arrived yesterday from Halifax.

All the available revolvers in the town have been bought up. Not only have the small firearms been all purchased, but the large consignment of Enfield rifles condemned by the Government and sent to Glace Bay a few months ago to be sold at private sale have all found ready purchasers.

The coal company's claim that its vast interests in Glace Bay could not be protected by the civic administration, no matter how capable the force at its command, has aroused the animosity of the Town Council, and correspondence and diplomatic interviews between the two big corporations waxes warm.

There have been several arrests made. One attended with some importance took place at No. 4. A Polish woman stopped a man from going to work by throwing dry ashes at him. A company's constable arrested the woman, but later on dropped her and arrested a man for interfering with the arrest of the woman. Afterwards it was found that the man arrested was a town constable who had no badge on. Yesterday morning the town issued a warrant against the company for interfering with its police.

Good feeling exists between the soldiers and the strikers, as evidenced by the football match between teams from the strikers and the soldiers.

They Fought a Duel.

Paris, July 10.—M. Caillaux, the Minister of Finance, who was struck in the face as he was leaving the Senate chamber on Thursday by Charles Bos, a former deputy, fought a duel with his assailant yesterday afternoon on the Bois Vincennes.

After the exchange of two shots, which did no damage, the duellists left the field, unreconciled.

A Manager Arrested.

Guelph, July 10.—James Edward Brown, general manager of the Brown-Lee Chemical Co., was arrested Thursday night at the Central Hotel, and yesterday morning was remanded to jail for a week on two charges of obtaining money under false pretences.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

The steamer Dunedin is aground in Fresque Isle Bay.

A Montreal man was fined $5 for stealing a kiss from a lady.

Reports from Columbia minimized the revolution as a purely local affair.

Twenty-one moving picture men were fined at Montreal for keeping open on Sunday.

James Murphy of Newcastle, N.B., drowned himself while suffering from delirium tremens.

Sam Chislett, aged 21, from Newfoundland, was fatally crushed in a mine lift at Cobalt.

A riot occurred in the Argentine capital over a boundary dispute. Troops were called out.

The plant of the Buffalo Reduction Co. at Cheektowaga was destroyed by fire yesterday; loss $100,000.

Ottawa's assessment is now a little over seventy millions. The incomes of the civil servants form a big item.

One hundred and twenty King's medals for conspicuous bravery have been allotted, of which the colonies receive thirty.

George Frederick Samuel Robinson, the first Marquis of Ripon, formerly Lord Privy Seal, died last evening in London, Eng., aged 81 years.

Mike Eighmay will be hanged in the Winnipeg jailyard on the morning of Aug. 27 for the murder of his friend, Metro Howka, on the night of March 1, in a lonely woodcutter's cabin near Sandilands, on the Canadian Northern Railway.

The suffragettes, under the leadership of Mrs. Despard, who tried to picket Premier Asquith's residence in Downing street, London, succeeded last evening in presenting their petition to Mr. Asquith in person. The Premier, however, has made no reply.

Fifty-six elevators have already been built this season in Saskatchewan. It is estimated that by the time the grain begins to move in the fall 200 new elevators will have been erected with a capacity of 6,000,000 bushels, increasing the elevator capacity of Saskatchewan to 24,139,500 bushels.

Tribute to Bisley Rifle Meet.

London, July 10.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The Prince of Wales, presiding at the National Rifle Association's banquet, said:

"The competition and standard of excellence set up by the association have appealed to the instincts of our country, and the King's overseas dominions and men have assembled from near and far to compete in friendly sporting rivalry. In this way we may claim that the association has become a strong link in the chain which I fervently trust will ever unite us with our brothers across the seas."

Mr. Haldane and Lord Strathcona responded to the toast of "Visitors."

There Was No Persuasion.

Montreal, July 10.—A prompt denial that there was any interference or suggestion on the part of the home authorities tending to imperialism, the establishment of an empire press association, and the probable holding of a press conference in Winnipeg in 1912 were items culled from an interview last evening with John W. Dafoe of The Winnipeg Free Press, who arrived yesterday by the Empress of Britain, from the press conference in London.

M. H. Nichols of The Winnipeg Telegram left the steamer at Rimouski and went to Sackville, N.B.

Fire at Ahmic Harbor.

Burk's Falls, July 10.—A fragmentary message from Ahmic Harbor, via Dunchurch, late yesterday afternoon, said that the village was on fire, that the hotel and several residences had been burned and that Graves, Bigwod & Co.'s warehouse was threatened.

It was impossible to get either telephone or telegraph connection with the village on account of the fire.

Ahmic Harbor is in Parry Sound District, 25 miles from here. It has a population of 200, three lumber mills, two stores, a church, S. A. Barracks, and one hotel.

Gananoque Man Drowns.

Gananoque, July 10.—Hugh Wilson, aged 56, was accidentally drowned yesterday by falling from a dock. His body was found in ten feet of water.

Hugh Wilson was one of the best known business men in this section, having been in the agricultural business here for twenty-five years. He owned considerable property. He is survived by his wife, one daughter, Mrs. Sherrin of Grand Rapids, Mich., and a son, W. J. Wilson, ex-mayor of Gananoque.

Delegate Has Fever.

Winnipeg, July 10.—Mlle. Lafontaine, Belgian delegate to the women's quinquennial conference, held recently in Toronto, and who was among the number of visitors to this city, is now in the General Hospital suffering from scarlet fever. The supposition is that Mlle. Lafontaine was exposed to the same source of infection as Her Excellency Lady Grey, or contracted the disease at Rideau Hall. Luckily the case is not very severe.

Woman Drowns.

Dresden, July 10.—Having suffered from a long illness, Mrs. Joshua Wright early yesterday morning walked from her home to the Fieldham River and drowned herself.

Was on Way to Get Married.

IN THE WORLD OF SPORT

THERE WAS A TIME WHEN THE MANAGER GOT ALL AND MORE

Billy Delaney Recalls One "Handler" Who Connected Wisely and Grew Rich Thereby—His Counting Was Off

The wise managers are the men who make the fight game worth following. Nine times out of ten the fighters without a smart manager remains in the rear rank. He gets no sensational press work, no pictures in the paper, and he fights for whatever he can get and eats once a day.

Managers have always been clever men and those who think that the last generation of fight handlers had no sense and would not compare with the present crop of heelers have another think coming.

"Billy" Delaney has been handling fighters for more years than he cares to admit and has seen some smooth work done by the old time handlers, when a fighter's manager had everything to do for his man, including the rough sparring before a fight.

William tells a very good story on a friend who shall be called Casey. Casey had a fighter out in Napa City, Cal., where the Napa soda comes from. This fighter was a bod carrier by profession, and was distinctly a product of the slam bang style of training. He would not have known a right cross if he met it in the street, but he knew how to walk all over an antagonist and hammer him until his ribs gave way. The fighter, whose name was Mahride or McGill, or something like that, was not a smart man. He could not count above ten and could not read large print. Casey made all the business arrangements for him.

One day McGill secured a good match, from a money-making point of view. He was to meet the heavy-weight champion of Stockton, who had a great following along the San Joaquin.

Casey posted a forfeit, the match was advertised in a quiet way, and at $5 and $10 a throw the chairs sold like hot cakes. The battle was warm while it lasted, but it did not reach the five round mark. McGill nearly murdered the Stockton heavy-weight and Casey threw down the purse, all of which went to the winner.

According to Billy Delaney, who was present, this is the way the money was divided, in McGill's room at the hotel after the fight. The money was dumped out on the table and a nice little pile of gold pieces it made.

"Now, Mack," said Casey, "sit down an' we'll divide this money fair an' equal. Ah, it was a great battle you fought. I knew you'd get him the moment I saw you walkin' out so cool an' confident. Now, Mack, here's a ten dollar gold piece f'r me, an' another f'r you. Do you hold your hands, man, an' I'll put mine in my pocket. Here's another for me. Do you mind that fine slam you hit him in the ribs in the first round? I heard him grunt, an' I says to myself, That'll about do f'h him! Now, here's one f'r me an' another f'r you and one f'r me again. He had all his friends in the house, too. They didn't do much cheerin' if you remember. They didn't have anything to cheer about. Ah, it's all in the game. Man has to take a lickin' once in a while, an' I will say for him he was game. One Printed at Office of PeterboroughExaminer more f'r me an' one f'r you, an' one f'r me. What are we goin' to do with this money, Mac? Buy a farm, maybe? Another f'r me and a new one f'r you."

• • •

In this way the count proceeded until all the money had disappeared, and Casey took two for one throughout and got away with it, McGill being none the wiser. This is a new way of manipulating the manager's cut but if Casey had Bat Nelson on his hands, or, say, Leach Cross, how far would he get with such grand larceny as that?

INFIELDER'S GLOVE INTENDED TO OFFSET BAD INJURY TO FINGERS

It was in 1883 that Arthur Irwin, playing shortstop for Providence, broke the third and fourth fingers of his left hand—and revolutionised the fielding game. He still shows a little finger bent in almost at right angles, and he says as he shows it: "That did it."

Then a club was a team, not two or three teams. They entered the struggle with ten, or, at the most, eleven men—a full team and one or two substitutes. If there were two pitchers the one not in the box served as an outfielder.

A man took a day off only for serious cause. So Irwin, star infielder, had to devise some way of beating his injuries. He consulted a glover. They took a buckskin driving glove, many sizes too large, padded it, made a fastening at the back, and sewed the third and fourth fingers together to make room for bandages. The crowd, Irwin knew, would forgive him because of his mangled condition.

From the first time he took a grounder with that glove he noticed that he could not "meet" the ball solidly. He did not have to "ease off" and he could get away his throw quicker than any other man on the infield.

John Montgomery Ward, of the New York team, observed this. With monumental moral courage he got a glove like Irwin's and used it in a game. No one hooted him for his cowardice. Within two weeks after Irwin and Ward first took their gloves around the circuit a sporting goods firm had orders from professionals for a hundred like them.

By the next season nearly every professional was wearing one of the "Irwin" gloves. Denny, the rugged old third baseman, was a conspicuous exception. To the end of his days in baseball he played barehanded.

In one respect this improvement came in the very nick of time. In 1883-4, after long years of experiment and argument, the pitchers had got their liberty. They could now throw the ball overhand and free-armed. Having a box to get a running start, and a shorter line to the plate than at present, they developed unprecedented speed. It required more catchers than pitchers for a first-class team, so hard was his delivery on hands. The catchers took up the new fangled glove with enthusiasm. Manufacturers made them larger and larger, but still the fingered glove did not quite serve the purpose.

In 1888 Jim White, third baseman, sewed a leather plate on the face of his infielder's glove, and got thereby good results with hot liners. Immediately the big catcher's mit, caimed by two or three different inventors, became a feature of the game.

Melbourne, July 5.—An astonishing story of the adventures of a woman who masqueraded as a man comes from New Zealand. The woman is the notorious Amk Bock, who has been many times convicted in Australia of fraud and other offences.

Calling herself Percy Carl Redwood, she stayed at a boarding house at Port Molyneaux, New Zealand, and, giving it out that she was the nephew of an archbishop, was received in the best circles. After a time Percy began to pay his addresses to the daughter of the landlady of the boarding house. He was a general favourite and was quickly an accepted suitor.

The girl's parents received a letter, purporting to come from Redwood's mother, stating that on his marriage she would double his allowance, which was already an ample one. She declared that she would be present at the wedding with her daughter. Another letter arrived from the Auckland Drainage Board, stating that Redwood had been appointed their secretary at a salary of $35 a week.

On the strength of these letters Redwood borrowed money to buy jewelry and wedding presents, and among other things he mortgaged an imaginary estate for nearly a thousand dollars.

The wedding duly took place, and was a brilliant affair, which was reported at great length in the local papers. But somehow the suspicious of the bride's family were aroused. They called in a detective who, on being confronted by Redwood, immediately recognised "him" as the notorious Amy Bock and arrested her.

OLD PLAYER COMES BACK

JIMMY BARRETT

Oh. yes, they do come back.

Jimmy Barrett, ex-Detroit, Boston, etc., outfielder, who was declared dead a long time ago as the result of bum stilts, has returned to the game, playing left field for Milwaukee, and is simply burning up the ground.

Barrett has been one of the greatest outfielders the game ever produced, and the form he is displaying for Milwaukee is doing much to keep that team in the lead of the American Association pennant race.

BEST IN HIS LEAGUE—HE IS NOW "GOING UP"

"RED" FISHER

Omaha, Neb., July 10.—"Red" Fisher, left infielder of the Omaha team, and the classiest gardener in the Western League, is due to take a chance in fast company, owing to a desire of Roger Bresnahan, who wants him for his St. Louis club.

Fisher is fast. So fast that he has been showing up the teams in the Western League by his base running and fielding. "Red" is in his second year at Omaha. Before being picked up by Rourke he played in the Central Association.

When he came to Omaha in 1908 Fisher was as fast as a prize Hereford and his speed was almost up to the demand of a short ice waggon route. But he could hit.

When he reported this season he looked right. He had reduced about 20 pounds, and in some mysterious way had found worlds of speed. Also his hitting was improved. Loafing around the top of the list as a base thief, fielding and hitting in form, he has forced the Omaha fans to accord him a place in their affections heretofore held by Geo. Stone of the Browns, upon whom Omaha looks as the biggest noise base ball ever produced.

LOU DILLON'S ARTIFICIAL RECORD WILL NEVER BE LOWERED

World's champion trotters have passed away, and the list sealed forever by the mechanical record of Lou Dillon, says the New York Telegraph.

An unproportionately large number of famous harness horses have died during the first half of 1909, and in a majority of cases they have been horses which, for nearly a quarter of a century, occupied a prominent position in the championship list of the trotting turf.

In fact, it may be said that by the passing away of Sunol about a month ago and the death of Jay Eye See on last Friday the championship trotting table is practically closed up.

Famous trotters whose names are recorded in this table with an asterisk — which denotes that their championship records were made in a proper way and in starts against time—are no more, with the notable exception of that grand old champion Nancy aHnks (2.04), world's greatest trotter from August 17, 1892, to Sept. 19, 1894, now hale and hearty at the age of 23, in the brood mare ranks at Humburg Place.

Creseens (2.02¼), the last trotter who bore an asterisk before his name, with his championship honors, is still alive, but by all prospects he, too, is a struly lost to this country as if he were dead.

Lou Dillon, with her dirt shield record of 1.58½, winds up the trotting championship table, and through the thoughtlessness of harness turf supervisors, who once allowed these artificial records to be accepted as official, but saw the foolishness of their action later by excluding them, the list will forever remain as it is today.

Perhaps for all time to come the harness turf will have no living champion trotter to look at and admire as it has had in the past, in those which have now passed away.

Lou Dillon, with her mechanical and artificial record, has forever sealed this list and locked up the championship table.

Have we any trotters living today that can take of those which electrified the harness world and one by one passed away, or can produce any in the future that could enter into the championship class of their respective periods?

The answer is in the affirmative in both cases, yet none of them will ever grace that honored list of the future, for the reason that none will ever obtains mark of 1.58½, unless the authorities will again go back to the "foolish" period and accept dirt-shield marks.

Since Jay Eye See trotted the world's first mile in 2.10 twenty-four years ago last August, we have produced 353 trotters with marks of 2.10 and better, and will perhaps add over 190 more this season in celebration of the quarter century of the 2.10 trotting mark.

We have had in recent years a Sweet Marie and others whose honest records have never entered in the championship table, because previous to their notable performances there came a Lou Dillon, 1.58½.

The turf has to-day a Hamburg Belle, who some day will earn a speed record perhaps never before honestly shown by a trotter, yet she will have no opportunity to enter the long list alongside of Maud S., Sunol, Nancy Hanks, Alix and others, because Lou Dillon's one asterisk record was not left where it should have been—2.02¼ her only undisputed speed showing—so as to give modern champions a chance to get a shy at Sweet Marie's 2.02 mark.

It is a sad blow to the harness sport and breeding industry to be compelled to look at a championship class of trotters with names of dead dead horses.

PITCHER THAT HAD GOAT OF NEW YORK GIANTS

HARRY COVALESKE.

This is the young Philadelphia pitcher who last year made the Giants look like a bunch of deuces almost every time he faced them. McGraw's men feared Covaleske more than they did cholera, but lately they have been getting his goat, and pounding him pretty hard.

BASEBALL

Jiggs Donohue is hitting the ball at a merry clip for Washington, and the White Sox coul duse the traded first sacker right now. Cravath and Altrock have, however, proved of little use to their new owners.

Jim Delehanty has taken a fearful slump with the stick this year. He is only hitting .197.

• • •

Hal Chase has regained his best form around the initial sack and is once more the idol of New York rans.

• • •

The Club players say that Pat Moran is filling Johnny Kling's shoes nicely behind the bat, and judging from Moran's all-round work in recent games, Kling has nothing on the Fitchburg boy.

• • •

Ty Cobb has purchased an automobile to take his mind off his batting slump. Nobody worries more than the Detroit slugger who nbe isn't hitting.

• • •

Rube Waddell has been pitching for a dozen years, and though he seems to be all in at times, he comes back smiling and puts up a ratsling exhibition now and then.

• • •

The Giants played some mighty good ball during their recent Western trip and managed to stop Pittsburg after the Pirates had won fourteen straight games.

The total attendance at the Detroit games in Boston was 141,052.

• • •

"Yebbie" Flaherty, once the pride and star pitcher of the Midland League and later of the Canadian Leagues, and who later was forced to drop out of the pitching game because of a bad arm, went back on the firing line against Barrie the other day and pitched remarkably good ball. It is very evident that "Yebbie's" days are far from being in the sere and yellow leaf.—Lindsay Warder.

• • •

Fred Hickey may console himself that he is not the only one who has got his bumps in a country town or city. Barry, of Providence, remembers the City of Peterborough to his sorrow, but Barry had the wisdom to close his trap and take a beating like a little man when it came his way.—Lindsay Warder.

Joe Bean, who managed the Skeeters last year, was in Newark recently. Joe is looking for players for his Lawrence (Mass.) club.

Jimmy Jones, of the Montreal team, will be purchased by a major league club before the season is concluded. Jones has been going unusually well for the past two seasons.

• • •

Frank Schulte, of the Cubs, says that he will give up baseball at the close of the season, and go into the refreshment bureau business in Syracuse.

• • •

Frank Farrell, it is said, has told George Stallings that he can spend $10,000 for the right sort of a pitcher. Stallings believes that a star twirler would keep his team in the running.

• • •

McGraw instructs his men to take chances. Other fellows cannot make errors unless you make them throw the ball is McGraw's theory.

• • •

George Carey, veteran grat baseman of the old Baltimore Orioles, has played such sensational ball for Little Rock that the sale of regular First Baseman Tarleton to the Wheeling club has been announced.

• • •

The iron arm of "Wild Bill" Donovan has gone bad, and to-day Jennings freely admits that the "Smiler" is under a doctor's care. For some time the fans have looked forward to Donovan's sharing the honours with George Mullin and Eddie Willett, but beyond the usual "warming up" process "Big Bill" has been a negative factor in the success of the Tigers.

It was in 1888—21 years ago—that Harry Stovey, of the old Athletics, stole 156 bases in one season, which is the record for all time. How sadly base-running has deteriorated will be appreciated when it is known that last year "Hans" Wagner led the National League with 53 stolen bases, while "Pat" Dougherty was high man for the American League, with 47.

• • •

If there is any strength in numbers, Pittsburg should easily win the pennant this season. Manager Clarke is carrying thirteen pitchers. Shows also that Fred is not superstitious.

• • •

The Toronto Star says: Liniment for the knockers of Fred Hickey. Hickey journeyed to Cobalt on July 1, and won a double-header in the afternoon, 5-0, 12-6, a pretty good performance after a long journey on the train. And at Markham Saturday Hickey had the game well in hand and had all the batters on the Stouffville team guessing, when he hurt his shoulder running to first and had to retire, and the game was called, 2 all, as Markham had no other player. As for Grey, the Stouffville pitcher, having anything on Hickey, not much. There are lots of kids playing on the sand lots of Toronto, who could beat Gray any old day in the week. "Nuff" said.

ROYAL THEATRE

3-Motion Pictures-3

"THE DUKE'S JESTER" or "A FOOL'S REVENGE"

This very strong Drama tells a story of the vengeance of a husband for the wrong done his very young wife. He swears to revenge his wife's death but Heaven's vengeance is visited upon his own head, by his daughter's sudden and unforseen death. The scenes are in Italy in the days of the early Romans, and the picture is one of the best seen.

An Unfortunate Husband

This very funny picture tells the story of a poor unfortunate husband who meets with many trials and misfortunes in his attempts to earn a living for a wife who does not always assist him. The many funny situations are very amusing.

DISASTROUS FLIRTATIONS

Another funny picture which is one of the best yet shown for fun, it would make the most sad and sorrowful laugh, they could not help themselves. It shows the happy Dude falling in love with every girl he meets, and then his troubles.

PREACHERS AT GLACE BAY CRITICIZE WOMEN FOR SHARING IN THE RIOTING

Soldiers are Called Away to Suppress Trouble at the Inverness Colliery---Newfoundland Miners are Arriving to Break the Strike and U. M. W. are Leaving for Other Places.

Inverness, N.S., July 12.—There was some serious rioting here on Saturday afternoon at two o'clock, when 304 miners, who were leaving the mine, were attacked with stones by a mob of strikers numbering about 300. The leaders in this disorder were Belgians, of whom there are about 150 who were employed in the mines.

General Manager W. D. Barclay and the officials waited on the mayor and asked that he make out a requisition for military protection, asserting that the Belgians had been making threats as to what they would do on Monday if the Provincial Workmen's Association men dared to go to work.

Mayor McLeod and two justices signed the requisition, believing that it was necessary for the preservation of order. The requisition was handed to Capt. Johnston of the 94th Regiment, who wired to Col. Humphreys, D.O.C., at Halifax, who immediately forwarded 100 soldiers and seven officers by a special train.

Most Disregarded Church.

Glace Bay, July 12.—Hostilities in the Cape Breton coal fields were suspended yesterday and some of the people attended divine service, but the great majority showed a disregard for attendance at church, many of them no doubt feeling that their actions were in danger of criticism from the pulpit.

The various ministers were fearlessly outspoken in the condemnation of the action of the men, and especially criticised the conduct of the women, who by their unwomanly conduct, brought discredit on a community jealous of its reputation.

The utterances of Rev. Mr. Feaver at Glace Bay, may be taken as indicative of the stand taken in the matter by the clergy. He expressed his deep sorrow that such unmanly and unwomanly actions should characterize the strike and severely condemned the perpetrators, whoever, they were. He had expected that the ladies would be guided by their instinctive sense of what a woman should be and do, but regretted to say that some of them had so far forgotten themselves and disgraced their sex. Mr. Feaver advocated rational behavior and a supreme regard for the law.

At the camp on the Black Diamond Trotting Park, service was continued yesterday morning by Rev. Mr. Feaver. The soldiers at this point, about 250 in number, were formed up in three sides of a square and the services, an abbreviated Anglican Church service, was hearty. Gen. Drury and his staff were among those present at the open air meeting.

To-day is witnessing an influx and an exodus of workmen.

The Dominion Coal Co. is bound to fill the places of the deserters from its ranks to the ranks of the United Mine Workers, and is doing so by bringing men from Newfoundland and other places. It is reported that a large number have arrived at North Sydney from Newfoundland, and on Saturday night the U.M.W. sent a committee to meet them on their arrival with the intention of persuading them to return without accepting employment with the company.

Asked if outside labor would be employed, General Manager Duggan said:

"It is our intention, if possible, to work every colliery, and every man who seeks work will get it. It will be a case of first come, first served. The best positions will be given to the early comers."

"There is a report, Mr. Duggan, that you intend importing men from the old country, the United States and the continent. Will you certify this?"

"I am not saying what we will do in regard to importing men, but I will tell you this. We will work our mines, and no good man will be refused employment."

About 100 men arrived yesterday and went into the mines.

The exodus will be more noticeable than the influx, for the men will be taken away in larger groups than will come in. On Saturday, Leonard W. Anker, employment agent for the Corbett & Flesech Co., who have the contract for building 150 miles of the transcontinental railroad, arrived from Moncton, and can find work for hundreds of men. Mr. Anker is ready to give employment to as many as 1,500 men. They will be put at grading. The wages offered is $1.75 a day, against $1.50 paid by the coal company. Board is only half as much among the railway workmen as at Glace Bay, so the proposition seems attractive to a large number of Austrians and Russians.

John Madison Is Arrested After a Career of Marrying and Swindling Middle-Aged Widows All Over the Country—Operated In Toronto and Hamilton Some Time Ago—Numerous Aliases

San Francisco, Cal., July 12.—"Yes, I annexed a couple of merry widows, but I wasn't fool enough to marry all of the women the police say I did."

Sitting in his cell in the city prison, John Madison, alias Christian C. Johnson, alias John C. Anderson, alias C. O. Moeller, cogitated on the follies of his old age. The police are busy untangling his voluminous record, which is said to extend to a dozen different cities and involve the affections and bank rolls of about 25 women. Included in the roster is a marriage in Toronto and Hamilton, Ont.

The authorities say they have established his marriage to ten women and his engagement and possible marriage to 14 others. Each is said by the police to have lost more or less money through acquaintance with Madison.

Among those to whom Madison is alleged to have been married appears the name of Mrs. Mary Wiggins Drown of Springfield, Mass., who is said to have lost $500.

Mrs. Sylvia Pollard de Bonnett of this city is another of his alleged victims. Mrs. de Bonnett and "Johnston," it is alleged, were married in San Rafael in August, 1906. Immediately afterward, after getting some of her money, Madison is said to have deserted her.

Advices from Stockton are to the effect that Mrs. Jessie Tretheway of that city has left for San Jose to swear to a complaint against him, her marriage to "Johnson" having been performed in that city. In the event that the warrant is issued in San Jose the case will be turned over to San Jose authorities and "Johnson" will be prosecuted in that city.

"Johnson" stoutly denied yesterday that he had ever assumed the name of Madison. He declared that it was laughable to connect him with so many women. "I married two of them," he said. "Mrs. McLeod of this city and Mrs. Tretheway of Stockton are the only wives I ever had. I am willing to plead guilty to a charge of bigamy if they will be a little lenient with me and do not try to saddle too much trouble on my shoulders."

John Madison has not been heard from since 1908. It was about this time that Christian Johnson began his operations, and the police believe that Johnson and Madison are the same man.

Madison's record is a long one and includes dealings with women in Cincinnati, Ohio; Louisville, Ky.; Kalamazoo, Mich.; Hot Springs, Ark.; Kansas City, Mo.; Olean, N.Y.; Toronto, Canada; Los Angeles, Stockton, San Francisco; Gettysburg, Ohio; St. John's, Mich.; Hamilton, Ont.; and in Germany. Almost without exception his alleged victims have been widows or women of middle age.

RAINFALL WILL BE A BLESSING TO CROPS THROUGHOUT PROVINCE

Rain Was Fairly Well Distributed Throughout Ontario---Lightning Bolt Near Lindsay Responsible for Death of Archie McMillan---Rain Heaviest Between Toronto and Belleville.

Toronto, July 12.—Thus far the observatory reports do not show a very heavy rainfall throughout Ontario. Saturday and Sunday's storm did some damage to property but was of immense benefit to the crops. Last night's and to-day's heavy rain will bring the record up but the official figures thus far are only moderate.

One-tenth of an inch is reported from Parry Sound for Saturday and Sunday. About half as much more fell at Port Stanley. Kingston got half an inch.

Reports from the other districts around Toronto indicate that the scattered showers of Saturday brought some relief to the parched land. The heavy rain which fell early Saturday afternoon developed into a beautiful downpour between this city and Belleville. Train despatchers state they had considerable trouble with the wires in that direction owing to the heavy precipitation of moisture.

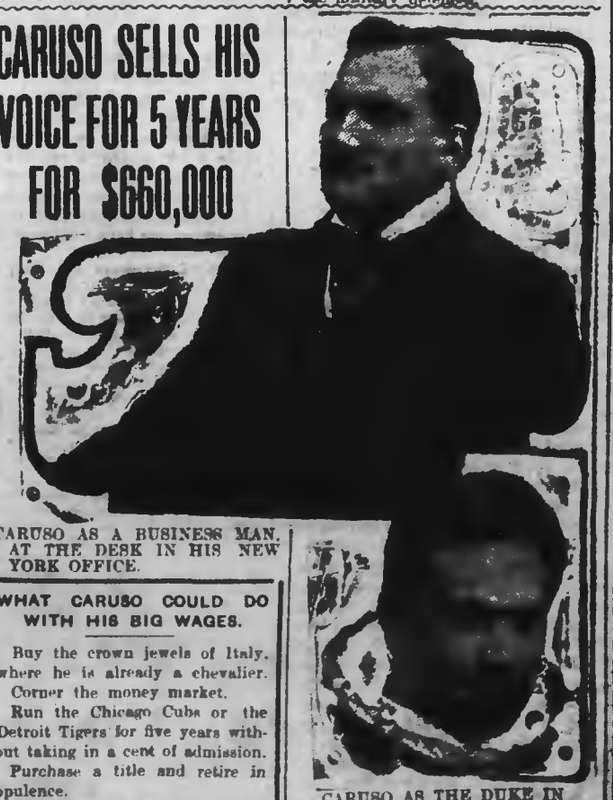
The district around London had but little rain to satisfy the anxious farmers. On both Saturday and Sunday the showers were light.

While Ontario is languishing with drought, the reports received from the west tell of a more satisfactory condition. Enquiries made at the head offices of the banks having an extensive branch system throughout the prairie provinces find that ideal crop weather existed.

Farmer Is Killed.

Lindsay, July 12.—During the electrical storm which swept this part of the country yesterday a young man named Archie McMillan, son of Mr. James McMillan of Palestine, in Eldon township, was killed by lightning. He was working with the churn in the cellar when the lightning struck the roof and the bolt went down the chimney into the cellar. Deceased was about twenty-three years of age.

CARUSO SELLS HIS VOICE FOR 5 YEARS FOR $660,000



CARUSO AS A BUSINESS MAN, AT THE DESK IN HIS NEW YORK OFFICE.

CARUSO AS THE DUKE IN "RIGOLETTO."

WHAT CARUSO COULD DO WITH HIS BIG WAGES.

Buy the crown jewels of Italy, where he is already a chevalier.

Corner the money market.

Run the Chicago Cubs or the Detroit Tigers for five years without taking in a cent of admission.

Purchase a title and retire in opulence.

Oragnize an opera company and give free performances to New York all season.

New York, July 10.—The news from Paris that Enrico Caruso, "the man with the golden voice," has been signed to sing five more seasons at the Metropolitan opera house has drawn attention to the strange shrewdness of the singer, which makes him as much a business man as an operatic star.

Caruso put his signature to a document, also signed by Otto H. Kahn and Senor Gatti-Casazzi, for the opera company, which assures him three appearances each week, for a season of 22 weeks for the next five years, at $2,000 an evening. If Caruso's voice should fail him, the opera company must stand the loss.

For the five years covered in the contract he will receive the stupendous sum of $660,000!

Caruso's health is insured by the Metropolitan opera company for that sum to safeguard any loss to the men who hand Caruso his pay envelopes.

Besides Caruso's huge wages the salaries of men noted as financiers seem dwarfed.

Mark Twain, would he warble his best for the rest of his life, couldn't make enough in that way to pay Caruso's chauffeur's wages. Mark said so himself when he heard Caruso had been signed.

Richard Wagner, endowed with the most marvelous musical mind ever allotted to a man, never dreamed of having in his life as much money as Caruso will get in the next five years.

Whistler, Van Dyke, Rembrandt, or Murillo, each was the greatest of the world's artists in his line of painting, yet their voices were worthless.

Yet Caruso is financier, writer, composer and painter.

When he is not spending his time before the footlights, Caruso is either at his desk, his piano, in his office or at his easel. He is endowed with what Carlyle said genius was: The infinite capacity for taking pains.

A year ago Caruso heard doctors say he never would sing again. An operation was performed on his throat and he had to learn the scale over. But now experts say his voice is more marvellous than ever.

It was as a business man that Caruso secured for himself such a large forture when he signed the contract.

In his suite at the Knickerbocker hotel Caruso has his office. It is furnished plainly, with a small desk, room for his stenographer and a safe.

Here, in prosaic frock coat, he busies himself with his financial affairs several hours a day.

A genius at song, he also is a genius of finance. Caruso is worth millions, and it is invested in the four corners of the earth, where people demand him to sing. Yet he attends to all the details of his investments with the same care that he would use on his voice on the evening of an operatic appearance.

FOWLER'S TORIC LENSES

My! How the orders did come in as soon as we told you that we were in a position to grind these lenses, at a reasonable cost. They came in almost faster than we could handle them, but we don't believe at that that any customer was kept waiting as long as if we had to send out of the city for them. We are making about the prettiest lenses that can be imagined, and making them right, and we appreciate very much the unanimity with which our customers all over the country started to send in their order for this new style of Toric Lenses. All work positively guaranteed.

THE VICTORY OF PEACE.

The Insurance and Finance Chronicle remarks that Hon. Mackenzie King will not be satisfied till peace hath her celebrations no less than war. "Himself of rebellion-of-'37 stock—and proud of it—he is the framer of a Conciliation Act that has attracted attention the world over." In conferring the degree of Doctor of Philosophy the other day upon the young Minister of Labour, President Lowell of Harvard University, referred to him as "the author of the wisest piece of legislation to securing industrial peace the world has ever seen." Our Minister of Labour is not only an advocate for industrial peace, but for international peace. Speaking upon the same occasion, in his address of acknowledgement, Hon. Mr. King reminded hisaudience that four years hence will fall the hundredth anniversary of the Treaty of Ghent, which marked the end of the war of 1812-14. In all that score of lustra, no weapon has been drawn nor a shot fired across the three thousand miles of boundary that divide Canada and the United States. The idea of an international movement is a happy suggestion, and its accomplishment would doubtless do much to stretch the hundred years of peace into two hundred; and its compliment is equally so—that we select as the place of celebration the neighbourhood of Niagara, the centre of conflict a hundred years ago, and at this point erect an international monument, the symbol of peace, of friendship and brotherhood. There might be some difficulty as to deciding upon which side of the river the proposed monument should stand. In order to avoid a controevray of this kind which might contain the seeds of discord that would mullify the object of the memorial, the Examiner would timidly suggest that the monument take the form of a triumphal arch to span the river at some chosen point, the respective ends resting upon British and United States soil. This arch might be of reinforced concrete and hold in the centre of it a gigantic figure of Peace. With the advance in mechanical manipulation of the plastic material suggested no obstacle to the construction of such an arch would be presented, and what such a gigantic monolith would suggest would represent a sentimental bond of amity between neighbouring nations, stronger than the material tie it would constitute.

THE DEADLY MOSQUITO

Our neighbours to the south of us are fond, some of them, of sneering at "Little Frozen Canada." But the best test of a desirable climate is its all-round comfortable condition. We are told of the delights of the South; of the flowers blooming when we are locked fast in the cold arms of winter. But when our summer comes, the air is not laden with deadly miasma, fever-breeding and clammy. We have no venemous reptiles to coil under and spring from the tuft of flowers and plant the virus of loathsome death in the hand that would pluck them. We have no crocodiles to crunch the bones of bathers; we have no yellow fevers to sere the sources of life; we have no stinging insects that insert the seeds of disease and death in our blood. The nimble mosquito in Canada is simply an annoyance unknown in most parts, and then in evidence only for a month or two. The following little article from the August number of the Technical World Magazine, shows how deadly a menace the mosquito is to the comfort health and life of those parts of the United States where it most abounds:

Well may the thin-skinned race of man shudder and go wan as that shrill and triumphant war-cry strikes the enlightened ear. It means war, pestilence and famine; it heralds the onslaught of an inconceivable host, armed with poisoned arrows; it is the rallying cry of a merciless and malignant horde, which slays and spares not—neither the nursing mother nor the babe in her arms. Insomnia, blood-poison, malaria, elephantiasis, yellow fever are its allies; swarming in their billions, its warriors have stopped the progress of agriculture, depopulated whole great regions, ruined nations, overthrown the Roman Empire. In the United States alone, the death-roll of this insect army is greater than that of the Civil War.

First and for centuries the mosquito was merely a nuisance. Fat-witted man, sitting on th e front-stoop of cliff-and-cave-dwelling, wattled-hut and marble palace, of a summer evening, has cried "Ouch!" smote himself sorely and jabbered that immemorial bromidian: "Well, he won't bite anybody else, anyhow."

Then the thin detectives of science, spying through thick glasses, risking and losing their own lives in the dangerous work, verified, at last, long harboured suspicions and brought home to the mosquito the certain proof of his crimes. Through the winged snake of Herodotus, and in no other way, whatever, are malaria, yellow fever and a number of other diseases communicated to man. The pest becomes a pestilence; the nuisance a flying scourge of the world.

COST OF THE TRANSCONTINENTAL.

The fact that the Transcontinental Railway will, like all great undertakings, cost more than the original estimates, has been made the subject of gross misrepresentation—not to serve a national interest, but to injure the Government,t o whose patriotism and broad outlook the origination of the great undertaking is due. The actual cost over the estimates is easily accounted for and as easily justified. In the first place the increased cost of labour and materials in every department of industrial and economic activity accounts for the increase to a very large extent. This might not be a formidable item in the construction of a cottage, costing two or three thousand dollars, but it mounts into something formidable in the construction of 3,500 miles of railway, much of it through difficult territory. A private letter received by a local professional gentleman from a nephew who is connected with construction work on the far western section, tells how the large item of wages mounts. To quote—"I don't think there is much white slavery among the men on the work here when a man makes $4.00 a day clear. That's what one gang—station-men—had, and another had $5.65 clear—after paying board and all expenses. I don't think that's too bad for a man to come on the work with only the clothes on his back and a blanket, and at the end of the season, have in his possession, $1,200 or $1,400. Ordinary labourers get three dollars a day and found." When we add a proportionate or even greater increased cost of supplies of all kinds—fully 35 per cent., and consider the fact that the Government is building the model railway of the world, complete in every respect, finished when it is finished to last, and the structural expense incurred once for all. The curves and grades will be the easiest of any railway crossing the continent. This will mean less expense in maintenance and greater facility of traffic and will have an important modifying influence upon passenger and freight rates and a proportional bearing upon the development of the immense regions the railway will serve. The extra cost of the railway will be compensated by the lower traffic rates this operating company will be able to offer, owing to low grades and lesser working and maintenance expenses.

It will be instructive to remember what the building and operation of the Transcontinental Railway will mean to Canada.

It will double the industrial and productive area of the country, and roll up the map of Canada 300 miles to the northward. It will provide competition in rates for the farmers of the West and the manufacturers of the East. It will be the only all-British railway across the continent under one management. It will develop vast coal fields in the Saskatchewan, Athabaska and Peace river for the supply of fuel to the prairies. It will give the most northwesterly part of the prairie region, which is farthest from the Atlantic, a short outlet to the Pacific. It will connect the railway system of Canada with 2,000 miles of steamboat navigation on the Athabasca, Peace, Laird and Mackenzie rivers, their great lakes, and the Arctic Ocean. It will develop mining and lumbering facilities for profitable interchange of mutual necessities between the prairies and the mountain regions of the far west. It ensures a third railway outlet from and through the great wheat fields of the West to the lakes. It will develop a thousand miles of Northern Ontario and Quebec at present unknown and inaccessible. It induces the investment of $150,000,000 of British capital in Canada, and correspondingly interests the British investing public in Canadian affairs. It provides for the co-operation of the Grand Trunk Company, thus ensuring business from the start, and secures the Government from payment on its guarantee. It places all points in Eastern Canada in direct connection with the West without extra cost. It transfers the through traffic interests of the Grand Trunk from the United States to Canada. It provides shipping facilities for the thousands of farmers who were compelled to locate land outside the land grant of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

One might enumerate many other advantages which will accrue to the country from the building of this great Transcontinental line, but a perusal of those mentioned above will give some conception of the importance and magnitude of the enterprise.

CANADA'S MINERAL WEALTH

(Finance Chronicle)

Five years ago he would have been a bold prophet who predicted that Ontario could ever overtake British Columbia in the value of its annual mining output. In 1904 the total for the far Western province was practically $19,000,000, as against $11,500,000 for Ontario. For 1908 British Columbia now reports $23,851,000 (though on the basis of 1907 prices the total would have been about $4,000,000 greater). The Ontario preliminary valuation for 1908 is given as $25,220,000, (which also would have been materially greater had the preceding year's prices continued-). It is to be taken into consideration, however, that something over $3,500,000 of Ontario's total is accounted for by pig iron manufactured from non-Canadian ore. Sc that, this item aside, British Columbia would still seem to lead by over $2,000,000 for the year. In any case, the race is now a close one, and during the current year increased activity is in evidence in both provinces. Various gold properties in British Columbia which were for years rather under a cloud are now bringing greatly enhanced returns under skillful management—while the silver-lead mines of the province, under improved reduction methods, are bound to become increasingly important. During the speculative boom of the nineties, British Columbia mining became associated almost solely with the idea of gold. And the majority of Canadians are probably unaware that the province's output of copper last year (despite low prices) was of considerably greater value than its gold production—the former totalling $6,240,000, and the latter $5,930,000, while coal mined was valued at $5,872,472.

The total mineral production of British Columbia, for all years up to and including 1908, is reported as aggregating almost $325,000,000 in value.

Ontario, of course, owes its rapid increase in mining values to the Cobalt district. But aside from the silver wealth of this and neighbouring regions, there has been steady growth during recent years in various lines both metallic and non-metallic. Silver last year amounting to nearly 20,000,000 ounces brought returns of something over $9,125,000. Had the average prices of 1907 prevailed the total would have reached about $12,000,000. With increased output, and somewhat bettered prices, the prospects are for a much larger showing for 1909. Last year's production of nickel reached a value of $1,866,000, that of copper being $1,071,000.

Nova Scotia ranks third among the provinces in value of yearly mineral production. In coal, of course, it leads vastly—the output in coal and coke alone during 1908, accounting for some $18,000,000 of the province's total mineral showing of $20,000,000 or $21,000,000.

Quebec as yet has remained "little sister" in the provincial mining circle, but the experience of Ontario in discovering unexpected treasure troves keeps strong the hope of future finds. Meanwhile, development goes steadily apace in the mining of asbestos. During the last thirty years, that is, since asbestos mining began, the aggregate production has had a value of twenty million dollars, and last year the province had an output of about $2,500,000 worth—or between 85 per cent. and 90 per cent. of the world's supply. With recent organization, this output is certain to be increased materially.

OUR NEIGHBOURS AND THEIR FLAG.

(Toronto World.)

The Americans to the South of us are often offensive in the way they display their flag on the soil of other countries, especially here in Canada. They think the are free to fly their flag wherever the go. At times they prohibit other nationalities raising their flag in America. They hardly ever hoist the Union Jack in their country, and if a Britisher were to put one up a mob would at once make him take it down.

Our people are somewhat to blame for this condition of affairs, inasmuch as in their anxiety to cater to the business of American tourists they salute them with American flags over their restaurants, and decorate their waiters with American flags, and our summer resorts have a trick of catering to American custom by a profuse display of the Stars and Stripes.

The American is very proud of his country, and he thinks he shows it by an unlimited display of old glory; but if the American thought less of his flag and more of the system of government under which he now lives, he would devote less attention to flag flying and more to the reform of his politics. The so-called great American Republic, the mother of freedom and of progressive government, is to-day the worst governed country in the world, outside of Turkey and countries under barbarian rule. There is more swindling of the public, not only of their rights, but of their money, in the United States than in any other country. The municipal government of American cities is the rottenest municipal government in the world. State legislatures are filled with men who sell out the people they represent to corporations, and the demoralised financial condition under which the United States has fallen for the past three or four years is largely due to the state of their public finances, either municipal, state or national.

Another thing that must be noted is that all the genuine reforms to-day in the interest of good government are coming from nations that the Americans pretend to despise. Progressive government to-day has its home in Germany, Great Britain, Denmark, Australia and in New Zealand and even in countries like Italy. The Americans are not doing to-day a single thing for progressive government, and are imitating, when they can and a long way behind, a few of the progressive measures of the older nations. The land of the free is not just now South of the 49th parallel.

PROTRUDING PILES

Read the evidence that this distressing ailment is cured by DR. CHASE'S OINTMENT.

Some people find it hard to believe that anything short of a surgical operation will cure protruding piles. The doctors have brought about this belief. There is any amount of proof that Dr. Chase's Ointment is a positive cure for this as well as all other forms of piles.

Captain Wm. Smith, Revelstoke, B. C., writes:

"It is with much pleasure I state that I have used Dr. Chase's Ointment for itching, protruding piles of many years standing, and it has completely cured me. I had previously tried many other remedies but they did me no good. I would strongly recommend this Ointment to those suffering from this complaint, for it is a good and genuine cure."

Mrs. Captain Climansmith, Salvation Army, Essex, Ont., writes:

"It is with pleasure that I write to you in praise of Dr. Chase's Ointment. Two years ago I was taken with a severe attack of protruding piles and became so bad that I had to keep my bed and could lie in no position except on my stomach. Doctors could give me no help and the various oils and ointments used proved of no avail.

"One Saturday night when I was suffering untold agony my husband went to the drug store for a box of Dr. Chase's Ointment, which I had heard of as a cure for piles. Although I had almost given up hope, to the wonder of those around me, I was able to be up on Monday and have had no difficulty from piles since. As a treatment for all kinds of sores and burns, Dr. Chase's Ointment works like magic."

Saturday's Fall Of Rain Was Heaviest In Thirteen Years

Nearly Two and One-half Inches on Saturday—Three Inches Since Friday Night—The Crops Saved and Farmers Will Once More Wear a Broad Smile.

COMPARISON WITH OTHERS

Mr. Walter Peters, who has charge of the local meteorological station, stated this morning that the rainfall on Saturday was the heaviest that has occurred since he began to record observations, thirteen years ago. There was a fall on the level of almost two and one half inches, to be exact 2.46 in. Other heavy rains were, on July 5th, 1902, 2.45 inches; August 15th, 1905, 2.44; and October 19th, 1906, 2.10 in. One of the heaviest downpours in a short time was on July 9th, 1904, (the date of the opening of the lift lock), when .92 of an inch fell in one and one-half hours, or from 2 p.m. to 3.30 p.m. Since Saturday another one-half inch of rain fell, besides what was received this morning. The total rainfall, therefore, since Friday night was practically three inches.

The benefit that this will bring to the farmers throughout this section alone cannot be appreciated, nor expressed in dollars and cents. It means the resuscitation of the late oats and peas, and will revive the potatoes, and materially benefit the entire root crop. The pastures will be brought back to life and the spirits of the farmers will brighten once more. On Saturday afternoon a citizen called at the Examiner office hearing every evidence of having been out for some time in the shower. His coat was heavy and watersoaked, and when he took off his hat he spilled a pint of water from the brim. When told that he was wet he replied: "It's well I know it and I want to be able to say that I got one good soaking. I almost thought I was going to be disappointed."

TIME OF THE GENTILE

PASTOR RUSSELL PREACHES ON THE SECOND ADVENT.

At His First Appearance Christ Did Not Lift His Hand to Overthrow the Existing Governments, But After Glorification of the Church This Power Will Be Exercised—Trouble Is Coming In 1915.

New Orleans, La., July 11.—Pastor Russell, of Brooklyn Tabernacle, preached here to-day. He took for his text, "Jerusalem shall be trodden down of the Gentiles, until the times of the Gentiles be fulfilled" (Luke xxi, 24).

As the city of Babylon represented the Empire of Babylon, so the city of Jerusalem represented the Jewish nation. The Scriptures refer to the fact that centuries before our Lord's day the Jewish Kingdom had been overthrown—had passed to the control of the Gentiles — and in our text our Lord declares that this subserviency would continue until certain times of the Gentiles, certain years or periods of their control, would pass away. When we read that certain times will be fulfilled, we are justified in thinking that these times have been foretold. And in looking for the statement of the matter in Holy Writ, we notice the facts of the case as follows:

God established the Jewish nation as his representative nation, or Kingdom, in the world, with the understanding that in some manner and at some time that nation would be the channel of divine blessings to all the families of the earth, in harmony with the original Oath-Bound Promise made to Abraham. After a precarious existence of nearly six hundred years, the star of Jewish Empire set, and it has not re-arisen since. The particular date at which the Typical Kingdom passed away is clearly marked in the Scriptures. The solidarity of the Empire in the hands of King David, and his son, King Solomon, was lost in its division in the days of Solomon's successor. Nevertheless, in harmony with the Divine prediction, the royal line continued in the tribe of Judah; as it is written, "The sceptre shall not depart from Judah, nor a law-giver from between his feet, until Shiloh come" (Genesis xlix, 10).

Of the last king of Judah, Zedekiah, the Divine declaration was, "And thou, profane and wicked prince of Israel, whose day is come when iniquity shall have an end, Thus saith the Lord God, Remove the diadem, and take off the crown; his shall not be the same. * * * I will overturn, overturn, overturn it; and it shall be no more until he came whose right it is; and I will give it him" (Ezekiel xxi, 25-27). That statement was made just prior to Israel's captivity to Babylon, B.C. 606. And the crown and sceptre have been overturned since then, and will continue so to be until Messiah himself, at his second advent, shall take the throne as the Antitypical Son of David.

The interim of time between the overthrow of the crown in the days of Zedekiah and the establishment again of the crown in Messiah's Kingdom at his second advent is Scripturally termed the "Times of the Gentiles"—that is to say, the years of the Gentiles; the years in which the Gentiles would bear rule over Israel and all the earth; the period in which God would have no representative nation in the world. Some may inquire, Were not the Israelites restored from the Babylonian captivity? Yes, we answer, but they did not receive back the Kingdom; they were thereafter subject to the great dominant kingdoms of the world. First, they were subject to the Medo-Persian Empire, whose Emperor, Cyrus, restored them to their own land as a subject-nation. Subsequently they were subject to the Grecian nation. And in the time of our Lord they were still a subject-nation to Rome. Pilate represented the Roman Government, and so did Herod, the King of Galilee. Anyway, the Herods were not Israelites, but Edomites.

While it is true that an outward form of Jewish Kingdom was maintained subject to the Roman Emperors for a time, the last vestige of this authority passed away with the destruction of Jerusalem by the Roman army in A.D. 70, and the Jews have never been able to re-establish themselves in their own land up to the present time. Now, in harmony with the Scriptures which foretell Israel's restoration to Palestine, and their re-establishment as the earthly representatives of God's Kingdom, the Zionist movement is coming forth with good hopes of soon effecting a Jewish sub-Kingdom. We may be sure, however, that the declaration of our text will come true to the very letter: "Jerusalem shall be trodden down of the Gentiles, until the times of the Gentiles be fulfilled"—or, filled full.

Let us look backward and note what the Scriptures declare respecting earthly empires and the period of their domination. If possible, let us ascertain when the Gentile times began, and when they will end, giving place to the Kingdom of Messiah, the spiritual Kingdom, the Church glorified, whose work will be the ruling of the each, the blessing of all nations and the uplifting of the human family out of sin and death conditions to all that was lost through Adam's disobedience, to all that was redeemed through the obedience of Christ Jesus.

The Scriptures very particularly draw to our attention King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon. Very carefully does the Prophet explain that Nebuchadnezzar had a vision of deep interest to him, but the particulars of which he could not recall. He demanded of the wise men of the Empire a statement of the dream, as well as an explanation, arguing that if they had any supernatural power by which they could explain a dream, the same power could rehearse it. Then it was that Daniel, the Prophet, was brought to the notice of the King, and by Divine power not only rehearsed the dream but explained it—a dream of much more interest to all Christians than it possibly could have been to Nebuchadnezzar himself.

Many of this audience doubtless recall the dream and its interpretation, yet we will briefly rehearse it. In his dream Nebuchadnezzar saw a great image of wonderful height and grandeur; its head was of gold, its breast and arms of silver, its belly and thighs of brass, its legs of iron, and its feet of iron mixed with clay. While it stood erect, a stone was taken from the mountain and hurled at the image, striking it on the feet. Forthwith the iron, the clay, the brass, the silver and the gold were crushed to powder and became as the chaff of a summer's threshing floor, and the wind carried them away. By Divine illumination, Daniel, the Prophet, explained the vision thus. The head represented Nebuchadnezzar's own universal Empire, Babylon. The breast and arms of silver represented the kingdom which would succeed his as a universal empire; namely, the kingdom of the Medes and Persians. Upon the fall of Medo-Persia, the Grecian Empire would become universal, to be succeeded in turn by the Roman Empire, whose great strength was symbolized by the iron. This is the Empire which ruled the world in the days of our Lord. Thus we read that our Lord was born at Bethlehem, whither Joseph and Mary had gone at the command of Caesar-Augustus, the Roman Emperor, who sent forth a decree that all the world should be taxed. The civil Roman Empire lasted for several centuries after Christ, and was followed by the ecclesiastical Roman Empire, of which the popes at Rome were the representative heads. This Empire, partly civil and partly ecclesiastical, was represented by the mixture of the iron, representing civil power, and the clay, representing papal religious power; and this phase of Daniel's image still exists in the kingdoms of Europe as represented in the ten toes of the image which stand for the divisions of the territory of the old Roman Empire in Europe.

When God subsequently gave his servant, the Prophet Daniel, a vision of these same Gentile governments that would bear universal sway over the earth from the time of the removal of the diadem from Zedekiah until the establishment of Messiah's Millennial Kingdom, the picture was a different one. Instead of a glorious image of towering height and splendor, Daniel saw four great, terrible wild beasts. The first, like a lion, corresponded to the head of gold of the image—representing Babylon. The second, like a bear, corresponded to the breast and arms of silver in the image, and represented Medo-Persia. The third, like a leopard, corresponded to the brass of the image, and represented Grecia. The fourth beast, great and terrible, found nothing in the animal kingdom to represent it. It corresponded to the legs of iron, which represented the Roman Empire; while the ten horns of the latter beast corresponded to the ten toes of the image, representing papal Rome and the present subdivisions of imperial Europe. The difference between these two visions represents how differently present institutions, the kingdoms of this world, are viewed from the human standpoint and from the divine standpoint. From the worldly standpoint and estimation, the kingdoms of the past have been majestic, grand; from the standpoint of God, and those who have his Spirit, they have been beastly.

The sequel to both of these dreams showed the overthrow of the earthly governments by the heavenly government. As it is written, "In the days of these kings shall the God of heaven set up a Kingdom, and it shall break in pieces and consume all of these kingdoms, and it shall stand forever." The Kingdom of God was pictures in the stone which smote the image on its feet. That stone prefigured Christ and the Church, and shows that it will be the power of God through the Church that will ultimately work the wreck of all earthly governments. Do not misunderstand me; nothing in the Word of God teaches anarchy, or authorizes God's people to fight with carnal weapons; rather they are exhorted to seek first the Kingdom of God and its righteousness, and to leave all else to the Lord, assured of his willingness to make all things work together for their good.

As Christ in the flesh lifted neither hand nor tongue to smite the earthly Empire, nor opposed Ceasar and his representative, Pilate, so his followers are to raise no opposition to the powers that be, but are strictly enjoined to "be subject to them," and to recognise that they are ordained of God. It will be after the glorification of the Church with her Lord that, invisibly to mankind, this power will be exercised. Gentile governments will be overthrown, and the whole world will be brought into submission to the reign of the Kingdom of Righteousness and its earthly representatives. Thus our Lord taught in his last message that in due time he would take unto himself this great power and reign, and that then the nations would be angry, and Divine wrath would come upon them for their destruction. Thus also our Lord said respecting his followers, who in due time will be glorified with him, "To him that overcometh will I give power over the nations; and he shall rule them with a rod of iron; as the vessels of a potter shall they be broken to shivers" (Revelation ii. 26, 27).

We should not be deterred from investigation whatever we may find written in the Bible on this subject because of our Lord's words to his disciples—"Of that day and hour knoweth no man, no, not the angels of heaven, neither the Son, but my Father only." This message does not tell us that no man would ever know, but that none knew at that time. It does not tell us that our Lord Jesus would never know the time of his own second coming, nor that the angels would never know. As we surely believe that the Lord and the angels will know at about the time of the second advent, so we may well believe that the Lord's faithful saints will not be left in darkness on the same subject. Indeed this is what the Apostle distinctly tells us: "Ye, brethren, are not in darkness that that day should overtake you as a thief. Ye are all the children of light, and the children of the day." The Apostle intimates that those who do not have the light in its due season would thereby justify the inference that they belonged, not to the Church, but to the world, upon whom that day shall come "as a thief and as a snare" (I Thessalonians v, 1-8).

What we would like to know, if it has pleased the Lord to reveal it, is just how long a period is meant by the expression, "Times of the Gentiles"—or, years of the Gentiles—in which the Gentile nations will bear rule or sway over the land of Israel. If God has been pleased to reveal the matter, let us enjoy it; if he has not been pleased to give any clue to the matter, we cannot find it. We are to remember, however, that this, like other features of the Divine revelation, was intended to be kept secret from the world, and to be made known only to those who are in heart harmony with the Lord—interested—and very desirous of knowing the mind of the Lord on this and on every subject. Hence, we may not look for a plain statement to the effect that in so many years from such an event the Gentile lease of power will terminate and God's Kingdom be transferred to Israel again. Rather we should expect that the matter would be stated in a more or less obscure form, in which it might be read over and over again without attracting special attention except from those especially interested ones led by the Lord's holy Spirit.

We believe that the period is what the Scriptures term "seven times"—seven years. Not seven literal years, but seven symbolic years. A "time" or "year" in symbol represents 360 literal years. In other words, each day of a symbolic year is a year, and hence the seven times, or seven years, would represent 7 times 360, or 2,520 years. I give it to you as my conviction, dear friends, based strictly upon the Scriptures, but corroborated, it seems to me, by the events of our day, that this 2,520 years, beginning in 606 B. C., will end in October, 1914 A. D.

That a "time" or "year" has been Scripturally used to represent 360 may be very easily and very quickly demonstrated. For instance, in Revelation a period of time is mentioned in three different ways: namely, 1,260 days, 42 months, and 3 1-2 times. The 3 1-2 times of Revelation are exactly one-half of the "seven times" of the Gentiles. The 1,260 years of Revelation are exactly one-half of the 2,520 years of the times of the Gentiles. And these 2,520 years we believe will expire with October 1914; at that time we believe the Gentile lease of power will expire, and that the God of heaven will set up his Kingdom in Israel.

We do not expect universal peace to immediately ensue because Christ is styled the Prince of Peace. On the contrary, to our understanding, the collapse of the nations will be through a fierce strife, "a time of trouble such as never was since there was a nation," in which "there shall be no peace to him that goeth out, nor to him that cometh in," because God will set every man's hand against his neighbor. Our belief is that the warfare between capital and labor, emperors and peoples, will be short, sharp, decisive, and bring untold calamity upon all concerned. If people could only discern it, they would avoid it, but their eyes are holden; they see not, neither do they understand.

These seven times were foreshadowed in the experiences of Nebuchadnezzar, who was irrational for seven years, and at the end of that time recovered his reason and acknowledged the Lord as the ruler of the Universe. So history seems to show that during this period of Gentile domination the poor world has been in a measure insane, putting light for darkness and darkness for light. Our trust is that at the close of the Gentile Times, and following the short, sharp, decisive time of great trouble in 1915, humanity will regain its sanity and praise the God of heaven and acknowledge that all authority comes from Him and pertains to Him.

WONDERS OF THE HUMAN BODY

Why Many People Never Need a Doctor.

You have a natural laxative in your body. Why, then, should you use a false purgative to move the bowels?

Bile is nature's laxative. It is bile—and bile alone—which moves the bowels as they should be moved. The liver is the store-house for the bile. The liver pours forth the bile into the bowels, which stimulates them to move, and then causes the waste matter to pass from the body.

Constipation is a disease, OF the bowels, but CAUSED by the liver. When the bowels do not move regularly and naturally, it is because the liver is not giving up enough bile. And the only possible way to cure Constipation, is to cure the liver.

Calomel, cascara, salts, senna, common pills and sweet lozenges and all the other purgatives do not act on the liver at all. They merely irritate and inflame the bowels.

"Fruit-a-tives" cure Constipation because they act on the liver. The fruit principles stimulate the liver to secrete and give up enough bile to move the bowels, while the tonics and antiseptics tone up and invigorate the muscles. "Fruit-a-tives" are the only medicine ever discovered that will cure Constipation, Biliousness and all other troubles due to a Torpid or Disordered Liver. 25c a box, 6 for $2.50, or trial box, 25c. At dealers or from Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

SUMMER SCHOOL AT CHEMONG IS CLOSED

Sessions Have Been Very Successful and Were Well Attended.

Chemong Park, July 12.—The summer school which has been held here during the past week, under the auspices of the Bay of Quinte Epworth League, was brought to a successful close yesterday. There have been about one hunderd and fifty in attendance at all the sessions and profiting from the addresses and the work of the meetings. Mr. and Mrs. Brown of the Park Hotel have looked after the visitors to the school in a most commendable manner. The accommodation was all that could be desired and in every other respect close attendance was given those who were present at the school.

LIGHTNING STRUCK A BARN IN SMITH

Fortunately Did No Harm—Grounded Through Iron Circuit.

Examiner Special:

Bridgenorth, July 12.—Early in Saturday's storm the lightning was very vivid, and the gable on Mr. Blewett's barn just east of the village was struck. The lightning found the hay carrier track and followed it through to the other end and ran down the side of the barn and was grounded. Practically no damage was done other than that a piece of gable was knocked off.

What Beautiful Hair.

How often do we hear that exclamation of a certain woman's hair or a certain man's hair.

A prominent scientist and hair specialist emphatically states, and has proven, that any man or woman can have luxuriant, lustrous hair, by using a famous prescription called Parisian Sage.

Parisian Sage is now made and sold in Canada. Wm. Madill, the druggist, is the agent in Peterborough, and th readers of the Examiner can buy from him for only 50 cents a large bottle.

Wm. Madill knows that Parisian Sage will beautify the hair, cure dandruff and stop falling hair, and that reason he sells it under a guarantee to cure or money back.

If you cannot obtain Parisian Sage where you live, you can get a bottle for 50 cents from Giroux Mfg. Co., Fort Erie, Ont., express charges prepaid.

ST. PETER'S T. A. S. AT CHURCH IN A BODY

They Received Holy Communion at the Cathedral Yesterday Morning.

The members of St. Peter's T. A. S. received holy communion in a body yesterday morning at the eight o'clock mass, which was celebrated by His Lordship Bishop O'Connor. There was a large attendance, the centre of the church being occupied. The male choir, consisting of members of the society sang in a splendid manner. Two solos were taken by Messrs. J. H. Quinlan and F. Hickey. Bishop O'Connor commented upon the manner in which the members were living up to the rules of their society, and expressed his gratification upon the continued progress that was being made. He urged the members to pray for the grace to overcome temptations and thus to make them strong in the pledges they had undertaken.

THE HEART A GREAT WORKER

What a wonder is the heart! Day and night it works away pumping tons of blood through the body and never tires or wears out so long as it is supplied with rich, red blood, such as is formed by Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. While sending supplies of nutrition to other parts of the body the heart renews and rebuilds its own wasted cells and so retains health and strength.

Another Peterboro' "Old Boy" Is Pleased With The City's Growth

Mr. Michael B. Kelly, of Chicago, Writes His Impressions of Peterborough on Returning After an Absence of 19 Years—Learned His Trade Here and Developed Across the Border.

COMMENDS PROGRESS

Mr. Michael B. Kelly, a former Peterborough boy, now engaged as a linotype operator in Chicago, a son of Mr. John Kelly, a former superintendent of the Little Lake cemetery, has been visiting his home town, and has written a brief letter of his impressions of the city, as he finds it after an absence of nineteen years. Mr. Kelly learned the printing business with the Review Printing Co., and on crossing the border learned linotype operating. His letter to the Examiner is as follows:

One who has spent his young days in Peterborough and goes away for some years meets with many surprises on returning for a visit to his native town, for Peterborough has grown from the primitive town it was when he left it into a thriving, bustling little city. It is true the traveller can notice a touch of provincialism in Peterborough's make-up, but Peterborough is not spreading out with the mere idea of "putting on airs." Its people are too practical for that. There is a great body of broad-minded, but at the same time hard-headed business men in the city of Peterborough, who keep their shoulders to the wheels of progress. The combination of energy and native spirit tells the tale of success, and this bright sign is displayed on every side.

Going back a decade or two, and recalling many of the then old settlers, who seemed to be fixtures of the place, reminiscences creep in one's thoughts, laying bare the sad and the bright realities of youth, age and death. When one points to an old landmark or to a spot where stood a landmark of our day, the answer always brings with it a story—often a sad story and generally a brief one. Children of a new generation predominate in all the city's activities, and the younger blood is keeping up with the spirit of the times. A trip through the business portion of the city shows a decided change from a dull and stagnant trading place to the hustling stores and throngs of shoppers six days of the week. The seventh day brings out the flocks of Christian worshippers, and many denominations are represented. The building of churches keeps pace with the rise of other structures, showing the Christian tendency of the people of the community. Another fact to be noted, too, is the excusable pride of Peterborough's home builders to enjoy the home comforts of a small town in a budding city and having at the same time the conveniences of a metropolis, for the fine homes that have been built during the past several years, and which are still going up in all parts of the city are a delight to the eye with their spacious lawns and well-laid-out walks and streets.

Peterborough is attractive in more ways than one. The great water power which this city possesses; the Trent Valley canal, with that wonderful piece of mechanism—the great lift lock—within its boundaries, and the general location of the city itself, all go towards making it a Mecca for capitalists. The roar of mill and buzz of factory wheel join echo with the clink of coin and the hum and bustle in many lines of trade.

Sizing up the outskirts, one is amazed at the tremendous branching out process. Field after field have disappeared, and in their place are beautiful streets, and nicely set back of well-kept lawns are rows upon rows of up-to-date, comfortable homes, the owners of which, as the writer mentioned before, taking a pardonable pride in beautifying their surroundings.

A stroll in any direction within the city limits or about the vicinity is a delight. The graceful elms, the aromatic pines and cedars, and numerous other friendly shelters, not forgetting the dear old maple, are a big feature in Peterborough's beauty and attractiveness. But there are other sights and sounds to charm the heart. Right through the city flows the inspiring Otonabee, whose current, as it runs along, tells some of the secrets of the woodman's life. There is a grandeur in that little old stream which no pen can describe, and old associations make its every ripple dear. It is fed by the beautiful Kawartha lakes, glides in a southerly but winding course and creates scenes of restful loveliness at every turn. Lounging and lost in reverie at the edge of the dear old stream, one finds himself a boy again and feels the splash, the ducking and the slap of the "water tag" fiend. But soon the day-dreaming is upset by the sound of the street car gong in the distance, and passengers hurry on and off in real city fashion, some on holiday bent, others to their labour. And thus the wheel of life keeps turning. Generations come and go. The town grows into a city, then spreads into a bigger city and, well, who would dare a guess at Peterborough's size and importance a decade hence?

MICHAEL B. KELLY.

Fishing At Rice Lake Said To Be Better Than For Several Years

Moonlight Picnic to Jubilee Where Dance Was Held in Pavilion—Tall Man Found Chinese Lanterns Too Low and Came in Contact With Several—Anglicans Coming to Gore's Landing Next Thursday.

MANY VISITORS ARRIVING

Examiner Special.

Rice Lake, July 12.—During the past week there was an amusing occurrence at a moonlight excursion from various points on the lake to Jubilee. After a sail around picking up the different contingents, the merrymakers arrived at the point and made themselves completely at home. A feature of the evening was a dance in the pavilion and it is safe to say that many moons have spent their brilliancy since there was such a hop. But the amusing part of the affair was the fact that one of the men whose stature was above the ordinary allotment of six feet struck against several Chinese lanterns causing them to flare up and burn, and adding to the excitement and fun. After the first lantern had been completely singed he was a little more cautious, but he forgt himself again in the course of another dance and narrowly escaped being burned himself.

The pavilion was decorated tastily and the hop was thoroughly enjoyed. It is stated that the boat did not leave the wharf until the fourth watch which in these parts is nigh to day break. The farmers, for they were mostly tillers of the soil, had a dance that they will not soon forget and the affair was reported a complete success.

Billie Naugon has a path worn on the surface of the lake, where he strolls up and down over his favourite 'lunge beds. Billie is a taciturn as ever and as patient too.

The C.G.E. Anglers are not doing much yet this summer as they have had their cottage rented and it is understood that it has been taken for a week or two yet. The situation commanding the lake for fine weather and the river when the wind blows too vigourously is particularly adapted for those who desire to fish. The rate of rental is cheap and it is likely that the Anglers will have no trouble in keeping the cottage occupied if they so desire.

The fishing remains good and the Americans from the south side of the lake are delighted with the way the trawl has been luring the 'lunge. Bass fishing is also satisfactory.

Quite a number of Peterborough launches have made the trip to the lake during the past week and those who are acquainted with the craft on the lake and river believe that the fastest boat comes down from the city. It was not so long ago a Gore's Landing launch was conceded the palm but things have changed in the last two years.

Hastings is becoming a popular fishing ground and quite a number of Toronto people have visited the village during the past month.

A party consisting of Mr. and Mrs. Fred McBean, Toronto, Mr. and Mrs. John Dawson, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Dawson, Mrs. E. J. B. McBean, Millbrook; Miss Elinor McBean, and Miss Patterson, of Winnipeg, who have been attending college in Toronto, and Mr. Fred Collins, Millbrook, took a trip from the head of the lake to Hastings in Wedlock's yacht, and had some very lucky experiences fishing.

Smith Bros., Mr. F. C. Bonnycastle, and Mr. F. W. Wood, Campbellford, all have new launches, adding considerable to the fleet plying upon Bradley's Bay.

Miss McArthur, of Toronto, is at Hastings, the guest of her sister, Mrs. H. B. Bingham.

Miss D. Buxton, Toronto, is staying with Hastings friends.

Mr. Sam Clarke, M.P.P., and Mr. J. T. Field, Cobourg, were out to enjoy the fishing at the lake. They made Rainy Point their headquarters.

Mr. Wm. Haig and wife, Johannesburg, South Africa, were among the visitors of the week at the lake.

Mrs. R. Coughlan has returned to open her cottage at Hastings for the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Webb, Miss Lillian, Mr. Ross Webb, and Mr. Harry Cameron are camping at Roblin's Landing.

There is some consternation at Hastings because the boathouses will have to be removed in order to make way for the new pier and public works to be erected by the Dominion Government.

Quite a commotion was raised a few days ago by the intelligence that a bush fire was raging in South Monaghan. Persons passing on the river saw the flames, which were fanned by a stiff breeze and making great progress in a field of pine stumps. Several of the farmers ploughed a wide furrow and succeeded in stopping the progress of the fire.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Jackson have returned to Peterborough after a delightful holiday at Bunker's Hill. Mr. Jackson had good success both with rod and trawl.

Miss Leo. Elmhirst, Toronto, is holidaying with friends at Hastings.

Mr. Walter Turner, Toronto, is taking up his residence at Hastings.

Mr. Harry Wilson, Toronto, was holidaying here last week.

Rev. A. K. Edmison has been at Hastings with his brother, Dr. Edmison.

Thursday of next week will be a big day for the Anglicans of this vicinity, for it is the occasion of the formal opening of the new St. George's Church at Gore's Landing. The Lord Bishop of Toronto will preach the opening sermon. Rev. O. E. Newton is rector.

Miss McArthur, Toronto, is holidaying with Hastings friends.

Miss Elizabeth Nelson, Toronto, is holidaying at her home in Otonabee.

Rev. Mr. Battersby and Miss Battersby, Esonville, were guests of Keene friends the past week.

Will be Rendered by the Salvation Army Band Tuesday Evening.

The programme will be given in Tuesday's issue of the Examiner. A special feature will be a vocal selection offered by Brigadier Adby, who is at present in the city. He is a splendid singer and it is expected that a large number will be present to hear him.

The Quaker Oats Employees Seventh Annual Excursion

A Wet Outing, But Everything Else as Advertised---Trip Over the Lift Lock to South Beach, Clear Lake.

It wasn't the usual "Quaker" weather that was served out to the employees of the Quaker Oats Co. this year, on the occasion of their seventh annual outing on Saturday; but it certainly was "Oat" weather, which filled the bill just the same—unless the deluge of rain came a day or two late for the famishing crop.

Evidently the employees and their friends were in no way daunted by the ominous aspect of the weather in the morning, for just about the time most of the excursionists were leaving their homes for the steamer, rain began to fall in such quantities as might have dampened their ardour. On they came, on foot, in strete cars and busses, regardless of Jupiter Plurious—fathers, mothers and their families, including infants in arms. By the time the hour for departure arrived, eight o'clock, the steamer Otonabee steamed out of her wharf with nearly 450 souls on board, all wearing the smile that didn't come off.

From that on during the trip to South Beach, Clear Lake, and in fact all day, the rain poured with only occasional intermissions. The crowd on board danced and sang, or viewed the picturesque scenery along the new canal route, all rejoicing over the rain with its compensating advantages to the oat crop. The Quaker brass band proved to be a new and decidedly entertaining feature of the outing. It consisted of twelve pieces, and not only was the music of a spirited and delightful character, but abundant and stimulating as new wine.

On arriving at South Beach, about noon, the rain still poured down in torrents Instead of disembarking, many of the excursionists remained on board the steamer, opened up their lunch baskets and sat round in groups to enjoy a hearty dinner. Others made a race for the hotel, through the showers, and sat down to a comfortable meal in the new dining room.

The Sports and Games

The weather conditions still looked very unpromising for running off the excellent programme of sports prepared by the committee. Mr. W. H. Denham, chairman of the general committee, who was present, and gave his personal attention to the day, decided to go on with the sports. With the assistance of Mr. Ed. Carr, the cashier; Mr. R. J. Macdonald, and others, the events were successfully pulled off as follows:

Grand Guessing Contest

As usual the prizes for the guessing contest evoked a good deal of interest. After all had guessed it was found on examination that the coveted first prize of $8.00 was again won by a lady, who guessed 1,108. The actual number was 1167. For the second and third prizes, valued at $4 and $2 respectively, the next nearest number guessed was 1,111, and this number was guessed by four different gentlemen: Messrs. J. J. Cunningham, H. F. McKeown, T. J. Grant, and J. Hughes, who divided the money evenly among each other.

Homeward Bound.

About five o'clock preparations were made for the return trip. The dove had been sent out to see if it could find rest on dry land, but without success. The steamer floated out on the waters again to the inspiring music of the brass band, and, after a few mare hours' merry making, arrived safely at the Wolfe street wharf about 9 o'clock.

THE ONTARIO BANK LOT SALE.

The big red posters all over the Town announce this sale. There is a bigplan of the lots at Might's Land Office, it shows the new King Edward street, going through the land now occupied by the old house and barn. Much interest is felt in this sale, as a number of people are waiting for it. The terms are easy, just such as suit people of moderate means. The lane at the back of all the lots will make nice unbroken frontages. The sidewalk will be at the outside of a 20 ft. boulevard. We are glad to see this improved method of laying out streets. 3d-8

Large Attendance Of Members Of Orange Order At Knox Church

Sermon Preached by Rev. H. J. Keith—Orangemen Should be Church Workers and Also Support Missionary and Church Union Movements.

DUTY OF AN ORANGEMAN

About four hundred and fifty members of the County and District Lodges of the Loyal Orange Association with the Prentice Boys, True Blues, and Lansdowne Lodge No. 25, Sons of England, attended in a body the evening service at Knox Church last night. The different organizations were largely represented and as a result the accommodation of the church was taxed almost to its limit. The procession through the city was an imposing one, the line of march being from Simcoe to Charlotte on George, thence by Charlotte to Reid and south to the church. The Lodges represented were: Of city district, Lodges No. 80, No. 1175, No. 50; Peterborough District, No. 321, No. 178 and No. 457; Emily District, No. 41; the Prentice Boys, True Blues and Lansdowne Lodge No. 25, Sons of England. Mr. Urial Hawley was director of ceremonies for the Orangemen, Mr. R. Tivey for the Sons of England, Arthur Holden for the Juveniles of Col. Sanderson's Lodge No. 321, Robert Robson for the Juveniles of No. 457, and Hurrell Dodds for the Juveniles of No. 50.

Rev. H. J. Keith, pastor of Knox Church, preached the sermon taking as his text First Epistle of St. Peter 2:15 and 16, "For so is the will of God that with well doing you may put to shame the ignorance of foolish men. As free and not using your liberty for a cloak of maliciousness but as the servants of God." As pastor Rev. Mr. Keith tendered a hearty welcome to the visiting societies. He made special mention of the fact that there were so many boys present stating that if the societies wished to propogate the principles upon which their organizations were they should commence with the young people and train them along those lines. Referring to his text he said that truth found its highest and most effective expressions in the lives of men. "By their fruits yet shall know them." "Your declamations will stand for little unless you live up to your principals and constitution. The principles of the Orange Order were in line with those of the church of Jesus Christ and, therefore, every Orangeman should be equally as strong a churchman as he was a member of his lodge." Speaking of the ignorance with which truth is met Rev. Mr. Keith said that in those countries in which the Church of Rome prevails there is the greatest ignorance. It was not necessary to go outside the Dominion of Canada, he continued, and referred to the Province of Quebec.

The Protestant religion stands for the greatest freedom and realizing this it was the obligation of every man to extend it to others. Mr. Keith then traced through history the cost at which this liberty was secured stating that it had been purchased with the blood of martyrs. One of the roots of the Protestant religion and of the Orange organization was a free and open Bible. "On its teachings our freedom is based." Rev. Mr. Keith urged the members to be behind every movement to spread the word of God, and to establish it in the homes and schools.

No. other Gospel but that of Jesus Christ could save men. "The Son of God had died for the redemption of mankind and it was through this gift that we are free to-day." Continuing Mr. Keith stated that he was glad that the Grand Lodge of the Orange Order had decided not to form any political party. The order should keep a watch on all political movements and public movements. Combining representatives of all the Protestant churches it should also stand for a movement for church union. Every Orangeman should be a promoter of foreign missions. Realizing the value of truth the members of the Orange Order were under obligation to see that it was widespread. In conclusion he hoped that the principles of the order would be expressed in the daily lives of every member.

The music of the choir was of special nature befitting the occasion.

TO-DAY'S DOINGS AT THE POLICE COURT

A "Listed" Fined Ten Dollars and Dog Case Dismissed.

For an infraction of the Blacklist law on Saturday James Hayes appeared before Magistrate Dumble this morning. He pleaded guilty to having been drunk although he was duly posted and proscribed.

"Where did you get your liquor?" the magistrate asked.

"Ed. Butler got it for me."

"I've heard of him before," the chief remarked.

The prisoner said he gave Butler 40 cents to get a bottle of liquor. Butler's commission was only one [illegible] This was the second the prisoner had been fined lately.

"That law is made to help you," the magistrate said.

"Hayes replied that he had been ill Saturday morning and needed something.

"Whiskey never did anybody any good and you did not need it."

"Ten dollars to be paid forthwith," said the magistrate, but Chief Rossel interposed asking that the prisoner be given ten days. He promised to imbibe no more and to pay his fine within the allotted time.

Joseph Sullivan established to the satisfaction of the court the proof that he had purchased a tag for his bull dog in accordance with the requirements of the city by-law.

He had gone to Cobalt and left the dog with his father on Park street and the latter had secured the piece of stamped metal. He stated that his faher had no other dog. The magistrate dismissed the case.

SUGGESTIONS SUBMITTED AT POLICE CONVENTION

What Custodians of the Peace Might Do in Particular Cases.

The Police Convention at Buffalo submitted to those present the following suggestions as worthy of general adoption:

1. Juveniles not to be arrested, but handed over to the parents for correction.

2. Drunks assisted home and not arrested unless absolutely helpless.

3. Policemen act as judges where possible and settle minor disputes without arrests.

4. Policemen to use their best efforts to ease friction and illtemper between man and man.

5. The best policeman is the one who manages an offender with the least show of authority.

6. Officers should have evidence to convict before even contemplating the arrest and imprisonment of any person.

7. Some men fall through misfortune and are not criminals at heart.

8. A well applied reprimand may be the most effective punishment.

MANY LOCAL ORANGEMEN CELEBRATING AT PORT HOPE

Big Crowd From Peterborough Left on Special Train This Morning for Annual "Walk"---Made Impressive Showing as They Marched Through the Streets to the Music of the Fifes and Drums.

To-day is the Glorious Twelfth, and the heavy rain and threatening skies of this morning failed to dampen in the least the ardour of the sons and daughters of King William, who turned out in apparently as large numbers as ever for the annual celebration which is taking place to-day in Port Hope, where all the lodges of the district have assembled. Nearly all the Orangemen in Peterborough section went to the Lakeshore town leaving on a special G.T.R. train about 11 o'clock.

Although the celebration was not held here local people were given the opportunity of seeing quite a lengthy parade as the local lodges and bands assembled at Central Park and marched to the station via George and Charlotte streets. The 57th Band divided into a couple of sections, one of which was clad in big straw hats and white coats, was in this procession and played "Boyne Water," "The Orange March" and other selections appropriate to the occasion. There were five or six lodges in the procession and as many fife and drum bands, and the parade was an imposing one. Many citizens lined the route to watch the departure of the Orangemen. The Lakefield lodges headed by the Lakefield Brass Band detrained at McDonnell St. and marched with the local Orangemen to the station, where there was a tremendous crowd assembled. A large number of citizens went to Port Hope for the celebration.

There were not many lodges from the north part of Peterborough county that went to Port Hope to-day. There are celebrations at Apsley and Warsaw, and the Sons of William in the north preferred to go to either one or the other rather than go to Port Hope. The East Peterborough Orangemen celebrated at Cordova.

In spite of that, however, there is likely to be a record crowd at Port Hope, judging by the number which left Peterborough this morning.

Fully 700 or 800 people were in the crowd.

MARL IS DISCOVERED IN PETERBOROUGH COUNTY NOW

Marl beds of considerable value are reputed to invade the land under the waters of Sandy Lake, in the township of Harvey, in Peterborough county. Reports are very sanguine in character, and it is understood that British capitalists are desirous to exploit the deposits.

In view of pending negotiations with the Provincial Government, Hon. Frank Cochrane, Minister of Lands, Forests and Mines, has decided to withdraw the property from general prospecting and staking out, and from sale or lease under the mining act. The order in Council to this effect was gazetted on Saturday.

"The Government has merely reports to go upon," said Hon. Mr. Cochrane, when interviewed by The Globe, "but they will be looked into with a view to development."—The Globe.

TO ADMIT CHINESE.

Canadian Immigration Law Is Made Less Severe.

Vancouver, B.C., July 12.—Acting upon the request of the Chinese of Vancouver, the Dominion Government has, by order-in-council, approved on May 4, 1909, removed many of the restrictions imposed on Chinese immigration.

According to advices received yesterday from Ottawa, the scope of exempt class, that is those Chinese who are not called upon to pay the head tax of $500, has been greatly widened. Immediately the order was approved, its terms were forwarded to all Canadian immigration and customs authorities, but so quietly that the public till to-day never received an intimation of the change in regulations. In a word, the new order widens the scope of the Chinese immigration act of 1906, with the amendment of 1908 in regard to the privileged class of Chinese, that it practically leaves only Chinese laborers to pay the head tax, with paupers, lunatics and sufferers from infectious diseases still prohibited. The new order puts even "students of manners and customs," in the student and merchant class and exempt from the payment of head tax.

Finance Bill Passes.

Berlin, July 12.—The Reichstag finished the finance reform legislation Saturday evening. It is eight months since the measures were first introduced. The complete legislation resembles but little the Government's original proposals.

The scheme finally adopted consists of higher taxes on beer, tobacco and brandy, and higher duties on coffee, effervescent wines, cordials and tea. The duty on tea has been quadrupled.

The House also adopted a stamp tax on checks, stubs for the renewal of dividends, and coupon sheets, as well as a higher stamp tax for issue of new stocks and bonds, which will affect foreign securities. A tax on transfer of real estate was also adopted, with a resolution requiring that a bill be introduced by April 1, 1911, for taxing the unearned increment in land values.

The National Liberals, Clericals and Socialists voted against all the bills.

Cure for Diabetes.

New York, July 12.—After a series of experiments in the clinics of Mount Sinai Hospital in this city carried on for the last two years and a half by Dr. J. Budisch of the visiting staff, it has just made a preliminary report on the use of atropine in diabetes. He considers it a cure for that widespread disease which is attacking more and more New Yorkers every year in these "strenuous life" days.

Atropine is the active principal of belladonna or "deadly nightshade." It has never before been tried in kidney troubles, though it was well-known that it was chiefly eliminated by the kidneys and therefore exerted a pronounced effect on those organs.

Wouldn't Pay For Leg.

Windsor, July 12.—Minus one leg, the body of Thomas G. McDonald, former mate of the steamer Douglas, drowned June 29, and picked up in Detroit River Thursday, was buried Saturday at Amherstburg. The leg is in Wayne County morgue and will probably be taken care of by the county. Coroner Burgess says the relatives refused to pay $15 asked by local undertakers for its preparation for shipment. This leg was picked up by Edward Lilly, the young man who was drowned the next evening almost at the point where he found the leg.

Stuns Wife, Cuts His Throat.

Grand Rapids, Mich., July 12.—After completing an autopsy on the bodies of Warren G. Bowland and his wife, Vashti Perry Bowland, who were found in a vacant house, the surgeons and coroner decided that Bowland had stunned his wife with a blow from his wooden leg, had wrecked the gas fixture in the room, permitting the gas to pour out, and then cut his own throat.

Both died from asphyxiation.

Loss at Ahmic Harbor.

Dunchurch, July 12.—In the fire at Ahmic Harbor Friday the Ahmic Hotel, a tourist house, was totally destroyed, as well as the following buildings: S. Paul's blacksmith shop and residence, loss $5,200; Mrs. Johnston's new residence, no insurance; Yule Brown's general store, damage $700.

Head-Hunters Active.

Victoria, B.C., July 12.—Raids by Formosan head-hunters have caused much loss of life in Formosa of late, according to advices from Keelung by the Teucer.

In Shinchiku district, the head-hunters fell upon a Japanese outpost and killed 12 men and several women, carrying away their heads as trophies. A Japanese surveying party with an escort of 79 troops was attacked and had to cut its way through a large body of Formosan rebels.

Smashed $5,000 Worth of Glass.

London, July 12.—In the early hours of Saturday morning a madman ran amuck in Nottingham, armed with a club composed of barbed wire twisted together. His frenzy was particularly directed against plate-glass shop fronts. He rushed backward and forward in the streets, smashing every window within reach. He wrought damage to the extent of $5,000 before he was overpowered.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

The chase after the B.C. train bandit murderer and his companion has been practically abandoned.

Several thousand attended the political picnic tendered Hon. W. L. M. King on Saturday, in recognition of his recent election.

The French committee which has been examining the Franco-Canadian Convention in its modified form has issued a favorable report.

Robert Kerr, the Canadian sprinter, defeated N. J. Cartmell of the University of Pennsylvania in the 100 and 220 yards dashes at the Birmingham athletic meet on Saturday.

The promising fair of Western and Central Canada was opened in Winnipeg Saturday by Premier Roblin. The exhibits in every section and the crowd show the directorate have clearly before them the necessity of larger grounds.

Rev. A. E. Green, inspector of Indian schools, who has arrived at Vancouver, says the residents of Skeena district regard the discontent of the five hundred Indians in the river villages as likely to cause trouble when river navigation ends, and the majority are preparing to send their women and children out.

John D. Gives Ten Millions.

New York, July 12.—John D. Rockefeller has added ten millions more to the forty-three millions of dollars with which he had already endowed the Rockefeller Foundation.

Not only does he raise the fund of the general education board to this extent, but he places all but twenty millions of it in the hands of members of the board, to handle as they like in the endowment of American colleges and universities.

Heretofore Mr. Rockefeller constituted himself and his son final arbiters of the disposition of the Foundation Fund.

In relinquishing this control the Oil King characteristically suggests that the board spend its money on the strong institutions to make them stronger and let the weaker schools shift for themselves.

Marvel at Censor.

London, July 12.—Bernard Shaw's prohibited playlet, "Press Cuttings," was produced privately at a matinee at the Court Theatre Friday. The morning newspapers express themselves at an utter loss to understand why the censor put a ban upon "such an inoffensive skit." The play is clever and amusing, one act being a burlesque of current political topics, especially the suffragette agitation.

The King and Queen visited the Globe Theatre Saturday to see Mrs. Cornwallis West's play "His Borrowed Plumes." Their Majesties remained to the end and personally congratulated the author. The audience included many society leaders.

No Successor to Lumsden.

Ottawa, July 12.—The feeling is growing that no successor to Hugh D. Lumsden, late chief engineer of the National Transcontinental Railway, will be appointed.

A number of prominent engineers have been offered the position, but have all refused, and it is freely said that no engineer of repute would undertake such a job.

More sensations are expected to follow in the wake of the Lumsden resignation, but an effort will be made to have everything patched up before Parliament meets.

Will Share Profits.

Chicago, July 12.—A comprehensive plan of profit-sharing with its employes has just been announced by the International Harvester Co. in a letter sent out by its president, Cyrus H. McCormick, to every man on the pay roll of the company. According to the communication, 12,500 shares of the preferred stock of the company will be offered to employes at $6.50 a share below market price, and 15,000 shares of common stock at $10 a share below the market. This offer will hold good until Aug. 15.

Electrocuted In Tunnel.

Windsor, July 12.—Wallace May, carpenter foreman, was electrocuted in the Michigan Central tunnel on Saturday. He was engaged in installing an overhead elevator and shoved a crowbar against a bolt which held electric wires. His cries attracted two other employes, who sought in vain to release May until they procured a rope and literally dragged him away. He died before the ambulance arrived. It is alleged that the electric wires were poorly protected.

FIRE INSURANCE

The following legend taken from an enterprising Seedsman's Catalogue is not without a bearing on Fire Insurance :—

"Two years ago an Ontario Market Gardener saved four cents an ounce on the cost of half a pound of Cabbage Seed. In the fall he admitted that he was over $100 to the bad on the crop because the bargain seed had lacked vitality. Thirty-two cents saved—one hundred dollars lost. WAS IT WORTH WHILE?

Newfoundland and the Navy.

London, July 12.—Sir E. Norris, interviewed, said that Newfoundland would increase her naval reserve of men who would be ready on a day's notice to go aboard Dreadnoughts. In addition, he said "there would be no difficulty in obtaining to-morrow crews for twenty battleships from among the Newfoundland fishermen."

Georgia Not Very "Dry."

Atlanta, Ga., July 12.—Notwithstanding that in the State of Georgia "near beer" is the nearest approach to an intoxicating beverage which can be lawfully sold, the records of the Atlanta Police Department, at the close of six months of 1909, show 1,875 arrests in this city for drunkenness.

Vienna, July 12.—The postoffice in the centre of this city was robbed of $25,000. While an official was called to the telephone, probably as a ruse, the thieves reached across the counter and seized gold and notes and escaped.

IN THE WORLD OF SPORT

WHERE ALL MEN ARE EQUAL—IN THE BLEACHERS AT A BALL GAME

An article in the New York Telegraph sets forth the value of the baseball bleachers as an equalizing force. The employer meets the employed as man to man, a condition which probably no other medium could secure. A part of "Jim Nasium's" philosophy is as follows:

I'll gamble that most any of you readers, if you just set your think tank to working, can dig up instances where members of different classes or stations in life between whom there would otherwise rise an insurmountable barrier have been brought together and formed an amiable and intimate companionship through a common interest in some branch of sport. Have you ever seen the millionaire sportsman meeting the laborer afield with dog and gun and sharing his chuck, or in the wilderness and sharing his bed? I have and let me tell you that it wasn't capital and labour then, it was simply two MEN. Have you ever seen the wealthy society man on a fishing excursion chumming with the poor villager who has nothing in the world but his sporting spirit and a fund of good stories? I have, and what's more, I've seen the same villager call on the society man later in the city and be more cordially received by him than his wealthy and foppish friends of the society world. These two representatives of widely separated classes in life would never get in touch with each other were it not for their common interest in sport. And I say God bless sports, for they are doing more than all things else combined to rid the world of "fops" and teach humanity in general that "man's a man for a' that," no matter what his station in life may be.

Yes, and I, and you, too, have seen the man of wealth slapping the hireling on the back and cheering with him at the ball game when some guy on the home team slams out the hit that cleans the bases and cops the game. We have heard them discussing the points of the game together, and who can say that they haven't got a warmer regard for each other when they separate. I have seen the boss and the employee planted behind the traps and vying with each other in friendly rivalry at breaking clay pigeons, and they, too, were simply two MEN. I have seen the employer and the hireling wasting valuable time in the office in order to discuss the baseball situation. Did I say wasting time? No, the time wasn't wasted by a long shot. In that space of time a band is forged between the two that years of strenuous effort and education along other lines has failed to produce.

The observant fan who takes advantage of the opportunity to study the crowd at a ball game instead of concentrating all his attention on the game can get next to a lot of things that he never thought of before and spend a mighty profitable afternoon. I must confess to a warm regard for the gray-whiskered old gent, whose every appearance suggests the prosperous man of affairs, who hasn't piled up too much dignity to jump on his hind legs and applaud lustily when the home team is slamming out the hits. And how much more flattering a view you get of human nature to look into his joyous face than you can find illustrated on the frontispiece of the crabbed old mummy who says that he hasn't got time for such foolishness as baseball.

SATURDAY'S GAMES DECLARED OFF A DOUBLE-HEADER THIS WEEK

The heavy rain on Saturday afternoon of course made it impossible to play the regular double-header in the Senior City League and the games had to be postponed. It is likely that the games scheduled for last Saturday will be played this week, which means that the schedule will be drawn out another week. However, as last Saturday was the first in six weeks since the opening of the League, that games had to be postponed there can be little kick from players or officers. The games will be played on Nicholls Oval on Saturday commencing at two o'clock, the first game bring together the Strathconas and T.A.S., and the second the West Ends and Park St. A.C. They should prove to be the best games of the season as the teams are all playing the finest kind of ball just now.

EDMONTON TEAM IS IN LOWEST POSITION

Disappointment of Fans With Continued Losses.

The Edmonton ball team is at the bottom of the Western League and the "bunch" are apparently disappointed with the showing of the team. The Bulletin in write-up on a recent game has the following encouraging boost:

The last game of the series went to Lethbridge by a single run in a listless exhibition of baseball. The Irishmen had a good chance in the seventh to even up the score but made nothing of it. Even the most optimistic fans are becoming discouraged at the continuous defeats of the local team and sad to relate the attendance at the games is constantly diminishing.

Sterling went into the box for the first time since his return from Banff, last night and the Miners pounded him all over the lot in the first innings. Singles by Cox, Corrigan and Kelly and a low throw to first by O'Brien netted the visitors two runs in the opening inning.

O'Brien' single and a low throw to second base accounted for the run made by Edmonton in the first inning.

O'Brien scored in the third on an error by the first baseman and Edmonton's run-getting was over.

The Winnipeg team with which "Jerry" Edmonds is playing is in second position.

WITH THE RUNNERS.

Bobbie Kerr Cleaned 'em Up

Birmingham, Eng., July 10.—Robert Kerr, the Canadian sprinter, to-day defeated N. J. Cartmell, of the University of Pennsylvania in the 100 and 220-yards' dashes at the Birmingham athletic meet. His time for the 100 yards was 10 1-5 secs., and for the 220 yards event 22 secs.

Kerr, who seems to have suddenly reached top form, represents Ireland in the 100 and 220 yards' dashes against Scotland at Dublin on Saturday.

Holmer Won Another

Quebec, July 11.—The Marathon race competed for at the Quebec athletic grounds in this city Saturday brought out four competitors—Hans Holmer, of Quebec, Cibot and Orphee, of France and a French-Canadian from Victoriaville, Que., named Beaudet. The distance agreed upon was twenty miles, and, notwithstanding that the three first named runners were well known, not more than 1,200 spectators were present. Holmer won, covering the distance in 159.50½, and beat Longboat's time by 2 minutes 10 seconds. Cibot came second three laps behind the winner, and Orphee third, seven laps behind. Beaudet fell out after going the first mile.

Walter Knox, the ex-Central Y.M.C.A. crack sprinter, and all-round athlete, who was bounced by the [illegible] for indiscretion in taking an affidavit, has been reinstated on the Pacific coast, and will compete at the great Seattle games.

ORANGEMEN AT SPRINGVILLE

Eloquent Address Was Delivered by Rev. Dr. Marsh Yesterday Morning.

Springville, July 12.—Fraserville Orange Lodge and L.O.L. No. 50, of Peterborough, attended Divine service in the Springville Presbyterian Church yesterday morning. There was a large turnout of the members of the order for whom seats were reserved in the central portion of the church. In addition there was a large representation of the congregation so that the building was crowded.

In addition to the regular musical service there were solos by Messrs. Staples and Ward: that were greatly appreciated.

Rev. Dr. Marsh in delivering a forcible and eloquent address to the Orangemen spoke from the text, I-Cor. 16; verses 13 and 14, "Watch ye, stand fast in the faith; quit you like men; be strong."

In the evening Rev. Dr. Marsh delivered anniversary address in the Methodist Church at Fletewood, the attendance being very large.

Narrow Escape From Drowning At Burleigh

Little Tommy Darcy Was Rescued Just in Time After Falling Into the Lake---Stony Lake Items of Interest---Service at Juniper Island Yesterday---Fishing Continues Good at Different Points on the Lake.

By a Staff Correspondent:

Burleigh Falls, July 12, 1909.

A drowning fatality was narrowly averted here the other day when little Tommy Darcy, the four-year-old son of Mr. Warren Darcy, proprietor of the Park Hotel, fell from the wharf into several feet of water at Blewett's boathouse. The little fellow was shoving at a yacht when he lost his balance and fell in Lovesick Lake. The young lad with wonderful presence of mind got to some crib work which he grabbed and held on until assistance arrived. Harry Blewett pulled him out and the youth walked up to the hotel drenched through but none the worse for his dip.

Some Fine Catches

The fishing continues excellent at Burleigh, every guest here being exceedingly fortunate.

Mr. and Mrs. Cobb, of Elmira, N. Y., who are holidaying here have had splendid luck. For three successive days they caught the limited number of bass and 'lunge and are more than pleased with their first visit to Burleigh.

Mr. Baird, of Pittsburg, Pa., caught a fine bass the other day weighing over four pounds.

There was no service here yesterday morning. Rev. Mr. Lord's horse whach was lost last Sunday while he was holding service has not yet returned. It was seen on the road about three miles down from here.

Guests at the Hotel

The following guests are registered at the Park Hotel, Burleigh Falls: E. Gowans and wife, J. J. Elmer, Toronto; G. H. Howson and W. S. Howson, Peterborough; Bryce R. McMaster, Oxford, England; Geo. At Juniper Island.

Mr. Rutherford of the Bible Study School, Toronto, conducted service here yesterd. morning. Rev. Mr. Cromie of Toronto was to have preached, but was unavoidably absent. A very bright service was held and a large number of cottagers were present. Miss Cook of C hicago, who is holidaying here, sang a solo in excellent voice.

The usual Saturday evening dance was withdrawn last week owing to the heavy thunderstorm which visited the lakes, the cottagers being kept to their homes. No damage is reported as having been done to property as a result of the storm.

A large number of the cottages were opened during the past week, the very warm weather of the past few days having driven many back to their summer homes where they might enjoy cool, refreshing breezes.

A Big 'Lunge.

TOOK PARALYTIC STROKE AND DIED WITHIN HALF AN HOUR

Suddenly strickent with heart failure or paralysis, at eight o'clock last night Jonathan Green, 78 years of age, passed away within a half an hour at his residence on Albert street before medical aid could be secured. He had attended the Park St. Baptist Church in the morning and throughout the day appeared to be in ordinary health.

Mr. T. Frost, who lives next door was called in about eight o'clock and found Mr. Green sitting on a chair, and to all appearances there was nothin gthe fatter with him. He asked to be removed to a bedroom and spoke lightly of a feeling that had come over him. When he was raised to his feet he became stiff and asked to be lowered to the floor. Mr. Frost called another neighbour and Mr. Green was placed on a bed.

Before Dr. A. W. McPherson arrived life had fled, although no more than thirty minutes had elapsed. Coroner Gray was called but decided that his services were not needed.

The late Mr. Green has been a familiar figure and was widely known in the city. For years he has secured employment cutting wood and doing other work of that kind. He was a particular friend of the children and many of the tots in the south end will miss the coppers which he seldom refused them.

The late Mr. Green was 78 years of age and was born in North Monaghan where he resided until moving into Peterborough 15years ago. He was married a number of years ago and is survived by his wife, and a brother. Joseph, of St. Catharines and Mrs. Wm. Porter, of East City.

The deceased was a member of the Baptist Church. The funeral will be held on Tuesday afternoon at two o'clock from the family residence, Albert street.

When a young man the deceased had been a member of the 57th Regiment and was at one time a crack shot. Under Colonel Poole he won a medal for marksmanship for three years. Among the children of the south end Mr. Green was a great favourite. His gray hairs won their respect and his pocket always had a copper for the little folks.

Residents Of The South Ward Should Show More Interest

Writer Says Council Would Look After Conditions in the Most Popular Ward if Requests Were Made—Also Suggests That the Council Take Initiative.

LETTER FROM MECHANIC

Peterborough, July 12, 1909.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Sir,—In reference to your editorial comment upon the laying of the corner stone of the new All Saints Church you mention the fact that the South Ward has seen many additions to the number of its churches, schools and manufacturing establishments. It is for this reason that I am writing to you to contrast what the people in general have received from the city. Ward No. One leads the others in population, and yet I believe that it receives the least attention. I must admit that many of the streets need no further improvement. We have our share of cement sidewalks and of fire protection and some of the roads are in good condition but there are others that are so abominably bad that the good is forgotten. I have seen several letters bearing upon this point and I agree with them all in this part of the city receiving more attention. I passed along three streets Saturday evening and the roads were disgraceful. Ask the express men where the worst roads are and I will wager that they will refer you to the South End of the city. Before the rain these streets were deep in dust that owing to the passing of vehicles hung in a cloud continually. Saturday night there was nearly six inches of mud for horses to flounder through. I realize that it is too late this year to expect anything in the way of a change, but I think the residents of this section should clamour next year for more attention from the Council. I am not blaming that body for I believe that they would grant concessions if they were asked for, but they might take the initiative themselves and provide improvements or suggest them when they are so badly needed.

Thanking you, Mr, Edtior,

MECHANIC.

Wolfe Street Will Divide Catholic Parish For The Two Churches

The Church of the Sacred Heart is expected to be completed within two months, and it will then be occupied by its congregation. The work has been continuously carried along and the interior is taking on a finished appearance. The sanctuary lamp was being awaited last week, and upon its arrival and placing in position the scaffolding will be taken down. The large brass bell has been received from Troy, New York, and will be placed in position in a short time. The equipment of the church is at hand and will be sent as soon as the interior is ready. The congregation of the church has practically been decided upon. It is learned, although there has been no announcement made, that all those living south of Wolfe street, will constitute the congregation. This will, of course, include the people from the townships to the south.

Ireland As A Summer Resort.

(By Thos. E. Curtayne in the World.)

With thousands of Americans beginning their annual pilgrimage to Europe, the question renews itself, why do not Irish-Americans inspire in tourists a desire to visit the beauties of the Emerald Isle?

From inquiry among visitors to the other side during my twelve years' experience in the hotel business here, I find that a very small proportion of tourists visit Ireland. Some of them seem to know nothing at all about Ireland as a summer resort, and I have been surprised at the ignorance shown in questions put to me concerning Ireland and the Irish.

On the other hand, many have complained of the poor hotel accommodations and bad railroad facilities that existed some years ago. During a recent visit there I found that all this had changed. Not only in Killarney, my native town, but throughout Ireland, during my six weeks' stay, I found the same improvements had been made everywhere.

Where could tourists find a prettier spot than Killarney, with its beautiful lakes and scenery? It is said that here "angels fold their wings and rest." This is what Americans never think of doing. Nt that American have wings, although the people of Killarney speak of them as having these aids to flight. They refer to them flying in on one train and out on the next. This certainly is not the way to enjoy Killarney or any of the other beauty spots of Ireland.

I have been informed that many of the fine mansions situated near the Lakes are untenanted, owing, it is said, to the unsettled condition of the Land Purchase bill. This I should think might be an ideal opportunity for the American millionaire to rent one of these mansions for a season. Why not form an American colony at Killarney?

Glengariff is one of the best known health resorts. It is a beautiful spot where even the coach horses rest and only move after some little persuasion.

The scenery and historical interest up the river Lee from Queenstown to Cork and Blarney Castle will please the most critical tourist.

Then there is the lace industry, in which every woman traveller is interested.

Considerable money appropriated during the hard times in Ireland was used in employing men upon road improvement, and to-day Ireland has some of the finest coaching and automobile roads in the world.

England has her roast beef and plum pudding, and Germany her beer and cakes, but nowhere in the world do they have the delicious roast mutton of Ireland. It is only in Ireland, too, with all her faults, that they know how to cook a potato.

MAKING MONTREAL A GREAT PORT

The report of the Harbour Commissioners of Montreal, is of national import, for it has to do with national interests of the most serious and substantial character. It involves the idea of making Montreal one of the greatest grain shipping ports of this continent. The report, summarized as follows, makes interesting reading:

Study of port conditions elsewhere has revealed the fact that Canada has the unique opportunity of creating a great world port at Montreal with a much smaller capital outlay than is possible at any other port on the North American continent.

The Port of Montreal is the only port in North America giving access simultaneously to a channel for ocean vessels of 16,000 tons and inland coasting vessels carrying 2,000 tons of cargo.

The Port of Montreal is the meeting point of ocean and inland trade, 1,000 miles from the sea, with deep water inland navigation for 1,500 miles further, into the heart of North America.

The Port of Montreal is accessible to all railways on the same terms where transhipment is made direct from the ship to car or vice versa.

Th Port of Montreal is now handling a greater volume of business per month than any other North American port, except New York.

The tonnage of the port has doubled in five years.

More passengers were carried to Canadian ports via Canadian and British ships during 1907 than to all American ports combined, except New York.

Those nations which have forestalled large trade increases by generous development of their strategic sea terminals have become the commercially powerful nations of the world.

British and European ports have been developed at enormous capital cost owing to national difficulties of situation, etc.

American ports with which the Port of Montreal is in actual competition, are also being developed at high capital expenditure.

These facts have a serious bearing upon the charges on the business of different ports.

The Port of Montreal occupies the unique position of being the only port in North America where the entire foreshore is the property of the nation and can be developed without the expenditure of a farthing for the purchase of land.

It is significant that these rare and most fortunate conditions prevail at the farthest inland deep water point in North America.

The Port of Montreal, because of this wonderful inheritance, is destined to become the great transhipping point for ocean-borne freight.

Only the indifference of Canadians to the splendour of their opportunities can prevent this achievement.

Statements such as these cannot be seriously made without a realization of what they mean. They are made with the full conviction that such a destiny awaits the Port of Montreal, to reach which requires the combined efforts of all true Canadians.

It is with these thoughts in mind that the Commissioners look forward, ere long, to submitting to their fellow country-men a comprehensive scheme of port development on broad national lines, that will demand the pride, the support and the confidence of the nation.

NINE WERE KILLED IN A SOUTHERN CATTLE RAID

Special to The Examiner (2.45 p.m.)

El Paso, Texas, July 12.—A southern Pacific despatch from Afton, N. M., forty-five miles west of this city, states that nine men are dead as the result of a battle between cowboys and cattle raiders. The despatch stated that a wounded man had just reached Afton and reported that a band of rustlers had attacked his party and that every person with him, nine in all, was missing, and he presumed they had all been killed. The wounded man said 600 shots were fired. Since that hour the despatcher here has been unable to raise the operator at Afton to get further details.

ORANGEMEN OF PETERBOROUGH DISTRICT TAKE PART IN BIG PORT HOPE DEMONSTRATION

Many Hundred Loyal Sons of William Were Present for the Walk in the Lake Shore Town ---Peterborough People Were on Hand in Large Numbers and Had an Enjoyable Time---Thunderstorms of Early Morning Had Little Effect Upon the Attendance--Notes of the Celebration of the Anniversary of the Battle of the Boyne.

The two hundred and nineteenth anniversary of the Battle of the Boyne was loyally and enthusiastically celebrated in Port Hope yesterday, and according to several of the old boys of that place, the largest crowd ever in Port Hope took part in the demonstration. Special trains all drawn by double-headers, began to arrive early in the morning filled with Orangemen and their friends from all over the country. A special from Peterborough at 12:15 brought ten coaches filled with over one thousand visitors, and the regular shortly after pulled in with another large crowd.

The town was appropriately decorated with flags and banners, in fact everybody and everything that could be decorated wore an emblem of the Orange Order. The mottoes across the streets in the line of the parade included "Derry Walls," "No Surrender," "The Pioneer of Civil and Religious Liberty," "We Revere the Memory of William, Prince of Orange," "Unity Is Strength." Splendid accommodation had been prepared for the visitors, and every vacant lot or store was utilized for the feeding of the mighty throng. Meals were served in hardware stores, butcher shops and in every place conceivable. The Y. M. C. A. served dinner at the Market Hall, and so great was their business that those in charge ran out of eatables shortly after noon. St. Paul's Presbyterian Church had made preparations for a big day, and served meals in the basement of the Sunday School, while the Salvation Army threw open their rooms on Walton street, and served a large number.

The parade, which was billed to

FREIGHTER IS SUNK WITH FOURTEEN MEN

New Steel Freighter Isaac M. Scott Collides With Cowle In a Dense Mist Off Whitefish Light and Sends Her to the Bottom With All But Three of Her Crew—Captain Among the Saved.

Sault Ste. Marie, July 13.—Three minutes after the steel steamers Isaac M. Scott and John B. Cowle had collided in Lake Superior early yesterday morning, about a mile and a half off Whitefish Point Lighthouse, the Cowle had gone to the bottom in 50 fathoms of water, carrying with her 14 members of her crew. The Scott, although badly damaged about the bows, put back to this port, where she arrived yesterday afternoon with part of the crew of the Cowle.

A heavy fog was responsible for the collision. The Scott, a new boat, on her maiden trip to the head of the lakes, had just passed the light at Whitefish Point and straightened out her course up the lake, when suddenly the John B. Cowle loomed up through the fog, broadside on to the Scott, and only a few feet away. The Cowle was down bound with 8,000 tons of iron ore in her hold.

The Scott crashed into the side of the heavily-laden Cowle. For 15 feet her bow penetrated. Tons of water rushed into the great opening and in three minutes the Cowle had settled to the bottom of Lake Superior.

Immediately after the collision a line was thrown from the deck of the Scott to the Cowle, and three members of the crew escaped to the deck of the upbound boat by this means.

The rest of the crew, who were saved, jumped from the sinking steamer into the lake, some without life preservers, and were picked up by the Scott and the steamer Goodyear, which was a short distance astern of the Scott when the collision occurred.

Capt. Rogers of the Cowle was one of those rescued by the Goodyear.

Until he is heard from it is impossible to secure the names of the men who perished. Survivors say they include both engineers, the four firemen, four deck hands, the second cook, porter and an oiler named Patten.

The Scott received serious injuries in the collision, which would have probably sent her to the bottom had she been loaded.

The John B. Cowle was 445 feet long, 50 feet beam and owned by the Cowle Transit Co. of Cleveland. The Cowle went into commission in 1902.

A SUCCESSOR TO PRINCE VON BUELOW

Kaiser Will Probably Choose a Man He Can Boss.

Berlin, July 13.—To-day Wilhelm II. appoints his fifth chancellor. Whatever personal sympathy may be felt for Prince Von Buelow, it cannot be denied that the holders of that high office have gone in a descending scale in merit. The successors of Bismarck—Caprivi, Hohenlohe and Buelow—have marked a growing diminution in the importance of the office and a growing increase in the influence of the throne.

The Kaiser's personality has, in an ever-increasing degree, overshadowed that of the Imperial chancellor, and for this reason the name of Prince Von Buelow's successor is awaited with a feeling of curiosity, nothing more.

Whether he be Dr. Von Bethmann-Hollweg, Count Von Wedel, Count de Monts or any other official is practically a matter of indifference to the country at large. The conviction that the Kaiser, to use Bismarck's words, will be his own chancellor renders the choice almost without importance.

STRIKERS AND P.W.A. MEN ARE BROTHERS FOR DAY

Wives of Belgian Miners Appear Foremost Among U.M.W. Pickets at Inverness—Despite the Number of Orangemen Who Laid Off For the Day Many Men Worked—Soldiers Guard Bridges.

Inverness, N.S., July 13.—The strike situation here is still causing anxiety.

Belgian women were out in full force with U.M.W. pickets at 4 o'clock yesterday morning to prevent men going to work. The R.C.R. military pickets had been posted, and some of the men were badly abused with the tongues and occasionally a small stick or stone. One man was arrested for interfering with the police, but was discharged. At 4 o'clock, when the men knocked off work, the soldier pickets had been placed, and no great crowd assembled, and not a man was interfered with.

A sergeant and squad of five men guard the railway trestle a mile out of town night and day. A magistrate to read the Riot Act, if necessary, and a number of special police are also at the trestle. While the soldiers are here no serious trouble is anticipated.

Something over four hundred tons of coal were got out, which is about one-third the usual.

Miners In Parade.

Glace Bay, N.S., July 13.—Hostilities at the collieries were to a large extent suspended yesterday morning and both U.M.W. and P.W.A. men met at Sydney and took part in a big Orange demonstration there.

Notwithstanding the large number of men off work for this reason, and contrary to expectations, more men reported for work at the collieries than did on Saturday. Reports from No. 1 are to the effect that over 700 men went to work. Reports from No. 3 indicate more men at work than on Saturday. The situation at Caledonia and Reserve remains unchanged. Many new men reported for work at Bridgeport yesterday. No effort will be made for the present to start operations at Dominion No. 6.

Loses Life In Effort to Save.

Montreal, July 13.—Edward Marchanw, a bartender, and an English girl, Lillie Corlas, who had only been in the country a short time, were drowned near the shore yesterday afternoon on Lake St. Louis.

The young woman fell out of the boat in about 12 feet of water and in trying to save her Marchand was also drowned.

GROCER DISAPPEARS, LEAVING NOTE INTIMATING INTENTION OF SUICIDE

Harry Ball Was Not Involved in Heavy Debts, But Was Worried Because of Small Amount of Business—Has Not Been Seen Since Sunday and Wife is Distressed—Took Money to Provide a Decent Burial, So His Note Said.

CAME HERE FROM NEW YORK

Leaving a note in his room intimating that he was going to do away with himself, Harry Ball, a grocer at the corner of Aylmer and McDonel streets went forth from his home, which is connected with the store, on Sunday afternoon at four o'clock and has not been seen since. His wife knew nothing of his intentions until she discovered his message which plainly shows that he went away with suicidal intent. He wrote that he was tired of it all, that he was taking fifty dollars with him in order to assure decent burial if he was found dead and his intention to depart this world was couched in no uncertain maner. Mrs Ball is heartbroken with anguish. She does not know where he has gone nor what he has done, and it is this awful uncertainty that is most agonizing.

Worried About Business

Mr. Ball, who is a Hebrew, came to Peterborough about three months ago. In the great financial slump in the United States he was one of the multitude who suffered a financial setback and lost heavily. In fact he found it necessary to go out of business and decided to start afresh and on a small scale with the hope that he would gradually work back to his former position. He opened a grocery business in the premises formerly occupied by Wesley Bros. and commenced with a progressiveness that was markedly metropolitan. His anticipations, however, were not fulfilled. Trade did not present itself as he desired and he gradually began to realize that he was not going to make the success he had expected. Disappointment turned to worry as the conditions showed no signs of improvement.

Prepared Statement

An examination of his business shows that he was not entangled in debts. Friends of the family who have since looked into his affairs have discovered that he owed about one hundred dollars. One was a bill of sixty dollars to a local man.

This indebtedness of one hundred dollars is not considered by his friends to have been preying most on his mind. It was the continued realization that his latest enterprise was a failure. He had built his hopes strongly upon a small affair which was not paying the expected dividend. This fact is believed to have caused him most wrry. Before departing he prepared a statement of all the debts that were owed him instructing his wife to collect the money.

His Appearance

Ball was about 25 years of age, of medium height and build. He had curly dark hair, and his eyes were a dark brown. He wore a black suit and Christy hat. The fact that he took fifty dollars with him seems to indicate that he intended to leave Peterborough. In that case he may have taken the Sunday afternoon train to Toronto. His actions, however, cannot be traced. He is not remembered at the C.P.R. station. It is this doubt that makes the wife's burden harder to bear. There are three children, two boys and a girl. Mrs. Ball stated to the Examiner that her husband was uninsured. Any person knowing anything of the whereabouts of Mr. Ball will reider a great service to the family by communicating with Mrs. Ball or Mr. B. Lastar.

KINRADE HOUSE IS NOT OFFERED FOR LOW PRICE

Six Thousand Dollars Said to be Sum Demanded by Mr. Kinrade.

Examiner Special.

Ever since the Kinrade family vacated their home on Herkimer street people have been speculating as to what would be done with the property. It was stated some time ago that the house was rented to a labouring man for $10 per month. This report was hardly correct, as the present occupant has leased the house for a year.

Several people have passed the remark that the property could be bought very cheaply. However, those who undertook to purchase it at a sacrifice price soon learned their mistake, as Mr. Kinrade has no intention of giving it away. One gentleman made an offer of $3,000, and it was refused. Mr. Kinrade, it is stated, refused $7,000 for it before the tragedy occurred. Negotiations are under way for a transfer of the property. It is said that it will be disposed of for about $6,000.

LUCKY LONDON.

The Bell Telephone Company is doing in London what we should like to see done more extensively in Peterborough—placing its wires underground. This company applied to the City Council for permission to open up the necessary streets to admit of this work being done. The aldermen were delighted with the application, were loud in commendation of the enterprise of the company and unanimous in the feeling that the undergrounding of the wires, involving the removal of street poles, would greatly improve the appearance of the city, and be in the interests of the convenience of the ratepayers. It is unnecessary to add that the civic permission was willingly and even enthusiastically given. The Company will expend about $50,000 in placing about eight and eight-tenths miles of conduits and the construction of the necessary—16—manholes. London is lucky and is to be heartily congratulated upon the boon the Company is conferring upon the city by the Bell Telephone Company. From our limited experience of the vast improvement resulting from the partial burying of wires here, Peterborough would hail with delight a general subterranean placing of wires of all kinds. The city should move in this direction if possible upon, especially, the business streets. George street in particular is warped with wires on both sides, which are not only a positive disfigurement, but a menace to property—to the lines of buildings in front of which they stretch. In case of fire the use of fireladders promptly and effectively would be almost impossible. If these wires were placed underground there would be improvement in every way. The wire problem will have to be solved before permanent pavement is undertaken.

THE SO-CALLED "STRIKE"

Our evening contemporary in its anxiety to take advantage of the privileges and immunities of the "long vacation" or "silly season," comports itself accordingly. It has another anxiety—to get in a blow at the Liberal Government, whether it deserves it or not. In last night's edition it strives to make the Militia Department responsible for tyranny by sending machine guns to Sidney, N.S., with the object of "slaughtering and overawing the oppressed coal mine strikers." Our contemporary should know unless its legal knowledge is of the same character as Necessity's that the Militia Department did not take the initiative; it acts only on motion of the local civil authorities that, in case of need, makes a demand which must be complied with; that the military is under the virtual command of the local civil authorities and that, in case of disturbance, until the Riot Act is read and the local civil officer gives the command not a shot can be fired to suppress rioting. If a detachment of soldiers were armed with pea shooters or hundred-ton guns it would be the same. It is stated by the demagogue organs of the Opposition, that the employment of machine guns is contrary to the constitution—that "there is no provision for the use of machine guns." Nor is there any provision for any other specific arm. But that is neither here nor there. The fact is that the development of the situation seem to have justified an appeal to military power. The demand was made and the Department as is in duty compelled, complied with the demand. The only object of the Review and other journals hostile to the Government is to discredit it and make it the means of oppressing down-trodden workmen who are, it is falsely assumed threatened with slaughter by machine guns; and, incidentally, to curry favour by posing as the friends of oppressed labour.

As a matter of fact, there is no oppression of labour; as a matter of fact there is no strike, in the ordinary use of that word. Nobody in the coal mines is striking for higher wages or shorter hours, or any of the other privilege whose withholding or withdrawal constitute the ordinary grounds of a strike. It is simply a strike to force recognition of a foreign labour union which has impudently "butted in," in order to cuckoo a Canadian labour union out of place and force recognition by the mine owners of a foreign labour organization, as a brief resume of the causes that led up to the strike will show. Three years ago the manager of the mine requested the committee of the Provincial Mine Workers' Association, a Canadian organization, to take means to prevent its members, employed in the mines, from loading rock, instead of coal, in the boxes. This the Committee agreed to do in return for the concession that every man, working in and about the mine should belong to the Provincial Workmen's Association. This concession the manager granted and from that day to this every man who came to work in the mine had to sign a card which made him a member of the Provincial Workmen's Association and another instructing the mine office to check off his dues to the lodge. Some two months ago a lodge of "United Mine Workers"—practically a foreign organization—was formed; and up to the present the dues of members of the Provincial Workmen's Association were checked off by the mine office and turned over to the lodge to the credit of the member. This arrangement of the mine owners with the Association is still in force. Three weeks ago representatives of the United Mine Workers passed in a list of names said to belong also to the new United Mine Workers lodge asking that the Provincial Workmen's Association dues be no longer collected by the mine owners. No attention was paid to this. The list was not signed by the men personally and the majority of the names were in the same handwriting. Later several miners personally signed cards asking for no check-off of dues; and, as they thus severed themselves from the Provincial Workmen's Association, the manager held to the agreement—made three years before, kept in good faith by both parties and still in force—these men were "given their time." The United Mine Workers, the foreign organization then declared a strike.

It is thus seen that this strike is for recognition of a practically foreign labour organization, which is seeking to oust a Canadian Labour organization. The "strike" is not for higher wages nor shorter hours, nor any other grievance. The United Miner's workmen are as hostile to the Canadian Labour organisation as to the mine owners and it is against members of the Canadian Labour organization that the assaults that provoked the calling in of the military have been directed. The workmen assaulted are not "scabs" but regular members of the Canadian Labour organization, men faithfully carrying out an agreement woth the mine owners, who cannot, without fraud or dishonor cancel an agreement by recognizing a foreign labour organization. Judging by the despatches this strike has been fomented by foreign agitators, in an effort to displace a Canadian organization.

It seems intolerable that it should be possible for outsiders to interfere with the domestic affairs of Canadians, interrupt our industries and deprive Canadian men of employment. If it had not been for this foreign interference, there would have been no "strike," no calling out of the military, no machine guns, and no chance for demagogue newspapers to espouse the cause of interfering outsiders and take stand against honest Canadian workmen, honestly seeking to carry out an honest agreement. It is useless for these demagogues to try to show themselves the friends of Labour. The present Government has too long a record of good legislation and administration in the interests of Canadian labour to be successfully attacked, or made to appear the enemies of the Labour interests, thirsting to mow them down with machine guns and all that canting bombast. The military was called out to protect the members of a Canadian Labour organisation from the assaults of foreigners—said to be Belgians—in the interests of a foreign labour organization, seeking to supplant a Canadian organization — in order to repel an invasion.

QUEBEC'S TIMBER POLICY.

(Canada Lumberman for July.)

The announcement of Premier Guoin that the Quebec Government will forbid the export of pulpwood from the Province of Quebec, has been received with satisfaction by lumbermen and pulp paper manufacturers generally. Opinions are divided as to some details of the actual effect the restriction will have, but there is a general agreement that the move is a wise one and is absolutely necessary for the purpose of conserving the supply of Quebec pulpwood and inducing paper monufacturers to erect mills in Quebec. The course taken by the Quebec government will bring that province into line with Ontario, which has reaped immeasurable advantage from its policy of forbidding the export of unmanufactured logs. The situation, from the commercial point of view, was well explained in a speech made in the House of Commons by Mr. E. N. Lewis, M.P., in March, 1908. Mr. Lewis had introduced a motion to the effect that it was the duty of the Government to place an export duty on pulpwood, which would be sufficient to induce its manufacture into paper in Canada and thus save to the labour of Canada six millions of dollars now lost.

In speaking of his motion Mr. Lewis said: "Millions upon millions of spruce logs, and hundreds and thousands of cords of pulpwood go yearly from Quebec, New Brunswick, and Nova Scotia to feed the pulp and paper mills of the Eastern, Middle and Western States. What does Canada get for this? The Government, not one dollar a cord. The chopper, the loader, the teamster, the peeler, not much more. The railways a low rate on coarse freight. The whole result is $6, or $7 per cord left in Canada—I give a maximum figure; $6 is absolute. Why, sir, they don't even allow us to carry the pulpwood in Canadian vessels. I have here a list of fourteen steamships carrying pulpwood last season from Quebec ports to Wisconsin ports, twelve of which are United States vessels and two Norwegian.

"Now, I repeat again—$6, or $7, left in Canada for every cord of pulpwod leaving it. Watch how the value grows afterwards. Every cord of wood ground to pulp has a value of $20. Every cord of wood made into fibre has a value of $30 to $32. Every cord of wood made into paper has a value of $40 to $45 and up. My resolution asks this Government to take suuch action as will save to the labour men of Canada the $6,000,000 lost annually. I firmly believe that $20,000,000 would be nearer the mark. The United States shuts out our finished product, paper, but takes our crude product, pulpwod, makes it into paper and undersells us in Europe with their surplus dump.

"If the facts were properly placed before the farmer who has pulpwood for sale, he would see that he would be helped by an export duty more than anyone else. The sale would be just as great and more people would live in his neighbourhood to use his other products and make his farm more valuable. If an export duty were to be put in force, sufficient mills could be removed to or built in Canada in eighteen months to supply the world.

"The pulp and paper industry gives more healthy and steady day and night employment to a larger number of men and women at higher wages all the year round than any other industry in Canada.

"We have no desire to prevent our American cousins having newspapers to read, but let them get our forests in the shape of the manufactured article. What happened when the Liberal Government of Ontario restricted the export of sawlogs? Saw-mills started humming in all directions, factories followed, the United States saw-mill men came over here, and we were glad to have them. We will welcome the paper manufacturer also."

At present the stumpage rate in Quebec is 65 cents a cord with a rebate of 25 cents per cord for wood which is made into pulp or paper within the province. It is frequently stated, however, that this charge of 65 cents is not very often collected, and that the regulation is more honoured in the breach than in the observance. The new law, when passed, will do away with this charge and prohibit the export of pulp-wood. The situation of the farmer is one which has caused some difference of opinion in connection with this matter. He is accustomed to selling his pulp at a good profit, and the competition of the United States mills for his product has done much to keep up the prices. It is claimed by those who have opposed the restriction of the export of pulpwood, that the farmer will lose the benefit of the American demand and that being confined to the Canadian market, he will be at the mercy of the Canadian manufacturers of paper. At first sight this seems possible, but a concrete example will serve to show it in a different light. In the town of Grand-Mere, Quebec, there is a population of 5,000. There is also a paper mill there, and before the establishment of the mill the town was a struggling village with a few inhabitants only. At Batiscan, there are some 300 people who are largely engaged in the export of pulpwood. Batiscan is one of the chief shipping centres of the International Paper Company. At one time this village was a larger place than Grand-Mere. The Laurentide Paper Company employs about 1,200 men at Grand-Mere, and has practically built this thriving town simply on "paper."

It is expected that what has occurred at Grand-Mere will be brought about also at many other points in Quebec if the Government follows the course which it has announced. Much interest will be taken in the matter until it has been brought definitely to a conclusion, and not the least of this interest will be taken by the United States Government in regard to the duty upon paper and pulp shipped into that country. It is conceivable that the United States may seek to overcome the Canadian objections to a free export of pulpwood by insisting on a high import duty on pulp and paper. This policy, however, would be founded upon a false assumption. Canada possesses the raw material for paper, whereas in the United States it is rapidly disappearing. From a strategic point of view Canada can afford to forbid the export of this raw material inasmuch as it will certainly mean that new factories will be established in the country and that the United States will accept the inevitable and reduce the import duty on manufactured pulp and paper.

Nervous People

SALT OF THE EARTH

But when overstrained their highly strung systems give way and depression and suffering is intense.

Money is made these days at the expense of brain and nerve rather than muscular tissues.

The successful men and women are often of the highest strung nervous type—keen and active—but with two little reserve force.

A little extra worry and anxiety and snap goes the nervous system. Weeks and months are often required before energy and vigour are regained.

Rest helps, so does fresh air and exercise but the blood must also be made rich and red by the use of such treatment as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Much as they may disagree on some points the best physicians are unanimous in claiming that an abundance of rich, red, life-sustaining nerve invigorating blood is positively necessary for the restoration of the exhausted nervous system.

There is too often little sympathy for the nervous sufferer. When as a matter of fact his sufferings are most intense, being of mind as well as body.

Headaches, neuralgia, indigestion, sleeplessness, irritability, pains and cramps are often the lesser felt because of the depressed spirits and discouragements which come with loss of memory and gloomy forebodings of the future.

The sufferer from nervous exhaustion and prostration can use Dr. Chase's Nerve Food with positive assurance that the benefits derived therefrom will be both thorough and lasting.

There is no reaction from this great nerve-builder because it is not a stimulant but a restorative and reconstructor of the wasted nervous system. 50 cents a box, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

Cavalry Marched From This City To Port Hope In Seven Hours

Troop Under Lieut. Williams Performed Fast Military March Thirty-three Years Ago—An Interesting Recollection of an Affair of the Past Generation.

ROUTE WAS OVER 31 MILES

In view of the recent trip made by the 24th Field Battery to Cobourg, the following from the Government Blue Book of 1876 may prove interesting to those militarily inclined:

3rd Provisional Regiment of Cavalry

Port Hope, 25th November, 1876.

Sir,—I have the honour to report that I mustered the 2nd Troop of the 3rd Cavalry at Port Hope, on the morning of the 18th September last, for the purpose of annual drill.

It had been previously arranged by Lieut.-Colonel Boulton that we should march to Peterborough, the headquarters of No. 3 Troop, and put in our drill together there.

The troop paraded in heavy marching order, each man having provided himself with one ration, and at one o'clock p.m. we commenced our march by the main, or what is called the Boundary, Road for Peterborough.

This is a good gravel road running between the Townships of Hope and Cavan on the west side, and Hamilton and Monaghan on the east side. Arriving at the Village of Centreville, 15 miles from Port Hope, we halted for an hour for refreshments. Continuing the march we reached Peterborough, a distance of 31 miles, making the march in seven hours, through a rain storm which continued all day.

I have to state that the march was conducted in an orderly manner, without any accident or injury to man or horse, and without any apparent exertion, the proof of which is that every man and horse appeared on duty next day.

Arrangements made by Quartermaster Stapleton, with a hotel keeper to board the men for 35 cents per day, proved to be very satisfactory. The men used the sheds of the Agricultural Association, which are on the same grounds as the drill shed, for sleeping in. The horses were put up in the stables attached, and it was an excellent place both for the protection and safety of the animals. The forage for the horses cost 30 cents per day.

On the 23rd September the troop under Lieutenant Williams marched home, leaving Peterborough at nine o'clock a.m., halting at Centreville for one hour, and arriving at Port Hope at 4:30 p.m.—7½ hours.

I have the honour to be, Sir,

Your obedient servant,

R. W. SMART,
Lieut.-Colonel.

Lieut.-Colonel Van Straubenzie,
Dep. Adjutant-General, Kingston.

PIC-NIC WAS ENJOYABLE

Successful Affair Held at Inverlea Park Under the Auspices of the George Street League.

A most enjoyable picnic was held at Inverlea Park last evening under the auspices of the local committee of the George Street League.

The most interesting feature of the evening was the baseball game between the ladies and gentlemen, the score being 12-3 in favour of the ladies. Other sports were indulged in such as races and tag, the latter ending somewhat disastrously however, as one of the young gentlemen unfortunately fell and sprained his ankle. After the programme of sports was finished refreshments were served and every one did ample justice to all the good things prepared by the ladies.

A toast to Mr. Norman Allison, the genial president of the committee, was proposed and seconded.

Later in the evening the members of the committee were entertained by Miss Gertrude Allison at her home.

HASTINGS RESIDENCE WAS BADLY WRECKED BY FIRE

Conflagration at the Home of Mr. Jos. Carter---Methodist Church Was in Danger for Some Time But the Efforts of the Fire Brigade Averted the Catastrophe.

Special to The Examiner.

Hastings, July 10th.—Quite a number took in the Presbyterian picnic to Idyl Wyld on Tuesday last. The day was an ideal one and every one was well pleased with their outing.

Miss Gladys and Master Stanley Stevenson are visiting their grandparents out of town.

Mr. Philip Elmhirst is suffering from a fracture of the arm, caused by a kick from a horse.

Miss Jean O'Neil is visiting friends in St. Helena.

Mr. George Stevenson, of Peterborough, was in town last week attending the funeral of his mother.

Miss Vera Armour of Toronto is the guest of her friend Miss Bella Humphries.

Just as the people were assembling for service on Sunday morning the village fire bell sounded out an alarm, which proved to be the residence of Mr. Jos. Carter, just behind the Methodist Church. The brigade were soon on hand with a line of hose up from the river, and soon a stream of water was playing on the flames, which, by this time, had made considerable headway. After a brave battle with the flames they were soon brought under control, but not before the roof of the building had been destroyed. Mr. Carter saved the greater part of his effects, although losing a quantity of clothing and bedding, which was upstairs. The brigade did good service and had it not been for their heroic efforts the Methodist Church must have fallen a victim to the flames. As it was, the sheds were on fire several times.

An interesting game of baseball was played on Monday evening between the married men of the Presbyterian and Methodist churches, which resulted in favour of the former.

A band of Mexican gypsies passed through here last week on their way to the front, and judging from their appearance, they would not be a very desirable addition to any community.

Mr. Charlie Anderson of Brockville, is the guest of his mother, Mrs. A. Anderson.

Miss Annie Wilson spent Sunday with Miss McConnell.

Mr. Henry Johnson has returned after a few weeks' holidays at Clifton Springs.

Miss Brown of Lindsay is the guest of her sister, Mrs. (Rev.) Barrett, at the parsonage.

Master Joe O'Neil has been visiting friends in Keene.

Miss Helen Harper, of Peterborough, is visiting her friend, Miss Edna Tate.

Mr. Frank Hill, of Toronto, is the guest of his mother.

Miss Kenneally, of Keene, is the guest of her sister, Mrs. T. O'Neil.

Miss Coughlan, of Peterborough Normal School, is home for the vacation.

Rev. J. Ferguson of Belleville, was in town last week.

Mr. J. McCarthy, of Peterborough Business College, is home for the holidays.

Dr. Edmison performed an operation a few days ago on the little son of Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Scriver, thereby correcting a deformity of the lip. The little fellow is doing nicely.

Work is progressing rapidly on the new wharf, which will be quite an improvement to our town. Several boathouses have been removed in order to leave a clear water front, and drilling and blasting re being carried on in earnest.

Mrs. L. F. Clarry has returned after a two-weeks' visit with friends in Millbrook, etc.

Miss Grace Douglass, of Norwood, visited with friends in town last week.

IS FINALLY PASSED

The Franco-Canadian Commercial Treaty Gives Canada the Benefit of a Minimum Tariff.

Paris, July 13.—The Franco-Canadian commercial treaty, giving Canada the benefits of a minimum tariff, except on cattle, has finally been passed.

We make Sunshine Furnace firepot in two sections—so constructed with fins that they throw off every unit of heat, so constructed with straight walls that it is impossible for ashes to gather and intercept the heat, so constructed that the upper section can expand independent of the lower, thus making impossible in a Sunshine Furnace for any heat to leak around the firepot, any heat to be nullified by added dirty cracks to take place as a result of the shock following contraction or expansion.

This fire-pot has greatest weight & longest life

The fire-pot naturally bears the brunt of a furnace's work, and it bears it just in proportion to its original strength.

SUNSHINE FURNACE

Because steel is more powerful than gray iron, we make Sunshine Furnace firepot of semi-steel. This is an exclusive feature, and indicates that in Sunshine Furnace firepot alone you find smooth-as-glass surface, secure maximum fire-resisting strength, can rely on only minimum disintegration and can be assured of long life.

The following legend taken from an enterprising Seedsman's Catalogue is not without a bearing on Fire Insurance:—

The Collier Automatic Electric Iron is a source of real comfort these hot days.

What a pity some women still have to use the old red-hot stove and sweltter in the heat.

THOUGHTLESS HUSBANDS, why delay, when the iron actually saves its price in the item of fuel alone? Then consider that the ironing is done in half the time and done better.

Try it a week at our expense. Just phone 666 Main—We repair and exchange Electric Irons of all makes.

CHILDREN DRAW ON DEPOSITS IN BANKS

Take Small Amounts from Holdings in Public School Savings System.

The Ottawa Citizen points out as an interesting fact that the juvenile depositors in the Penny Savings Banks in connection with the Public Schools of that city are withdrawing portions of their deposits with which to enjoy themselves during the holiday season. "That they are not actuated by any extravagant desires," says the Citizen "is evident in that, while the withdrawals this month are very much larger than during any previous month since the Banks were established, they only amount to about four per cent. of the total deposits." The children are learning the power of money to accumulate. The coppers which might have been spent from day to day, leaving nothing to show where they had gone, become sums worth while when allowed to accumulate in the bank, and furnish the means for giving a new importance to the holiday season. The children are also taught important lessons in the cultivation of self-restraint and the working out of a definite purpose.

PRETTY HAT COSTS ONLY 24 CENTS

Chorus Girl Astonishes Broadway With a Millinery Creation, The Expenditure on Which Was Less Than a Quarter---How It Was Trimmed.

DOROTHY AND HER SWELL 24-CENT HAT

New York, July 13. — Broadway doesn't know whether to thank Miss Dorothy Warrington for showing women how to make cheap hats or to laugh at her. Anyway, Miss Warrington did two things—woke up the Gay White Way in midsummer and made a real peachbasket hat for only 24 cents!

Instead of getting a lot of imitation things to decorate it with, Miss Warrington was practical. She paid 3 cents for a peach basket and with this on her arm went along Produce Row and bought 9 cents worth of early summer vegetables. Have you guessed it. The basket was the foundation for the hat, of course!

Dorothy picked out a banana and two radishes, a lemon—nothing else. She got a bargain in price because she was so good looking. Then a yard and a half of bunting and half a yard of cheese cloth she finished the job.

Miss Warrington is a member of the "Motor Girl" company playing at the Lyric theatre, and when she went to rehearsal wearing the hat it looked just like any other peach basket creation that might have cost her $25 or $50. Of course the peach basket was too big, but the stage carpenter at the Lyric cut it down to suit her shapely head.

"One of the many advantages this hat has is that the trimmings can be renewed at small expense, keeping up to date with the arrival of new vegetables in the markets from time to time."

That's what Dorothy said. Did she really mean it?

City May Make Offer Of $50,000 For The Power At Burleigh Falls

Special Committee Favours This Proposal, Considering $125,000 Too High—Time Expires on July 15th—Will Find Out Who Has Right to Particular Piece of Land.

HAVE NO SPECIAL REPORT

Fifty thousand dollars was the amount which the special power committee decided to offer the Central Power Co. for Burleigh Falls power. The company set as their price $125,000, but at the meeting last night it was felt that this price was too high. It is practically decided that the city needs the power, but the aldermen do not feel willing to pay a sum which they think is exhorbitant. The report of an independent engineer has not yet been received upon Burleigh Falls, but the Council will make this offer without the report. If the Company accepts this offer the committee will recommend to the Council that a by-law be submitted to the people authorizing the raising of sufficient money to buy the company's claim and to develop and transmit the power.

Ald. McIntyre was in the chair with the following present: Mayor Rush, Ald. Phelan, Gillespie, Bradburn, Hicks, Morgan, and the City Solicitor.

City Solicitor E. H. D. Hall reported on the property the Central Ontario Power Company owns at and around Burleigh Falls. He said that the whole description of the property was taken from the company's survey. He therefore could not say how much property the company owned. It was a job for a surveyor. The company owns a small Burleigh Island and the easterly part of large Burleigh; they have squatters' rights on one lot; the Company has the right to dam back the water; the government owns Perry's creek and therefore the company owns the whole water power.

At the present where the best development can be made is owned by Darcy of the Burleigh Falls power, and to develop at this point Darcy's property will have to be purchased. This the company claims that they have an agreement to secure from Darcy.

The chief thing to find out, said the Solicitor, was if the power was worth buying. To do this the city would have to secure the services of an engineer to make a report.

Extension to Expire.

The chairman read a letter from Mr. R. J. McLaughlin, stating that the city's option would expire on July 15th, and that if the city should be able to tell by that time whether they wanted the property or not. If the city does not decide by that time the company would be free to proceed with other negotiations.

It was moved by Ald. Phelan and Ald. Gillespie, that the city clerk write the Ontario Government re lot 5, con. 1, Harvey Township, and ascertain who has the right to its ownership.

The aldermen had a long discussion upon the price asked for Burleigh Falls Power, viz., $125,000. This they claim is too high and very few if any of them are willing to pay that for it.

Finally it was decided to make the company an offer and the following motion was passed:

Moved by Ald. Gillespie and Ald. Bradburn, that the committee would be willing to recommend to City Council and the people that they pay the Company $50,000 for Burleigh Falls power, providing that their titles etc., are all right and if the company will accept that offer.—Carried.

Smith Street Bridge Particulars As Provided For In The Plans

Some figures on the proposed new Smith street bridge at this time will be interesting, owing to the fact that the by-law authorizing the council to raise funds for the pay for the cost of it will be voted on on Thursday July 29th next. The bridge will be reinforced concrete with steel truss bars fitted through it adding greater strength to the structure. The bridge is of simple design, but will make a pleasing spectacle, and will answer every purpose of the city for many years, while the bridge will be permanent.

The length over all will be 340 feet with three arches 100 feet each. The width from outside to outside will be 33 feet. This allows a roadway 18 feet wide and two sidewalks. On the outside of the walks will be a concrete railing 3 feet 9 inches above the surface of the bridge.

The crown of the arches will be 14 feet above of the normal level of the river. The crown is the bottom part of the roadway. The spandrel of the arches will be filled with gravel, and there is provision for eight electric lamps for lighting the bridge. The wing walls at each end are splayed out to the street line which will prevent anything getting down behind it so that the city will have all its property protected.

Provision is also made for conduits for water, gas and electric wiring to be placed under the sidewalks.

The city engineer in his plans has been very careful to provide for everything and to give a bridge which will be cheap to construct, which will cost practically nothing for maintaining, and which will last forever. The ratepayers have already seen all the particulars. The public know that a new bridge must be constructed at Smith street, or else the present bridge will have to be closed this fall. That means a serious loss to the city, as Auburn will be completely shut out and this no one cares to see. The only remedy therefore is to pass the by-law on July 29th.

The Remarks.

On ariving at the town park the Orangemen and their friends listened to the addresses of the sevral distinguished members of their order. The first speaker was Lieut.-Col. Sam Hughes, M.P. ,of Lindsay. He said he was glad to be able to attend another anniversary of the Battle of the Boyne and see such a large number of his brother Orangemen. He dealt for some time with the political situation in Canada in regard to the Protestant and Roman Catholic relations. It was necessary that the Orangemen do their utmost for the advancement of their cause and should always be found in the front ranks fighting every minute. The order was a powerful one and the members should show their colours and support their members who have been elected to represent their constituencies. He referred to th able address that had been delivered by the Rev. E. M. Wilson to the Orangemen at Lindsay on Sunday and said it had never been surpassed in the history of the country. The speaker claimed that he had never asked a man for his vote as he regarded it an insult to the man to be asked for his vote. He should act on his own intelligence as to the right line to follow. Britain needed men of this class to help uplift the old flag and he was satisfied that the Orangemen would respond. Every member should be a trained volunteer and be ever ready to defend his country. Rome is ever plotting and scheming and it was necessary that every Orangeman should be alert and stand true to the principles of the order.

The Rev. R. B. Nelles, of Kingston, next spoke. He paid a tribute to Bro. Holland, the grand old man of the district of East Durham. Everything he (the speaker) had done had been through the instigmation of this member. Canada was facing a difficult problem now that that there were so many nationalities coming to her shores. During a recent visit to Quebec he had witnessed a demonstration which had been led by priests who had been expelled from Rome. These prieses were trouble makers and every Orangeman should be alive to the problem of the day and be always watchful of the enemy. He appealed to the young men of every lodge to say, and mean, no surrender. We are harbouring those who mean ruin to our country and as Canada is now in the century which will determine its power in the world, be hoped in the time to come that our country will have been held with that no surrender which will make it a land of freedom as in no other quarter of the globe.

Rev. A. H. Brace, of Cobourg, congratulated the town of Port Hope and those who had all the arrangements in hand for the celebration of the two hundred and nineteenth anniversary of the Battle of the Boyne. It had been a great success and the number of Orangemen to-day was greater than that of last year. He told the story of the Frenchmen, the German and the Britisher, who were drinking toasts. Said the German, "Here's to the sun of the world," and the Frenchman's toast was "Here's to the moon of the world" and the Britisher replied with, "Here's to the "Joshua of the world who commanded the moon and the sun to stand still." If you are true to the principles of the Orange Order, say to Rome, "Stand still." All through the ages she has been aggressive and is still aggressive. To-day we are commemorating a glorious victory, which was earned by our forefathers. The Government of Quebec was exercising a great power over the land owners of that province and it was up to the Orangemen to say whether we shall be controlled by any such Government. The speaker claimed that there was no danger of the coronation oath being changed as the Britishers are truet to the very love of Protestantism. It will never change and we can trust them. Orangemen should be always watchful and should hand down to future generations the liberty given us by the martyrs. He spoke of the significance of the Plenary Council, which will be held by the Church of Rome in Canada next September. This is the first ever held on Canadian shores and it was necessary that Orangemen be awake and true to their principles as the object of the Council was against the interests of Ontario. All should stand together and show determined opposition to the political system of Rome.

Link Of A Lightning Chain Besports Itself In A Smith Farm House During Storm

Struck Chimney, Travelled Down Through Pipes, Crashed Through Brick Wall and Blew Out the End of the Shed—House Shook With the Shock.

LEFT SULPHUROUS SMELL

A stray ball of lightning played a strange game in the back kitchen and rear part of the residence of Mr. John Stabler, on the 12th concession of Smith, during the thunderstorm Sunday evening.

The family was wakened from their sleep by a loud crash that shook the house as if it were a toy and while dazed by the suddenness of the shattering sound the family thought that the house had been destroyed. The lightning had struck the chimney at te rear of the house and seared its way down the stove pipe into the kitchen stove. It blew the stove door off and took up its course in a piece of wood lying on the floor. It carried the wood along until it met the brick wall that separated the shed from the main part of the house. The opposition of the stout wall only angered the sportive sizzling ball, and with the terrible and peculiar radioactivity of its own, it pierced the wall, leaving a gap that a man could easily have crawled through. What happened then can only be surmised. The broken bricks enervated by the electric bulb crossed the shed and blew out the opposite wall completely.

Sulphurous Odour.

The house was filled with a smell of burning sulphur, and it was thought that some part was on fire, but investigation proved that only a few scorched articles were found on the flor. The whole affair happened in a second. The crash had been accompanied with a sound of breaking glass, and in the same moment it passed away as abruptly as it had come, but there arose from the rear of the house a peculiar odour that seemed unearthly. It was more of a burning mineral and mostly resembled burning sulphur.

The wonderful part of the performance was the manner in which the end of the shed was torn away. The family received a bad scare but the subsequent examination reassured them that the situation was not as serious as the awful noise would lead them to expect.

It is understood that the loss is covered by insurance. No one was injured but a dog lying beside the stove, near the stick, was hurt in some manner.

CHEMIST SAYS ELSIE SIEGEL MET DEATH BY POISONING

Special to The Examiner (2.45 p.m.)

New York, July 13.—Prof. George E. Ferguson, chemist at Columbia University, said to-day that while he has not yet completed his analysis of the organs of Elsie Siegel, he has gone far enough to satisfy himself that the girl was poisoned. Prof. Ferguson says he has not yet determined what poison the girl took or was given. The police have discovered that an Americanized Chinaman bought poison at a drug store near the house where Leon Ling lived shortly before the girl was killed. They have not yet identified the Chinaman who bought the drug.

ELLIOTT, Photographer

Secretary Of The Selkirk Centennial In The City

Speaks to The Examiner of the Importance of the Big Western Exposition---What it Means to the People of Canada---Promises to be a Most Remarkable Success.

Mr. Charles F. Roland, secretary of the Selkirk Centennial Exposition to be held in Winnipeg in 1912, and Mr. Geo. H. Hanna, are visitors in the city to-day. Enthusiastic as to the possibilities of "Miss Canada" holding an "At Home" in the Middle West, Mr. Roland said to a representative of the Examiner:

"The occasion selected for historical celebration in the proposed date of the exposition is the hundredth anniversity of the arrival of Lord Selkirk, stetlers on the bands of the Red River. The idea is to couple with this occasion the excellent opportunity of placing before the eyes of the world Canada's accomplishment and great advantages possessed as a country highly favourable for investment of capital. Expositions are the greatest of educational agencies, and they increase and improve the social and commercial intercourse between the people of different countries continued Mr. Ham. "It is an incontestable fact that no means of publicity that has been devised is in any way comparable for desirable national results with an exposition of the charcter as proposed for Canada in 1912," "for stimulating energy, enterprise and for drawing our people together in closer bonds of acquaintance and trade you can't beat the exposition idea." It will bring us the capital so much needed for the development of our almost unlimited resources and these men of money who will congregate here from every quarter of the globe will gather first hand the opportunities for renumerative investment such as no other country at present can offer. "Yes, it is admitted by all who have given the matter full consideration that the time is ripe for Canada to make such a display, in which we can produce into a space where it takes a short time to inspect what has been accomplished and of the possibilities there are in store for further development.

Speaking with regard to its exploitation Mr. Roland said: "When the matter was first proposed by Earnest Thompson-Seaton, the distinguished Canadian writer, the idea appealed to us in the West at once. But we made up our minds to find out just what good there promised to be in such an exposition and so we investigated the results elsewhere. As one of the committee I went to Portland, St. Louis and Seattle, and discussed the matter fully with people whose interests covered the States in which these expositions were held. We returned home fully satisfied that such an exposition as contemplated would be a most profitable investment for Canada in the development of our agricultural and financial requirements. Naturally we look to the Government for substantial aid as the affair will be an All-Canadian one in scope and purpose. The men behind the exposition are the best in Western Canada. Thirty-six cities and town out there have appointed local committees to work in conjunction with the central committee at Winnipeg, and the Boards of Trade of Toronto, Montreal, St. John and Halifax, have enthusiastically endorsed the idea. The Provincial Governments of Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta, British Columbia and Ontario have been waited up and we are pleased with the consideration given. I have just visited several of the principal cities west of Toronto, where I have been getting first hand talks with the press and the people with reference to the exposition and in every community I visited the people were enthusiastic to the idea. While the patriotic sentiment toward on All-Canadian exposition is general, you, in the chief industrial centres like Peterborough, have a selfish interest also, for if we can use eighteen millions in agricultural implements, ten millions in textiles, five millions in boots and shoes and like amounts in railway supplies, iron products and machinery, with only about one-twentieth of our vacant lands occupied, what will be the result when a hundred million acres is under cultivation: and this is only half what is available. Yes the prospects for a good crop in the prairie provinces is good this season and it is estimated that about 1,000,000 acres is the increase under crop over that of last year."

MISCALLED "HAIR TONICS."

Most Hair Preparations Are Merely Scalp Irritants, of No Value.

Most hair preparations are merely scalp irritants, miscalled hair tonics. When hair is brittle, lustreless and begins to fall out, the dandruff germ is getting in its deadly work at the root, sapping the vitality. Since science discovered that dandruff is a germ disease there has been only one preparation put on the market that will actually destroy the dandruff germ; and that is Newbro's Herpicide. It quickly reduces scalp fever, destroys the germ, and the falling hair stops, and hair grows luxuriantly. Ask your druggist for Herpicide. It allays itching instantly and permits the hair to grow. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

Sold by McDermid & Jury, Druggists; also Payne's Drug Store. One dollar bottles guaranteed.

BILLY PARSONS IS A FAILURE BUT THE TEDDY BEAR IS STILL A JOY TO THE CHILDREN

President "Bill" Taft has failed to make good in Toyland. In that realm which childish delights and fancies are revealed to by novelty dealers the big president finds that his predecessor still reigns supreme.

For "Billy Taft Possum" is a flat failure as a novelty, while the "Teddy Bear" still occupies first place in the hearts of the children.

That is what the importers and manufacturers of novelties report.

The New York importer stood in his shirt sleeves, surveying his extensive display in the sample room of a local hotel. He mopped his perspiring brow and ran his finger around the rim of a wilted collar.

"Great Christmas display, eh?" he remarked. Imagine discussing Christmas presents on a torrid day in July! The four walls of the big room were lined with dolls and novelties.

"The Teddy hunting bear will be the big new novelty this year," said the importer, as he took a Teddy bear off the counter. Teddy bear was dressed in a hunting suit, and sombrero. He carried a gun, saber, game sack and cartridge belt.

"Ping those Billy Taft opossums.

AT THE TOP THE TEDDY HUNTING BEAR FOR NEAT CHRISTMAS' PRESENTS. BELOW CLOTH TOYS.

THE $30 DOLL

They don't go worth a cent. The kids won't stand for 'em. Look too much like a cat, is the complaint we get," continued the importer. "And we spent thousands of dollars on the chance that they would be a hit," he added, ruefully.

The comical cloth dolls are also new things this year for the kids. They represent all kinds of grotesque figures. Even here Roosevelt's popularity has extended and is seen capitalized in the Teddy clown doll.

For the dainty little miss who prefers the dolls in accord with her ranging in price from 25 cents to $30. The latter are attired in the latest Parisian fashions, have real hair and speak.

DR. SPROULE AT BRAMPTON

Grand Master for British North America Defends the "Appeal" for Resistance Against Religious Tyranny

From Any Source—4,404 Lodges Now Enrolled in the World—

Big Day in Ottawa and Galt.

Brampton, July 13.—The greatest crowd that ever visited Brampton took possession of the town yesterday. Every Orange lodge in the County of Peel, fifteen lodges from Dufferin and a number from Wellington and Halton were in evidence. The town was decorated with flags, bunting and arches. The procession was the largest ever, fifteen hundred being in line. They marched to the park for the speeches. Richard Blain, M.P., presided. The platform was filled with prominent men of the county and short addresses were delivered by Revs. Peter Campbell of Maple; J. R. Bell, Laurel; Charles Langford, Alton; and Wm. Walsh of Brampton, grand chaplain of British North America; and Messrs. W. A. McCulla, R. Blain, M.P., Samuel Charters, M.P.P., W. S. Murphy, S. A. Egan and others.

The chief speaker was Dr. Sproule, grand sovereign, who was received with a hearty outburst of cheering. The Orange order, he said, consisted of 4,404 lodges scattered throughout the world, whose principles of liberty and freedom were courageously taught and maintained. Of these lodges, which contained half a million members, there are 57 in New Zealand, 247 in Australia, 289 in the United States, 220 in Scotland, 300 in England, 1,594 in British North America, and 1,650 in Ireland.

"I am here to-day to ask you to hand down these great principles to posterity, as they were bequeathed to you unsullied in their integrity and strength," said the doctor. "They were bought with blood, with pain and suffering, and it is the duty of every brother of the order to uphold them, not only where the task is easy, but where they must be fought for with self-sacrifice and loss.

"The great Roman Catholic Church is fighting for power, is fighting to gain supremacy in our great Dominion. Driven from other great powers because of her tyrannical assumption of authority, she is endeavoring to make good her standing in Canada, and while every liberty to worship is given her, as loyal Canadians we must maintain our rights and be subject to no authority but that of Christ and of the state."

Man Hurt; Barred at Line.

Buffalo, July 13.—Sunday evening Frank Scopic of Sherkston, Ont., a town about five miles back of Crystal Beach, was tossing stones with other young men of the village and was struck on the head. Dr. George B. Snyder of Ridgeway saw that the man had a severe fracture of the skull and telephoned the Sisters Hospital to have an ambulance meet the steamer Americana of the Crystal Beach line when she docked in Buffalo at 11.15.

When the boat reached the foot of Main street the ambulance was waiting. So was Inspector Sparkling, an immigration officer, who demanded the name and residence of the unconscious man on the stretcher. Dr. Snyder explained that the wounded man had a fractured skull and that an operation before morning was necessary to save his life. Inspector Sparkling protested violently against admitting a disabled alien under any pretext.

Later Chief Inspector Buchanan allowed Scopic to be landed on an understanding from the surgeons that he would not become a public charge. Scopic is 25 years old, with a wife and two children.

Suffragettes Go to Jail.

London, July 13.—Fifteen of the suffragettes who in the course of the raid on the House of Commons, June 29 indulged in the breaking of windows with stones hidden in brown paper parcels, went to prison for a month yesterday rather than pay the fines inflicted by Sir Albert De Rutzen, the Bow street magistrate.

Sir Alfred commented severely upon the lamentable spectacle of respectable women in the dock on charges usually associated with juvenile hoodlums.

The four suffragettes who last Saturday presented a petition to Premier Asquith, after which they were arrested for disorderly conduct, were sentenced to three weeks' imprisonment.

The City Council is considering the advisability of putting a tax on laundries, as provided for by statute. Chatham has over 50 Chinese laundrymen, most of whom are wealthy.

$1 a Cake Could Buy No Better Soap

If you were to offer us $1 for a single cake of soap, we could make no better than our Infants' Delight.

For we have put our very best into this cake. We go to the gardens of France for pure vegetable oil. There we pay often double what we might pay. We bring cocoanut oil more than 12,000 miles from the isle of Ceylon. Then we mix these oils and boil them doubly long.

After this we send them through our own special milling process—one that we have perfected only in our 43 years of experience.

From here they fall like flakes of snow into huge bins and are then crushed under a weight of 30 tons to press out the moisture.

Then they pass through granite rollers and come out in miles of silky ribbons, after which they are dried eight times. The result is the most perfect and delightful soap.

It is so pure and clean that it leaves the skin fair as an infant's. So we call this soap Infants' Delight.

Order one cake today and see for yourself how different it is. Note the rich, creamy lather and see how it leaves the skin as soft as velvet and as smooth as silk.

Note the dainty perfume—it comes from Bulgaria and costs us $100 a pound. But it requires 3,000 pounds of rose leaves to make a single ounce of this Otto of Roses. The fragrance is simply exquisite. Please try it and see.

"FALSE RISE" BALL NEW FOOLER IN ADDIE JOSS' REPERTOIRE

Addie Joss, the Cleveland twirling star, has batters guessing with his "false rise" ball. The "false rise" is not new. It was a favourite with Radbourne and at various times since that star's day pitchers having great speed hav hed the "false rise" in their repertoire.

The "false rise" is delivered as a straight ball, thrown overhand and released when the hand is at the crown of the arc described in delivery. The ball is thrown with a sharp backward spin, caused by whipping the fingers downward as the ball leaves the hand.

For 55 feet the ball shoots down an inclined plane, headed for the batters' knees. But the descent ceases about eight feet in front of the plate and the ball travels to the catcher horizontally. In other words, the ball "breaks" from the downward to the horizontal.

The scientific explanation of this delivery is that the vertical spin given the ball at delivery produces air friction, and as the ball travels this friction packs the atmosphere beneath the revolving ball, until following the line of least resistance, the ball loses its initial impulse and travels, not through the cushion it has formed, but over t.

When mxed with his curve, fast ball, fadeaway and slow one, the "false rise" gives Joss a box of tricks unequalled by any other man in the business. And when his calculating brain is added, the human weather strip becomes perhaps the most dangerous pitcher in base ball.

SMASHED TWO RECORDS IN ONE DAY

BUD GOODWIN.

Harrisburg, Pa., July 13.—Bud Goodwin of the New York Athletic Club smashed two world's records in the annual swimming carnival on the Susquehanna river July 5. He swam the mile in 16 minutes and 48 seconds, and the quarter mile in 4 minutes and 29 seconds.

COLLEGE PLAYER BROKE UP SCHEME OF NIGHT BASEBALL

"I see," said Owney Gaghan, "they are playing night base ball in Cincinnati. It reminds me of the old days when I was running a team in Tuscon." The old man sighed and muttered: "Those were the good days, my boy.

"In Arizona the afternoon fades into darkness slowly. Twilight lasts very long, probably because the atmosphere is so rare.

"Well, one day some base ball shark conceived the idea of playing twilight ball and the fans took to it like a bulldog to the slack of a hobo's breeches.

"They had to have their night base ball and it was up to me to give it to them. I had to argue with the other managers, and it was only after showing them we could get more money, that they would consent.

"The first crowd astonished me. I guess the country for 25 miles was emptied of its population. The mob contained every one from the base hall parson to cow men.

"We did a land office business for three weeks, but it was hard keeping the players in line. They didn't fancy working at night.

"How long did it last? you ask. Just 21 days, and it came to a finish as abrupt as a blue ticket in your envelope Saturday night.

"I had a college pitcher and he was one of the best I ever knew. He didn't have much, but say, e could drive nails 60 feet away with a ball. He played control clear across the board and was always coming on the bit like a colt that's been running in the long grass for a month.

"But he was against night base ball from the start, and I had to watch him close, because I knew he would kick over the traces if he got his head, but the son-of-a-gun put one over in spite of me.

"It was like this. We were playing one evening and along about the seventh, with the score tied, Tombstone's best batter up, a man on second and every fan yelling his head off, the kid handed up a drifter that didn't seem to have life enough to reach the plate. The batter swung like I imagine Jim Jeffries will on Mister Johnson some day. What followed broke up the game.

"When he hit that ball the approaching darkness was put on the blink. With a report like a 45 six gun, the ball exploded, a flash illumined the plate fell backward, and luminating the park. Everybody for a second the thought that some one had thrown a bomb struck me.

"I saw the batter sitting on the ground, his club shattered; the catcher escaped, and when the smoke cleared away and I realized no one was injured, I drew a breath and began to investigate.

"Try as I would, I didn't get any satisfaction. No one knew what happened. Of course, we couldn't finish the game. The life was taken out o fthe players, and the crowd seemed satisfied for once; so we called it off.

"We went on the road the next day, and night games were not popular in the other cities; so we didn't play any more in the twilight that fall.

"It wasn't until I returned to Tucson and began frisking about the club house that I learned the truth. While prowling through the kid pitcher's locker I found a small package labeled 'dangerous,' which I opened, and inside found another wrapper labeled 'fulminate of mercury.' I got wise right there.

"Do you know what that locoed kid did? He doped a ball with the stuff by taking off the cover and unwinding the yarn until he could get enough of the explosive inside to make a nice loud bang, without killing anyone when the blowoff came; then he rebound the ball and substituted it during the game, when the chance showed itself.

"He rimmed up the job with the catcher, who ducked when the ball came up to him. Of course, the batter wasn't in on it, and I don't suppose to this day he knows what he hit. There was good money in twilight baseball, all right, but I didn't want to spend money on insurance policies for my players to protect them against some other fellow with a busy think tank."

TIPS FOR SHORTSTOP

A good shortstop can pull off many a stunt to help his team win or stave off defeat.

In addition to playing his own territory for batted balls, he can, by fast work, get behind the third baseman and grab a hard-hit ball that gets away from the guardian of the off corner, in time to throw out a runner at first.

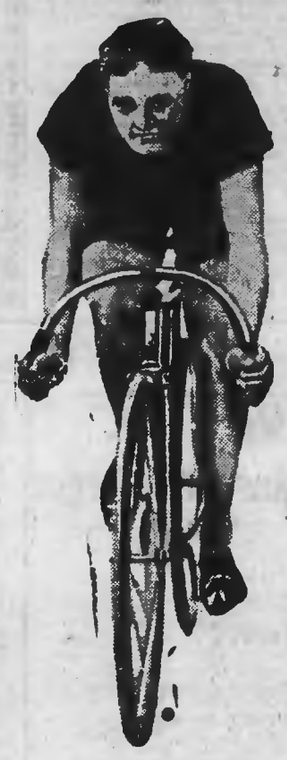
He can sprint around back of the second baseman when the infielder covers the bag, and while his services may not be needed very often, if he is a live wire he will be Johnny-on-the spot to get the ball thrown or hit, that does get away.

The short fielder who backs up every play at second or third is far more valuable than the man who is content to play safe, and get only what comes to him. One is team playing, the other isn't.

NO ARRANGEMENTS MADE SATURDAY GAMES

It has not yet been definitely decided as to just what games will be in the senior City League on Saturday, but the usual doubleheader will be played. The rain on Saturday having necessitated a postponement there is a little disagreement among the teams as to what should be done. Some of the teams wish to have the postponed games left over until the end of the season, while the others would like to have the games scheduled for last Saturday played this week. The League officials will take action in the matter. With fine weather there should be a big crowd on hand at Nicholls Oval as the teams are playing the finest kind of ball just now.

BEATS 'EM ALL AT BIKE GAME



FANK KRAMER.

Never, apparently, has Frank Kramer, the former amateur bike champion, been in better form than now. He is cleaning up the shekels around New York with the same ease he displayed when winning medals and other junk. Kramer's latest feat was a decisive defeat of Jack Clarke, the Australian, who capitulated in a pursuit race at the end of five miles.

CANADIAN LEAGUE HAS LONGEST TRIPS

Which of the baseball leagues, great and small, in North America, covers the greatest amount of territory? Doubtless the average guesser would immediately nominate the National, the big organization of the continent. He would be wrong. Right here in Canada we have the largest thing of the kind in sofar as territory covered is concerned. It is the Western Canada League, and it has clubs in Winnipeg, Brandon, Regina, Moose Jaw, Medicine Hat, Calgary, Lethbridge, and Edmonton. It is a bigger jump from Winnipeg to Edmonton than from New York to Chicago. The salary lists are not, of course, exactly the same in the two leagues, but the Westerners are giving a mighty good article of ball at that. The travelling expenses, one would think, must be large. But so are the crowds at the games, and moreover, the Westerners are good spenders.—Outdoor Canada.

BASEBALL

An extraordinary condition of affairs exists in the Eastern league of baseball clubs—only one club of the eight has won more games than it has lost. The race is so close that the club in the second place is only three games ahead of the club in the last place. With the season half over no such condition as this ever existed before in any league so far as we know. But the most gratifying fact of all is that the club at the top, the only club that has won more games than it has lost, is the one which represents this city. The Hustlers are indeed well named, and their work so far has been exceedingly gratifying to the lovers of baseball in Rochester. The people here have been accustomed to see the Rochester club trailing along in the rear, and been so humiliated by the poor work of the players, that their enthusiasm now is easily accounted for. The statement, often made and often questioned in the past, that with a winning club Rochester is one of the best baseball cities of its size in the country is now universally admitted.—Rochester Post.

The Steamer Otonabee will run its usual Thursday afternoon trip on July 15, leaving Wolfe St. Wharf at 1.30 and calling at Gore's Landing First-class Orchestra on board. Return Fare 50c. 28-10

Millbrook Baseball Crazy Everyone Plays The Game

Church League Has Proven a Big Success---Games Are Played in the Evening---Millbrook is to Have a First-Class Bowling Green--Other Interesting Notes.

Millbrook, July 13.—Millbrook has gone baseball crazy. Never in the history of the village was such enthusiasm displayed by the villagers in this class of sport, as during the present season. Old timers who had not been in the game in years have jumped on the diamond again, and youngsters still young enough to attend the kindergarten are playing in the same team as their "daddies." A feature that has done much to arouse the present state of enthusiasm has been the organisation of the Church League, which includes teams from the Presbyterian, Anglican and Methodist churches, and also a team known as the Independents. The games are played in the evenings, on the exhibition grounds, and they are attended by the villagers, young and old, male and female.

The ladies of St. Thomas, Anglican Church, gave a very successful lawn social at the home of Mr. George Fair, Ann street, on Friday night of last week.

Millbrook is to have a first class bowling green. The site chosen is an ideal one, being on King street, just opposite the residence of Mr. J. C. Kells. The ground is being levelled and sodded and will shortly be in first class condition.

The interior of Millbrook's Town Hall is being renovated and otherwise improved.

TRAIN LOAD OF BUFFALO RECEIVED WERE TAKEN THROUGH TO THE WEST

Readers of the Examiner will remember a number of illustrated articles which were given some time ago about the bringing of a large herd of cattle into western Canada. This is now being done and has only been accomplished after much difficulty. The following refers briefly to the first train load of the kings of the prairie that has been received:

The train load of Buffalo passed through Lethbridge recently en route to the reserve at Battle River at eleven o'clock last night. A very brief stop was made at the Junction to allow for a change of engines.

M. Ayotte, who has been placed in charge, sated that the journey has been made without the slightest mishap so far.

The animals are fed at intervals and since loading no trouble in anyway has occurred.

The train consists of fourteen cars carrying one hundred and ninety buffalo. M. Ayotte says that about one hundred and eighty were left behind. This is accounted for by the fact that the men were unable to use the big corral. A stream ran through it and the buffalo would swim down stream and escape. When driven into the small corral the animals would fight and some of the smaller ones were killed so that it was impossible on this account to drive the whole herd into the enclosure. However, the work of rounding up the remainder of the herd will be commenced at once, and it is expected that in the course of six weeks they will have joined those that have preceded them at Battle River.

Thirty men were employed in the round-up. Mr. Peublo's foreman who is accompanying Mr. Ayotte to Wainwright was once a rider on the plains of Alberta. The work as might be expected was dangerous at times. A couple of horses were killed and one of the men nearly lost his life. The difficulty was encountered in transporting the buffalo in crates from the corrals to the railroad. In making this thirty-five mile trip some of the animals broke the crates and escaped.

The Motion To Compel Mr. Burnham To Answer Enlarged

Special to The Examiner (2.45 p.m.)

Toronto, July 13.—A motion to compel Mr. J. H. Burnham, Conservative candidate, West Peterborough, to answer certain questions in his examination for discovery which he refused to do on the sixth inst. in the West Peterborough election case, was heard by Mr. Justice McMahon in his private chambers at Osgoode Hall this morning. Mr. Grayson Smith pressed the motion.

Mr. Ardagh advanced contention that under the rules there could be no compulsion, because there could not be any examination during the long vacation. This point was argued at some length when it was decided to enlarge the motion until July 20th. On that date a motioo is to be heard before Mr. Justice Magee to strike out certain parts of the examination for discovery. The two motions will be heard the same time.

"FALSE RISE" BALL NEW FOOLER IN ADDIE JOSS' REPERTOIRE

Addie Joss, the Cleveland twirling star, has batters guessing with his "false rise" ball. The "false rise" is not new. It was a favourite with Radbourne and at various times since that star's day pitchers having great speed hav hed the "false rise" in their repertoire.

The "false rise" is delivered as a straight ball, thrown overhand and released when the hand is at the crown of the arc described in delivery. The ball is thrown with a sharp backward spin, caused by whipping the fingers downward as the ball leaves the hand.

For 55 feet the ball shoots down an inclined plane, headed for the batters' knees. But the descent ceases about eight feet in front of the plate and the ball travels to the catcher horizontally. In other words, the ball "breaks" from the downward to the horizontal.

The scientific explanation of this delivery is that the vertical spin given the ball at delivery produces air friction, and as the ball travels this friction packs the atmosphere beneath the revolving ball, until following the line of least resistance, the ball loses its initial impulse and travels, not through the cushion it has formed, but over t.

When mxed with his curve, fast ball, fadeaway and slow one, the "false rise" gives Joss a box of tricks unequalled by any other man in the business. And when his calculating brain is added, the human weather strip becomes perhaps the most dangerous pitcher in base ball.

COLLEGE PLAYER BROKE UP SCHEME OF NIGHT BASEBALL

"I see," said Owney Gaghan, "they are playing night base ball in Cincinnati. It reminds me of the old days when I was running a team in Tuscon." The old man sighed and muttered: "Those were the good days, my boy.

"In Arizona the afternoon fades into darkness slowly. Twilight lasts very long, probably because the atmosphere is so rare.

"Well, one day some base ball shark conceived the idea of playing twilight ball and the fans took to it like a bulldog to the slack of a hobo's breeches.

"They had to have their night base ball and it was up to me to give it to them. I had to argue with the other managers, and it was only after showing them we could get more money, that they would consent.

"The first crowd astonished me. I guess the country for 25 miles was emptied of its population. The mob contained every one from the base ball parson to cow men.

"We did a land office business for three weeks, but it was hard keeping the players in line. They didn't fancy working at night.

"How long did it last? you ask. Just 21 days, and it came to a finish as abrupt as a blue ticket in your envelope Saturday night.

"I had a college pitcher and he was one of the best I ever knew. He didn't have much, but say, e could drive nails 60 feet away with a ball. He played control clear across the board and was always coming on the bit like a colt that's been running in the long grass for a month.

"But he was against night base ball from the start, and I had to watch him close, because I knew he would kick over the traces if he got his head, but the son-of-a-gun put one over in spite of me.

"It was like this. We were playing one evening and along about the seventh, with the score tied, Tombatone's best batter up, a man on second and every fan yelling his head off, the kid handed up a drifter that didn't seem to have life enough to reach the plate. The batter swung like I imagine Jim Jeffries will on Mister Johnson some day. What followed broke up the game.

"When he hit that ball the approaching darkness was put on the blink. With a report like a 45 six gun, the ball exploded, a flash illumined the plate fell backward, and luminating the park. Everybody for a second the thought that some one had thrown a bomb struck me.

"I saw the batter sitting on the ground, his club shattered; the catcher escaped, and when the smoke cleared away and I realized no one was injured, I drew a breath and began to investigate.

"Try as I would, I didn't get any satisfaction. No one knew what happened. Of course, we couldn't finish the game. The life was taken out o fthe players, and the crowd seemed satisfied for once; so we called it off.

"We went on the road the next day, and night games were not popular in the other cities; so we didn't play any more in the twilight that fall.

"It wasn't until I returned to Tucson and began frisking about the club house that I learned the truth. While prowling through the kid pitcher's locker I found a small package labeled 'dangerous, which I opened, and inside found another wrapper labeled 'fulminate of mercury.' I got wise right there.

"Do you know what that locoed kid did? He doped a ball with the stuff by taking off the cover and unwinding the yarn until he could get enough of the explosive inside to make a nice loud bang, without killing anyone when the blowoff came; then he rebound the ball and substituted it during the game, when the chance showed itself.

"He rimmed up the job with the catcher, who ducked when the ball came up to him. Of course, the batter wasn't in on it, and I don't suppose to this day he knows what he hit. There was good money in twilight baseball, all right, but I didn't want to spend money on insurance policies for my players to protect them against some other fellow with a busy think tank."

TIPS FOR SHORTSTOP

A good shortstop can pull off many a stunt to help his team win or stave off defeat.

In addition to playing his own territory for batted balls, he can, by fast work, get behind the third baseman and grab a hard-hit ball that gets away from the guardian of the off corner, in time to throw out a runner at first.

He can sprint around back of the second baseman when the infielder covers the bag, and while his services may not be needed very often, if he is a live wire he will be Johnny-on-the spot to get the ball thrown or hit, that does get away.

The short fielder who backs up every play at second or third is far more valuable than the man who is content to play safe, and get only what comes to him. One is team playing, the other isn't.

NO ARRANGEMENTS MADE SATURDAY GAMES

It has not yet been definitely decided as to just what games will be in the senior City League on Saturday, but the usual doubleheader will be played. The rain on Saturday having necessitated a postponement there is a little disagreement among the teams as to what should be done. Some of the teams wish to have the postponed games left over until the end of the season, while the others would like to have the games scheduled for last Saturday played this week. The League officials will take action in the matter. With fine weather there should be a big crowd on hand at Nicholls Oval as the teams are playing the finest kind of ball just now.

BEATS 'EM ALL AT BIKE GAME

FANK KRAMER.

Never, apparently, has Frank Kramer, the former amateur bike champion, been in better form than now. He is cleaning up the shekels around New York with the same ease he displayed when winning medals and other junk. Kramer's latest feat was a decisive defeat of Jack Clarke, the Australian, who capitulated in a pursuit race at the end of five miles.

CANADIAN LEAGUE HAS LONGEST TRIPS

Which of the baseball leagues, great and small, in North America, covers the greatest amount of territory? Doubtless the average guesser would immediately nominate the National, the big organization of the continent. He would be wrong. Right here in Canada we have the largest thing of the kind in sofar as territory covered is concerned. It is the Western Canada League, and it has clubs in Winnipeg, Brandon, Regina, Moose Jaw, Medicine Hat, Calgary, Lethbridge, and Edmonton. It is a bigger jump from Winnipeg to Edmonton than from New York to Chicago. The salary lists are not, of course, exactly the same in the two leagues, but the Westerners are giving a mighty good article of ball at that. The travelling expenses, one would think, must be large. But so are the crowds at the games, and moreover, the Westerners are good spenders.—Outdoor Canada.

BASEBALL

An extraordinary condition of affairs exists in the Eastern league of baseball clubs—only one club of the eight has won more games than it has lost. The race is so close that the club in the second place is only three games ahead of the club in the last place. With the season half over no such condition as this ever existed before in any league so far as we know. But the most gratifying fact of all is that the club at the top, the only club that has won more games than it has lost, is the one which represents this city. The Hustlers are indeed well named, and their work so far has been exceedingly gratifying to the lovers of baseball in Rochester. The people here have been accustomed to see the Rochester club trailing along in the rear, and been so humiliated by the poor work of the players, that their enthusiasm now is easily accounted for. The statement, often made and often questioned in the past, that with a winning club Rochester is one of the best baseball cities of its size in the country is now universally admitted.—Rochester Post.

The Steamer Otonabee will run its usual Thursday afternoon trip on July 15, leaving Wolfe St. Wharf at 1.30 and calling at Gore's Landing First-class Orchestra on board. Return Fare 50c. 2d-10

Millbrook Baseball Crazy Everyone Plays The Game

Church League Has Proven a Big Success—Games Are Played in the Evening—Millbrook is to Have a First-Class Bowling Green—Other Interesting Notes.

Millbrook, July 12.—Millbrook has gone baseball crazy. Never in the history of the village was such enthusiasm displayed by the villagers in this class of sport, as during the present season. Old timers who had not been in the game in years have jumped on the diamond again, and youngsters still young enough to attend the kindergarten are playing in the same team as their "daddies." A feature that has done much to arouse the present state of enthusiasm has been the organization of the Church League, which includes teams from the Presbyterian, Anglican and Methodist churches, and also a team known as the Independents. The games are played in the evenings, on the exhibition grounds, and they are attended by the villagers, young and old, male and female.

The ladies of St. Thomas, Anglican Church, gave a very successful lawn social at the home of Mr. George Fair, Ann street, on Friday night of last week.

Millbrook is to have a first class bowling green. The site chosen is an ideal one, being on King street, just opposite the residence of Mr. J. C. Kells. The ground is being levelled and sodded and will shortly be in first class condition.

The interior of Millbrook's Town Hall is being renovated and otherwise improved.

TRAIN LOAD OF BUFFALO RECEIVED WERE TAKEN THROUGH TO THE WEST

Readers of the Examiner will remember a number of illustrated articles which were given some time ago about the bringing of a large herd of cattle into western Canada. This is now being done and has only been accomplished after much difficulty. The following refers briefly to the first train load of the kings of the prairie that has been received:

The train load of Buffalo passed through Lethbridge recently en route to the reserve at Battle River at eleven o'clock last night. A very brief stop was made at the Junction to allow for a change of engines.

M. Ayotte, who has been placed in charge, sated that the journey has been made without the slightest mishap so far.

The animals are fed at intervals and since loading no trouble in anyway has occurred.

The train consists of fourteen cars carrying one hundred and ninety buffalo. M. Ayotte says that about one hundred and eighty were left behind. This is accounted for by the fact that the men were unable to use the big corral. A stream ran through it and the buffalo would swim down stream and escape. When driven into the small corral the animals would fight and some of the smaller ones were killed so that it was impossible on this account to drive the whole herd into the enclosure. However, the work of rounding up the remainder of the herd will be commenced at once, and it is expected that in the course of six weeks they will have joined those that have preceded them at Battle River.

Thirty men were employed in the round-up. Mr. Peublo's foreman who is accompanying Mr. Ayotte to Wainwright was once a rider on the plains of Alberta. The work as might be expected was dangerous at times. A couple of horses were killed and one of the men nearly lost his life. The difficulty was encountered in transporting the buffalo in crates from the corrals to the railroad. In making this thirty-five mile trip some of the animals broke the crates and escaped.

The Motion To Compel Mr. Burnham To Answer Enlarged

Special to The Examiner (2.46 p.m.)

Toronto, July 13.—A motion to compel Mr. J. H. Burnham, Conservative candidate, West Peterborough, to answer certain questions in his examination for discovery which he refused to do on the sxth inst. in the West Peterborough election case, was heard by Mr. Justice McMahon in his private chambers at Osgoode Hall this morning. Mr. Grayson Smith pressed the motion.

Mr. Ardagh advanced contention that under the rules there could be no compulsion, because there could not be any examination during the long vacation. This point was argued at some length when it was decided to enlarge the motion until July 20th. On that date a motioo is to be heard before Mr. Justice Magee to strike out certain parts of the examination for discovery. The two motions will be heard the same time.

MEN WERE MAIMED

Workmen on National Transcontinental Taking Refuge From Storm Are Taken Unaware by an Engine—Three Are Horribly Mangled—One Will Die—Only One Escaped Without Injury.

Winnipeg, July 14.—A terrible accident, which may cause the death of three men, occurred on the National Transcontinental, just east of Winnipeg, last evening. A thunderstorm broke suddenly where a number of laborers were at work in the yards, and four of them sought shelter under a standing train of freight cars. While they were crouched there the yard engine came along and moved the train. They all made a dash to escape, but only one was so fortunate as to get out uninjured. The other three, Constantine Stengel, a German; Michael Omchiski, a Pole, and James McLeod, were caught under the wheels and all terribly maimed. Stengel had both legs cut off and will probably die; McLeod had the fingers of one hand crushed and a foot cut off, and Omchiski also will lose a foot. McLeod has a sister residing in Port Arthur.

Canadians Murdered by Indians.

Montreal, July 14.—Out in Rudolph, South Dakota, lived a family of the name of Christie, formerly of St. Stephen's, N.B., a husband, his wife and daughter. Christie pursued the business of grain buyer, and had frequent dealings with the Indians. Whether through some haggle over the price or other cause is not known, but an attack was organized on the Christie house and the mother and daughter shot dead. The father had his skull fractured. He was 57 years of age. The bodies left here for New Brunswick last night.

An Auto Funeral.

Montreal, July 14.—For the first time in the history of Montreal a funeral by automobiles took place yesterday morning. The deceased was Jas. Twohey, who, with Charles Batchelder, was killed in the auto races on Friday afternoon. The coffin was borne from the house to St. Patrick's Church, thence to Mount Royal cemetery on an auto. The total number of cars in the cortege was about sixty.

Mayor Denies Interviews, But—

Montreal, July 14.—At the meeting of the City Council the mayor turned down an interview alleged to have been given to them by an afternoon paper adding that he had never given out any such statements. The pressmen swore out affidavits yesterday to the effect that all the interviews which have appeared in the papers in connection with the present deadlock from Mayor Payette are true.

Franco-Canadian Treaty Adopted.

Paris, July 14.—The Chamber of Deputies yesterday adopted almost unanimously the amended Franco-Canadian commercial treaty, with the concurrence of the Senate.

Canada will receive all the minimum tariff rates except on cattle fattened for slaughter, which will pay the general tariff.

The treaty has still to be sanctioned by the Canadian Parliament.

e Raised One Dollar Bill.

Ottawa, July 14.—For raising a $1 bill to the denomination of a five, Duncan J. Cameron, a young man who came in from Avonmore on Monday to attend the Orange celebration, was given a month in jail by Magistrate O'Keefe yesterday. He passed the raised bank note at a livery stable. Only his youth prevented a heavy sentence.

Reports Exaggerated.

Ottawa, July 14.—Careful enquiry made by the Forestry Branch of the Department of the Interior from its officials and from independent lumbermen with regard to the damage reported early in June along the C.N.R. lines in Saskatchewan, show that their reports of the damage were greatly exaggerated.

Suicide on Increase.

Albany, N.Y., July 14.—That the number of self-inflicted deaths is increasing in this state is shown by records in the State Department of Health. There were 1,207 suicides in 1907 and 1,400 last year, an average of 117 a month. The five months of 1909 show a monthly average.

Ice Cream Poison Seventy-Two.

Toledo, Spain, July 14.—Seventy-two guests at a dinner here Monday night were poisoned by the ice cream and yesterday the condition of the majority is described as serious.

BISHOP TRIES TO MAKE PEACE AT GLACE BAY

Glace Bay, July 14.—Reports have been rife that Bishop Cameron (Roman Catholic) was using his influence to end the strike. These were revived yesterday morning when President Ross arrived on a special train and proceeded immediately to the Glebe House in the bishop's automobile. Later, he said:

"His Lordship, Bishop Cameron, did me the honor of calling on me at my house in Sydney, which distinction I appreciated very highly and I have to-day returned his lordship's call.

"The chief topic of conversation was naturally the present labor troubles, and his lardship was imbued with anxiety over the danger and distress which might result among his people at this critical period. I was particularly impressed by the lofty humanity and earnestness of his sentiments and assured him that all danger of possible violence had been removed by the presence of the troops and that furthermore, when the unfortunate strike was over, our managers and officials had been cautioned to take measure to remove all cause of bitterness and recrimination. I further stated that it would be our policy to give every man now absenting himself a chance to get back to work.

"I hesitated before saying anything to the newspapers about these interviews, which were really of a personal and friendly character, but that I informed his lordship that his interest in the present situation had been misrepresented in some quarters, and I think it only right to say that his lordship's sole object is to do what he possibly can as a Christian gentleman and as the honored pastor of a church which embraces a large body of our employes, to prevent harm and distress befalling these people."

A well-defined report was persistently circulated yesterday that more troops, about 150 in number, were to be brought to Glace Bay in order to more efficiently look after the different collieries. The soldiers are not now located at all the mines, owing, it is said, to the unwillingness of the officer in charge to break up the force into small sections. The report yesterday was that the soldiers would be brought from Quebec. The citizens, almost to a man, would resent the bringing of more troops to this already armed camp.

The site of the first Marconi wireless telegraph station, known as Table Head, is now the camping ground of the larger portion of the troops.

President Ross Denies Rumor.

Montreal, July 14.—A rumor was published in Toronto yesterday that the president of the Dominion Coal Co. had been deceived by his officials to the effect that 5,000 men would continue at work, and that Mr. Ross was now endeavoring to settle the strike. A wire having been sent to the president, he replied as follows:

"Glace Bay, July 14.—The story published in Toronto is absolutely false. I have been fully in touch with the situation from the first and am entirely in accord with the action of the company's officials. I have announced that the company will never meet the representatives of the U.M.W.A. This is final."

CONSTITUTIONALIST FORCES HAVE CAPTURED PERSIAN CAPITAL

Revolutionary Troops, By a Ruse, Get Royalists to West Side of Teheran and March Into the City---Are Now Occupying Greater Part of the Capital--Repeat Turkish Episode---Order is Kept.

Teheran, Persia, July 14.—Recent events in Turkey are being repeated in Persia. The Constitutionalist forces, the advance of which on Teheran for a time was not considered serious, are now in possession of the greater part of the city, which they entered yesterday morning without encountering an organized resistance.

While the leaders in the movement concentrated the attention of the Royalists by demonstrations to the west, a strong body of Nationalists and Bakhtiaris made their way unnoticed around to the north, from which point the capture of the capital was not difficult.

The guards at the north gate were disarmed and the invaders marched in, the foreign section leaders taking up their quarters in the old Mejliss building.

This gives the Nationalists command of the city, with the exception of the artillery square and the drill ground adjoining. The Royalists are easily situated to make resistance, and the Cossacks, under command of Russian officers, remain outside the city, entirely cut off from their comrades in the artillery square.

The strictest discipline is being maintained by the Nationalists. The Nationalist leader in a note to the Russian and British legations guarantees security of life and property to foreigners, adding that nothing is demanded from the Shah but a real constitution. Sipahdar already has summoned the members of the Mejliss to witness the opening of Parliament.

The invaders lost only one man while making their entry into the city. The loss to the Royalists is unknown, but cannot be heavy, as the Cossacks were the only defenders to offer resistance. They kept up a desultory fire last night.

There is much ill-feeling against the Russians, and the Nationalists are endeavoring to prevent any incident that might justify a Russian force entering the city.

Drank Carbolic Acid Then Turned On Gas In Kitchen Range, Attempting Suicide

Mrs. Harry Ball Carefully Arranged Details, But Her Attempt Was Frustrated by Acting Bailiff Archie Moore—Dr. McPherson Was Called in Time.

THREE CHILDREN WITH HER

As a startling sequel to her husband's ominous disappearance and continued absence, Mrs. Harry Ball made a determined attempt to destroy herself last night at her home by swallowing a quantity of carbolic acid and turning on the jet of the gas range in the kitchen, after locking herself and three small children in the room.

Last night's Examiner contained a detailed account of Mr. Ball's leaving home on Sunday afternoon ostensibly to get a horse and buggy to take his wife for a drive according to the oldest child's story. A letter was afterwards found in Mr. Ball's room, stating that he intended to take his life. His disappearance from all accounts was as complete as if the ground at the front door had suddenly opened as he left the house and as quickly closed.

Wife Despondent

Yesterday morning Mrs. Ball broke into tears a number of times as she told of her husband going away and of the great worry it was causing her. She appeared almost heart-broken and seemed to consider that he had gone for good. Last night Constable Archie Moore, acting bailiff in the absence of Mr. LaPlante, who was out of the city, took possession of the stock to meet a debt Mr. Ball had owed. It was stated yesterday that this was not a large amount and it is understood to have been about sixty dollars, although his complete indebtedness was about one hundred dollars.

Suspicious Actions

The house is a large one at the northwest corner of Aylmer and McDonell streets and besides the store there were several families occupying the various apartments into which it had been divided.

The store which Mr. Ball had rented was on the corner. Back of the grocery part there was a bedroom and behind that the kitchen. A short hallway connected the several rooms. A little window looked from the bedroom into the store and this Mrs. Ball during the evening completely closed with a cloth. There is a window in the kitchen looking into Aylmer St. Mr. Moore, who was in the store part was suspicious of the actions of the woman and was on the alert for anything that she might attempt.

Put Coin in Meter

Mrs. Ball took the mattress off the bed and dragged it into the kitchen, where she placed it on the floor. The little baby, a boy of about a year, was in the cradle which was also brought out into the kitchen and ranged beside the impromptu bed. The other two children, a boy of three years, and Esther the oldest, a girl of five years, were to sleep on the mattress. The mother put a coin in the gas meter and probably, imagining that she was being watched, she hung a blanket over the Aylmer street window.

Carbolic in Coffee.

Not long afterwards a faint smell of gas leaked out into the store part and it was not long before the County Constable broke into the rear part and found the room heavy with gas. He called the police and Dr. McPherson. A bottle containing carbolic acid —almost empty—was found uncorked. A cup was also conspicuous and suggestive. Coffee grains on the bottom and side showed that it had been recently used. Dr. McPherson arrived in a short time and gave the woman an emetic for the purpose of clearing the stomach of its supposed poisonous contents. The rescue of the woman had been rapid and it is probable that this saved her life.

Mrs. Ball had mixed the carbolic with the coffee and drank it and practically simultaneously turned the gas on in the kitchen range.

After the doctor's first aid had been successful a cab was secured and the woman taken to the Nicholls Hospital. The doors of the house had been all thrown open and the gas was not long in finding its way to the outer air. The three children were taken to the Children's Shelter, arriving there about two o'clock. The police received the call from the store about half past twelve and Officers Meharry and Meagher responded.

Well This Morning

The children are all well at the Shelter and are none the worse for their experience. The mother was almost recovered, and but for a marked paleness shows no effects of her suicidal attempt. A charge was preferred against her this morning for trying to take her life and she was brought to the police station at noon. She spoke in a whisper that could be scarcely heard and appeared languid and weary.

Not the First Attempt

It is stated by those living in the neighbourhood that the turning on of the gas was not the first attempt on the woman's part since her husband went away.

On Monday morning gas leaked through into other apartments and was rather dense particularly in one. The Examiner was told by a young man living in the vicinity of the Ball home that the wife stated yesterday morning that she would do away with herself if her husband did not come very soon. He told her to be cheerful and not to talk in that manner, but she only shook her head. It is felt that but for the presence of Mr. Moore in the store an awful fatality might easily have been the result as the gas could find its way to other parts of the house.

Mrs. Ball appeared before Magistrate Dumble this afternoon. The charge was read: "That she did attempt to commit suicide contrary to the provisions of the criminal code." She did not elect or plead and her case was enlarged for one week.

ONTARIO'S MINERAL WEALTH

We have to thank the initiative of the Ross Government for our ability to boast of the mineral wealth of Ontario. In 1900, what is now the great silver belt of this province was an unknown land. The Government caused the northern country to be explored, in the face of a great deal of ridicule and criticism on the part of the Conservative Opposition of the day. The result justified the government's faith in the resources to be discovered. The chief wealth discovered was the great clay belt. This was considered worth opening up by railway and Ontario's National Railway was built in the face of similar scepticism to that which damned the exploration proposal with faint praise. In the very work of constructing this railway, the silver deposits that make Ontario the greatest silver mining country in the world were discovered. Hence the beginning of a wonderful era of development. The railway is a flourishing provincial affair and its construction is amply justified by the great enterprises it has put in motion, and from which it is deriving an increasing and profitable traffic aside from the great mining and general industrial and commercial activities it makes possible.

It is only some half a dozen years since silver was first discovered at Cobalt, and it is estimated that by the close of the present year the output of the district will aggregate in value upwards of $34,000,000. Up to the end of March last the yield of silver amounted to 43,000,000 ounces, and this, with the accompanying Cobalt nickel and arsenic, means a revenue in the neighbourhood of $24,000,000. Last year's silver production was 19,000,000 ounces, worth to the mine-owners over $9,000,000, while the output for the first three months of the present year was 5,600,000 ounces, valued at $2,700,000. The total yield for this year will probably reach 25,000,000 ounces, worth about $13,000,000. The royalties from these mines, amounting in many cases to twenty-five per cent. of the gross output, mean a considerable fattening of the provincial revenue which might be greatly increased, if the Gillies Limit under government control were intelligently exploited and not allowed to remain idle and unproductive.

In the adjacent territory known as the Gowganda, South Lorrain and Elk Lake areas, rich silver deposits are believed to exist. The first discoveries in the Gowganda district were made a little less than a year ago, and the rich surface showings have attracted many prospectors thither. Government surveyors were put to work there last year, but thus far nothing official regarding the actual mineral discoveries has been given out. The surveyors, however, declare that present knowledge of the Gowganda area indicates it to be highly mineralized, in so far, at least, as the number of veins and surface showings are concerned. The area, the character of the mineral association and the richness of the surface showings are comparable with those of Cobalt. There is a general similarity in the geological conditions and local differences, but the former is more pronounced than are the latter and lead to the hope that exploitations will reveal similar underground conditions.

The mineral discoveries, together with the great forest and agricultural wealth of Northern Ontario, certainly justify the efforts of the late Liberal Government to open up that portion of the province to development.

PUBLIC ABATTOIRS.

The Government cannot be too highly commended for providing for the careful inspection of meat intended to be cured and shipped abroad. But the question at once suggests itself, why means are not provided for protecting the people of this country in the matter of meat supply. While every animal slaughtered in a packing establishment is subjected to rigid inspection to insure that no diseased meat is cured and shipped abroad, in this country the fresh meat supply is, as a rule, slaughtered without any efficient or thorough official inspection. It is not to be held that butchers knowingly offer for sale meat from infected or diseased animals; but it is to be admitted that that they have not the veterinary knowledge and training that would permit them to detect diseased conditions as readily as would be done under inspection by trained and competent officials.

According to Dr. Rutherford, chief government inspector, conditions have been so bad that if the public realised the true state of affairs they would have insisted upon speedy alterations some time ago. He thinks the time has now arrived when a campaign of education should be carried on with a view of effecting a drastic improvement. With that object in view he advocates public slaughter-houses and an ordinance forbidding the slaughter of any animals in a private building. Progress in Old Ontario has been so marked of late that this step forward might well be taken in our cities and later on extended to the smaller places. We are told that all meat intended for foreign consumption has to undergo a rigid scrutiny, with the result that the best is sent abroad and the worst left for Canadians to consume at home.

This can by no means prove satisfactory to our own people and a change is only a question of time and expediency. In the big cities of Canada public abattoirs are now matter of necessity and considerations of public health demand them. Economic considerations are strongly in their favour. In all such centres the bye-products can be made profitable and the public gain prove considerable both by way of better meat and at a more economical price. The weakness of applying legislation as suggested to large centres is that much is brought in from outside. This weakness will cure itself as the movement spreads and as its beneficent results are realized. In the end the producers will gain as well as the consufers and civilization will mark another stage of development. In days that are past it was necessary that every producer should be more or less of a butcher but in our advances this trade, like all others, becomes specialized and advantages are gained therefrom. The safeguarding of the public health is of supreme importance and any steps necessary for carrying out such a work should be assured of public support.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Canada's imports of tobacco from the U. S. in the year ending March 31 amounted to 13,482,182 pounds. In 1907 the amount was 16,516,456. The total value of the tobacco imports from the U. S. of the year ending March 31, 1909, was $1,941,010.

Toronto boasts of having the largest winding clock on the continent and the biggest big Ben. It could also boast of having the bugigest city water in Canada and the most will-not-downeast viaduct and street railway problem. But yet Toronto is a great city, a beautiful city, an enterprising city, a worthy capital of the best province of Confederation.

The people of Prince Albert in the Northwest are greatly excited over the discovery of free milling gold-bearing quarts assaying $30,000 a ton. Whether or not the claims made for the richness of the ore are justified, the fact remains that the west has its greatest gold mine in its fertile soil—one that will not "pinch out" nor admit of disappointing exploitation by the ingenious and not always trusty company promoter.

There is more hope for humanity, says the Canadian Courier, in one simple-minded man and wife with their little family about them than in all the riotous suffragettes and shrill-voiced women cursing men with swollen throats who could be got together at a dozen councils or conventions. Of course there are bad men, cruel men, brutal men, selfish men, just as there are bad women, heartless women, frivolous women, mercenary women. But because a person happens to get tied up to one of these exceptions to the good general rule for his or her life partner, that is no reason why they should blaspheme against love and trust and decry a whole sex.

The Winnipeg Telegram, discussing the recent remark in Winnipeg of Hon. Chas. Murphy, Secretary of State, that "A man in my position must know the country" takes the opportunity to preach the lesson that this principle should apply to more than Cabinet Ministers. "No matter what a man's education or experience may have been he could not begin to discharge the duties of a Cabinet Minister without greater knowledge of the country than he possessed when he entered office. Nor could he use his departmental sources of information as a substitute for knowledge acquired by actual travel."

SAWING OFF

(London Advertiser.)

The announcement a short time ago that most of the election protests had been dropped has drawn from some of our contemporaries editorials on the impropriety of the "saw-off" process. The general agents of the two political parties get together, and balance one protest against another. The Conservative again agrees to drop the protest again Mr. Smith, and the Liberal agent drops the one against Mr. Jones, so the cases are allowed to go by default—to the great comfort of Messrs. Smith and Jones and their friends.

Now, the theory on which this transaction is based is all right. Under pressure of the annoyance felt after a campaign is over, the defeated party feels sure that the opponent's success was aided by improper methods—there must have been bribery or corruption of some sort. All kinds of stories are floating around, and some of them must be true. So a protest is promptly entered. But the protestants generally want help from the leaders of the party, both in money and advice. They are fighting for the party, and they think the party should supply the sinews of war. Thus the protest gets into the hands of the general agents of the parties. They have no local prejudices, and they can judge whether it is advisable to proceed any further.

Bpt, then, practice is not always in harmony with theory. The agents may be satisfied that there is good ground for a protest in the cases of Messrs. Jones and Smith; but if the Conservative agent will drop the protest against the Liberal member, the Liberal agent will leave the Conservative alone. If thot occurs, it is the "saw-ing-off" process, and there need be no doubt of its impropriety. It is a mutual condoning of offences, and those who do it are as bad as the original offenders — in fact, much worse. No excuse can be offered for it, and we never heard of a leading man of either party uphold it.

But can it be proven that this is done? Local politicians, whose protest has been turned down by such an arrangement, may declare they are quite sure that if the case had gone to trial they would have won. The legal agent of the party at headquarters says the evidence was not enough to secure conviction. Which is right? We can only say for certain that it is the outcry of the dissatisfied local politician that has given ground for the charge as to this dishonest practice, which may not, after all, be as prevalent as some people think.

But, it may be admitted, that in the interest of purity in election campaigns, it were better if this whole matter could be taken out of the hands of political agents, who, whether they do wrong or not, are certainly exposed to the temptation of wrong-doing. It should not be assumed, however, that the remedy is so very simply, or that it will always be effective. It means the appointment of officials with special duties; it means new legal machinery; it means that the very people who can best ferret out the evidence will be relieved of their duty by constables who may or may not be very enthusiastic for the prosecution. One advantage it would have, from the defeated candidate's point of view—that is, the entire cost of an election protest and trial would have to be borne by the public. We think, however, the experiment might be worth trying. If it can improve political morals, it will be worth all it costs.

THERE IS PROFIT IN HOGS

(Weekly Sun-)

There is one clause in the letter of Alex. McNeill, dealing with the present situation in regard to hog raising, to which The Sun must take exception. This is the statement that hogs do not pay as well as other things. The Sun believes there is no branch of farming, with the possible exception of dairying, that has given better returns to those who have followed it intelligently and persistently than has hog raising. The business certainly has not paid those who have rushed into it just as prices were on the eve of decline and have gone out again as the market was about to revive. Neither have the best results been obtained by those who have depended wholly on high-priced grain for feed. On the other hand where hogs have been kept right along, and merely in sufficient numbers to turn to best account the by-products of the dairy, where clover or alfalfa has been used as part of the ration, and where grain has been fed as it came from the machine, there has ben a profit and a good profit.

This statement is borne out by the experiences of practical farmers which have been given in The Sun from time to time. It is borne out again by the statement of W. G. Rennie on page five of this week's issue. It is sustained, to, by the experiments carried out by eight farmers under the leadership of Professor Day in the year 1906. The results of these experiments showed that on the average it cost these eight farmers a little less than $4.50 to make 100 lbs. of pork with grain valued at $23 per ton. Even at the present relative price of grain and hogs this shows an excellent margin.

So far as co-operation is concerned it is to be feared, after the experience of some years ago, it will be some time before Ontario farmers can be induced to undertake the operation of a packing house on the co-operative system. What there is reason to hope for is that packers and farmers may come together, the latter agreeing to furnish a steady supply of hogs, direct to factory owners, without the intervention of middlemen. Such a scheme could not be carried through without an organization on the part of farmers similar to that which prevails in a smaller way in the case of cheese factories and creameries. The mere existence of such organization would be to considerable extent a guarantee of fair treatment by the packers, as the latter would not risk taking a course in regard to prices that they could not justify to the organised body on which they would be dependent for their raw material.

A MOST REMARKABLE CASE

My face was paralyzed, I could not speak; five doctors failed to help me and I was in despair when hearing of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I used this wonderful restorative treatment and became well and strong in every way. I would not go back to my former condition for all the gold in the country," writes Mr. Wm. J. Brennan, Western Hill, St. Catharines, Ont.

Prosperity And Bright Prospects

Commissioner of Immigration Finds Rosy Conditions on Trip Through West—Thousands of Homesteaders Can Yet Be Received.

MUCH RAILWAY BUILDING

J. Bruce Walker, Commissioner of Immigration, being asked in Winnipeg recently with reference to the special information which he had regarding the conditions prevailing in the prairie provinces and the progress being made by the immigrants who have recently arrived, said:

"Having just returned from an extended trip over the Canadian Northern railway, the Regina and Moose Jaw districts, the Qu'Appelle valley, the Saskatoon, Rosthern and Battleford districts, the Vermilion valley, Edmonton and Calgary and the main line east from that point to Winnipeg I may say, in the whole province of Manitoba, there is every evidence of an abundant harvest. A generous rainfall at propitious intervals to ensure the best results, has favored the country, and I can safely say that never has such prospects awaited those engaged in the pursuit of agriculture in western Canada.

Fine Crops at Swift Current.

"That portion of Saskatchewan tributary to Swift Current town and extending on either side, for many miles, gives excellent promise of an abundant yield of grain. Hitherto for a few years, difficulties have been experienced in these districts through drought, and for two or three consecutive years our department has been assisting the settlers with seed grain and otherwise to ensure their permanent establishment.

Much Railway Building.

"There is a great activity in railway construction. The Canadian Northern railway are completing their line from Saskatoon to Calgary and this fall hope to have 150 miles of that road in operation. They are also building from Prince Albert to North Battleford, 50 miles of which will be in operation this fall. They have also commenced construction from North Battleford, northwesterly to Athabaska Landing, a tributary port, or rather the gateway to the great Peace River regions. The latter mentioned road, when completed, should open up a vast area of excellent land for colonisation. Through the Turtle River country, north of Saddle lake and Fort Pitt thousands of homesteaders can be settled in these districts on excellent land, north of the Saskatchewan river. This railway company are also biulding a road from aMryfield, southwesterly to Estevan and will complete and operate this road to the coalfields this present year. This road will run north of Portal Junction, and it is the intention of the company, I am infored, to build straight westerly from that point to Lethbridge, giving railway facilities and cheap fuel to the thousands of settlers who have gone south of the Cypress Hills and settled in southern Saskatchewan. It is also rumoured that the Canadian Pacific railway will buildd from Weyburn on the Soo line to Lethbridge.

Prosperous and Contented.

"The various settlements in western Canada pertaining to all nationalities are in a most progressive state and very contented. The prospect of a good crop and a high price for all their production is awakening in them a greater interest to develop more of their holdings, larger areas are being brought under cultivation this year than in any former years, and confidence is thoroughly established in the minds of all our people as to the wonderful possibilities and productiveness of our country. Universally speaking, the crop is excellent, every section of the country specially favored, our people are contented and hopeful providence has scattered plenty o'er a smiling land and you can read its history in a nation's eyes."

DRILLING FOR WATER AT CHEMONG PARK

Machinery Brought in by Mr. Wolfe to Bore Through Rock.

A heavy load of drilling machinery was taken to Chemong Park yesterday by the Peterborough Fuel and Cartage Co. after having unloaded it in the city. It consisted of a modern drilling outfit to be used at the park at the cottage of Mr. Wolfe, who is trying to drive a well. The first attempts made some time ago were unsuccessful. The workmen drove down about 400 feet when they struck rock and were unable to proceed. The large drill is expected to solve the problem and the work will be completed as soon as possible.

RASPBERRIES HIGH FOR FIRST ARRIVALS

Received Yesterday and May be Had at 16 Cents a Box.

The first raspberries of the season were received yesterday and may be had at the price of two for twenty-five cents. A grocer told the Examiner that a large crop was announced and a fairer price might be expected in a few days. Sixteen cents a box had to be charged and it was intimated that the sales would be small unless the grocers could arrange to offer more enticing prices than six boxes for a dollar. "It should be 12 boxes for a dollar anyway" and in all probability it will be down to that price in a short time.

SICK SKINS IN SUMMER

Summer is the hardest time for the human skin. Its delicate tiny pores, if worked under the best conditions, would have a rough time because of the heat. How when they have to work when impaired or damaged by sunburn and heat spots? No wonder one has rough patches, freckles, etc.

Zam-Buk heals sick skins. When a patch of skin on face, neck, or arms is blistered by the sun, apply Zam-Buk at once. It will cool and soothe beautifully, and new skin will be quickly formed. When you are foot-sore, or have some chafed places, Zam-Buk will give you ease. When the mosquitoes raise lumps on you, Zam-Buk will stop that terrible itching and smarting. Keep Zam-Buk handy, use it freely, and this will be the happiest summer you have ever spent, viewed from the skin health standpoint. All druggists and stores.

CANADIAN CHEESE IS THE FAVOURITE

Trade Commissioner at Manchester Reports That it Obtains the Highest Price.

P. B. Macnamara, Canada's Trade Commissioner at Manchester, in his last report to the Trade and Commerce Department, states that "there is a steady demand for Canadian cheese, though a feeling prevails that prices will be lower owing to the quantity of Cheshire coming forward. New Canadian cheese is arriving, and the quality is up to the standard, the weight on the boxes is marked properly, and no complaints are made as to the packages."

Continuing further Mr. McNamara reports that there is an increasing demand for Canadian eggs, but the enquiries do not seem to be prolific of results but that the hope is entertained that business may result.

HEAVY COLDS

During the census year in United States there were nearly seventy-seven thousand deaths due to pneumonia, and although consumption leads this by 62,000, pneumonia is responsible for more deaths than diphtheria, scarlet fever, smallpox, and cancer combined. The trouble is that people are too careless about colds—let them run on—grow bigger every day—finally old pneumonia steps in.

The very best thing to keep handy in every household is Nerviline, which you can depend on for curing colds. It affords certain relief and a quick cure. It has more potency, greater penetrating and curative power than any other liniment.

Nerviline
Not Only Prevents, It Quickly Cures

When a cold is starting, give the chest and throat a vigorous hand rubbing with Nerviline, gargle the throat with Nerviline, and take a good stiff dose in hot water, you'll be surprised how fast the cold will disappear. Of course the chest should be protected by a Nerviline Porous Plaster, which will absorb all congestion and inflammation. You won't need to fear pneumonia, Grippe, Bronchitis, or cold of any kind if you keep Nerviline handy.

THIS GIRL DARES NOT BREATHE HER BREACH OF PROMISE CHARGES

MISS JOSEPHINE FLYNN.
Prettiest Woman in the Courts.

Boston, July 14.—Miss Josephine Flynn is the prettiest woman in the courts to-day, lawyers and courts officials say. She is waging a determined fight to get her charges against W. T. Sullivan of $50,000 damages into the newspapers.

She wants the money from Sullivan, who is wealthy, and charges him with refusing to keep his promise to marry her.

What is in her remarkable petition that judges will not allow her to publish it?

Boston is anxious to know, yet cannot until the trial of the suit, because Judge Bolle, sitting in motion equity session of the superior court, enjoined Miss Flynn from saying a word about her charges until the suit comes to trial. However the judge refused to enjoin the newspapers against printing the story and enterprising reporters are hard at work.

Sullivan says he will deny all her charges of faithlessness.

We recommend Ferrovim, the invigorating tonic, to elderly people, whose strength is beginning to wane, and who suffer frequently from attacks or sudden exhaustion, chilliness, weak heart action, etc. Ferrovim contains fresh lean beef, Citrate of Iron, and pure old Spanish Cherry Wine. $1.00 per bottle at druggists.

Cheese At An Easier Price At Regular Meeting Of Board

Smaller Number of Cheese Boarded To-day Than at Corresponding Meeting a Year Ago—Entire Board Sold Out at Same Price.

4036 CHEESE BOARDED

July 8th, 1908—4,874 boxes.
Highest price, 11 9-16 cents.
July 14th, 1909.—4,036 boxes.
Highest Price—11 6-16 cents.

Four thousand and thirty-six boxes of cheese were sold on the local board this morning at 11⅝ cents. The opening offering was 11 cents, but it soon went up to one quarter and then to three eighths, by Mr. Weir, who secured the first choice. Several attempts were made to bring it down to 11 5-16, but they were unsuccessful, and the entire board was disposed of at the same price. Mr. Coughlin presided, and stated that he considered the sale a good one, as the price compared most favourably with those which were being reported from different parts of the province. The number of cheese boarded was also a good showing.

The Bidding.

Mr. Fitzgerald opened the bidding at eleven cents. Mr. Watkins raised this ⅛c. and Mr. Gillespie made it 11 5-16, but Mr. Weir offered 11⅜, and called the following: Central Smith, Selwyn and Lang.

Mr. Fitzgerald had next choice at 11⅜, and secured Warminster, Warsaw, East Emily, Fleetwood.

Mr. W. H. Cook had the next choice at the same price—11⅜c. His selections were Shamrock, Ormonde, Villiers, Westwood.

Mr. Gillespie followed Mr. Cook at 11⅜c., and obtained Bensfort, Keene, Trewern, Shearer, Maple Leaf, Fraserville.

Mr. W. S. Cook had his share of the cheese at the same price, 11⅜c. He called Oakdale, Killarney, Indian River, Norwood, Daisy D., Lakefield, Pine Grove, Young's Point, North Dummer.

Several bids of 11 5-16 were lost, Mr. Weir offering 11⅜ for the balance of the board.

The last factories called were King Edward, Cedardale, Myrtle, Cavanville.

Stony Lake was taken by Mr. Gillespie.

Moved by Mr. Hawthorne and Mr. Mann that an adjournment be called for three weeks.—Carried.

The Ottawa Fair This Year Will Be Finest In Its History

This year's fair of the Central Canada Exhibition Association to be held in Ottawa from September 10th to 18th will eclipse all predecessors in the extent and magnificence of its exhibits, the improvements effected and the attractions and prize lists provided. Immediately after the conclusion of last year's exhibition the directors started in to prepare for the coming one and their labours are now well advanced. People from this district who go to the fair in September will notice many noteworthy improvements and changes all of them calculated to make this great annual institution more interesting and attractive than ever.

Special mention should be made of the new fireproof grandstand admitted to be one of the finest on the continent. It replaces the old stand burned down two years ago and is a structure providing not only vast accommodation but serving also as one of the most picturesque features of the grounds. The stand is 500 feet long, built of solid steel and concrete and has seating capacity for twelve thousand people. Underneath it are located numerous dining halls and refreshment booths and also a fire station with equipment for the protection of that section of the city. The cost is to be $80,000 and the work now being rushed will be completed in good time for the fair.

In the fair generally there will be all the old features but they will introduce many new elements. All calculated to stimulate the competition of exhibitors and the interest of the public. In the horse and cattle department, the poultry show, swine department, in the horticultural hall and in fact all over the fair improvements will be noticed while the big cash and special prizes, the new grand stand, the night spectacular, racing and special attractions will, with the wealth of exhibits make the exhibition bigger, better and busier than ever. It is hoped that people from this locality will patronize the fair in great numbers. They will be well repaid for their visit in the entertainment and instructive features which will be provided.

Machinery Arrives In City To Be Used In Drilling For Gas

A car load of machinery to be used in drilling for gas or oil has arrived in the city and it will be but a matter of a few days or a week before the actual boring operations are commenced. The outfit is the property of Jas. Peat and Sons, of Petrolia. They are engaged under contract by Mr. C. E. Dettman, of Waynesburg, Pa., and Mr. Robt Leary is also interested in the work. One dollar and a half per foot for 2,500 feet is the price received by Peat and Sons. Beyond that distance they will receive $25 a day. The first boring will be done on the old Kincaid farm in North Monaghan. The work is entirely of an experimental or test nature, but those behind the scheme are hopeful of striking gas or oil. Should the first property not prove fruitful, attempts will be made in other parts of the land of which a lease has been secured.

Delicious Preserves

No housekeeper need again apologize for "others" goods, when guests arrive unexpectedly.

It is so easy to make appetizing, wholesome and less expensive preserves with ST. LAWRENCE GRANULATED SUGAR, that every housekeeper is putting up her own stock this Summer for next Winter.

Their reward will come when they delight their friends and guests with preserves of their own make. And what just pride they can take as these delicious home-made preserves are praised!

The children, too, will enjoy the pure, luscious fruit as it is preserved by ST. LAWRENCE SUGAR.

ST. LAWRENCE GRANULATED SUGAR is made from PURE CANE sugar, and contains more saccharine substance, than sugar made from other natural products.

In preserving, a smaller quantity of ST. LAWRENCE GRANULATED is required. It is therefore more economical for the thrifty housekeeper.

It is sold in bulk in smaller quantities at your grocer's, but we recommend the 20-pound cotton sacks, put up at the refinery specially for the home. This quantity is convenient for preserving time, and besides, you can be sure of the genuine brand, by buying it in these original packages.

Ask your grocer to supply you with ST. LAWRENCE GRANULATED in these 20-pound sacks, and get clean sugar and strictly full weight.

WORLD'S PRETTIEST GIRL LIVES IN AFRICA, SAYS GLOBE TROTTER

THE TANGIERS DANCING GIRL BEAUTY AND EDW. WILBREN

In faraway Morocco, that land of dreams and romance, in the city of Tangiers, lives the most beautiful girl in the world. So says Edward Wilbern, 30, wealthy bachelor of Cincinnati, who spends most of his time globe-trotting, and thinks because of his vast experience he is competent to judge of woman's beauty.

Wilbren says he hopes he will never see her again, although he keeps her picture always where he can see it. He calls the attention of his friends to her charm, and they claim that America, even Cincinnati, has far prettier girls than this Moorish dancer.

"What country has the prettiest women?" a friend asked this man who is ever haunted by the charm of one girl's face.

"Ireland, if you speak of all the women," answers Wilbern; "but here is the most wonderful girl in the world," and he shows again the picture of the girl of Tangiers.

"She's a Moorish dancer," explains Wilbern. "To see the real oriental dance you must go to the orient. It's the poetry of motion. This girl is a poetic romance. She is a brunette—and her eyes!"

Wilbern is so afflicted with wanderlust that his friends never know whether he is at hme or in the Fiji islands or at the north pole.

"When do you expect to take your honeymoon trip?" was asked of him.

"Sometime when I find the right girl, who thinks I'm the right man, I'll take her with me on a trip around the world."

And his friends are sure "the right girl" lives in Tangiers. For what man would dare take another woman to wife, when she knew that he cherished the picture of this dreamy-eyed dancer, the most beautiful girl in the world?

The Judgment In Toronto Case Given In Favour Of Mr. Pappas

Some time ago Mr. M. Pappas advanced the sum of $1,300 to Thomas Vlahos and his partner for the purpose of purchasing a restaurant in Toronto. Subsequent payments reduced this sum to $650, and then Vlahos and his partner gave Mr. Pappas a chattel mortgage for that amount. Vlahos failing to make any more payments as provided in the mortgage Mr. Pappas took proceedings against him to enforce the terms of the mortgage.

Vlahos and his partner then brought action against Mr. Pappas to restrain him from enforcing the mortgage and to have it declared fraudulent and void.

At that time Mr. Pappas got considerable notoriety in the Toronto and local papers, and some people who did not understand the case may have been led to believe that he had been guilty of sharp practice.

The action was tried before Judge Winchester in the York County Court and judgment has just been delivered by which Mr. Pappas' contention was established, and he was given judgment for $502.30.

This judgment of the court completely vindicates Mr. Pappas' action.

The firm of Douglas and Higgins appeared for the plaintiffs, and Messrs. O'Connell and Gordon for the defendant, Mr. Pappas.

Discussion Of Plans Of The Proposed Isolation Hospital

Dr. A. W. McPherson, M.H.O., met the members of the Property Committee last night to consider the plans of an isolation hospital. Alderman Bradburn was in the chair and there were present Mayor Rush, Aldermen Morgan and Duncan. Dr. McPherson strongly approved of a brick structure in preference to a wooden one. Prepared plans were looked over and quite a number of suggestions were offered all of which met with the approval of the members of the committee. Dr. McPherson recommended the provision of a sun parlour or what may be termed a sunning room. It could be placed on the ground floor and having many windoys would enable patients to get the benefit of the sun in cold weather, it being sufficiently heated to be comfortable. Dr. McPherson recommended a small operating room pointing out instances in which it would be necessary. His idea was that all the conveniences should be provided. It would diminish the cost of hired help, it was in fact necessary and would mean that the best class of patients would be received. He stated that provision could be made for many of the improvements he suggested and that they need not be completed until actually required. It would, however, be the more economical plan and while at the outset the cost of the hospital would not reach a large figure when it was finally completed it would be a modern isolation hospital.

On motion of Aldermen Duncan and Morgan Dr. McPherson was asked to go over the plans with Mr. Blackwell and that a report be returned within a week.

C. M. B. A. PIC-NIC BEING ARRANGED FOR Society Also Offers to Place a Window in New Catholic Church.

At the regular meeting of Branch No. 30 of the C.M.B.A. last night it was decided to put a memorial window in the new Church of the Sacred Heart. It will be a handsome stained glass window and of a similar nature to the other windows of the church.

Another resolution was regarding the society's picnic which will be held in the near future and in all probability to Hastings. A committee was selected as follows: Messrs. J. J. Lynch, chairman; Jas. Drain, secretary; Jos. Picard, Sr., Jas. O'Brien, Jas. Hickey and Geo. Ball. They are empowered to arrange the details of the outing, having been given power to act. The picnic will be held in the near future and not on any holiday.

A HUNDRED HOT DAYS

They are making a special showing of lightweight tweeds and worsted suitings in the Semi-Ready Stores. The ruling prices are $15 and $18, but there are more expensive fabrics at $20 and upward. These are cool summer suits for the hundred days of hot weather.

LAYMEN'S NATIONAL MISSIONARY CAMPAIGN

The Layman's Movement to Conduct District Meetings Throughout The Dominion.

The Canadian Council of the Laymen's Missionary Movement, which has the direction of the work throughout the Dominion, has just issued a statement as to its policy and plans for the immediate future.

The Policy was adopted and then submitted to the different Denominational Committee and heartily endorsed by them. The Denominational Secretaries each agreed that the best results come to their work through the larger inter-denominational meetings, and will therefore all co-operate in the campaign of the fall and winter. This will include district meetings covering two days each, in every Province of the Dominion, so located that every church may be able to send one or more delegates without great outlay of time or money.

It is expected that invitations will be received from different centres, and the Council will make selections with the best interests of the entire work in mind. The first few meetings will probably be held in Ontario in September, and those in the western Provinces in October and November.

An earnest call to prayer for wisdom in locating and planning these meetings has been issued to co-operating clergy and laymen throughout the Dominion.

There were present Dr. Burnham, Chairman; Messrs. W. J. Johnston, Jas. Murty, Jas. Edgar, Mayor Rush, and Dr. T. P. McNulty.

A letter was read from Mary A. Wilson, asking to be provided with sewer accomodation on Wolfe street.

A letter was read from W. H. Down for sewer accomodation on Wolfe St., east of Aylmer street.

The Ontario Coal Co. wrote complaining of a drain at No. 146 Aylmer street.

The matter was referred to the Medical Health Officer and Sanitary Inspector to examine into and to act as requested.

Jas. Williamson wrote asking to be paid the expenses of his family while quarantined.

The following resolution was passed:

That this local Board of Health of the City of Peterborough recommend the Council of the said city, under Section 668 of the Consolidated Municipal Act, 1903, to construct a sewer on Wolfe street, from Aylmer street to a point east of Aylmer street, for the purpose of draining those localities for sanitary purposes as local improvements.

Ald. H. W. Morgan, L. Gosselin and B. O'Dette were heard and asked that permission be given to construct sewer from houses on Crescent street to the lake.

It was moved that the City Council be instructed to construct a sewer on Romaine street from Lock street to Crescent street, and on Crescent street from Romaine street to Higgart St., as a local improvement.—Carried.

The matter of remuneration for Dr. MacPherson for his work in connection with the recent small pox outbreak was left in the hands of a committee composed of the medical members of the Board, the Mayor and Mr. W. J. Johnston.

THREE BOYS CHARGED WITH THEFT OF GOLD WATCH

Case Was Heard Before Police Magistrate Dumble This Morning—Much Evidence Was Produced.

LONG LIST OF CASES

Then followed Joseph Keegan, Wesley Crouter, and Howard Innis, three youths, appeared before Magistrate Dumble at police court this morning, charged with stealing a gold watch and the sum of $5.00 from Mrs. John Londry, 431 Bethune St., on June 9th. At least that was the way the information read in the first place, but it was discovered afterwards during the evidence that the $5.00 should have read, a glass eye, valued at that amount.

The three pleaded not guilty and elected to be tried summarily. Mr. G. N. Gordon appeared for Keegan, and Mr. F. D. Kerr for Crouter. Mrs. L. Londry was the first witness. She stated that she had gone into her house on the date mentioned and had seen three boys there. She could not identify any of the prisoners as the three she had seen in her house. She recognized the watch and glass eye produced as her property, which she had missed on searching the house after the boys had made their escape.

John Londry, husband of the first witness, told of a conversation he had had with Keegan. The latter had ask if his wife had got back her watch. He had also stated that Wright and Killingbeck were in the house.

There was an amusing "spat" between Mr. Gordon and the witness when it came to the cross-examination stage. The witness seemed to resent the questions and in strident tone sinformed the counsel for the prisoner. "You can stand there and talk until to-morrow night and you can't baffle; I'll stick to it."

"You mean you'll stick to it, whether it is right or not?" asked Mr. Gordon.

"It's the truth and you can't baffle me," replied the witness.

Willaim Foster, of Smith Township, testified that he was passing the Londry residence on the date of the robbery. He was asked to drive alone to see if he could see some boys and he saw two at the corner of Hunter and Bethune streets. One of them pulled something out of hispocket, and the other looking at it said: "That's a good one," whereupon the two had commenced to run. Witness chased them for some distance. He identified Innis as one of the boys.

Two other witnesses were called, who knew nothing of the affair.

P. C. Newhall testified to having seen Wright Killingbeck and the three prisoners in the neighbourhood of the Londry residence just before the robbery, and to conversations he had with Crouter and Innis in regard to the affair. As soon as the alarm had been given he had gone to investigate and had found Crouter, Wright, and Killingbeck on Stewart street. Afterwards he arrested Crouter on King where he stated that he and Wright had stayed outside the house while the others had gone inside. Innis had come into the station on Saturday July 3, and had given himself up.

Considerable more evidence was heard, the prisoners taking the stand in their own defence.

After hearing the testimony Magistrate Dumble enlarged the case until to-morrow morning.

A charge against a young man of stealing a horse was dismissed. The evidence showed that the case was brought about through a misunderstanding and that there had been no intention of theft.

A man charged with assaulting his wife was remanded until 4 o'clock this afternoon, as was another case in which a man was charged with supplying liquor to a man on the black list.

"Black Listed" Man Fined $10 For Being Under Influence

"Have mercy on me this time and I'll never do it again," pleaded Jas. Wilson at police court this morning as he appeared on a charge of being under the influence of liquor while being on the black list. "That's what you said last time," replied the Magistrate as he registered a fine of ten dollars against Wilson, who pleaded guilty to the charge. He was given ten days in which to pay the fine with the alternative of thirty days in gaol.

Wilson had appeared before Magistrate Dumble on a previous occasion on the same charge and was allowed to go, but the Magistrate intimated that there would be no trifling with the case this time.

PIC-NIC WAS FINE OUTING

George Street Methodist Excursion to South Beach Yesterday Was a Great Success.

The annual picnic of the George St. Methodist Church Sunday School yesterday to South Beach, Stony Lake, per steamer Otonabee, was a most enjoyable and successful outing. The weather was all that could be desired and the attendance was large but not enough to uncomfortably crowd the steamer. The sail up the canal and through Lake Katchewanooka to South Beach was greatly enjoyed. The Sunday School orchestra was on board and provided delightful music in generous quantities throughout the day.

At the Beach, which proved itself a splendid place for a picnic, dinner was partaken of after which the following interesting programme of sports was run off.

MILLIONS OF CELLS.

The human body is composed of countless millions of cells. These cells are constantly dying and new ones are being created. Dead cells are removed from the blood by the bowels, kidneys and skin. These great eliminating organs filter this waste matter from the blood, and thus purify the blood.

If there is Constipation, or non-action of the bowels—if the kidneys are strained or weakened—if there is defective skin action—then the dead cells are not removed from the body. The blood thus becomes loaded with impurities, and we suffer for it.

The only way to purify the blood is to cure the skin, bowels and kidneys. When these organs are healthy and doing their work as nature intended them to do it, waste matter is promptly removed and the blood is kept pure and rich. "Fruit-a-tives"—the famous fruit liver tablets—act directly on the skin, the bowels and the kidneys. "Fruit-a-tives" purify the blood because they keep the whole body strong, vigorous and healthy. 50c a box, 6 for $2.50, or trial box 25c. At dealers or from Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

NAVVY IS MURDERED.

Djuro Tortic Is Slain at St. Thomas by Unknown Man.

St. Thomas, July 14.—Djuro Tortic, an Austrian, employed as a navvy by the M.C.R., was murdered at Ions Station during Monday night by some person unknown.

Coroner Ling and Crown Attorney McCrimmon opened an inquest last night. Dr. Crane reported that Tortic had died from a fracture of the skull, caused by a blow from a club.

Other Austrians said that there had been much drinking the night after the pay car arrived. They had heard no fighting. A cousin of the deceased had found $15 in his pocket which he intended to send home to relatives.

A number of the gang cleared out yesterday morning. Some were detained here and a man and woman, who may be able to explain the murder, were arrested at Windsor and will appear before the coroner to-night.

A Farmhand Assaulted Employer.

Smith's Falls, July 14.—George McVeety, who has been in the employ of Jeremiah O'Donoghue, a farmer, six miles from here, was dismissed a few days ago. On Friday he returned and began to berate Mrs. O'Donoghue for his dismissal, seized a stick and struck her repeatedly. He threw her off the verandah just as O'Donoghue, attracted by screaming, came hurriedly from the barn. McVeety grappled him by the throat, threw him down and kicked him several times. Two farm hands hurried to the rescue of their employer.

McVeety ran away. He was brought before Magistrate Sparham yesterday and sentenced to one year in the Central Prison. He will be deported at the expiry of the term.

Prisoner Proven Innocent.

Chatham, July 14.—Robert Hallinan, butcher, had a piece of glass removed from his back yesterday. It had been in his body for twenty-eight years.

On New Year's night Hallinan got mixed up in a fight in the Idlewild Hotel. He was thrown through a window. Afterwards he discovered that he had a wound in his back. He was taken to the office of Dr. Springer who thought it must have been inflicted with a knife. Quigley, the man he was fighting with, was then accused of sticking him in the back with a knife, and was sentenced to six months for his supposed deed.

No glass was found in the wound at the time, and only now has it made its appearance.

A French Archbishop.

Montreal, July 14.—L'Action Sociale, the Quebec clerical organ, does not believe that Rome will give an English-speaking archbishop to succeed His Grace Mgr. Duhamel at Ottawa, and for cause.

"The departure," begins that paper, "of Mgr. Sbarretti for Europe has caused a good deal of comment in certain circles and may connect the event with the succession to the vacancy in the Ottawa Archpiscopal See.

"No one in fact or no one can seriously believe in the possible nomination of anyone else but a French-Canadian priest as archbishop of Ottawa."

Toronto Man Killed.

Laporte, Ind., July 14.—Charles F. Silverside, a detective under orders of Chief Randin of the Chicago office of the Lake Shore Railroad, and whose mother is supposed to live in Toronto, was attacked early yesterday by five tramps and knocked to death after a fierce struggle in a freight train.

His body was found near Otis, where it was thrown by the murderers. Almost immediately the train crew spotted trouble and called a halt.

One hobo is reported captured in the woods near Otis.

A letter found in his pocket was mailed in Toronto and signed mother.

Slashes Kicking Horse.

St. John, N.B., July 14.—After drinking heavily, a York County man started to drive to his home Monday night. On the way he so abused his horse that it began to kick and, getting angry, the driver got out and cut its throat, gashing it in a horrible manner. Yesterday the animal was found dead by the roadside at the end of a bloody trail nearly half a mile long.

A Rothschild Suicides.

Vienna, July 14.—Baron Oster Rothschild, aged 21, youngest son of Albert Rothschild, head of the Austrian branch of the Rothschild house, shot himself Monday night. It is reported that he committed suicide because of an unfortunate love affair. He returned to Vienna two days ago, after eight months spent in travel.

Kidney Suffering IN THE SPRING

Backaches and tired feelings tell of weak kidney action—Prompt relief by using DR. SHAW'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS.

No organs of the body are so susceptible to the quickly changing temperature of spring, as the kidneys. Sudden cold waves mean chilling of the surface of the body, closing of the pores of the skin and over crowding of the kidneys at a time when they are already overworked in an effort to free the system of the accumulated poisons of winter.

The tired draggy feelings you experience and the weakness and pains in the back tell of a poisoned system and defective kidneys.

There is no treatment for kidney disease which will afford you relief so quickly as Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and none which will so certainly cure the most complicated forms of this disease.

There is a reason for this. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills awaken the action of the liver and bowels as well as the kidneys and thereby effect a thorough cleansing and regulating of the whole excretory system.

In this combined action Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are unique. There are no substitutes or imitations which possess this principle.

Mrs. F. O. Bacon, Baldwin's Mills, Que., writes: "I was very sick last spring. The doctors said I must go to the hospital for an operation but I didn't want to. My liver and kidneys did not act and I suffered terribly. I then began using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and nothing else, and am now fully cured and doing my own work for a family of seven."

Good Aeroplane Flight.

Orleans, France, July 14.—M. Bleriot made a successful landing at Chevilly yesterday, having covered twenty-five miles from Etampes in 56 minutes 10 seconds, elapsed time. This includes a stop of eleven minutes near Toury to examine his aeroplane. The aviator came down at the feet of the official timers. His descent was rather brusque, and the propeller of his machine sustained slight damage in the manoeuvre. His average altitude on the trip was 100 feet.

Fatal Freak of Lightning.

Santa Fe, New Mexico, July 14.—During a thunderstorm lightning struck the house of W. R. Rail, and H. N. Rutherford, who with his family was at the Rail home, was killed. Following this, at intervals of one minute, eleven more bolts struck the house, each shocking an occupant, though not fatally. The last stroke set the house on fire, but the flames were extinguished by Mrs. Rail with buckets of water.

Saskatchewan's University.

Montreal, July 14.—David R. Brown and Hugh Vallance will prepare plans for the Saskatchewan University buildings at Saskatoon, of which Dr. Walter Murray of Dalhousie is president. They call for buildings to accommodate in the end 5,000 students. The agricultural building will be built first and then the medical, science, law and other halls. The group will be located on a thousand acres.

Handcuffed to Post; Steals It.

Loudon, July 14.—Cornelius Antone and Thomas King, two full-blood Oneida Indians, were arrested for fighting. Both resisted, and broke away. Antone was recaptured and handcuffed to the tiepost in front of the hotel, and the constable started after King. When he returned with him, he was surprised to find Antone and the tiepost both missing. After sending King to the station in the wagon, he found Antone a long way down the road towards home, dragging the tiepost along and still handcuffed. A man named Whitaker was arrested on a charge of aiding a prisoner to escape, but it was proved he was not the man. The two Indians were also discharged.

Rival to Mexican Marble.

Ottawa, July 14.—It is expected that by the end of this month quarries will be opened up in Aylwin Township, on the Gatineau, from which serpentine marble will be shipped to the United States and Great Britain.

There appears to be great quantities of this marble, which in beauty of formation ought to be a successful rival to the Mexican marble now so extensively used in baths and interior house decorations.

The chips from the works will be shipped to England to be used in the manufacture of brooches, etc. Similar marble is also used in the manufacture of urns.

Crazed Boy Runs Forty Miles.

Calgary, July 14.—On Monday night there arrived from Edmonton a 19-year-old boy named Galloway, being taken to Brandon Asylum. He has an hallucination that he is a Marathon runner. One day he ran from Edmonton to Fort Saskatchewan and back, a distance of forty miles, in four hours, which is something really wonderful. He is paralysed in both legs, and those who saw him after his run says that he did not seem distressed, and was not even breathing heavily. However, he lost weight steadily ever since, and is now little more than a skeleton.

Underwritten by Rothschilds.

London, July 14.—The Canadian Associated Press is informed that Messrs. Rothschild yesterday underwrote the £2,000,000 G.T.P. three per cent. debentures guaranteed by the Dominion Government for issue at 88 1-2 and 1 per cent. for underwriting. The price is considered extraordinarily low in many quarters.

White Plains, N.Y., July 14.—Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, pretty, petulent and school-girlish, and dressed in the blue which she affected so much during the trial of her husband, Harry K. Thaw, for the murder of Stanford White, was before Justice Mills in the Supreme Court here yesterday, subpoenaed by the state in its fight to keep Thaw in the asylum for the criminal insane at Matteawan.

Deputy Attorney-General Clark tried hard to get her to admit that Thaw had threatened her life when she visited him on that occasion at ed to answer.

Doctor Kills Stockman.

Kankakee, Ill., July 14.—J. B. Sayler, vice-president of the First National Bank of Crescent City, Ill., a wealthy retired farmer and stockman, was killed at 11 o'clock Sunday night by Dr. W. B. Miller, a well-known practising physician, on returning home from a trip out of town and finding his physician at his home in company with his wife. After the shooting Dr. Miller went home and retired to bed, where he was arrested. He claims self-defence.

Suffragette Prisoners Unruly.

London, July 14.—The suffragettes sent to Holloway Jail on charges of disorderly conduct while attempting to present a petition to Premier Asquith are following the tactics inaugurated by Miss Dunlop, and, in addition to refusing to eat, they decline persistently to change their street clothes for the prison garb. The rules of silence also are ignored.

There has been so much secrecy, so much take-my-word-for-it, so much misinformation about paint, that many people are buying paint in the dark.

Yet there should not be any mystery about house paint—any buying "in the dark"—if it's honest paint.

You have a right to know what is in the paint you pay for to put on your house.

The dealer has a right to know what is in the paint he sells to his customers.

That is one reason for the very wide demand for "English" Liquid Paint.

They report Bug Death has made an excellent record in each of the past two years. The potatoes on which the Bug Death was applied were more vigorous in growth and greener in appearance throughout each of the seasons than those on which other applications were made.

DO YOU WANT BETTER CROPS?

Of course you do. Well, the way is clear. Use Bug Death and you'll not only have a heavier crop, but larger potatoes of better quality.

Write or call and we'll tell you some more good things of this celebrated Bug Killer and Fertilizer, both in one.

SCIENTIFIC INSIDE BASEBALL HAS KILLED HOME RUN GETTING

I have read some interesting stories recently, upon the decadence of the home run. Since 1901 and 1902 there has been a steady falling off in the 'roundit-he-world drives, until the yearly crop is about one-half that of seven or eight years ago.

"Why should this be?" asks the writers. And echo answers "Why?"

I have often thought along this line, not with the idea of turning my thoughts into a story, but from force of habit, I guess. And the conclusion I have reached is that home runs are disappearing as the natural result of the scientific development of base ball.

Home runs were the forte of the hit-'em-out boys of 10 years ago—the fellows who gripped their waggon tongues at the extreme end, planted their feet far apart and whaled away like a crusader swinging a battleaxe at the head of an infidel.

They existed in the days before the four strike rule and the spit ball, and every man had his little chance to take three healthy swings at the ball, if necessary.

But the pitchers began to study individuals, and to take advantage of every weakness. The foul strike and the spit ball have worked havoc with the long drives, and the increased speed of the fielders and development of inside ball, has helped.

The greatest bar to home runs is the desire of batters to play the modern game of getting runners around the bases. Instead of smashing away in an effort to "kill it," they are now content to kill just far enough to advance a man. The long swing has been replaced by the short shop, the bat being choked to insure accuracy.

These fellows who chop at the ball, sharp and quick, do not get the power into their effort that the men did who took a full arm swing, but they meet the ball solidly and drive it safe more frequently, which counts more in the run making.

The bunt and the hit-and-run have done their share to kill off the home run and modern base ball, which demands that every man shall do his part to help the team and not play for individual glory, has done the rest.

A home run hit is a cheer compeller. It makes the fans sit up and yell to see a man trot around the paths after a mighty slam. It's nice to look at, but it isn't half as effective as a well-placed single which comes at the psychological moment.

SATURDAY'S BALL GAMES

President McWilliams, of the Senior City Baseball League, has decided that the games scheduled for last Saturday shall be played this week, and that the other scheduled games shall be played a Saturday later than intended at first. This ruling means that the T.A.S. and Strathconas will meet in the two-o'clock fixture on Saturday and that the West Ends and Park St. A.C. will play the second game.

BASEBALL

Sporting Editor of The Examiner:

To settle an argument will you answer the following question:

In a game of baseball there is a runner on first. The batter hits a grounder to short stop. The shortstop throws to first putting the batter out and the first baseman throws the ball to second. The second baseman catches the ball, touches the base but does not tag the runner. Is he out?

Yours truly,
"FAN."

No; the base runner is safe. In the play you have described there is no force at second after the batter has been retired at first. Had the ball been thrown to second in the first place, the runner would have been out without being touched.

Sporting Editor of The Examiner:

With two out and a runner on third base the batter hits safely to left field and the runner on third scores. The batter tries to make second on the hit and is thrown out after the other man had crossed the plate. Does the run count?

BALL TOSSER.

Answer—Yes.

City League Notes

The West Ends will be in rather bad shape for Saturday's game, as Manager Jack Oldham is leaving the city and Catcher Dobson will also be away on a vacation trip. However the Gray Shirts will endeavour to put a strong team in the field for their game with the Park St. team.

The diamond at the Oval is in fine shape for the games. The long spell of dry weather has hardened up the turf so that the ball comes along lightning fast. The outfield and infield are as level as a billiard table and some fast fielding should be done.

There will be no charge for admission to the games as the Oval is a public park and an admission fee is out of the question, but a collection will be taken up and the generosity of the fans is appealed to. Financially the season has not been a brilliant success and the teams have been put to considerable expense. Unless the camp followers respond with a liberal collection the managers are liable to be a little short by the end of the season as it costs money to run everything, even ball teams.

The other teams will have a chance to get after the T.A.S. now, as Manager Quinlan, their star box artist, leaves on a holiday trip on Monday next. However, the Abstainers have "Yebbie" Flaherty to step into the vacancy which won't help the opposition very much.

Despite the hot weather the teams are all hard at work practising and they will be in the best of shape for Saturday's games.

The Stratheonas will have no excuse if they are trimmed Saturday. The Oval is the stamping ground upon which they have practised for years, and they should be right at home there. However, the field is so level that it gives all four teams an equal chance.

THE TRIP OF THE SEASON

A special excursion will be run in connection with the opening of the new Church at Gores Landing, on Thursday afternoon, July 15th, per Steamer Otonabee. 57th Band with orchestra will furnish music. Return 50c., which will include dinner at Gore's Landing. This will be one of the most delightful little outings of the season and everbody should take it in. Steamer will leave Wolfe Street Wharf at 1.30 o'clock and will return to Peterboro about 9 o'clock

'ROUND THE STORES

A lady visitor remarked the other day: "What a pity your principal down-town streets are not paved—it's so much nicer out shopping where the stretes are paced." Certainly Peterborough should begin at once to pave George street. Brantford, has a mile and a half of paved roads, and is building more. St. Thomas and Guelph are also doing paving. In Brantford all roads are built under the local improvement plan, whether of permanent pavement or macadam. In Guelph the property owners benefitted pay the full cost of roads, while St. Thomas has the local improvement plan of sixty and forty per cent. A beginning will have to be made some time.

Cressman's "Merry Half Holiday Sale" looks like a winner. At least, the window decorator has done his part. The display of white muslin blouses is very catchy and the "before" and "after" demonstration quite unique. In the centre of the window a washing machine is seen almost enveloped in blouses ready for the tub, and are afterwards shown spotlessly clean and nicely laundered.

The Stocking Store (Elliott's), is carrying an interesting hosiery stock for hot weather wear. Ladies' stockings, children's stockings, short sox for large and small children, Men's sox in cotton, lisle thread and cashmere. Cool corsets is another leader at The Bee Hive. No need to sacrifice a neat figure in hot weather in order to be cool. A look at these summer models will convince. See also the bathing suits.

Peterborough is to have another fur and hat store. The premises formerly ocupied by Stroud's tea store, 368 George street, is now being transformed into a new fur establishment. The furniture and fittings will be of the most modern type and no expense spared to put in the latest improvements available. Mr. Wm. E. Lech expects to open up in business for himself in these premises in about a month.

Ripe cherries and raspberries are now in season. Cherries are selling at a dollar per basket, 10c a box or three boxes for 25c. Raspberries are high yet, 16c per box being asked. White & Gillespie are receiving regular shipments of these fruits and have a ready sale for all they can get.

Summery Suitings are featured at Merrell & Meredith's Clothing Store. Some delightfully cool suits in an excellent line of patterns and fabrics. The two-piece ready-to-wear suits are quite neat and stylish; those wishing them tailored to their own measure and notions can get them that way also.

The merchant has to make up his mind that he will tell the people something about his store every day, or at least every other day, and enough people will be interested in and form a good opinion of his store to make all his advertising profitable. A solicitor said to a dry goods merchant, who was advertising only spasmodically:

"You put an advertisement of 100 lines every day in the Examiner. The Examiner has about 10,000 readers. The majority of these people could trade at your store. Ten out of the 10,000 people will see your advertisement." The merchant looked at him in astonishment. He said: "Repeat that." The solicitor said: 'Ten people out of 10,000 will see your advertisement. Now, you make your advertisements so strong that the ten people who see it will want to buy at your store. It makes no difference whether they come to-morrow, next week, or next month. Every day for 312 days you convince the people that they should trade at your store. At the end of the year, or 312 days, 3,120 people will have seen your advertisements and will believe in your store. You make about $10 on every customer in a year. If only half of the 3,120, or 1,560, buy, you will make at $10, $15,600 per year. Your advertisement every day in the Examiner will cost you $120. You will make out of your contract about $15,480."

Only the best sugar makes the best preserves. Therefore, when you order granulated sugar don't let your grocer send you some ordinary sugar. Your preserves, which you want to be the very best, require the best sugar. The season promises to be a good one for berries and other fruits—just the season to get them of good quality and cheap to preserve. If you select your sugar with care from E. F. Mason & Co. and exercise ordinary skill in preserving, your stock will keep safely over winter and longer.

Your home surroundings cannot be made too cool or too comfriable these hot summer days. If you like to live out doors every hour you can, why not make your porch or cottage more attractive by the addition of some verandah chairs and reed rockers, pretty settees, tables, etc. Those shown by E. B. Clegg & Co., made from good material are quite the newest good out.

For hot weather special, Turnbull's July Sale seems to be a regular mecca. Although every section of this big department store seems to be involved in the big reductions in prices, the dress good and ready-to-wear sections have the largest call. For instance—25c and 35c dress muslins are now 12½c; $1.25 lawn waists for 89c; $4 white linen skirts for $2.98; and $3 black silk undershirts for $1.98, are samples of the offering to thrifty buyers.

PRESBYTERY MEETING AT PORT HOPE

Port Hope, July 13.—The regular quarterly meeting of the Peterborough Presbytery, was held in St. Paul's church here to-day, and the Rev. Jas. Skene, B.A., of Baltimore, was elected moderator for the ensuing six months. The commissioners to the meeting of the General Assembly in Hamilton, gave their reports of attendance and interest in the proceedings. Rev. S. S. Burns, convener of home missions, made a report showing that very satisfactory work is being done by all the students under his charge. The visitation of these missions was left in the hands of the Home Mission Committee.

The Presbytery took official recognition of the fact that the assembly had accepted Rev. Wm. Brocksmshire, M.A., stated supply of Mill street church, Port Hope, into the Presbyterian Church in Canada. Proceedings will now be taken to place him as pastor.

A call from Middleville in Lanark and Renfrew Presbytery was received in favour of Rev. T. W. Currie, M.A., of Warsaw. The call was placed in the hands of Mr. Currie, and he asked to be allowed one month to consider it.

Rev. Mr. Pogue announced that the congregation of Omemee, Lakeville, and Mount Pleasant were preparing a call which would be presented in two weeks.

The meeting was adjourned until Tuesday, July 27, when a special session will be held in St. Paul's church, Peterborough, for the purpose of discussing the future progress of Knox church.

Among those present were Revs. Pogue, Potter and Keith, and Messrs. Robt. Harrison and Wm. Madill, of Peterborough.

The Steamer Monarch will leave at 9 o'clock to-morrow morning for Rice Lake points. Tickets good to return on Steamer Otonabee.

HAPPY CHILDHOOD

The happy child is the obedient, healthy one who leads the simple life every day.

When we give a child its way we pave the road to its own unhappiness.

Regular hours for sleep are more important than anything else. Even babies can be trained to sleep all night. The best authorities agree that they are better off without feeding after the first few months, and, while it takes a few nights to break off the habit, often a drink of cool water will pacify the child. The result of undisturbed sleep gained for mother and child more than repays for the effort.

Early hours should be continued all through the school life. Boys and girls in the grammar grades should be sent to bed at 9 o'clock, and night studying should be greatly restricted.

The daily bath is a great help in keeping a child well and this habit should be formed thoroughly, so that it will last through life.

Tea and coffee should never be given to children, and all fried food should be prohibited. Rich food and pastry are objectionable in every way, and they interfere with the growth and strength of the child.

From its tenderest years a child should be taught to obey. This is far kindest in the end. Never let a child go on teasing you after you have said "No."

The idle child is never the happy one. Find work for the little hands to do, for if you neglect this they will find mischief.

The best toys are those that can be taken apart and put together again. A five-cent box of dominoes will afford more pleasure to the average little one than the most expensive toy that is only made to look at.

Encourage anything which stimulates the imagination, cultivates the critical faculty and also good taste and good judgment. Always bear in mind the child's future even in its toys.

OBITUARY.

ALBERT SMITH

Apsley, July 12.—The death occurred on July 8 at his home in Anstruther, of Mr. Albert Smith, at the age of 32 years. Deceased had not been in very robust health for some time, but his condition was not thought serious till during the last month when the dreaded disease, consumption, claimed him as its victim. All that medical skill and tender care could do was of no avail and his untimely death is to be much regretted.

One of the saddest features is that in September, 1906, he was married to Miss Ena Hawks, who with two small children are left to mourn his loss. He also leaves a father, mother, and two brothers, Harry and Charles, all of which have our heartfelt sympathy in their hour of affliction.

The funeral took place on Saturday afternoon from his late residence to the Church of England, Apsley, of which the deceased was a member. A very touching sermon was preached by Mr. Harris, assistant to Rev. C. Lord. He preached his sermon from the following text: "Behold I stand at the door and knock," dwelling on the fact that we should so live as to be ready at any time to answer the call to meet our Redeemer and the resignation of the deceased to submit to the will of the Inevitable. Being a member of the True Blue Lodge, the True Blues attended in a body heading the funeral procession from their lodge room to the church. The pall bearers were: Messrs. Wilbert Lean, Dannie Lean, Tommy Lean, Jimmie Lean, Philip Tanner and Robert Scott. The remains were laid in the family plot in the English cemetery. There is no death, what seems so is transition

This life of mortal breath,
Is but a suburb of the Life Elysian
Whose portal we call death.

WILLIAM E. PEACEY

William E. Peacey, a native of England and 55 years of age, died Sunday, July 4th, at his home, 314 South Pasadena avenue. He had resided in Pasadena 12 years. The funeral was held Wednesday at 2 o'clock from the undertaking parlours of Turner & Stevens Company. Rev. Kilpatrick of the United Presbyterian Church officiated. Interment was held in Mountain View.

The deceased was well known in Peterborough, as member of St. Andrew's Church, and resided on Bonacord street, before coming to California. He was about 55 years of age.

MRS. EUGENE MOLONEY.

A well-known resident of Ennismore passed away at 6.30 o'clock this morning in the person of Mary Agnes McAuliffe, wife of Mr. Eugene Moloney. The deceased, who was thirty-eight years of age, had lived in Ennismore for a large number of years and was liked and respected by every one with whom she had come into contact. She is survived by her husband and six children.

The funeral will take place on Friday morning to St. Martin's Church, Ennismore, and thence to St. Martin's cemetery for interment.

COLD ON THE LUNGS

This letter gives some idea of the confidence placed in Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine by people who know by experience of its exceptional merit. Mrs. R. D. Turner, Broadview, N.W.T., writes:—"We have seven children and have used Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine for them all when troubled with colds on the lungs. We buy four bottles at a time and always keep it in the house, believing there is nothing so good for coughs and colds."

PETERBOROUGH TO STONEY LAKE

MR. DAN SIMONS HOME FOR SHORT HOLIDAY

Has Played in Cohan's "Little Johnnie Jones" During Winter.

Mr. Dan Simons is home for a short holiday of several weeks, and is meeting his old friends ot-day. He has spent the winter under the management of Cohan and Harris, and played the part of Timothy D. McGuire in one of the companies producing Geo. M. Cohan's musical play "Little Johnnie Jones." It is one of the principal comedy parts and Mr. Simons' long experience must have served him well in these lines.. Since summer opened he has been at Atlantic City and Brighton. He is the same humourous Dan as of yore and it is stated in some quarters that he manufactures many of the light comedy lines of the Cohan productions.

The Steamer Otonabee will run its usual Thursday afternoon trip on July 15, leaving Wolfe St. Wharf at 1.30 and calling at Gore's Landing. First-class Orchestra on board. Return Fare 50c. 2d-10

John Fallon Took Brain Hemorrhage

Fell From 'Bus He Was Driving And Is Now in Critical Condition.

John Fallon, driver for the Oriental Hotel, took a hemorrhage of the brain this morning at the G.T.R. station and fell off the 'bus in an unconscious condition. He was removed to St. Joseph's Hospital and at the time of going to press he was still unconscious and in a very low condition. He was feeling a little weak before going to meet the Lakefield train, but was able to ocntinue his work. Hopes for his recovery are not of the strongest. Dr. A. W. McPherson was called and is attending him.

WAR BETWEEN GREECE AND TURKEY IS INEVITABLE

Special to The Examiner (2.45 p.m.)

Berlin, July 14.—The Vossische Zeitung declares to-day that a war between Greece and Turkey is inevitable. According to the paper this situation is realised in official circles for the paper declares Turkey has informed the European powers that the situation is so strained that nothing can prevent the approaching conflict. The trouble is over the Government of the Island of Crete, which though nominally under Turkey Government, is so densely populated by Greeks that little or no attention is paid to the Turkish Government by the inhabitants.

THE CHICAGO MARKET IS IN TURMOIL

Patten and His Group of Operaters Are In on Big Flurry In July Delivery — Short Dealers Buy Up All They Can Get Hold of— Patten Clique Holds the Meat of Supply — Flour, Too.

Chicago, July 15.—Wheat for July delivery advanced seven cents to $1.27 a bushel during a stormy session on the Board of Trade yesterday, establishing a new high record for the season and giving promise of a repetition of the recent deal headed by James A. Patten and his colleagues in the May option.

The immediate cause of the buying flurry was additional rainfalls Tuesday night in Kansas and Missouri, where the new crop of wheat is now harvesting or is awaiting the thresher, and despatches from other harvesting and wheat-shipping regions, telling of damage to the new crop by excessive rains. In addition, the official forecast for to-day for the principal wheat-growing states predicted additional thunderstorms.

A large "sleeping" short interest has existed for some time in the July option, and the action of the market yesterday indicated that many of these traders had become alarmed at crop reports. Warehousemen and professional traders were said to be the principal shorts. Elevator men weeks ago bought wheat in the fields in Kansas, Oklahoma and other winter wheat states, and hedged against their country purchases by selling July wheat in this market. Since that time, wet weather has interfered with threshing operations, and the houses prevented quick delivery of the new crop in Chicago and the southwestern markets.

There is little contract wheat for delivery in Chicago now, and that little belongs to the Patten clique, which succeeded in merchandizing the grain delivered to it during the closing days of the May corner, and now demands the wheat sold to it for this month's delivery. When shorts went to Mr. Patten early in the day with offers of settlement, it is said they were told to buy the grain in the pit. The attempt to carry out his line of action was the cause of the seven cent advance.

Demand was so fierce at the start that the price between sales jumped from 1-4 to 1 cent at a leap. A wild shout rose when the price touched $1.25 and predictions were freely made that $1.50 would be reached before the end of the month. The market closed at almost the top. Final quotations on July were recorded at $1.26 5-8 to 3-4.

As a result of the sharp advance in wheat, flour was marked up 10 to 20 cents for the best descriptions of old wheat varied, while new wheat flour was advanced ten cents a barrel.

Science and Accidents.

Niagara Falls, Ont., July 15.—The International Association of Accident Underwriters have opened a four-day convention.

After discussing what should be the proper method of treatment of the accident and health claims for disability sustained by Christian Scientists, the consensus of opinion was that, although the duration of illness was increased by the adoption of Christian Science methods, yet claims from this source must be paid on the same basis as those which came from people who employed a doctor of medicine instead of a doctor of mind.

Condemned Man Wanted to Talk.

Edmonton, July 15.—Declaring that he had killed Deputy Warden Stedman of Alberta Penitentiary, formerly of Toronto, in self-defence, Gary R. Barrett was hanged yesterday morning. Death was due to strangulation and not a broken neck. His son, who was not permitted to be present at the execution, was given the body, which will be taken to Butte, Montana. The condemned man showed the utmost unconcern, save that he objected to the oration he wished to deliver being cut short.

Convicts' Daring Escape.

Edmonton, Alberta, July 15.—Two convicts, Atkinson of Regina, serving five years, and Johnson serving six years for assault on a guard, made a daring escape from the penitentiary. Working in an excavation, they seized long planks, which were cleats and used for running their wheelbarrows up to the surface, ran to the fence about eight feet distant, and, placing it against the wall, were soon up and over, taking cover in the bush.

Dominion Education Association.

Victoria, B.C., July 15.—The Dominion Educational Association began its sessions in this city yesterday, with nearly 400 delegates.

Miss Hurlburt of the Royal Victoria College, Montreal, gave an address on the place of the woman teacher in elementary education, and the subject of the value of specialization was dealt with by W. S. Milner in the department of higher education.

THE KAISER HAS SELECTED HIS NEW CHANCELLOR

Berlin, July 15.—Dr. Von Bethmann-Hollweg was yesterday appointed chancellor of the Empire in succession to Prince Von Buelow. The Emperor has presented the prince with the order of the Black Eagle in diamonds.

The new chancellor is a college friend of the Emperor, 53 years of age and of Jewish origin. He has had but little experience in foreign affairs.

In his youth he studied law and was appointed assistant judge. Before he was thirty years old he had been made district governor of Ober-Barnim, and later became provincial president of Potsdam, where the suburban palace of Emperor William is situated. During his three years at Potsdam he saw much of His Majesty, and the two men took long walks and rides in the environs. It was his custom to ride out with His Majesty and the two men took long walks and rides in the environs. It was his custom to ride out with His Majesty in an old tweed suit of sober cut, and he always selected a quiet horse.

Following his sojourn at Potsdam Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg's promotion was rapid. He is without the graces of expression found with Prince von Buelow, but he is a man of convincing thought and substance.

He is a man of reserved and thoughtful habits and sometimes has been called the "philosopher statesman," and even at his own receptions he sometimes wears an air of preoccupation. He is a tall man with a long face, that looks longer than it really is because of a small, dark, pointed beard. He has a habit of stooping from his greater height and looking at smaller men in a searching way through his spectacles.

Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg has devoted himself to improving the condition of the artisan class, whereas almost all social legislation has been applied up to the present time to the working proletariat. Since he became Minister of the Interior, Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg has distinguished himself by preparing an imperial insurance law and a law controlling a right of assemblage, which passed the Reichstag

MAYOR DOUGLAS STARTS MOVE TO CHECK TROOPS

Glace Bay, July 15.—When the Union of Canadian Municipalities convenes this month in Medicine Hat, it is likely that more than one phase of the Glace Bay strike will be discussed.

Mayor Douglas has decided to send a stated case to Controller J. J. Ward of Toronto, who is president of the union, on the military question as it has developed at Glace Bay. The union comprises most of the important municipalities in Canada. Halifax will send a delegate, probably Mayor Chisholm, and it is likely that the city will suggest the danger of allowing too much power to the military in civil matters.

A telegram from the Deputy Minister informs Mayor Douglas that the law does not allow municipal authorities to control the military, but that Gen. Drury has power to consult with him.

Mayor Douglas wired a reply complaining of the sheriff appointing magistrates without conference with the town authorities, and adding that he would ask Gen. Drury to withdraw at least half of the troops, as it is locally a matter of great concern that the town should be "saddled" with the $1,000 a day expense.

The company and the P.W.A. claim that nearly 3,800 men are at work out of 6,500 men employed in April, though two-thirds of the workers are not coal producers. The U.M.W. officials, however, say the figures are greatly exaggerated.

Quiet prevails at Inverness. The company says strikers are gradually returning to work. A Belgian has been committed for trial on a charge of assault. The presence of the troops is having the desired effect, and they will not be withdrawn, the company says, until the trouble is settled.

Thomas Roper of Barnsley, Yorkshire, Eng., a miner, has deserted from the coal company. He claims he was engaged in England June 28 last after replying to an advertisement for 30 experienced miners. When he arrived and found he was a strike-breaker, he quit as soon as he could.

It is reported that the company is importing two cargoes of coal from Wales and Philadelphia.

Lots of Coal.

Montreal, July 15.—F. L. Wanklyn yesterday said: "We have lots of coal. We have 200,000 tons at Sydney; 80,000 tons at Montreal; 25,000 tons at Three Rivers, and 10,000 tons at Quebec.

Wants Troops Left.

Ottawa, July 15.—J. W. Patterson, president of the Canadian Federation of Labor, discussing the demand for the withdrawal of troops sent by the Dominion Trades and Labor Congress, says:

"This is the beginning of the war for the emancipation of the Canadian workmen from American domination. The troops have a perfect right to be there when there are imported Belgians going around with knives in their hands.

"I believe that when the Government investigates this strike, as it will surely do, it will find the source from which the pay of these American agitators are coming is American capitalists, rather than from the United Mine Workers. I have every confidence that there is a conspiracy on foot, else what is bringing in all these men, some of whom do not even belong to the United Mine Workers, who are willing to take their lives in their hands and do violence on the slightest urging?"

"The demand for the withdrawal of the troops contains no subterfuge on our part for the use of violence when they have been withdrawn," said P. M. Draper, secretary of the Trades Congress. "Violence in any form is against every principal of international trades unionism."

"The United Mine Workers have a membership of nearly 400,000, and funds of over a million for strike purposes. They stand ready to support the men on strike in Cape Breton for an indefinite period. I have authority for making this statement."

Miners Refuse Award.

Lethbridge, Alba., July 15.—Miners district board No. 18 has refused to accept the arbitration award in the Hillcrest Mine dispute, disregarding the agreement that the decision of the arbitrator, H. R. Grant, of Fernie, who was nominated by the miners, should be binding.

Train Derailed In Muskoka.

Bala, Muskoka, July 15.—Nine cars of a Canadian Pacific freight train are off the track near Lovering as the result of something going wrong on the train at 5.30 last night. It is thought the flange on one of the cars near the front of the train broke off, derailing the car and the ones that followed. Brakeman J. Paul was slightly injured in the leg.

Canning Factories Slack.

Kingston, July 15.—The Prince Edward canneries are running very short hours these days. In comparison with previous years, when they operated day and night. The severe drought of the past week has spoiled the fruits and crops so that little has found its way to the canneries. Peas are being canned.

Bids Asked for 34,000 Cars.

Pittsburg, July 15.—The Pennsylvania Railroad has asked for bids on 20,000 all-steel freight cars, the Baltimore & Ohio on 8,000 and the Chicago & Northwestern on 6,000, making a total of 34,000 cars, requiring 544,000 tons of steel.

Discussed Niagara Dam.

Buffalo, July 15.—The international waterways commission held an all day session yesterday, devoted to the proposed construction of a dam across the Niagara River to raise the water level of the upper lakes.

Decision was reserved until Aug. 3.

Young Woman Is Missing.

Balcarres, Sask., July 15.—Mary Bruce of Garnock, north of here, went to bring home the cows last Friday and has not been seen since. Foul play is suspected. The young lady is about twenty years of age, handsome and accomplished.

No Musketry Course.

Ottawa, July 15.—The course of the Canadian School of Musketry, which was to have been begun July 30, has been cancelled on account of there not having been a sufficient number of applicants.

Ottawa, July 15.—The Finance Department yesterday gave out the corrected figures for the financial year 1908-09.

Geddes, St. Thomas; G.V.C., F. Hubert, Brantford; G.P.J., T. H. Manley, Sarnia; G.K. of R. and S., A. Coultet, Toronto; G.M., E. J. Burns, Hamilton; G.M. at A., H. J. Dilley, Toronto; G.I.G., C. Saving Time In British Mails.

London, July 15.—The postal authorities have decided that the American mails for South Wales and Southwest England, arriving at Queenstown by the Cunard Line steamers on Tuesdays, shall be forwarded by way of Rossaire and Fishguard. Several hours will thus be saved in the delivery of mails at Cardiff, Bristol and Plymouth. Some surprise is expressed that the same route has not been used for the mails for London, as a similar saving could be effected.

Grammar School Girl Graduates Make Own Dresses At $3.47 Each

TWO OF THE GIRL GRADUATES, SHOWING FRONT AND BACK OF THE $3.47 DRESS.

Chicago has a grammar school principal, by name Wm. Campbell, who objects to the elaborate commencement exercises in which the girl who wears the most expensive gown is the cause of an epidemic of heartaches among her less fortunate classmates.

He believes in practical education, so weeks before commencement he told the teacher of sewing that his girl graduates must make their own dresses. Thus the girls should have a chance to show how much they really have learned and the uncomfortable heartaches would be averted.

So the teacher puts the girls to work making every article to be worn except the shoes and hose. One period a week for several weeks was devoted to the work. The gowns were of white lawn and more or less elaborately trimmed with lace. Uniformity was avoided, each girl being allowed to work out her own ideas. The expense to each girl, rich and poor, was only $3.47.

I rather think these girls of mine will make good wives some day," said Principal Campbell in describing the experiment. "Proud of the results? Why, of course I am."

Principal Campbell is a man of the right sort, and his heart works in unison with his brain—every mother will say when she reads this story.

LATEST NEWS FROM FRASERVILLE

Fraserville, July 14.—Rev. W. J. Weatherill left by the morning train on Saturday to conduct the services at Campbellford, in the Rev. H. J. Strike's absence.

The booth, which was very prettily decorated with evergreens and bouquets of roses by Misses Nellie and May Weatherill, was greatly admired by many of the visitors.

Mis Olive Howell's singing was much appreciated by those present at the re-opening. The members of the choir were much pleased to have such a prominent singer with them as well as with the assistance which she rendered.

The many friends of the Rev. H. J. Strike were pleased to meet him again and hear him preach. Mr. Strike, on his visit to the village this time, preached to some of the people which he taught in the public school in this village some twenty years ago, and despite the long separation, there were numbers of the people which he remembered distinctly.

Mr. Strike was favoured with a large congregation, the largest assembly for many years. The church was crowded, all seats were occupied, and also temporary seats, which were especially erected for the occasion, were full. The Orangemen did not turn out in the afternoon, but their places were occupied by members of other congregations, who came to hear Mr. Strike.

Mr. and Mrs. Howell and son, of Peterborough, attended both the re-opening services on Sunday.

Mr. Walter Robison of Toronto, is going to spend the summer in this village with his brother-in-law, Mr. Jas. Latimore.

The result of the Fraserville Strawberry festival was very satisfactory, the total proceeds amounting to about one hundred dollars, which is considered a pretty fair sum for a country festival.

A very enjoyable evening was spent, the weather being fine and cool.

The people considered themselves much favoured by the presence of the Hon. Mr. J. R. Stratton, who dropped in on his way from Toronto. Mr. Stratton made a congratulatory speech in which he congratulated the people on the excellent programme, the large assembly, and wholesome supper, etc.

The music of the Salvation Army Band was much appreciated and it added much to the enjoyment of the evening.

Bridge Repaired.

There has been a new flooring laid on top of the old on the gravel road bridge, south of Fraserville, much to the pleasure of autoists and cyclists.

The rain was much appreciated by the farmers, although it hindered them somewhat with their haying.

The 12th of July was very unexpectedly celebrated in this village this year, but we have no reason to thank the Orangemen for their patronage as they were very indignant at having to celebrate the greater part of the day here.

A portion of one of the Peterborough lodges came via the C. P. R. to Kendry and marched from there to Fraserville lodge and the fife and drum filled the air with strains of music which brought thrilling remembrances of the days of yore when the gates of Derry were closed and King William crossed the Boyne.

Owing to the delay of the trains which were to convey the Orangemen to Port Hope, they did not leave till 12.35 p.m., much to the pleasure of the villagers, on account of the good music which they supplied during the time they waited for the train.

Coughs, Colds and Bronchitis

Cured by "CATARRHOZONE."

A Breathe-able "Direct" Medicine.

Every sufferer from coughs, colds, bronchitis and all throat and chest ailments needs a soothing, healing medicine which goes direct to the breathing organs in the chest and lungs, attacks the trouble at its source, disperses the germs of disease, and cures the ailment thoroughly. And this medicine is "Catarrhozone."

The germ-killing, balsamic vapor mixes with the breath, descends through the throat, down the bronchial tubes, and finally reaches the deepest air cells in the lungs. All parts are soothed with rich, pure, medicinal essences, whereas, if a liquid or tablet remedy were used, the affected parts could not be reached, and harm would result through benumbing the stomach with drugs.

Remember this: You don't take drugs when using Catarrhozone; you simply inhale a healing vapor that cures every type of catarrh, bronchitis, asthma, throat and nose soreness, and irritation.

No medicine brings such prompt relief, exerts such an invigorating influence or so thoroughly and speedily cures throat troubles as "Catarrhozone." Doctors, hospitals, sanitariums—all say that for those who suffer from changeable weather, for those who are predisposed to catarrh, lung trouble, deafness or bronchitis, no treatment is so indispensable as "Catarrhozone."

For certain cure, for relief in an hour, use Catarrhozone, the only direct, breathable medicine. Two months' treatment guaranteed; price $1.00, smaller size 50c; at all druggists, or the Catarrhozone Company, Kingston, Ont.

SUNSHINE FURNACE

Sunshine grates have maximum strength

Sunshine Furnace has four triangular grate bars, each having three distinct sides. In the single-piece and two-piece grate no such-like provision is made for expansion or contraction, and a waste of coal always follows a shaking.

On the left- and right-hand sides are cotter pins, which when loosened permit the grates to slide out. These four grate bars are made of heavy cast iron, and are finished up with bulldog teeth. The teeth will grind up the toughest clinker; and because the grates are made in sections, not only can nothing but dust and ashes pass through, but after each shaking a different side can be presented to the fire. Also, with the Sunshine grate there is no back-breaking movements attached to the shaking. By gently rocking the lever, first on the left and then on the right, the ashes are released on both sides, and fall through into the pan.

A PREVIOUS ENGAGEMENT.

By HARRIET LUMMIS SMITH.

[Copyrighted, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.]

Betty began to think that she had misjudged Cornelia. Ever since the invitation had come for Billy Randolph's yachting party on the 11th Cornelia had been so full of kindly suggestions, so magnanimously indifferent to the fact that she herself was not invited, that Betty's tender conscience was pricked by many a compunction.

"I always thought that she took her revenge on me when I was invited and she wasn't," reflected Betty. "It shows how easy it is to get suspicious and misjudge people. But, oh, dear, I never was suspicious till I came to live at Uncle Chester's."

After continued self approach and many excellent resolves it certainly was distressing to overhear snatches of a conversation suggesting that Cor-

"I SHALL SEE YOU VERY SOON, YOU KNOW," HE SAID.

nelia's kindness was not altogether disinterested.

With cheeks aflame Betty marched into the next room, and Cornelia stopped in the middle of a sentence, while Aunt Emily looked coldly annoyed.

"Who is it that is coming to dinner Wednesday?" demanded Betty, who believed in short cuts and direct methods.

Cornelia did not reply. Aunt Emily indulged in an impressive pause before she answered, "It is a friend of Alan's."

"I thought I heard you say Mr Burnham, and I wondered if it could be the Walter Burnham who was such a friend of Ernest's in college. I'd give anything to meet him."

Aunt Emily and Cornelia exchanged glances. "Unfortunately you have an engagement," the older woman reminded her.

"Oh, I'll break it. Walter Burnham was my brother's dearest friend, and I'd give up a dozen yachting parties before I'd miss the chance of seeing him."

Cornelia's mamma turned majestically to Betty.

"In this world, my dear Betty, we are not expected to do exactly as we please. I have brought Cornelia up to believe that an engagement is a promise and therefore sacred."

"But I could explain to Billy Randolph, and he's so good natured"—

"We will not discuss the matter further, Betty. It is not a question of Mr. Randolph's good nature, but of your own good breeding. I shall expect you to keep your engagement, as Cornelia would do in your place."

Betty looked across at the mirror on the other side of the room and surprised a malicious smile on the face of Cornelia. It had all been planned beforehand. That was what the smile acknowledged.

Betty walked out of the room, afraid to trust herself to speak. Her old suspicion that her cousin feared the comparison of her more mature charms with those of pink and white eighteen had become a certainty

Under other circumstances Betty would have laughed over the discovery with a half pitying, half amused wonder. But this was Walter Burnham, her faraway brother's college friend, about whom she had woven romantic fancies when her skirts came just below her knees.

And now he was to take dinner at her home, and she would be on Billy Randolph's yacht, listening to Billy's tiresome stories. Open rebellion against Aunt Emily was out of the question. But the extremity of defiance may be the opportunity of diplomacy.

The corner druggist had a call from Betty that afternoon. "I want something for a cold," she murmured sweetly as she leaned toward him with a pretty air of appealing confidence.

The druggist was beginning to expatiate on the virtues of a well known remedy when she checked him. "You don't understand. I don't want to cure a cold—I want to get one."

The man stared, began to laugh and ended by looking interested as he caught the faintest glint of a smile in the blue eyes turned appealingly upon him.

"Ah, I see," he said, with mock gravity. "You want to sneeze and have your eyes run, and all that sort of thing, and be yourself again after a few hours. Well, I've got some snuff here that will fix you up in great shape." He took the bottle from the shelf. "It's an unusual order," he added.

Betty blushed. "It's an unusual occasion," she confessed.

When Betty made her appearance in the dining room on the morning of the 11th a handkerchief of heroic proportions temporarily obscured her face. As she dropped into her chair she sneezed, and the attention of the family was at once focused upon her. Her pretty blue eyes were bloodshot and swollen, her small nose a most unbecoming shade of pink. Apologetically she bowed her head and sneezed again and yet again.

"Really, Betty," said Aunt Emily, with more annoyance than sympathy, "you must have been extremely careless to take such a cold."

"And, moreover, my dear," said Uncle Chester, "you'll find it necessary to be very careful. I shall insist on your remaining indoors today."

Cornelia made a false move. "Betty has an engagement, papa. She is to go on Billy Randolph's yachting party."

Betty sneezed twice.

"A yachting party!" cried Uncle Chester. "Preposterous! I will telephone young Randolph myself and explain that Betty is not fit to leave the house."

"Kerchoo!" said Betty, with a grateful glance at her uncle, while Aunt Emily put in quickly, "Instead of yachting, the poor child should go to bed at once."

"Kerchoo!" said Betty again, and, with coffee and rolls dispatched amid much sneezing and constant use of her handkerchief, she straightway sneezed her way upstairs to her room and softly bolted the door.

Betty did not make her appearance at luncheon. Susan took up a tray to her room, and when Cornelia knocked later in the afternoon there was no answer. Cornelia stole away on tiptoe. A good sleep was the best thing in the world for a heavy cold. If Betty did not wake till morning, all the better.

It lacked only five minutes of the dinner hour when Betty, an audacious vision in pink chiffon, floated into the drawing room. Her blue eyes were as clear as a June sky, and only her cheeks were flushed, while in her hand she carried a lace cobweb of a handkerchief. Cornelia and her mother looked blankly at each other. But the young man whom Alan had just introduced stared at Betty.

"I'm sure we've met before," he said. "Your face is so familiar." He went across the room and stood by Betty's chair. The girl smiled up at him and then dropped her eyes.

"The last time you saw me I was in a silver frame, wasn't I," she said, "with long curls hanging down my back?"

Walter Burnham's heart leaped.

"You're little Betty Carroll," he cried joyously, "Ernest Carroll's sister Betty! Why, I've known you by reputation since you wore pinafores. By Jove, this is worth coming for!"

At dinner Betty, of course, was seated at the other end of the table from Burnham, but he sought her side the moment they returned to the drawing room and remained there till he had missed two trains. When he said goodby he held her hand a little longer than was necessary.

"I shall see you very soon, you know," he said. "I'm only fifty miles off, so I can run down almost any time. You didn't know Ernest gave me the picture in the little silver frame, did you? I've got it in my room now."

When Billy Randolph a day or two later asked Betty to take dinner with him at the Country club the following Saturday he was disappointed when she shook her head.

"Thank you, Billy," she answered blushingly, "but I have a previous engagement."

An Entry For the Derby.

One of the most peculiar candidates for Derby honors which turf history records was the Cockney Boy, who made one of a field of fifteen in the year 1870. He belonged to a W. Rogers and was described on the card as a "chestnut colt by Knight Templar (son of Knight of Kars), dam Irish Rose (pedigree unknown)." Only one engagement was ever made for this distinguished animal, and that was the Derby. He never ran before or afterward, and his ultimate fate is unknown, but he created a profound sensation by his singular aspect as he ambled down to the post, and the remarks concerning him and his jockey were anything but complimentary. He had about as much chance of winning as the average butcher's pony would have possessed, though the field that year was by no means high class. His actual price in the betting at the start could not be ascertained, but a courageous publican hailing from Barking accepted £500 to £1 about him, possibly on the remote chance of all the other competitors dropping dead during the two and a half minutes' struggle. The Cockney Boy was somewhere about Tattenham Corner when the winner, Lord Falmouth's Kingscraft, was walking back to the weighing inclosure. It was a melancholy exhibition.—Sport Set.

His Lucky Coin.

In one of his Hibbert lectures Max Muller said to the students: "Many of you, I suspect, carry a halfpenny with a hole in it for luck. I am not ashamed to own that I have done so myself for many years." The case was cited by him in his lecture as an illustration of "survivals" from primeval fetichism, but on his own account Max Muller confessed that when sometimes he had left home without this halfpenny talisman he felt "very uncomfortable" until his safe return.

Woman the Waitress.

"A woman," remarked the wise widow, "is always waiting for a husband."

"How do you figure that out?" queried the interested spinster.

"If she isn't married," answered the w. w., "she is waiting to get one, and if she is she's waiting for him to come home."—Chicago News.

His Finish.

"Did you ever complete your education?"

"No; my wife did."—Houston Post.

Cruelly Frank.

All About Her.

Winkle—See that little woman in black over there? I'll bet there are more men crazy about that woman than any woman in town. Hinkle—What makes you think so? Winkle—Well, she's the matron out at the insane asylum.

SUGGESTIONS FOR PROFITABLE SUMMER READING

THE girl of to-day has little opportunity during the winter months, busy with studies and pleasure, for any reading that is not connected with school work.

In the summer time, however, there is ample time to fill the storehouse of her mind with new, delightful and profitable ideas which will give pleasure to her all through life. She should provide herself, therefore, before leaving town for the vacation months with a good collection of books which will be really worth while to read and not merely means of forgetting the passing of time.

The conscientious girl need not imagine, however, that she should employ all her reading hours in the perusal of books of philosophy, history or the classics—there are any number of novels which, interspersed with the weightier books, are truly profitable. The best historic novels, for example, often give a better picture of the times and events depicted than is to be derived through any other source, while there are also innumerable romances which, although merely love tales, are so charmingly written and so exquisite in their style that the reader is at once uplifted and given a happy, wholesome view of life.

The way to the greatest and best enjoyment in reading is to keep on hand several books of totally different character—biography, modern novel, history, classic, romance and poetry—and to turn to each as the mood dictates. This method can, of course, only be followed where there is considerable leisure time at one's disposal, for during the crowded winter months it is often difficult to read a book through in short enough time to retain a clear and consecutive idea of the story and personages portrayed. In summer, however, there are frequently weeks together so warm and enervating that the mildest form of exercise is an exertion, and this is the time of the whole year to stock the storehouse of one's mind with substantial food upon which it can sustain the brain for months and years to come.

JUST at first the temptation will be great to devote all one's time to the reading of novels and the lightest kind of literature, so great is the relief at the close of the school year to find a certain independence after the enforced duties of the school room, but if a girl will keep herself strictly in hand for a short while she will soon come to find true enjoyment in a classic, which, if more ponderous and analytic in style than the quickly compiled novel of the day, more than makes up in the new thoughts and ideas and the fascinating mental pictures which it conjures up.

To know something about everything rather than everything about something is undoubtedly the educational ambition of the present generation, and this principle has certainly a great deal in its favor. It may not bring the same absorbing interest to the student herself, for the intense concentration must necessarily be lacking, but it does unquestionably make a girl more interesting to the outsider, since it enables her to converse, if superficially, on any subject and have sufficient knowledge to be eager to learn more should opportunity arise. And, of course, the basis of all knowledge is simply knowledge or sufficient idea of a subject to know how to understand and know more.

Even the knowing something of a subject, however, necessitates considerable study, and it is a good plan to take up some one topic each summer and devote the greater part of one's energies to that alone. Astronomy, for example, is seldom given as a course in school, yet there is no study so marvellously interesting as the history of the heavens, the names of the planets, their relation to one another, whether or not there is possibility of life on Mars or Venus. First one should obtain a chart of the sky and find out the position of the different stars, using a telescope, if necessary, and then commencing on some simple book that will tell the rudiments of the science of astronomy. After that sufficient interest is sure to be aroused to necessitate a trip to the nearest library for all books which it may contain upon the most mysterious and absorbingly fascinating science known to mankind.

GEOLOGY as a history of the ages is another most excellent study for the summer time, and one which will do much to awaken interest in the country and a new delight in all the wonderful formations of the earth. Mountains and valleys, rocks and ordinary clay acquire a new interest as soon as one has given thought to the curious and wonderful occurrences in nature which have taken place through the different rocks to make them what they are. Even a briefly written school book on the study of geology will give a knowledge of the subject that will prove a delight all through life.

MUSIC, too, can be studied from a written book, and the opera changed perhaps from a rather boring to an intensely pleasure giving recreation. Wagnerian opera, for example, cannot possibly be enjoyed without a good knowledge of the story and a familiarity with the themes. The girl who will spend an hour or so each week in studying out the librettos of the most famous operas, reading the stories and playing over the themes, will realize when she comes out and must attend the opera at least once a week what a perfect treasure house of delight she has built for herself. Nor does one need to be musical in the accepted sense of the term to listen appreciatively to grand opera. If the story and the themes are understood it is not necessary to be able to sing and play a single note in order to derive keen pleasure from a good musical performance. "The Music Dramas of Richard Wagner," by Savignac, is an excellent book to be studied by any who desire to appreciate the beauties of German opera and who feel that the music is too heavy, too sleep enticing perhaps, for their small knowledge of and sympathy in music.

Then there are innumerable books devoted to the history of art and architecture of the different countries and nations, which once commenced are not difficult reading and give to the girl who has not yet studied the subject at least a superficial familiarity with names and terms constantly mentioned and talked of and of which she should certainly not evince total ignorance.

The novel of the day is to the classic what "ragtime" music is to grand opera—a degeneration of a great art—and she who is content to fill her mind with nothing more profitable than thrilling detective stories and insipid love tales is on the same plane with the girl who after having a small fortune expended upon her musical education will play nothing more elevating than coon songs or the latest topical success.

GLOVE LORE.

UNLESS a girl has an unlimited allowance of pin money she cannot invariably be nicely gloved if she does not know how to take care of those most important accessories of the costume. Gloves that are rolled into a ball as soon as they are taken off instead of being carefully pressed out flat soon become shapeless and shabby.

Gloves that are worn for many days in succession soon acquire an unpleasant odor which could be avoided by having a second pair to be worn on alternate days, meanwhile hanging the others in the air for a few moments and then putting them away smoothly with a small sachet laid inside each palm.

As soon as possible after a glove is ripped it should be overseamed with cotton which precisely matches the color of the kid. To repair a torn buttonhole stitch closely around the edges with a single row of close buttonhole stitches.

Damp spotted gloves can be restored by putting a little gum ammoniac under paper in the bottom of a box, placing the gloves upon the paper, closing the receptacle tightly and leaving it undisturbed for several days. Slightly mildewed gloves may sometimes be made presentable by exposing the spots to the sun's rays for a few hours for several successive days.

Raw tomato applied to kid glove will remove an ink stain, but the acid will also weaken the texture of the pelt. Alcohol will take out a grass stain and turpentine will vanquish paint, but in each instance the gloves must be carefully handled.

Chamois, light colored taffeta and spun silk are the only gloves which can be laundered successfully with castile soap and water. Other delicately tinted gloves require the treatment of an expert cleaner and when not in use should be kept in a roomy box between dark blue paper sachet sheets.

"LUCK" PURSES.

SILK lined "luck" purses of genuine morocco in all the fashionable shades, sealskin, walrus or suede, are of square envelope shape. They have clasps formed of ancient Japanese talismans supposed to bring prosperity and money to the possessor, and there are straps on the back which pass securely over the hand. From the centre lower edge of each purse swings an octagonally shaped pendant with a front ornament matching the one used for the clasp, while the back is fitted with a chamois lined coin purse.

"Luck" purses of sterling silver chain work are engraved with quotations from the text boxes of the various popular mascot images or set with imitations of the owner's birth month stone or jewel.

German silver gilt "luck" purses showing elephant and monkey designs in repousse work are kid lined and usually a combination of belt pin and purse.

Suede leather "luck" purses have silver clasps representing the heads of aboriginal braves, squaws and papooses. Some of these purses are decorated with bead embroidery and others are hand painted in dull colors.

MIDDY BLOUSES POPULAR.

THERE is a craze this summer for middy blouses, and if Uncle Sam does not watch out the supply for his sailors will run out, for girls are discovering where they are made and sold and are making veritable raids on the astonished manufacturers. The blouse may be worn inside the belt, outside blouse fashion or outside hanging straight down over the hips. This latter is the caprice of the hour and looks very fetching on tall, slim girls; but let short or stout girls beware lest they make perfect frights of themselves. The blouse, of course, should be worn with a white skirt and when belted in the belt should be of blue to match the trimming on the blouse. The correct pronunciation of the word blouse, by the way, is as if it were spelled with a z instead of an s, and if you wish to be up to date you must use the word properly.

PRACTICAL TALKS BY THE APRIL GRANDMOTHER

"MOUTH mannerisms disfigure a girl more permanently than do almost any other facial contortion," said the April Grandmother, who had been quietly observing a group of prospective débutantes lunching at an adjacent table. "The most deplorable of all mannerisms is lip compression, as in time that habit transforms the mouth into a thin, straight line which will lend a hard expression to the prettiest face, and the face that has a hard expression is old, no matter how few may be the actual years of its owner.

"The nervous girl who holds her lips tightly pressed together is liable to be seriously misjudged by strangers, who imagine that her disposition is quite as narrow as her mouth. Therefore any embryo bud who is conscious of possessing this mannerism would best speedily break herself of it, as otherwise, unless she is a multimillionairess, she will certainly decorate the walls instead of the floors at the dinner dances and cotillions where she appears next winter.

"Some girls make a practice of twisting the mouth toward one side. This habit causes that corner of the mouth to droop and the feature to look so crooked that people naturally suppose that several teeth are missing from that side of the jaw and wonder why she does not have them replaced. Other girls draw down the lips at both corners. This is usually done to mutely express disapproval of some person or object, but it is a mannerism which will permanently distort the most perfectly shaped 'Cupid bow' and plough deep lines from its corners to the base of the chin.

"It behooves the girl who possesses a pretty mouth to not only refrain from drawing it down, but to practice turning up its corners as though just about to smile. This exercise will help to keep the chin from sagging.

"The girl who bites her lips whenever she is embarrassed or annoyed not only gives public expression of her mental state and exhibits lack of self-control but is cultivating a thick lipped mouth which no art of the beauty doctors can overcome. Those who naturally have thick lips are apt to form the habit of pinching them hard with the forefinger and thumb in the hope of flattening them. As the disfigurement is usually traceable to protruding teeth it may in many instances be ameliorated. Moreover, to put the fingers upon the lips—or, indeed, upon any part of the face—is a breach of etiquette which a surprising number of well bred young girls utterly disregard.

"An upper lip that is too long should not be made longer by pressing it downward and concealing the teeth," continued the April Grandmother. "Far better cultivate the habit of slightly lifting and curling outward the upper lip in order to make it appear shorter.

"Girls who know that their teeth are beautiful are apt to smile too broadly as well as too frequently. They open their mouths widely in order to exhibit a double row of faultless ivories, and by so doing stretch their lips out of shape and acquire an unnatural expression, simply because their eyes are not smiling at the same time. The perpetual upraise of the lips is infinitely preferable to the drawn manner, but nevertheless the forced smile in time degenerates into a smirk. That expression is certain to cause a network of tiny lines about the mouth corners which no amount of massage cream can eradicate, and the cobweb effect is usually a prophecy of a prematurely middle aged appearance."

PICNIC SANDWICHES.

THE advent of the picnic luncheon and beach tea season suggests a variety of sandwiches which are appetising, dainty and easily made.

French sandwich filling is made by mincing fish, game, tongue or poultry, seasoning with salt and pepper, mixing with finely chopped hard boiled eggs and moistening with mayonnaise; German filling of minced beef, chicken or cheese covered with finely chopped pickles laid between lettuce leaves, and English filling of cold cooked mutton seasoned with a little salt, pepper, caper, mint and a dash of lemon.

Fruit sandwich fillings are made of mashed ripe bananas, seasoned with lemon juice and sugar and mixed with chopped dates and English walnuts; of minced dates, moistened with orange juice; of sliced strawberries or pineapples, seasoned with butter, sugar and vanilla, and of crabapple jelly mixed with slightly salted cottage cheese.

Nut sandwich fillings include grated fresh cocoanut mixed with blanched almonds, cream, pulverised sugar and lemon juice; a mixture of chopped English walnuts and dates moistened with cream; of minced blanched almonds and preserved ginger moistened with orange juice; of chopped pecans, with marshmallows or strained honey, or of ground peanuts seasoned with salt and moistened with cottage cheese.

Neapolitan sandwich filling consists of blanched pistachio nuts and maraschino cherries moistened with apricot jam.

PHOTOGRAPH FRAMES.

HAMMERED brass photograph frames of either square or circular shape are decorated in bold grapevine and leaf patterns. They have backs equipped with hooks and easels.

Among metal photograph frames of cabinet size are some in antique gold effect and Empire design; of gold plate on white metal, engraved on the sides and top, while the bottom is reserved for a monogram; of sterling silver, simply chased and in oval or round shapes; of green silver, exquisitely engraved and pierced excepting in the top space designed for the monogram, and in German silver showing novel repousse patterns or in plain effects, broken by handsomely etched narrow bands.

All white frames of cabinet and miniature size and of square heart and diamond shape are of carved ivory, of white metal set with rhinestones or fresh water pearls and of enamelled wood.

SUMMER BEDSPREADS.

SUMMER weight bedspreads are of forty-five inch wide plain white or flowered lawns, striped or plaided domestic and French lawns, sheer, silky Persian and English long cloth and soft-surfaced nainsook finished all around with a four inch wide hemstitching.

White French organdie, batiste or linon spreads have hemstitched borders in delicate colors and are mounted upon coarse lawn of a tint matching the needlework, while those of fine unbleached linen are embroidered heavily with pure white.

English print bedspreads in colored patterns and of very light weight may be machine or hand hemmed, but those of white cotton printed in Austrian patterns, figured silk organdie, silkoline, fast colored challie and printed or plain pongee of thin, supple quality require washable ribbon borderings.

Plain French cotton and silk Japanese crinkled crêpes, which come in all colors, make exquisite summer bedspreads. They have deep hems turned up on the right side and headed with narrow ribbon, or they are inset with squares, oblongs and panels of imitation Cluny or Russian lace.

The allover embroidered French cotton and Japanese silk crêpes are in themselves so ornamental that the two widths need only be joined with a wide panel of satin ribbon matching the six inch bordering.

BATHING CAPS.

THE close fitting bathing caps popular this season are so readily made that any girl may have a variety of them. One type of cap consists of an oval shaped piece of material shirred about the face by means of a drawstring run through a pocket on the wrong side of the fabric's outer edge. A turban cap is cut in circular shape and gathered on to a wide ribbon with long ends, which, by passing behind the ears, holds the headgear firmly in place.

One especially smart model consists of a square piece of material of the dimensions of a man's handkerchief. The centre is shirred into a cap shape and the four ends are tied in bows above the brow and at the nape of the neck.

A three-quarter yard piece of moderately wide material will make any one of these caps, which, of course, must have an oil silk foundation. Some girls prefer plain colored red, blue, green or maize taffeta; others retain their affection for the familiar polka dotted foulards. The rich Oriental hues and patterns on rough silk appeal to a few, and those who are of Scotch lineage favor the clan plaid patterns of their ancestors.

NEW RIDING HAT AND HABIT

THE riding habit of to-day is a curiously different affair from that in which our mothers rode forth. Then the long, full skirt escaped the ground by a bare three inches, kept down by leaden weight which must have been wondrously well placed not to hit against the poor horses as they cantered, causing innumerable runaways. To-day the skirt just covers the toe of the smart boot, and, in fact, is hardly a skirt at all, for when mounted it is opened down the centre of the back and covers only the outside of the figure. The breeches are made of the same material as the skirt and coat, so even if the skirt should separate in mounting or dismounting there is nothing ungraceful in the effect. This new skirt makes a side saddle every bit as safe, even for hunting, as a cross saddle, and there are any number of girls who really prefer the side saddle but ride astride in hunting and cross country riding, simply because there is less danger of being dragged in a divided skirt than in the old fashioned side saddle skirt should a tumble be met with.

The jackets of these newest habits reach not quite to the knees, give a somewhat narrow shoulder line because of the long, tight sleeves, and are semi-fitted with the lower part of the coat somewhat more full than in an ordinary walking suit.

The smart material for a riding habit to-day is a striped whipcord and English cloth that is wonderfully durable. A pepper and salt or dark gray mixture is most popular; in fact, there is seldom seen a habit of any other shade. During the hot months, however, crash and linen are alone possible, for, of course, even a little girl cannot ride without a coat, and cloth is out of the question. Crash pulls so that it is difficult to get a really good looking habit, but at the same time there are many advantages in this material, which is cool, washes well and in the natural color does not soon show the dust.

It is possible to find extremely smart ready made linen habits which are well worth buying, and, comparatively speaking, they are most inexpensive. A cloth habit must fit to perfection, but a washable habit can be bought ready to wear provided the important lines of it are good.

With linen habits linen breeches, chamois lined, are the most comfortable, fitted breeches having quite taken the place of the bloomers once thought possible. It is a fad among young girls at present to wear men's or boys' negligee shirts for riding, and certainly the soft madras so very plainly made are most comfortable and sensible for the purpose. With them are worn either turned down collars with knitted silk ties or soft four-in-hand stocks.

So large has the sailor hat grown that in its present dimensions it is no longer possible for riding. Any one of three shapes is now about equally smart in straw—either the three cornered hat first in vogue some five years or more ago; a small, narrow brimmed sailor resembling the familiar English sailor, but not quite so small, or a straw derby, either white or black. This last is the newest riding hat and has much to recommend it, as it is certainly the most comfortable to keep on, although there is no brim to shade the eyes. Unfortunately, however, a derby is not generally becoming, so that the sailor hat is in no danger of losing its popularity. Mushroom sailors, although still worn for tennis, golf, &c., are no longer smart with a riding habit.

A black hat may be worn with either a cloth or linen habit, but white straw is correct only with a habit of light shade. The straw derbys, which have somewhat wider brims and lower crowns than the ordinary felt derby, are extremely smart in white with a black band worn with a crash or linen riding costume.

NEW WORK BAGS.

BASKET shaped work bags made of woven strands of amethyst, Pompeiian red, bronze and tan morocco are seven inches deep and six inches wide at the base. They are satin lined and cushioned and on the outer side are decorated with an inch wide ribbon of harmonizing tone interlaced with the morocco strands a short distance below the upper edge of the basket brim and tied in a bow at the centre of each side. The double handles are of flexible leather.

Scallop rimmed French work basket bags, four inches deep and twelve inches wide, are of Pompadour silk covered card board squares joined at the corners and bound at the top with gilt gimp. They have square, scooped out handles of matching materials, dividing two wide flaps which hook over the deep pockets at each side of the bags.

Novel satchel shaped affairs for holding fancy work, which combine the advantages of bag and basket, have flowered silk covered board sides and an interior roomy bag of plain silk.

Gilt galloon and cording trim brocaded silk work bags, which have sides seamed together, corners tacked up and top drawn over an oval embroidery frame.

Pagoda work bags are made of ten pieces of flowered silk, each measuring twelve inches square, all but the lower one having a six inch circle cut from its centre. The circles and straight sides are joined and bound with ribbon and the top piece is drawn over a wooden embroidery loop.

Mat woven raffia work bags are gradually narrowed into loose cap shape and lined with a fancy silk draw string bag, which is faced with chamois and fitted with sewing utensils.

CARE OF WARDROBE.

THE girl who is spending the summer in a remote place can only keep her wardrobe in good condition by giving intelligent directions to amateur laundresses and cleaners. She should tell the laundress to soak the organdy and lawn frocks for twenty minutes in a gallon of warm water in which a tablespoon of borax has been dissolved, rub with castile soap suds, pour over them boiling water, cool and rinse in tepid water.

Rust stains on white clothes may be removed by wetting the spots with a mixture of lemon juice and salt. Ink stains can usually be vanquished with sweet milk, and mildew should be treated with a stiff paste of boiled down castile soap shavings spread thickly on the stain and scattered over with powdered potash slightly moistened with water and then bleached on the grass.

Silk stockings should be soaked for a half hour in warm suds softened with ammonia, gently rubbed, pressed and squeezed with the hands; rinsed through two clear, warm waters, the last blued with a little ultramarine blue, and then dried without using an iron.

A girl who wishes to keep her tailored travelling suit nicely throughout the summer will not permit it to be put away until every particle of dust has been brushed with a soft whisk from each fold. Any mud stains should be sponged from black cloth with a little ammonia before washing them with soapy water. Grease stains can usually be removed with moistened magnesia. Cover paint spots with spirits of turpentine, allow it to remain for a few hours, after which, by rubbing the cloth between the fingers the paint will crumble off without injuring the goods.

Badly Hurt In Thresher

BLOOD POISON SET IN

Healed in one place, broke out in another—Cure effected by Dr. CHASE'S OINTMENT.

Truth is often stranger than fiction and many of the cures brought about by Dr. Chase's Ointment are more like miracles than anything else.

You generally hear of this great Ointment as a cure for eczema or piles. In the case we report to-day the trouble was blood poison. You know how dreadfully dangerous this is. You know how helpless doctors are in its treatment. Read about this cure brought about by Dr. Chase's Ointment.

Mrs. C. Hopkins, St. George, Ont., writes: "I feel like shouting the praises of Dr. Chase's Ointment. While threshing grain my son got badly hurt. One of the men who was pitching sheaves, missed the sheaf and ran the prongs of the fork into my son's leg. He did not take much notice of it and in a day or two it got sore and very itchy and blood poison set in. We did everything for it but it would heal one place and break out at another, and kept on this way for three months.

"Finally I thought of Dr. Chase's Ointment and in a week's time we noticed a wonderful change. By the use of three boxes he was completely cured and the wounds healed up. There has not been a sign of a spot on him since.

"I might also say that my husband was cured of a very bad case of piles by the use of two boxes of Dr. Chase's Ointment. It is a wonderful Ointment."

Wherever there is itching or irritation of the skin or a sore that refuses to heal you can apply Dr. Chase's Ointment with every assurance that the results will be prompt and satisfactory.

60 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

A NEWSPAPER GUY

Paris, July 14.—Enrico Caruso, the world famous tenor, has just left Paris in a fury. He vainly tried to vent his wrath in interviews with newspaper reporters, which, being published, added much to the city's gaiety, for all Paris is laughing and saying:

"That shrinking violet, Caruso. He shouts through columns in the newspapers that he wants them to let him alone."

"Why cannot the newspapers leave me in peace," cries Caruso in one interview. "I pay a visit to a doctor, a friend of mine. Instantly the newspapers announce that my tonsils, my larynx, I know not what in my throat, has been cut out. I can never sing again, they say; and to whom any one gladly pays $2,500 to sing for one evening.

"And that is not too much money," Caruso added, and this expression started Paris laughing.

Caruso does not try to hide his anger that his younger rival, Federico Carasa (who will sing at the Manhattan Opera House, New York, next season) has made a success.

"He took my name as nearly as he could," exclaimed Caruso to an interviewer. "He is a counterfeit; a false note."

But the truth is, as these disputers have told, the young Spanish tenor's real name is Carasa. His family is well known in San Sebastian. There his brother is a wealthy merchant, and has been Mayor.

Caruso will return here in ten days. Carasa is about to leave for Spain and will sail for America Aug. 14.

METHODIST CHURCH STRUCK BY LIGHTNING

During Storm at Bridgenorth—Mr. Mann Loses Valuable Horse by Drowning.

Examiner Special.

Bridgenorth, July 14.—Bridgenorth and vicinity has been visited with a fine rain. In 24 hours rain fell 3 1-5 inches, and was one of the heaviest rains we have had in many years. It is beyond estimate the amount of good it will d oto the crops.

The Bridgenorth Methodist Church was struck with lightning on Saturday last and it was not known until Monday as there was no service held in the church on Sunday, the service being held at the summer school in the park. No very serious damage was done. One of the windows in the basement was knocked out.

Most of the cottages in the park are filled and the tourists are having a good time fishing, etc.

Mr. T. Mann had a valuable Clyde horse, one of a mated team, drowned in a well last night.

72 Days of Dish Washing

You spend two hours every day washing dishes. That's 720 hours a year or 72 days of ten working hours each. This means that half the time is wasted. For with Taylor's Borax Soap you finish your work in one hour instead of two.

Isn't it worth five cents to have 36 days a year to yourself—to have cleaner and sweeter dishes than ever before with less than half the work?

Taylor's Soap

This wonderful soap is unlike any other you have ever known. It digs into the corners of dishes and loosens the dirt almost like magic. It cuts away grease and leaves the surface clean and polished.

Hard water makes hard dish washing, but Taylor's Borax Soap softens the hardest water and so makes the work easy. But it does more than soften the water—it softens the hands and leaves them even whiter than before.

With this soap you save all the bother of rubbing and most of the scouring. You simply have no idea of the work this soap can save—it is the greatest surprise you have ever known.

The glassware has a lustre that fairly sparkles with brilliance. The china ware looks as fresh and inviting as new. Yet you work only half as hard with this astonishing soap.

No soap could be purer than this, for during the boiling process we run thousands of gallons of clean water through the soap. Thus every impurity is carried away and the soap is absolutely clean.

Borax also sterilizes and sweetens. It kills every germ and leaves no possibility of contagion. It destroys all odors and leaves a clean scent that is simply delightful.

This wonderful soap costs no more than the ordinary. We spend twenty-one days to make a single cake. We use the labor of more than 200 persons. Yet we make such enormous quantities—millions of cakes every year—that we buy at the lowest prices and give you the very best of quality. Try one bar and judge for yourself.

WE DO NOT GRIND LENSES

We have not time for this ourselves, and would not entrust lens grinding to less skilled hands. Our lenses are all imported and are manufactured in factories of hundreds of thousands of dollars equipment employing over 1000 hands, with every facility for accurate work. It does not pay to surface grind good lenses in Canada. It requires a day or two extra to get these but we have the work of of more skilled workmen at a reasonable price.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, July 14.—(Special.)—A feature of the export live stock situation of late has been the stronger undertone to the market for ocean freight space and rates have advanced fully 5s per head for August shipment, but up to the present the volume of business done has been small and the demand from both Canadian and American exporters is still very limited. Liverpool space is offering at 32s 6d for the first half of August and at 32s for the second half; London, 25s; Glasgow, the same as Liverpool, while some engagements to Manchester have been for the first half at 32s 6d with 32s asked for the second.

At the Canadian Pacific live stock market this morning, the offerings were 268 steers, 223 cows, 25 bulls, 500 sheep, 101 lambs, 1000 calves and 800 hogs. Altho the supply of cattle was fairly large and the weather very warm, the undertone to the market was stronger than on Monday and prices show an advance of 25c to 50c per cwt., but the trade in common stock was slow and bulls were not wanted at any price. Choice steers sold at 5¾c; good, at 5½c to 5¾c, and lower grades at 4c to 5c; cows, at 3½c to 3½c, and bulls at 2½c to 3c per lb.

In small meats trade was active, there being a good demand for all lines and as the offerings were not excessive, a steady feeling prevailed in the market and prices show no change, as compared with those of Monday.

Sheep, sold at 3½c per lb., and lambs brought from $3.50 to $5.50 each, while calves sold freely at from $1.25 to $8 each, as to size and quality. The market for hogs was stronger under a good demand and sales of selected lots were made at $9.75 per cwt., weighed off cars.

At the Montreal Stock Yards, West End Market, the supply of live stock consisted of 200 cattle, 175 sheep and lambs, 700 calves and 500 hogs. The only new feature in the trade since Monday was the stronger feeling in the market for hogs, owing to the small offerings and the good demand for the same, and sales of selected lots were made at $8.75 to $8.90 per cwt., weighed off the cars. The demand for cattle, sheep, lambs and calves was fair and the prices realised were much the same as those realised at the above market.

Haffen, president of the Boro of the Bronx of New York City, has "subordinated his duty as a public official to his political friendships and personal interests," Wallace MacFarlane, who was appointed by Governor Hughes as commissioner to investigate charges against the boro president, finds that Haffen has been guilty of misconduct in office which should subject him to removal.

THAW SUPPORTS WIFE.

Millionaire Gives Evelyn $500 a Month For Her Maintenance.

White Plains, N.Y., July 15.- Evelyn Nesbit Thaw's lips were still closed by legal technicalities yesterday, and she did not resume the stand as expected, to testify for the state in opposing Harry K. Thaw's attempt to prove himself sane, and his confinement in the asylum for the criminal insane illegal.

It is not generally known whether she would rather see him a free man or confined as a lunatic. While she has been quoted often as repeating "I'll stand by you, Harry," it is reported that in the event of her testimony ultimately goes against Thaw, his attorney will call witnesses to show that she had remarked that she was glad to see him in Matteawan.

Tuesday Mrs. Thaw said that her husband was not supporting her properly, but it was brought out yesterday that he is paying her more than $500 a month.

In court Tuesday Harry and Evelyn seemed to regard each other as strangers.

Montreal, July 15.—"Your an assassin, that's what you are," declared Recorder Dupuis, from the bench yesterday morning to a Longue Pointe milk dealer, who was for the fourth time convicted of selling diluted milk that contained very little that was nourishing and otherwise unfit for consumption.

"A man who will sell milk like that for use by little children is nothing but an assassin," continued the recorder in the course of a severe lecture to the accused, and several other milkmen who were arrested on a charge of selling milk below the standard and otherwise unfit.

Montreal's Mistake.

London, July 16.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Under the heading "Montreal Offends the City," The Mail, regarding the refusal of recent tenders for the Montreal loan, says the explanation for the refusal seems to be that the tenders were insufficient to cover the loan, but that explanation is not regarded in the city as satisfactory. Friends of Montreal in London, whose opinion undoubtedly commands the highest respect, are expressing regret over the short-sightedness of Montreal in conducting its financial affairs in such a manner as to evoke criticism.

The matter need not perhaps reflect upon Canadian municipal credit, but it nevertheless is one of those regrettable incidents which should not be allowed to occur to mar the security of Canadian financial arrangements.

THE CABBAGE CURE.

Old Ezekiel Had Long Been Wanting a Boiled Dish.

"This idea that people thrive best on the food they like best is not as modern as you seem to think," said the old doctor to the young doctor. "When Ezekiel Holmes was something over 100 years old he was taken sick, and my grandfather, one of the best physicians in that section, was called in to see him after the family had done their worst to make him better.

"Grandfather pronounced Mr. Holmes very ill and told the family that the end was probably near—he might not live out the night. As soon as this news spread through the neighborhood several friends called to sit up or watch with the sufferer. Among them was a sea captain, who took the second watch.

"A little after midnight Mr. Holmes awoke and said the doctor was starving him. The captain asked what he would like to eat.

"'Corned beef and cabbage,' replied the old man.

"The captain found some in the pantry—it was a staple dish in those days—and gave him a generous plateful, reasoning, as he said afterward, that so long as the old man's hours were numbered he might as well have what he wanted while he lasted. After eating heartily Mr. Holmes said he felt much better and went quietly to sleep. The next morning, when grandfather called, he found his patient on the road to recovery. The old man not only got well, but kept so for four or five years afterward, and he always stoutly declared that his midnight meal had cured him.

"'I'd been wanting a boiled dish a fortnight,' he used to say, 'and mother wouldn't let me have it. But I worked a traverse on her and got well.'"—Youth's Companion.

"MATUSHKA VOLGA."

Melody of Sorrow Heard In Prison and Palace In Russia.

There is an air so popular in Russia that it is even more familiar than their national anthem to the people of that great, mysterious empire. I have heard it in all parts of the czar's dominions from the Baltic sea to Bering strait and from Archangel to the Caspian, in the glittering palaces of Petersburg and in foul prison dens of Siberia.

It is a simple melody in the minor key, suggestive, like most Slav music, of sorrow and unrest, and it is called "Matushka (or Mother) Volga," as for some cryptic reason every Russian, be he noble or nihilist, is taught from childhood to regard this great river in the light of a maternal relative. Yet the river is full of sad associations, for convicts formerly traveled a portion of the journey to Siberia along its broad, sluggish stream.

I can never forget the haunting sweetness of "Matushka Volga" as I heard it sung on a prison barge one quiet summer evening by a party of fettered politicals banished to the great lone land of exile, for "Mother Volga" was their last link with home and the loved ones they might never meet again.

Fortunately the condemned are now sent into Asia by the Transsiberian railway, and the unhappy exile is spared at least one bitter parting—that from his well beloved "Mother Volga."

A Curious Tree.

One of the natural curiosities of south Mashonaland is a "German sausage tree." It bears deep crimson flowers, three inches long, in blazing bunches of twelve, but when the tree fruits into fat, substantial, sausage-like pods there remain no leaves, and it looks like a sausage larder indeed. These beans are twenty inches long and twelve inches in girth and are beloved of the native tribe of Shangaans and baboons. But the tribe of the Karenga are a very superior people and would never deign to eat them. There can be no reason for this, as at least no one can accuse these "sausages" of being connected in any way with dogs or cats.—Natal Witness.

TEN YEAR OLD BOY WAS DROWNED WHILE BATHING IN OTONABEE RIVER LAST NIGHT

Max Martyn, Son of Mr. M. Martyn, 134 Lock Street, Lost His Life in the Water—Went in Alone and Got Beyond His Depth — No Assistance Near.

THE BODY WAS RECOVERED

The Otonabee River claimed its first victim of the season last evening when Max Martyn, the second oldest son of Mr. Martin Martyn, 134 Lock St. was drowned while bathing about 100 yards above Rye's boat-house at the river terminus of the Radial Railway lines. The unfortunate little fellow who was only ten years of age went down to the river, to bathe shortly before six o'clock. He was unable to swim and went into the water alone, the only people who were near being two boys, Charlie Carson and Gerrard, little fellows of six or seven years of age. Young Martyn was splashing about in the water which is quite shallow near the shore, and gradually moved out. It is supposed that he stepped into a hole where the water was beyond his depth. The boys who saw the accident were too frightened to be able to give a rational account of just how the unfortunate affair occurred. Seeing Martyn disappear beneath the water they hurried from the scene and it was some time before they found some men and gave the alarm, after which they hurried home. A crowd quickly gathered but they were uncertain as to the exact place where the boy had gone down and although every effort was made to find him in the hope of being in time to resuscitate him, the attempt was in vain. Jas. McMartin, of McMartinville, just across the river from the spot was quickly on hand and dived into the water repeatedly, but could find no trace of the missing boy.

Mr. Harold Rye, proprietor of the boat-house, the boy's uncle, Mr. Alex. Gordon and others, searched around the place where the boy had gone in, in boats and armed with pike poles and grappling irons.

A big crowd gathered and many were coming to help in the search ~~when the body was finally discovered~~, at 7:30 o'clock, just an hour and one-half after the accident. Jimmy McMartin, who had resumed his diving operations, after resting for a while, was the one who made the discovery. Diving from a punt about 100 feet from where Martyn had disappeared, he found the body curled up on the bottom in about eight feet of water and raised it to the surface by the hair. Willing hands placed the remains in a boat and they were conveyed to a boat house. Coroner Dr. Gray was notified and gave permission to take the body home which was done a few minutes afterwards.

The drowned boy was a bright little fellow and was very popular with his school mates and with all who knew him. His tragic death has cast a gloom over that section of the city. The news spread very rapidly and genuine regret was expressed on all sides. The deceased is survived by his parents and by three brothers, Gordon, Leo and Roland, and one sister, Olive.

The funeral will take place to-morrow morning at nine o'clock from the family residence, 134 Lock street, to Little Lake cemetery.

DOUBLE DROWNING ON LAKE DESCHENES EARLY THIS MORNING

Special to The Examiner (2.45 p.m.)

Ottawa, July 15.—A double drowning occurred on Lake Deschenes, near Aylmer, Que., early this morning. The victims were Jenny and Dorothy Green, sisters, aged 32 and 23 respectively, who were waitresses at the hotel Victoria at Aylmer. The young women belonged to Richmond, Ont. They went boating with two young men, Guertin and Loyer, of Ottawa. The men were picked up exhausted. Boating parties have been in the habit of shouting as if in distress, and the people on shore paid no attention to the cries of these victims. The men had quarrelled with other men and the party is said to have had liquor.

Hastings Man Has Rescued Six Persons From Drowning

Hastings, July 15—On Tuesday evening of last week the Trent was near being the scene of a second drowning accident when little Pat Lemoire, son of Mr. Peter Lemoire, who was fishing on the pier at the foot of the slide lost his balance and tumbled into the swift water.

Louis "Wee" Marchand, who was near the youngster, tried to pull him back when the youngster lost his balance, but the lad's shirt gave way and he tumbled in. "Wee" lost no time in going right after, and after a hard fight got himself and the youngster out of the current and into the backwater, and up to the pier after which Master Lemoire went home, a wiser and a wetter lad.

This is the sixth person who has been rescued from a watery grave in the last two years by Louis Marchand. We doubt if any town or village in the province can show a record in life saving to beat this, and every rescue he has made he has had to go into the water and pull the victim of the accident out.

Only One In Crowd Of Montreal Citizens Assisted Policeman

Examiner Special.

Montreal, July 15.—The crossing of Metcalfe and St. Catherine streets was last night, at 7 o'clock, the scene of a most unusual affair, when two prisoners were taken forcibly from Constable Filiatreault of No. 6 Police Station. Towards seven, word came to Filiatreault, who was on beat on St. Catherine street, that there was some trouble at the corner of Metcalfe, and, in hastening to that place, he found a triangular fight in progress; two angles against one.

Filitreault at once took charge of the scrum, not, of course, in the capacity of referee, but as guardian of the peace, and after some little trouble got things disentangled enough to permit of his arresting somebody. He arrested two of the fighters—had he had a third hand he might have got the third party also.

By this time a fairish crowd had gathered around the late combatants, a large section of which was apparently made up of friends of the fisticuffers, for, as soon as the constable got his two hands on the two prisoners, he was jumped upon by an unknown, but variously estimated, number of men, who tried to pull the twain from the grip of the law.

Then the fun—on a larger scale this time—started all over again. The cop was pulled this way and that, but hung to his prisoners tenaciously, until, at last, he was forced to let them go and defend himself.

And out of the crowd of "citizens" only one man went to the officer's assistance. This man declined to give his name, although he got a pretty severe cut on the head from a stick wielded by one of the rescuers.

The act of losing the arrests to take up the defensive by Filitreault brought an abatement on of the attack, which ceased altogether when the late prisoners had mingled and were lost.

While the fight was at its height some on telephoned No. 6 station, but when the detail, Constables Shea, Parotte and Lafrance reached Metcalfe, the crowd had departed. Constable Filitreault was shaken up a bit but was not injured.

John Fallon Died In Hospital Without Regaining Consciousness

John Fallon passed away yesterday afternoon at half past four o'clock without having regained consciousness from the time he took a hemorrhage of the brain in the morning. Reference was made in Wednesday's issue to the occurrence. He has been employed periodically at the Oriental Hotel for the past 16 or 17 years and yesterday morning drove to the G.T.R. station to meet the Lakefield train. While driving into the station yard he was seized with the hemorrhage, and becoming unconscious fell from the seat. He was given every medical attention but did not rally and shortly after four o'clock passed away at St. Joseph's Hospital. The deceased was 35 years of age and leaves a wife and three children, the youngest of whom is six months old. A sad circumstance is the fact that there is scarlet fever in the home.

The funeral will be held at 4 o'clock from the residence of the deceased's mother, Edinburgh street, to the Little Lake Cemetery.

Favourable Crop Reports Have Helped The Prices

New York, July 15.— (Special) — Expectations of a favourable crop report, which made its appearance on Thursday, was mainly responsible for the slight advance in prices in the stock market during the past week. Grain prices advanced simultaneously with the rise in quotations in stocks. Wall Street has witnessed such an anomaly several times this season. Southern Pacific was especially strong on the report that the dividend will be increased. Extravagant predictions are made as to what the stock will sell at before the end of the year. Heavy selling of United States steel lowered the price of that security quite a little and there was a seeming weakness in a good many other quarters.

The bond market continues strong and active. The Southern Iron & Steel Company has sold $1,000,000 of their first and refunding mortgage twenty year bonds. It is understood that about half of the issue has been placed in New York and the remainder in London, Berlin, Paris and Vienna. A French syndicate is supposed to have bought the Southern Pacific convertibles with the understanding that the common stock will be put on a seven per cent basis.

The majority of copper producers very likely sold more copper in June than they produced, as was the case in May, and most of the estimates ranged between 12,000,000 and 22,000,000 as the amount of the reduction of the surplus. New business seems to be slack in comparison with the activity in May and June. The opinion of the trade in general is that the London decline has been brought about by speculation of the kind that is often employed to further cheap purchases of the metal here.

The most important development in the iron and steel trade is the building of a large new addition to the Gary plant by the United States Steel Corporation, which will consist of fifty sheet and fifty tin plate mills. The Illinois Steel Company has refused to follow the Carnegie Company by making a further advance of $1.00 per ton in prices of bars, plates and shapes. This is a step away from the time honoured custom of making Pittsburg the basin gpoint for these products and will enable Chicago plants to deliver their goods at lower prices than formerly. The pig iron output of the steel corporation for July promises to be the largest in history. Orders from railroads so far this month have been small, but there are inquiries for large tonnages.

For the first time in two weeks cotton prices met with an abrupt setback in their upward course, due to the fear, that for the time being, the advance has been sufficient. The general belief among the trade is that crop conditions have not improved since the publication of the Government crop report, especially in Texas, where it has been too hot and dry. Opinion seems to prevail that we will raise enough cotton for trade requirements.

BAT. NELSON GOT BAD WHIPPING

Kid Wolgast of Milwaukee Tied Him Up After First Round

Los Angeles, Cal., July 14.—Wolgast, of Milwaukee, despite the fact that he weighed five pounds less than Battling Nelson, gave the terrible Dane a thorough whipping in a ten-round bout before the Pacific Athletic Club last night.

After an even first round, Wolgast waded in and had the advantage in six of the remaining rounds The champion did not have a single round in his favour, an even break being the best he could get.

Nelson's face was badly swollen and blood streamed from his nose and mouth at the close of the fight Wolgast was unmarked.

It was a terrific fight from the start and it was not until the ninth and tenth rounds that Wolgast succeeded in stopping Nelson's steady rushes.

Wolgast was born at Cadillac, Mich. Feb. 8, 1888, and is thus now twenty-one years of age He is of German extraction and started his ring career in local bouts around Milwaukee in 1906 His first fights were at 122 lbs., and last night he fought at 130 lbs.

Los Angeles, Cal., July 14—The law does not permit a decision, but Wolgast apparently had Nelson thoroughly whipped at the end of the tenth round.

FOUND 100 DOLLARS OF MRS. BALL'S

Bailiff Took Sixty of It—Wife and Children Are United and With Friends— Before Magistrate Dumble This Morning.

WAS ALLOWED OUT OF JAIL

Mrs. Harry Ball, who was remanded for a week yesterday on the charge of attempting to commit suicide was taken from the gaol this morning and brought to the police court. Mr. B. Lastar, acting as a friend of the family stated that he and his wife would take care of her and the three children if she was allowed to go with him. Magistrate Dumble was satisfied and apparently did not wish to have the woman kept in the gaol. Mr. Lastar also asked what would be done about the $100 that had been found in the house by the authorities. It belonged to Mrs. Ball, but the bailiff had taken $60 of it and had handed back $40. Mr. Dumble said he had nothing to do with that matter. It was entirely a civil affair. A complete account of every cent would have to be given by the creditors. The magistrate did not give any advice as to what steps should be taken.

As to the reason for the disappearance of Mr. Ball, the Examiner learned from the authorities that a friend of the family had stated that there had been a dispute or quarrel between the husband and wife on Sunday morning. It is known that Mrs. Ball had $100 and the husband wrote that he was taking $50, and as far as can be learned the store's debts were not more than $100. Mrs. Ball had undoubtedly fully intended to commit suicide on Tuesday night. She wrote a letter to her sister, who lives in the city, to the effect that she was to have all her belongings. She also told the acting bailiff of her intentions, but remarked that he need not watch her as he would not find her out. It was P. C. Meharry who detected the odour of the acid although it had been mixed with coffee.

The children were brought from the Shelter and are again united with their mother.

AT GORE'S LANDING

Dedication of St. George's Church Takes Place This Afternoon.

The dedication of the new St. George's Church at Gore's Landing is taking place this afternoon and a large number of Peterborough people have gone down for the occasion. The usual Thursday half-holiday excursions are being held, the Otonabee running one, and the steamer Stoney Lake, of the Stoney Lake Navigation Company the other. Both boats were well patronized, the weather being delightful for an outing.

MANY ON RIVER

Boating is the Popular Pastime With Peterborough Young People Just Now.

The Otonabee River has never been so largely patronized by pleasure seekers as it is this season. Every evening sees hundreds of canoes and dozens of gasoline launches filled with merry young people out for a few pleasant hours on the river. Rye's boathouse, at the end of the street railway line is being very largely patronized, so much so that it is sometimes difficult to secure a boat. Many people have formed the habit of going down to the end of the car line and spending an hour or so watching the flotilla of boats. It is a way of spending an evening that many citizens apparently are unaware of. It is recommended to those who are sweltering in the heat of the hot city. It is not necessary to get out on the river to keep cool and there are many pleasant places in which to sit down in comfort.

KICKED HIS FOUR YEAR OLD CHILD AND STRUCK HIS WIFE NOW THE COUPLE SEPARATE

Troubles of Married Life Illustrated by a Police Court Case --Wife Sells Household Furniture While Husband is in Police Station---Magistrate Dismisses the Case, Being Unable to do Anything in the Matter---Details of Fracas

According to the evidence adduced in police court yesterday afternoon the married life of Mr. and Mrs. M. Derosie has not been exactly what might be termed a bed of roses. At a special session of the police court Derosie appeared before Magistrate Dumble on a charge of assaulting his wife, Bridget Derosie, and her four-year-old child, and of having threatened to use a razor. His wife asked that he be bound over to keep the peace, pleading that she was afraid of him. The net result of the case was a dismissal, the Magistrate stating his inability to do anything to settle the matter.

Mrs. Derosie was the first witness. She stated that she had three children. On Monday, the twelfth of July, her husband went up town in the morning and secured a bottle of liquor in her mother's name, having no money to pay for the whiskey. He had quit work on the Thursday before. He returned to the house and drank the whiskey. The witness admitted that she had helped in the consumption of the fire water as had her mother. In the afternoon he had gone up town again and tried to get more liquor in the same way, but she had sent a letter to the proprietor asking him not to supply her husband with any more. Derosie had then taken three pictures from the house and sold them for a dollar to secure drink.

Witness stated that Derosie had then returned to his house. She was at the home of her mother three doors away, and her husband had beckoned her as he passed to go home. She was afraid to go into the house and sent the key over. Derosie, however, refused to use the key and smashed the door in. He then came out, walked over to the railway track and made an attempt to board a passing freight train without success.

"He then came back to my mother's house," continued the witness, "and wanted me to go back and get him his supper; I told him that he could get his supper where he got his drink. Our four-year-old child was on the sidewalk and he motioned for her to come. She, however, ran into my mother's house where I was. He caught her and gave her two kicks in the side, knocking her down. I left my baby on the kitchen floor and ran to save the child. He ran into me and hit me on the side of the head as hard as he could draw his arm. My mother pulled the child away. My husband went back into the house and tore up or burned every stitch of clothing belonging to myself and the children. I had to borrow clothes to come here."

Her husband cross-examined her, but failed to shake her story very much. He elicited from her the fact that his mother-in-law, upon whose shoulders he seemed inclined to lay the blame for the trouble, had hit him over the head with a broom. "It was only to save the child," remarked the witness. Derosie failed, however, in his attempt to show that his wife had hurled a beer bottle at him. She strenuously denied having done anything of the kind.

John Berry, cousin of Mrs. Derosie was the next witness. He stated that he had seen the fracas. Derosie had come home drunk, and had ordered his wife to get him his supper, which she had refused to do. He had gone out for a while, returned and kicked the little girl twice and then struck his wife. He had never seen Derosie in that condition before, and as far as he knew the defendant had always supported his wife and children.

"Isn't this man all right when he is sober?" asked the Magistrate.

The complainant had to admit that he was.

"Then why can't you agree to try and get along together?" asked Mr. Dumble.

"I am willing," replied the husband "and will try to let the drink alone."

The wife, however, was obdurate.

"I'll not do it. I have sold everything in the house," she said.

"Well, I can't do anything for you," replied the Magistrate; "I can't give you a divorce."

Mrs. Derosie refused to go back to her husband and expressed her ability to take care of herself and her children. Derosie seemed quite willing to allow her to do this, but wanted to know if he could not have some of the money secured by the sale of the household tares and penates, which, he stated, he had earned by hard work.

"Your half will just pay for the clothes you destroyed," snapped out the wife, and the answer was in meaning if not literally, "Well, that's fair enough."

Magistrate Dumble dismissed the case, saying that he had no other course to pursue. There was no evidence as to Derosie's threatening to use a razor.

Horses Show Signs Of Return Of Strange Summer Disease

During the past few days there have been a number of cases of a disease among horses, apparently the same as that which raged at this season last year. Dr. Johnston has had five cases in two days, and last year had 67 in two weeks. It has been noticed a little earlier than in 1908, but it is undoubtedly the same disease. This morning a reporter called at the doctor's office just as Mr. Robert Redmond, of Otonabee, was getting some medicine for a horse of his that was in a serious condition.

Dr. Johnston was not confident as to the exact nature of the disease, but his knowledge of its symptoms and its effects lead him to believe it a form of typhoid fever. Out of the 67 cases last year only two horses had been lost and from the experience with the disease the doctor says it is very similar to the action of typhoid in men. He was surprised to see it reappear again this summer and particularly at the early date. No cases have ever been reported within five miles of the city and stall-fed horses are not affected. It is believed that the warm weather is largely the cause of the trouble, and it may be that the grass has something to do with it.

Dr. Johnston says he has not found one case among cattle. The cause of the disease is rather doubtful and is not exactly known, but it can be safely treated when the horses are noticed in time.

Section Crew Did Not Hear Train Till Almost On Them

Hastings, July 14.—The Hastings section crew on the G. T. R. had a rather exciting time on Wednesday morning in running down to Campbellford, on the lorry, when they were overtaken by a double-header freight, which came onto them around a curve, and before the crew had time to get the pumper and lorry off the tracks the engine crashed into them, spilling a large assortment of bolts, spikes, etc., as well as the lorry and pumper all over the landscape. The crew left here before the station was open in the morning with considerable material for the gang in Campbellford which was needed to start the Campbellford men to work, and consequently had no warning of the train coming until they heard the first whistle about seventy-five yards behind them. It was fortunate that no one was hurt as the men stuck to the cars trying to clear the tracks until the engine struck them.

Boys' Secretary Of The Local Y. M. C. A. Sends In Resignation

Mr. Geo. T. Evans, who for the past ten months has ably filled the position of Boys' Secretary of the local Y.M.C.A. placed his resignation in the hands of the directors on Tuesday night and it was accepted by them. Mr. Evans intends to enter Toronto University for a four-year term in the autumn and will devote himself to Y.M.C.A. work after graduation. He leaves for his home in Hamilton on Saturday.

Mr. Evans' departure from the city will be regretted. Since he has been in charge of the boys of the Association a great improvement in the work done in that department has been noticeable. He has kept the boys interested and enthusiastic by constantly providing new games and amusements for them and vast strides have been made in athletics by the boys.

SIX MONTHS IN CENTRAL

Two Boys of the Gang That Broke Into Londry Residence Are Sentenced by Magistrate Dumble This Morning—Crouter Given His Liberty.

WILL ASK FOR A PARDON.

Joseph Keegan and Howard Innis, six months each in Central Prison, Wesley Crouter discharged. Magistrate Dumble thus disposed of a theft case which has been dragging along through police court for a considerable time.

On June 9th, a gold watch and a glass eye, valued at five dollars was stolen from the residence of Mrs. John Londry, 431 Bethune street. The boys were arrested charged with the theft and the case has been under consideration during the past month. The particulars have already been made public. This morning Magistrate Dumble was prepared to give judgment.

Mr. F. D. Kerr, on behalf of Crouter, said he was there with the boys but was only on the lawn. The only thing to be said about him was P. C. Newhall's recollection that the boys said it was a plan they were following. Mr. Kerr considered that the officer must have thought that it was a plan, or he made a mistake in interpreting the meaning of what he had heard.

A Bad Gang

Mr. Dumble said: "I am satisfied that this gang or bunch as they called themselves worked together. I do not find that Crouter was in the house although one of the boys said all three were in."

I am disposed to give him the benefit of the doubt, although I know him to be a bad lot. I find Innis and Keegan guilty. This is a bad gang. Their history is bad and they are simply going step by step from bad to worse to a criminal life. I think the community demands that they be broken up.

I adjudge that both Innis and Keegan be sent to Central Prison for six months."

Crouter was given his liberty. His Lordship remarked that the town had suffered too much from the depredations of boys starting out in the wrong path. He trusted that Keegan and Innis would realize what they had done and would return better boys.

Mrs. Keegan, with motherly instinct, tried to persuade the Magistrate to give her son another chance. He had promised to do better. He had always been a good boy at home and had never done anything in the past. His Worship heard but was not impressed and his judgment was unchanged.

Will Ask For Pardon.

Mr. G. N. Gordon, when asked by an Examiner reporter what he intended to do, said he would ask the Minister of Justice for a pardon for Keegan, his client. He thought that under the circumstances he would be successful, as he had secured the liberty of several other boys who were in a similar case in the past.

HAD FACE SCALDED

Hastings Man Came in Contact With Exhaust From Drill.

Examiner Special.

Hastings, July 15.—Mr. Will Barry met with a painful accident on the canal while assisting at the steam drill on the canal, in the cut above the locks, when he received a severe scald across the face from the exhaust of the drill. He had stooped down to loosen the drill which had become stuck, and in raising his head met the blast of steam. He will be on the sick list for more than a week. All the boathouses have gone off the water front along here, and make a decided improvement to that part of the river.

ARE TOURING CANAL.

Dr. and Mrs. Zepp, of Orillia, are To-day in Their Gasoline Launch.

Dr. and Mrs. Zebb of Orillia, were in Peterborough this morning on their way to Hastings. They have been making a tour of the Trent Canal in their trim gasoline launch, and reached Peterborough this morning. They started their trip at Orillia and will end it at Hastings, thus having covered very nearly all the navigable portion of the canal. They have so far enjoyed their journey very much as everything has gone smoothly.

SMALL BUSINESS

It seems mighty small business for a rich government, like that of Ontario, to sponge upon the private enterprise of the public. It now seems probable that the Government will not dispose of the unsold remainder of the Gillies Limit property, owing to the low prices tendered in the last sale, which brought only about 100 low bids. It is stated that it is the intention of the Government to hold the greater part of the property in order that the result of operations by those who are developing their property under the terms of the first sale will give the Department a closely accurate idea of the value of the unsold government lands throughout the limit. This is indeed "the limit" of petty meanness. We expect a certain class of private individuals to sit down and watch the weeds grow in their vacant lots and enjoy the unearned increment in value produced by the enterprise of others building in their vicinity; but that a government should descend to such petty meanness in money matters is inconceivable. Governments exist for the benefit of the public, not to make money out of the public. The Government should, as any wise private owner, who wished to dispose of the property would have done, have taken steps to ascertain and make known the value of the limit as a mineral deposit; then a sale called, with such information available, the bids would have been based on knowledge and bidders would not have had to run the risk of being "gold-bricked." Excluding the limits from prospecting and withholding whatever information as to value the Government might have possessed, was a very good way to get small bids.

CIVIC GOVERNMENT BY COMMISSION

We do not need the example of the corruption of Montreal's municipal government to entertain a question of the failure of representative government in respect of some forms of municipal administration. There is not wanting evidence, that as far as results go, lack of system and inefficiency are as effectively potent elements in unprofitable expenditure of the taxes paid by ratepayers, as is "graft" practiced to a proportionate extent. Without imputing to any one set of civic representatives, dishonesty or especial lack of administrative ability, no ratepayer will be unjustified in holding that the prevailing plan does not give adequate value in the way of services for the money expended. In remedy of these conditions refuge in government by commission has been suggested. In Peterborough the success achieved by the Water Commissioners in discharging their trust, in applying system and business methods to the management of a public utility with satisfactory service, moderate rates, and the balance on the right side of the ledger, has demonstrated the value of administration by commissioners. Ratepayers have been heard to express the belief, that the city would have better results if the government were placed in the hands of three capable commissioners, at a good round salary. Of course that is only an opinion—an estimate. But that there is something in it, is shown by our experience with our Water Works Commission. This contention is strengthened by the experience of cities in the United States where paid commissioners have been substituted for the ordinary city council. Galveston, Texas, with a population of 47,000, has been revolutionized for the better under the commission system, and Houston in the same state, with a population of 51,000, has tried it with similar success. From a contemporary is extracted the following in relation to the results arising from the commission form of civic government in Galveston and Houston:

"Since they took office, Mayor Rice and his four associates (commissioners) have relieved Houston of a floating debt of $400,000; have created a sinking fund to take care of the bonded debt; have invested nearly $700,000 in permanent public service improvements out of current revenue; have bought the waterworks system and made it yield a profit above all charges, besides reducing rates and saving the city $2,500 a month in hydrant rentals; have driven out pool rooms and gamblers; greatly multiplied the paved streets and prepared the way for further enterprises in the way of storm drainage, sanitary sewerage, free municipal wharves, and the organization of a navigable district which will yield returns into the tens of millions.

"Houston was driven to government by commission, as Galveston had been driven, three years earlier, by municipal waste and cheap grafting under the old ward system. The two Texas cities are now national examples, though that which happens in their affairs is the simplest and most logical thing imaginable. It is only that the people are regarded as stockholders and the municipal business is conducted for their benefit in business like fashion."

The last sentence in the above contains the root of the matter, the application of business methods instead of methods varied and bedevilled—though perhaps unconsciously—by considerations of policy founded upon a polity subject to annual fluctuation.

THE GRAND TRUNK IN LONDON, ENGLAND.

The crowning importance of the Grand Trunk Railway System, the

The crowning importance of the Grand Trunk Railway System, the expansion and extension of business, has necessitated the building of a new Grand Trunk building in London, Eng. The need of more room has been made all the more apparent since the Grand Trunk Pacific was projected. The Company has been fortunate enough to secure a site at No. 17-19 Cockspur street, S. W., from the London County Council. Upon this site they have erected a splendid building. The Canadian Government Emigration offices are at Charing Cross, but a stone's throw frmo the Grand Trunk building. It is within five minutes of half a dozen leading Hotels and near the intake to the tube at Trafalgar Square Station. Motor busses pass the door every few seconds to all parts of London, North, South, East and West.

The inside furnishings of the new building are luxuriously complete; mail is picked up every hour of the day.

A noticeable feature of the building is the range of circular fronted balconies on the fifth floor in front of deeply recessed windows, which are surmounted by a very effective heavy moulded and medallioned main cornice.

The carving on the front wall, which includes the Coat of Arms of the Canadian provinces traversed by the Grand Trunk System, was executed by Mr. W. S. Frith. The graceful fighres over the principal entrance, emblematic of travel by land and sea, are the work of Mr. Albert Drury, A.R.A.

The public offices entered from Cockspur Street, through the great central doorway, is a fine room forty feet long and eighteen feet high. The floor is marble, the walls are panelled in teak, with inlays of ebony and holly. In this room there is a magnificent freize, by Mr. Frank Brangwyn, A.R.A., which pictures Canada in the wild, hunting scenes; Indian life; the meeting of the pathfinder—the engineer—with the Indian chief, and finally the civilizing influence of the railway and the white man upon the red man's country.

The new offices were opened on Dominion Day, and hereafter the European Traffic Department of the Grand Trhnk Railway system and the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway will occupy these new premises, which have already become one of the sights to be seen in London.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

If with the Canadian Pacific Railway only in operation, it was found impossible to move 100 million bushels of a western wheat crop, what would be the result with one hundred and forty millions bushels to be marketed? There is no such question Without two additional railways there would have been no such increased yield. In anticipation of railway construction new areas were settled and put under crop.

Mr. Daniel Mann, of the Mackenzie and Mann, has returned from a long tour in the West. He predicts a harvest of 140,000,000 bushels in three provinces. No doubt a great deal of this is due to the assumption of new areas of wheat growing through the building of the Transcontinental and Canadian Northern Railways, and one may well expect that the wheat products of the Canadian west will be doubled in a few years.

The Toronto News takes every opportunity to give the Liberal Government a "dig." In writing of financial conditions, referring to the last Canadian loan negotiated in London, it says: "The Finance Minister's improvident administration of the Dominion Treasury has not helped Canadian credit abroad." In the next paragraph it makes "the feeling in capitalistic circles that the bond business has rather been over done for the time being"—not the condition of Canadian credit—responsible for a lack of anxiety to subscribe.

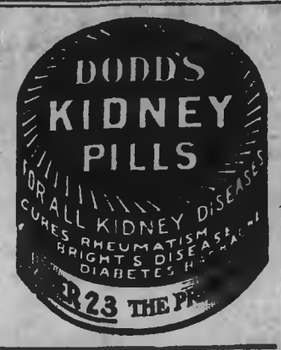
DR. CHASE'S OINTMENT.



CANADA AND UNITED STATES TARIFF

(Pulp and Paper Magazine.)

The tangle regarding the tariff to be imposed by the United States on Canadian pulp and paper seems to become more ravelled. The Congress Committee proposed several varying measures and then took them back; and the Senate Committee is following suit. The feeling of Canadians generally is that it is of no use to worry ourselves too much as to what the duties will be; the Americans themselves being just as much in the dark at present as we are ourselves. As to any tariff of a retaliatory nature being levied as a counterbalance to recently announced legislation in Quebec Province the case is well put by a well-known Canadian paper manufacturer who inverted the usual biblical quotation by saying that Canada smites Uncle Sam on one cheek and the latter turns his other cheek to be smitten by himself. In dealing with pulp-wood in the way that Ontario and Quebec are doing Canadians have no wish to do any "smiting." It is simply a question of business interest and self-preservation.

The latest news from Washington is to the effect that the Senate Committee has revised its print paper and wood pulp schedule in accordance with amendments suggested by Senator Brown, of Nebraska.

The first of these amendments was a proposed duty on chemical wood pulp, unbleached, of one-sixth of one cent per pound, dry weight; bleached, one-fourth of one cent per pound, dry weight. Mechanically ground wood pulp shall be admitted free of duty, provided that if the President shall ascertain and make proclamation to the effect that any country, dependency, province or any sub-division thereof, has unduly discriminated against the United States by the imposition of an export duty or other export charge of any kind whatsoever upon any pulp-wood, wood pulp, or printing paper exported into the United States, or has forbidden or unfairly restricted the exportation thereof in any way, either directly or indirectly, thereupon and thereafter there shall be imposed upon all mechanically ground wood pulp a duty of one-twelfth of one per cent. per pound, dry weight; an additional duty upon chemical wood pulp, unbleached, of one-sixth of one cent per pound, dry weight; and upon chemical wood pulp, bleached, of one-fourth of one cent per pound, dry weight, when imported from such country, dependency, province or any sub-division thereof into the United States.

The Dingley tariff on mechanically ground pulp is one-twelfth of a cent a pound, dry weight.

The second amendment provides that if the President shall ascertain and make proclamation to that effect that any country, dependency, province or any sub-division thereof, had unduly discriminated against the United States by the imposition of an export duty or other export charge of any kind whatsoever upon any pulp-wood, wood pulp, or printing paper exported into the United States, or has forbidden or unfairly restricted the exportation thereof into the United States in any way, thereupon and thereafter there shall be imposed upon all printing paper valued at three cents per pound or less an additional duty equal to the rate imposed by this section upon such paper when imported from such country dependency, province or any sub-division thereof into the United States.

Under these amendments wood pulp would be admitted free, but that in case of discrimination on the part of the Dominion of Canada or any of its provinces, upon the proclamation of the president a duty could be applied.

Senator Aldrich later made an additional provision to the effect that in case any such country, dependency, province or sub-division thereof shall forbid directly or indirectly the exportation (to the United States) of any wood pulp, logs or wood for use in the manufacture of wood pulp (and the President shall be of the opinion that such prohibition unduly discriminates against the United States and shall issue a proclamation to that effect thereupon and thereafter) an additional duty equal to the rates of duty imposed by this paragraph upon wood pulp shall be imposed on any wood pulp imported from such country or dependency.

The publishers represented by John Norris are said to be jubilant over the results of their representations to the Tariff Committee, although it is a little difficult to see why they should be so. They would be still more jubilant doubtless if they could induce, as they are trying to do, the committee to depress the duty on news to $2 per ton. Heretofore it has been $6, while the Committee seems disposed to compromise on $4. The paper-makers of the United States are worried and point out that $6 is only barely enough to equalize the difference betwene the cost of production in that country and Canada. It is true that attempts have been made to prove that paper can be made at a lower cost in the United States than in Canada. But, as Mr. Hastings, president of the American Paper and Pulp Association, points out, this figuring of comparative costs has been confined mainly to the actual manufacturing processes and has not taken account of the greater cheapness of wood in Canada, which allowing for transportation is an average of $4 per cord less than in the United States or a difference on a ton of paper of about $6 in favour of Canada. All the comparisons between the costs in the two countries, he points out, have been made on a basis of particularly expensive periods of pulp-wood in Canada and normal or low-price periods in the United States, which is manifestly misleading.

An interesting report that is going around, on what kind of authority we do not know, is to the effect that the United States Committee favour the idea of allowing pulp made by American citizens in Canadian mills to come in free of any surtax. It is stated that the Backus-Brooks Company, which is establishing pulp mills at Fort Frances, has already been assured that such an understanding will be reached.

It is evident that the American paper manufacturers do not take much stock in the idea that paper costs more to produce in Canada than in their own country. As a sign of the times it is stated that, should the proposed duty of $2 per ton become law, the International Paper Company will remove at least 50 per cent. of their capacity to this side of the line and that they would still save enough in working expenses to make the payment of this duty a profitable transaction.

THE HAND-PICKED MAN.

Whig, Kingston.

What does the Mail mean by saying that Hon. Mr. King was boomed for the place he occupies "to the disadvantage of Liberals of ability who were regorded as in line for cabinet preference?" Mr. King was originally selected by Sir William Mulock because of his peculiar fitness for the post which was designed to serve the labour department. The place was a new one, in connection with a bureau which was designed to serve the labour interests in an efficient and practical way. As a peace maker Mr. King became a great success. He did not fail in any mission. Indeed, he brought to the work of the arbitrator a skill and diplomacy that at once made him distinguished among his fellows.

In time it became evident that the labour department should not be a mere appendage of the post office department but independent, and have its own head, and so be equipped for the larger usefulness which it promised. Who should be that head if not Mr. King? He had qualified for it. He had worked for it. He had made good. He had the experience without which no man could very well assume to discharge the duties of minister. He could have remained the deputy, and some one else, without his training, could have been passed over his head. That's the Mail's idea of the eternal fitness of things. The tail wagging the dog. It's a performance that even the Mail would have ridiculed had it in the first place been seriously proposed.

Then there is such a solicitude about the other men "who were regarded as in line for cabinet office." But it only applies to the federal government. When Sir James Whitney wanted a minister of mines he did not lay his hand on one of the men who had been waiting for a call, but he sent for Hon. Frank Cochrane and found him a seat in the House. When Hon. Mr. Monteith felt it incumbent upon him to retire from the agricultural department, the people having withdrawn their confidence from him, Sir James Whitney did not see the Conservatives of ability "who were regarded as in line for cabinet preferment." He saw Mr. Duff, who was not ever trained or ever thought of by the knowing ones who haunt the legislative halls. Under the circumstances the Mail will be forgiven. The hot weather is on, and it produces some queer effects.

THE MAN FOR SANDY

I wouldna gie a copper plack
For ony man that turns his back
On duty clear;
I wouldna tak his word or note,
I wouldna trust him for a groat,
I wouldna ride in ony boat
Which he might steer.

When things are just as things should be
And fortune gie's a man a plea,
Where'er he be
It isna hard to understand
How he may walk through house or land
Wi' cheerfu face and open hand
Continually.

But when i' spite o' work and care,
A man must loss and failure bear,
He merits praise
Wha will not to misfortune bow,
Wha cocks his bonnet on his brow,
And fights and fights, he kensna how
Through lang hard days.

I wouldna flie an auld bawbee,
For ony man that I could see,
Who didna hold,
The sweetness o' his mither's name,
The kindness o' his brither's claim,
The honor o' a woman's fame,
Far mair than gold.

Nor is it hard for him to do,
Wha kens his friens are leal and true,
Love sweet and strong,
Whose hearth knows not from year to year,
The shadow of a doubt or fear,
Or feels the falling of a tear,
For ony wrong.

But gie him praise whose love is pain,
Wha, wronged, forgives and loves again,
And though he grieves,
Lets not the dear one from his care,
But loves him mair, and mair, and mair,
And bides his times wi' hope and prayer,
And still believes.

Aye, gie him praise wha doesna fear
The uphill fight from year to year,
And wha grips fast
His ain dear ones through good or ill,
Wha, if they wander, loves them still,
Some day of joy he'll get his fill,
He'll win at last.

A Helpful Page for the Housewife

USEFUL HOUSEHOLD UTENSILS

By Ellen Wise

MANY women like to buy coffee in the form of beans and do their own grinding.

For those who prepare their coffee in this way there is an ingenious little labor saving device that is worth trying. It is taken for granted that the coffee beans are kept in a jar of the kind that every housewife has on hand for storage purposes and for preserving time. The coffee grinder is made so that this jar can be fitted to the top. The jar is inverted and the rim of the neck is then engaged by clamps that hold it firmly above the grinder. In this position the beans flow down into the grinder as fast as the turning of the handle reduces them to powder.

This coffee, ready for use, flows from the grinding machine into a tumbler that is clamped to the opposite end of the grinding machine in the same way that the jar is fastened above.

Both jar and glass are easily released and the simplicity of the arrangement and the handiness of the idea make it decidedly useful.

Among the ice picks that are new this year is a heavy one that will save time for those who like to break the icy cake into small chunks without delay and with one implement instead of two, as with the hammer and needle idea.

A combination light improver and stove is shown here. Most of the devices for cooking on the gas shut out the light entirely while the cooking is going on.

This little stove is open at the sides and the back acts as a reflector so that the light is actually improved while the stove is in use.

The heat from the gas finds its way to the cooking utensil through a circle of perforated holes around the rim, these holes being large enough to permit the light of the flame to enter the reflecting interior of the stove.

A new holder for the sponge will be found useful in the bath room. It is made with flexible prongs which can be bent around the side of the tub and in this way made stationary for the reception of the sponge.

It is possible for the self-reliant housewife of to-day to mend the broken leaks in the pots and pans. That is to say, she knows how to do it, but she has not the soldering apparatus necessary. To help her in this emergency there has been provided a soldering outfit especially for woman's use. It consists of a small iron, a piece of solder and a scrap of tin; all the material necessary for a small tinkering job. The entire outfit is being sold for ten cents so that there is no excuse for discarding the pan that has sprung a tiny leak when it can be mended in a few minutes with the aid of this handy little outfit.

An improvement on the corn scraper is shown among the illustrations. This scraper is set up on legs so that a plate can be placed beneath to catch the corn as it is scraped from the ear. The aperture for the fall of this corn, it will be noticed, is made extra wide so as to permit of the scraped corn falling to the plate without clogging the scraper.

Housewife and the "Blues"

If a housewife declared "she nearly died of the blues," her depression is apt to be due to one of two causes—she either takes too much interest in her house, or not enough.

If she makes her house an idol, if she allows every speck to fret and worries each time the cook slips up in a meal or the waitress chips a plate, her nerves will suffer, and weakened nerves and blues are twin sisters.

Her cure is a more normal view of her relation to her home. She should not lessen her interest in housekeeping, merely direct it on a broader plain. Let her be the impressionist and aim for effect rather than detail; let her also ground herself in the belief that no household damage or kitchen shortcoming is worth the deadly gloom that the blues bring in their trail.

The woman whose house fails to interest her is probably "blue" from doing-naught. She lacks a wholesome interest to keep thoughts from dwelling on her aches and pains or to prevent her from boredom.

Let her take over control of her housekeeping for a time, study out more systematic ways to run it, try how much she can save in a month without feeling a change in her style of living, plan the daily meals with a thought to nourishment and variety at least cost, and she will be surprised to note how her spirits improve.

This cause of the blues is more frequent with women who have money enough to provide competent servants. They are sure that things will be well run, so pay small attention to the methods. Where cost must be counted, where a woman must do her own work entirely or in part, there is not much time for getting low in one's mind.

This past Winter a young housekeeper, whose home had run so smoothly that she never gave it a thought, suddenly lost the cook who had been with her for three years, and at the same time found that immediate retrenchment was necessary.

The husband proposed giving up housekeeping and boarding, but the girl decided to first take a smaller house and try to run it herself. She sought advice from an aunt who was famed for her management of a small income, and in a few month found that not only was she able to keep down costs, but was happier and freer from the blues than at anytime since her marriage.

HOT WEATHER FOODS

By Christine Terhune Herrick

I WONDER how many housekeepers modify their family bills of fare to suit the hot weather. How many appreciate the fact that the system cannot handle the food it disposes of in Winter without putting an unwarrantable strain upon the organs of digestion?

Look at the farm house bill of fare, for instance. In the parts of the country with which I am most familiar there is usually a good deal of "work eaten on farms. Also there are many pies. Doughnuts are a part of the regular food supply and baking powder biscuits figure prominently, and there are griddle cakes and the like. All of these are good in cold weather, but go fast as I have known they make their appearance in Summer, too.

On the other hand, the dwellers in cities drift into a similar rut. Both in city and country the frying pan is rather too much in evidence although the articles cooked in it may vary in the two places.

In the city there is a tendency to rely a good deal on "bakers' stuff"—cakes, pies, crullers. Of course, vegetables appear on the table in their season—more plentifully in the city than in the country, sometimes, since the time of the men on the farm cannot always be spared for work in the garden. With that I have nothing to do at present. The point I am most interested in is that neither in city nor country is there enough difference made between the food served in cold weather and in hot.

But someone may say "How can we make a difference? There are high priced dishes which are delicate and cooling but the work of preparing them is more than that of doing the hot cookery and they cost more. We'd like to make a change, but it's so much more trouble that we don't care to attempt it."

There is where you make your mistake. It is really no more trouble to serve a different sort of food in hot weather than in cold, and it certainly need cost no more. There are expensive dishes for Summer, but it is not of those that I think, when I talk of hot weather cookery. Pate de foie gras in aspic or tinned turkey in jelly or other chaudfroids, are not what I have in mind. The changes I have to suggest are much simpler.

Let us look for a moment at the first meal of the day. Already we have spoken more or less on the breakfast question and I have no intention of going into it further just here except to advise you to dismiss the notion that at breakfast the majority of foods must be hot. Try a cold breakfast sometimes in hot weather and see if the change is not for the better.

One of these torrid mornings when you feel as though there were a Sahara stretch of heat before you, have your coffee or your tea iced instead of hot and see if you do not enjoy the change. If you use a cooked cereal, prepare enough one day to enable you to put a portion of it into small cups, first wetting these in cold water.

The next morning you can turn out moulded oatmeal or farina, whatever you have and eat the porridge cold with cream. Should you find you don't like it like this, it is an easy matter to pop it back into the saucepan and warm it over.

Make great use of fruits in hot weather, not only at the breakfast table where with thin bread and butter or with the cold cereal they may make the principal part of your meal, but also at luncheon and at dinner.

Fresh fruits are always in order for desserts, whether they be melons or berries or peaches or pears. They may be served plain—in strawberry time the unhulled berries may be served to the family to be dipped in sugar and eaten with the fingers—the peaches and other large fruits whole—or they may be sliced and eaten with cream and sugar or with wine and sugar, or in a fruit salad, which is suitable for a dessert, for a beginning to a meal or for a salad course, according to the way in which it is prepared and the dressing with which it is served.

Salads should be a very important part of the bill of fare in hot weather. You all of you know such heavy standbys as lobster and chicken and salmon salad as well as the regulation green salad of lettuce or Romaine, or cress, or chicory. How many others do you know? You take it for granted that you should have hot vegetables for dinner, but does it occur to you to cook enough of them to-day to insure there being sufficient left for a salad for luncheon or dinner to-morrow?

There are very few vegetables which are not good in a salad. Eggplant is one of them—I have never eaten a salad of eggplant any more than I have eaten one of parsnips or of squash. Has any one else ever eaten a salad made of one of these vegetables? But barring these out, I don't believe there is any other vegetable which cannot figure acceptably in a salad.

Run over them for a moment. Green peas make a delicious salad. So do string beans and lima beans and butter beans. Beets, like tomatoes, are at their best in a salad. Green corn is extremely good in a salad. So is cauliflower. So is lettuce. They can be used as a macedoine. They can have meat with them—in fact there is hardly any way in which they are not good.

Some of the combinations are familiar to all of us. Tomatoes hollowed into baskets and filled with celery or with green peas are on many tables.

How many of you have filled these tomato baskets with well-seasoned cold meat or cold fish? If you have never done it, try it soon.

How many of you have hollowed out young boiled beets as you would the tomatoes and filled them with green peas and served them on lettuce leaves? If you have never done this you have a pretty dish and a good one ahead of you.

Try filling your tomatoes with green corn, cut from the cob, and well salted and peppered. When cucumbers are plenty peel them, scoop out the seeds and fill the boat thus made with dice of tomatoes, or with cold fish, well seasoned, or with shrimps, or with raw clams.

Use the leaves of young spinach, boiled until tender, for a salad with French dressing. Serve sliced tongue on lettuce for a salad, with or without tomatoes or cucumbers.

Cut boiled ham into squares, mix with it an equal quantity of blanched and sliced almonds and serve with a French or a mayonnaise dressing. Use hard boiled eggs, sliced or stuffed, and serve these with any good salad dressing.

There is no end to them, but I will stop here, although like Paul Jones, "I have not yet been to fight." If any of my readers can supply any unusual salad for the benefit of others, I shall be happy to receive it and give it place here.

I have referred to fruit salads and I say just one word more with regard to them. Bananas, oranges, berries, peaches, pears, apples, alone or in judicious combinations can all be used as salads. One of the latest salads of which I have heard is of Bartlett pears, the cores removed and replaced by chopped nuts. Peaches prepared in the same fashion are delicious.

When one gets to fruits, the roll is endless. Fruit puddings, fruit shortcakes, fruit meringues, fruits in jelly—they are too many to be numbered. Let me turn from them for a moment to more solid items on the bill of fare.

Meats, for instance. These seem to be considered indispensable even in hot weather. Try the experiment of having fewer of them and of serving them in a rather different manner from that in which you present them in Winter. If your family will accept cold meats you are in great luck. I have known of some men whose distaste for them was so strong that no housekeeper could feel justified in having them at any meal of which these men were to partake.

Even if you have such unfortunate eaters in your household do not give up the struggle for cold meat dishes without trying a few combinations first. Plain cold beef or lamb sliced may not be attractive.

Make the meat into a highly seasoned beef loaf or construct a salad with your meat as a foundation, or make an aspic jelly to serve with the meat and see if this does not add to the appreciation of cold meat.

But the meat has to be cooked first? I grant that, and that heat is heat when you have to do your cooking in Summer, no matter whether you have your meat served hot or cold. With a little judgment you can minify the amount of time you spend over the stove and you can choose the time at which you will be there.

When you arise in the early morning and get the hardest part of the cooking over before the heat of the day is upon you, you save yourself. When you cook enough meat at one time to enable you to have something for your dinner the next day, which will spare you the necessity of a fire in the stove in the middle of the day you save yourself still further. There is no reason why you should not boil meat for aspic jelly, roast a leg of lamb to serve cold, with mint sauce or with lettuce or other salad and bake a meat loaf, which will be good for supper or for your next day's dinner, all at the same time.

One word to bark back to salads. When you make French or mayonnaise dressing use only the best oil. If you feel you cannot afford this, or, if you do not care for oil, there are good boiled dressings which will take its place. You can make the dressing up in advance on a cool day and have it ready for use when the temperature climbs to the torrid zone.

SUMMER WASHING

By Marion Harris Neil, M. C. A.

THE first requirement of a good appearance in the Summer time is that our garments should be clean and fresh looking, as if they had but lately made acquaintance with soap and water. To send such things to the laundry whenever they need washing increases our weekly expenses in an alarming degree.

The economical must therefore learn to wash for herself. And this is not such a difficulty, at least it is one that most of us can surmount. Soap jelly is a valuable help in such washings, and is easily prepared, though it cannot be made too long beforehand, as if kept more than a week or so it loses its goodness.

Take as much soap as will be needed, thoroughly saturate the article, twist tightly, and dry quickly.

If the color has been taken out of silks by fruit stains, ammonia will usually restore the color.

Prints and Colored Muslins.

Prints and colored muslins should never be soaked for any length of time before they are washed.

The addition of salt to the water in which they are immersed does much towards fixing the color. The articles should then be wrung out of the brine water and dropped at once into a good lather of warm, but not hot, water.

After working thoroughly with the hands, first on the right side and then on the wrong, they should be again wrung out, placed in cold water, wrung again, rinsed, and finally replaced in the salted water until they are required for starching.

In the case of linen and mixed woollen or cotton articles, the proportion of one tablespoonful of vinegar should be added to two pints of rinsing water.

Yellow muslins are improved by the addition of half a teaspoonful of methylated spirits to two pints of water, while faded colors are considerably freshened and deepened by immersing the garments in a solution of alum and water for two hours, the proportion being one ounce to each gallon of water.

Muslin thickens if the washing operations are unduly prolonged. If the fabric has become yellow it may be considerably whitened by boiling in a lather made of pure soap and milk in the proportion of four ounces of soap to two pints of milk.

To Clean Velvet.

Light velvets are cleaned by gently rubbing with a flannel previously dipped in kerosene when the wrong side requires drawing over a hot iron in order to raise the pile.

Heat the iron and have it held firmly, face upward. Place a wet cloth upon it and draw the velvet over it with the back of the velvet upon the cloth. The steam rising through it will raise the pile.

When it has been steamed all over, remove the wet cloth and lightly run the velvet over the iron to dry it. To clean mud spotted black velvet a solution of equal parts of spirits of wine, ox-gall and water will be found efficacious.

The method employed to clean light and dark velveteen is a very simple one. A lather of white soap is made, into which the velveteen is dipped, then placed on a board or table and scrubbed the way of the pile with a small, clean brush until all dirt has been removed, when it is rinsed in clean, cold water, but not squeezed or wrung, as this would spoil the pile. It is dried in the air, and sometimes the back is drawn over a hot iron, but this is not absolutely necessary.

To clean and brighten light satin, chloroform or benzine may be used.

To brighten dull washing silks, sponge with a thin solution of gum arabic and water. Faded parts in some cases can be restored by the use of sal volatile.

To Clean Black Dresses.

Remove all dust with a stiff brush. To three pints of warm water add one part liquid amonia. Rub the dress thoroughly with a piece of the same material. Then with a sponge wrung out of cold water go over the whole surface. Hang the garment in a shady place to dry.

Black dresses may also be cleaned by dissolving as much indigo blue in water as will make the latter a dark shade. The dress should be thoroughly sponged with this, and then hung up to dry.

Mud stains on dark dresses which can not be removed by brushing generally disappear if rubbed with a piece of raw potato. To remove shine from a black cloth skirt rub it well with a piece of flannel dipped in spirits of turpentine; dry in the open air.

When sponging and pressing lay the cloth on a table, being sure that it is perfectly smooth. Cover all over with a muslin cloth wrung from hot water. Roll on a stick carefully, allowing no folds on either goods or muslin. Lay away for one hour; press on the wrong side with a hot iron on a perfectly smooth ironing table.

Never rub the iron across the goods, but always with the threads.

To press seams in heavy cloth, wring a napkin from hot water, lay it on the seam, rub the iron over, remove cloth and press until dry by setting the iron on the seam, pressing, then lifting the iron to press the next section, never moving the iron along the seam.

Light colored cloth may be cleaned with benzine. Ammonia or benzine will remove spots from rough brown cloth. Iron the stain through a wet piece of the same material with a very hot iron. The skirt and the piece of material adhere to each other, and when pulled apart the nap of the cloth is raised.

To Prevent Fading.

Great care should be taken in washing delicately tinted shirt waists or Summer gowns to prevent fading. Alum used in the rinsing water will prevent green from fading. A handful of salt thrown into the rinsing water will set blue.

Ox-gall is good to use for gray and brown. Hay water, made by pouring boiling water over hay, is excellent for washing tan or brown linen. When this is not used the garments will soon look faded and bleached.

A tablespoonful of black pepper stirred into the first suds in which cottons are washed, will prevent colors from running.

Five cents' worth of sugar of lead crystals dissolved in a pailful of water makes a solution which fixes colors and establishes the tone of pinks, blues and lavenders.

The fabric should remain in the sugar of lead bath half an hour or so before going to the suds. These baths will not prevent a garment from fading if it is hung in the sun to dry.

Vinegar is useful in reviving colors. Add one tablespoonful of common vinegar to every quart of cold rinsing water.

Silk Handkerchiefs.

In washing silk handkerchiefs care should be taken to prevent their turning yellow. A silk handkerchief should never be boiled, nor have any soap rubbed upon it. Make a lather of finely shredded white soap and water, wash and squeeze the handkerchiefs in it. Press out all the moisture possible, and dry quickly in the sun; ironing them while they are still damp, but not wet.

White silk handkerchiefs used as neckties are sometimes cleaned very well with dried and powdered starch in which a little powdered blue has been mixed. The handkerchief is spread over a clean linen cloth and with a pad or clean white linen the powder is rubbed over the silk, then dusted out, after which, with a moderately hot iron and two folds of slightly damp linen over the silk on the right side the handkerchief is ironed, which brightens it considerably.

SPEAKS HIGHLY OF PETERBORO'S JUDGE

Christian Guardian Congratulates Judge Huycke.

The Christian Guardian, in its latest issue, refers to His Honour Judge Huycke as follows:

A few weeks ago the appointment of Mr. J. H. Denton, a well-known and gifted lawyer of this city, to the position of Junior Judge of the County of York was made by the Dominion Government. Mr. Denton is a popular citizen of Toronto and a leading Methodist layman, and his elevation to the bench was very pleasing to a host of friends. Last week the announcement was made that Mr. E. C. S. Huycke, K.C., of Cobourg, a leading lawyer in that part of the country, and an influential Methodist layman of the Bay of Quinte Conference, had received the appointment as Judge of Peterborough County. Mr. Huycke is a graduate of Victoria College, and many old students of Cobourg days have pleasant recollections of association with him there, where for a time, also, he was classical master in the High School. Mr. Huycke has been superintendent of the Methodist Sunday School for a number of years, and is always active and interested in all forms of church work. He is at present on the Board of Regents of Victoria College, and takes a very keen interest in educational matters. He has practised law in Cobourg since 1887 with exceptional success, and has been mayor of the town for four years. It is very gratifying to see Victoria graduates continually taking some of the foremost positions in the country. Our congratulations to Judge Denton and Judge Huycke.

SPLIT, BRITTLE, DULL HAIR.

All Come From Dandruff, Which is Caused by a Germ.

Split hair, hard hair, lustreless hair, brittle hair, falling hair, all owe their origin to dandruff, which is caused by a measly little microbe that burrows into the scalp, throwing up the cuticle into dandruff scales and sapping the vitality of the hair at the root, causing the several diseased conditions of the hair till it finally falls out. Modern science has discovered a remedy to destroy the dandruff microbe, which is combined in Newbro's Herpicide, the delightful hair dressing. Allays itching instantly and makes hair soft as silk. Take no substitute; nothing "just as good." Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

Sold by McDermid & Jury, Druggist; also Payne's drug store. One dollar bottles guaranteed.

BRITISH GOVERNMENT PREFER PETERBOROUGH ROPE

More Honours to the Canadian Cordage Manufacturing Co. of This City—Awarded Government Order.

The Canadian Cordage Manufacturing Company, Limited, of this city, have scored another victory with their "Gold Medal" brand of rope.

The British Government have, heretofore, had all orders for rope for the Canadian Artillery placed with British makers.

This year they decided to have it made in Canada, provided the makers were willing to comply with and abide by the high government tests in regard to the tensile strength, lay of rope, etc., specified by the Engineering Staff of the War Department.

The Canadian Cordage Company, feeling that their Gold Medal Brand was not surpassed by any make, at once took up the offer, and supplied nine different sizes of rope. These being put to the government tests, were found to be away beyond the British or United States standards.

It will be gratifying, not only to Peterborough citizens, but to all Canadians, to thus learn that the Canadian Cordage Company have been successful in securing the order for the rope required by the Canadian Artillery. It speaks volumes for the product of our local rope factory that it is able to produce a superior class of these goods, free from defects and imperfections and equal to the highest official tests of the British Government. The management, sales agent, workmen, and all concerned, are to be congratulated.

FOUR PEACHES SELECTED IN THIS SUMMER'S NEW YORK GARDEN OF LOVELY GIRLS

LILLIAN FOSTER — LURU WENTWORTH. — LEOTA HINGSTON — FLORA CROSBIE.

Here are THE four peaches picked in the New York summer garden of lovely girls this season. Will the girls of Peterborough get jealous if we tell their names? Well, here they are: Take Leota Hingston, for instance. Leota has a madonna-like face and a crown of blonde hair—her own hair. Consequently she is eligible to the peach class. Then there's Lillian Foster, who has pretty hands as well as a pretty face. Flora Crosbie has a style of loveliness that's Hibernian, if looks have anything to do with it. Mercy! we nearly forgot Lura Wentworth. Lura's alluring, to say the least. She doesn't need to consult the beauty doctor. Neither do Leota, or Lillian or Flora. They're ALL peaches; and all are playing in New York theatres this summer. Maybe you've guessed it; they're all in the chorus, too.

MR. T. H. BURNHAM HOME

Is Engaged With Mr. A. Stethem in Fort Francis.

Mr. Thos. H. Burnham of Fort Francis, Ont., son of Mr. Z. Burnham, Otonabee, paid a brief visit to his home yesterday. During his stay in the city he met many of his former Peterborough friends, who were delighted to see him after a considerable absence. He is employed in a hardware store at Fort Francis, conducted by Mr. A. Stethem, formerly of this city. He was at one time engaged on the staff of the Peterborough Hardware Co. Mr. Burnham states that Mr. Stethem has a good business and has a modern hardware store. Fort Francis is in New Ontario, and is a good hardware town. It is now booming and mining operations are going on close at hand.

MEETING OF HOME CIRCLE HAD SHORT PROGRAMME

After Routine Business Was Completed—An Enjoyable Time.

The regular meeting of the Home Circle last night was a very enjoyable one. A large number of the members were present with Bro. J. W. Carey in the chair. After the usual routine of business an interesting programme was enjoyed. Mr. J. Allan gave several recitations, Mr. T. S. MacKay was heard in several bagpipe selections and Mr. Wm. Kempt provided a short phonographic programme. The evening was brought to a close by the singing of the National Anthem.

MR. J. A. ELLIS PROMOTED

Former Peterborough Man Rapidly Climbing to the Top.

Mr. J. A. Ellis, formerly of the C. P.R. here, and for some time holding responsible positions with the Chicago Great Western Railway, has again been promoted. He is now placed in charge of the terminals of that road, and will have his headquarters in Chicago.

Mr. Ellis is a brother-in-law of Mr. W. Buller, president and manager of the Peterborough Fuel & Cartage Company. He was very popular while in Peterborough with the C.P.R., and it is amply evident that his success is largely due to the fact that he not only has agreeable manners, but is a first-class railway manager.

STOOD IT ALL RIGHT

Amusing Story in Which Well Known Fenelon Falls Clergyman is Involved

Rev. W. H. A. French, rector of St. James' Church, Fenelon Falls, was coming down Yonge street, while the Orange procession was in progress when an elderly woman in black approached him. TO STRAIGHTEN LINE

Double Jog in Road to C. G. E. Will be Removed.

One of the proposed pieces of work which the Peterborough Radial Railway have in view is the straightening of the Canadian General Electric Co. line, where it makes a double turn at the corner of Sherbrooke. This has been contemplated for several years and it is expected that it will be undertaken in a short time and completed. This adds not only a little convenience to patrons of the line, but will also enable the cars to make the run without coming almost to a stop.

Part Of Second By-law Which Will Be Presented To Electors

Filling in of Water Lots Along the Banks of the Otonabee—Money Has Been Spent and Ratepayers Will be Asked to Support the By-law.

SOME OF THE PARTICULARS

On July 29th, next, the property owners will be given an opportunity to grant the City Council a authority to raise funds for the purpose of extending certain streets in the city and for filling in the water lots on the river front. Most of this money has already been expended by past councils who deemed it wise to take advantage of the opportunity when offered and thus saved the city a large sum of money.

The Water Lots

This article will be denoted to the water lots which lie along the West bank of the Otonabee river from King street North to the Peterborough Cereal works, or nearly to Simcoe street.

These lots which were under water until a couple of years ago, extended from the West bank and into the river to a point East of the C.P.R. spur line. At that time they were of very little value, being under water. Still, the members of the Council in the latter part of last century saw that the lots would be valuable if filled in and a movement was started to secure a patent of them from the Crown Lands Department at Toronto. For several years, the council was blocked by several parties who were themselves interested in the property.

It was a long fight but in 1902 on the first of February when Mr. T. H. G. Denne was Mayor, the city was successful in overcoming all the obstacles and received the patents from the Crown Lands Department. In these negotiations Hon. J. R. Stratton, M.P., who was then Provincial Secretary, assisted the city materially.

From that time on nothing was done on the property except to dump road scrapings and refuse upon it. About three years ago, however, the Dominion Government, set aside an appropriation for the dredging of a channel in the river from the C.P.R. bridge to the Hunter St. bridge, intending, by the way, to dump the material so taken out in Little Lake.

Then the city thought it a good opportunity to get its property filled in very cheaply. A meeting of the council was held to discuss the matter and it was decided to make an effort to secure the material. Mr. Henry Best was mayor at the time and Ald. Hicks was chairman of the Board of Works, and it was left to his department to handle the business.

It just happened at this time that Mr. Geo. Elliott who was one of the council, and the city clerk were going to Ottawa on some other business. While there, however, they looked up Mr. R. R. Hall, the city's representative, and through him secured an interview with the Minister of Public Works. The city's plans were placed before the minister who at once saw the advisability of the scheme and wrote to Mr. Sing, the superintending engineer.

At this point the Board of Works took the matter up with Mr. Sing and an arrangement was made whereby the Government was to deliver the material dredged from the river across the C.P.R. tracks into the dump cars provided by the city. All the city had to do then was to run it down upon the lots and dump it. In this way a large portion of the land lying between the C.P.R. spur line to the Quaker Oats Mills and the next bank of the river has been filled in.

At the time the council did not know how much material would be obtained or what the cost would be. Yet they did not wish to delay matters or to loose the opportunity entirely to make cheap land, and therefore proceeded to make use of the material.

In this way, the bulk of the money asked for this purpose in the by-law has been expended and further authority is asked to raise a small sum in addition to what has been spent so that if the government does more dredging, as it is likely to do, there will be authority and money to again take advantage of the opportunity to get cheap material to fill up more of the land.

WAS FINED $25 FOR SUPPLYING LIQUOR TO BLACK LISTED MAN

Edward Butler was fined $25 in police court yesterday afternoon on a charge of supplying liquor to James Hayes, a blacklisted man. The fine was to be paid forthwith, the alternative sentence being thirty days in gaol.

Hayes stated that he had met Butler on the street and had asked him to get some whiskey for him. He had given the defendant 40c and Butler had brought him a flask of whiskey. He knew that the witness was on the blacklist as he had refused a similar request on another occasion.

Mr. Kenney, of Alex. Elliott and Company, testified that the defendant had purchased a 40-cent flask of whiskey from him. He had asked Butler if he was buying it for a blacklisted person and the defendant had replied in the negative.

Butler took the stand in his own behalf and the story he told differed greatly in some respects from that of Hayes. He stated that he had met the latter and that he appeared very shaky. Hayes had asked him to buy him whiskey and had given him thirty cents. He had purchased a thirty-cent flask and on returning to Hayes found that he had another flask in his pocket, whereupon he, the defendant, had refused to give him the other, saying that he had enough. Hayes asked him to meet him at 5 o'clock that day and give him the whiskey, but Butler had not done so and still had the whiskey.

The magistrate refused to accept his version. "You would have me believe," he remarked, "that you have a conscience. If you were mean enough to take his money to buy whiskey you were mean enough to give it to him. I have no sympathy with those who are shoving poor fellows down."

Mr. Dumble then imposed a fine of $25 to be paid forthwith. Butler stated that he had the money but would not pay the fine, and he was led down stairs as a preliminary step in his transportation to Castle Nesbitt for thirty days.

SWAYNE FIELD, FINEST PARK IN MINOR LEAGUES

TOLEDO'S NEW BASEBALL PARK.

Toledo, O., July 14.—"The finest minor league baseball park in the world." Thats what they say about Swayne field, the new American Association park here. President Armour of the Toledo Club did not start construction until he looked over the finest parks in the country; then he instructed his architect to go ahead. The park, while not boasting of the seating capacity of the Pittsburg, Philadelphia, and New York grounds, is every bit as handsome and comfortable as the best. The big ground, a block square, is surrounded by a 10-foot concrete fence, and the grand stand and bleachers are reinforced concrete throughout. Everything possible has been done to make the place safe and comfortable. On opening day 12,000 fans were seated without crowding, and many more could have been taken care of.

SATURDAY'S GAMES AT OVAL PROMISES TO BE INTERESTING

There should be a big crowd at Nicholls Oval on Saturday for the Senior City League games, which promise to be the most interesting of the season. Rain caused a postponement last week, but the teams have not let up any in their practising and they will be in the best of shape. The High Commissioners and T. A. S. will meet in the 2 o'clock game for the second time this season. The Abstainers won the first time by 11 runs to 5, doing all their scoring in the first couple of innings. After the Straths had rallied the game was one of the most interesting of the season. The Commissioners say that there will be no blow-ups on Saturday, and that Manager Quinlan's bunch will have to play ball all the time to beat them. The West Ends and Park St. A. C. cross bats in the second game, and it looks like a case of flipping a coin to decide the winner. The last time out the teams had a desperate struggle. West Ends finally winning by one run after an uphill fight. The Southerners state that the result will be different this time and that the West Ends will have to exhibit faster ball than they have shown yet if they hope to carry off the big end of the score.

VICTORIA HARRIERS WILL HOLD A MEETING TO-NIGHT

A regular meeting of the Victoria Harriers will be held this evening at their headquarters A full attendance of members is requested as important business will come up. The club had a good turnout at its Tuesday night meeting, a dozen members being out and a couple of interesting relay races were run off. Three new members were present. Any person wishing to join the Vics will be made welcome at to-night's meeting.

THE SPAULDING TROPHY WILL BE EXPRESSED AS SOON AS FINISHED

Mr. A. H. Stratton, who, as representative of A. G. Spalding & Bros., has been endeavouring to secure a trophy from the company according to the agreement with the Senior City League, has received an encouraging letter from Mr. T. Wall. It is reproduced as follows and will be of interest to the Senior City League teams

July 12, 1909.

Messrs. A. H. Stratton & Co.,
Peterborough, Ont.

Dear Sir,—Replying to yours of July 10th, there was no time lost in putting your order through for a Silver Cup. As a matter of fact, it is an exception for us to furnish trophies before the end of the season, however we made an exception in your case. When we furnish trophies, we naturally expect to get a full season's business in return and it often happens that leagues do not last one-half of the season. In some cases they disband after the first month's play. You will readily understand that when we furnish trophies and the leagues disband, we lose money on the proposition. We will send you the trophy just as soon as it arrives at this office.

Yours truly,
A. G. Spalding & Bros.
T. WALL.

JEFFRIES ANGRY OVER THE REPORTS IN THE PAPERS

Toronto, July 14.—Jeffries is very sore at the published statement that he does not intend to do battle with Johnson, but that he is just holding that up as a bait to catch the public during his theatrical tour.

"I'll fight him," he said, "and it won't be any Tommy Burns that he'll find in the ring. Burns a champion? Well, he was a good, fast little boxer, but no match for a big man. He was only a middleweight, and I think I know several in that class who could beat Tommy. Jack Twin Sullivan trimmed him twice. Bill Squires had him beaten, but didn't know it. Squires copped him on the jaw, and Tommy hung on to keep from being knocked out. If Squires had known enough he could have put him away then. Burns only had one hand. He couldn't punch with his right, if you paid him for it. To be a fighter you must have two hands.

"Who is the champion? Well, I can't be blamed for claiming the title I take it that a championship is a recognition of supreme ability, a reward of merit. I won the championship from all comers, and my four years retirement was due to the fact that there was nobody to fight. I couldn't find anybody to give me a battle, so I turned to other lines of endeavour

"That was a pure fake story that I gave the title to Marvin Hart when I retired from the ring. It's absurd on the face of it. How could I pick out my successor? By what right would I be judge of who was the next best fighter? I could not give the title away even if I wanted to, and what's more I didn't. The story was spread broadcast at the time in flaring headlines, and my denial was printed in small type in obscure corners.

"However I'm here now ready again to do business at the old stand. You can see for yourself what condition I'm in I'm as hard as nails. Feel that arm, and those leg muscles, and my back. Any waste tissue there? Not much fat in sight, eh? Well, I weigh 235 pounds now. My fighting weight? I don't know myself, but it won't be much less this time. I've taken off 45 pounds since I started training. Hurt my left hand a month ago, but its all right again Isn't it, Sam? (Berger rubbed his right eye, which was partially closed, and smiled feebly). Sometimes I slip one over on Sam accidentally, and jar him up a bit, but he's right there with the come-back, and I know when I make a mistake

"Shadow boxing and skipping are best for a heavy man To be a good fighter you must be quick and alert on your feet, not necessarily a rusher, but fast, so that you can fool your opponent when you draw him into a lead Playing baseball is a good thing for the eye and also helps the wind. It takes hard work to get good wind, but a man sincere in his training can usually get his bellows working all right for a long route."

LONGBOAT EXPECTS TO BEAT SWEDE

Toronto, July 14.—"I beat this Swede once in England in the Olympic Marathon, and I'll beat him again Saturday night at the Island," said Tom Longboat yesterday, in talking of his forthcoming fifteen-mile match race with John Svanberg.

"How fast will you run the fifteen miles in?" he was asked.

"About 1 23:30," was the reply "I'll do five miles in 26:30, the ten around 56, and then finish out with a fast five miles."

The Swede is credited with 1 22:40 for fifteen miles against Ted Crooks at Worcester, and has shown 1 25:05 and 1 26:12 in other fifteen mile races recently. Longboat's time at Montreal was almost a third of a mile worse than Alfred Shrubb's 1.23:57, but he did fifteen miles in 1:24:48 the night he beat Tom Coley at twenty miles.

BASEBALL IS ONE OF BIGGEST INDUSTRIES IN THE STATES SOME STATISTICS OF THE GAME

Baseball is a $30,000,000 business proposition.

The national sport is certainly a lusty infant.

And baseball IS an infant. Despite the phenomenal development of the past 10 years, the game is just getting a start.

Last year 30,000,000 paid to see games in organized leagues. While the statement may appear radical, it seems certain that within the next decade this will be multiplied by five.

Cities and towns in the United States have a population of 90,000,000. Estimating upon 20 games a season for every fan, it is easy to see the total multiplied not by 5, but 10.

The organized base ball situation to-day is this: 52 leagues; 416 teams, and 6500 players.

At Forbes field, Pittsburg, the other day, 32,000 paid to watch a game. Conservatives believe the total base hall attendance this year will reach 40,000,000.

From the dollar side, base ball is one of the world's greatest industries. The estimated value of the major league's 16 clubs is $6,000,000. Big league parks average $200,000. Their franchises represent an equal value. Pittsburg's plant represents an outlay of $1,000,000 alone.

What causes this tremendous increase in values, when 10 or 12 years ago leagues were near dissolution and fought with a bitterness that would have made Marion, the "Swamp Fox," weep?

The answer is "System."

Business men have systematized base ball until the organization compares with a Harriman railroad. Where 15 years ago loose policy kept all but a dozen or so clubs from making money, to-day it is hard to find a team not on a paying basis.

Instead of being looked upon with suspicion as a man who attends a ball game, as was once the case, we now hear of baseball as a pulpit theme, and some of the most partisan of "fans" are found among divines.

Base ball attracts clean-minded, clean-limbed athletes and hard-headed business man. In its march to the front the rough edges have been knocked away.

Tennis, golf, hockey, lacrosse, foot ball, basket ball, all have class following—base ball has mass following.

The game has been developed by three organizations—the National and American leagues and the American association. The organization bearing these names represent what is left of organizations that have struggled, flourished and often died. They have led the way, because they have systematized and combined as the big trusts have.

Success demands organization, for the major leagues do a $500,000 business every month. Last year the attendance in the majors was 7,069,122 and the weekly disbursements $100,000, which in six months means an expenditure of $2,600,000. And so it is all down the line in lessening figures.

Here is a business unique in itself. A business conducted upon a cash basis, that is paid for what it sells at the time of the sale and pays for what it buys at the time of buying.

Base ball expenses are amny and high. Salaries range from Hans Wagner's $12,000 a season down to the $1,800 of the recruit. If one team was to secure the men recognized as leaders in their positions, the salary list for the nine would be $5,000 a week, while necessary substitutes would run the sum up to $100,000.

Every day during the season 300 balls are used. This means 50,000 a season, and at $15 a dozen they cost $2500 a week.

Bats average $1.50, and the 416 teams manage to buy 13,200 every year, an item of $20,000.

Uniforms average $12 and every player must have two, which means $156,000.

Gloves range from $4 to $7 a pair, and two for every player runs the glove bill up to $50,000.

SOME DON'TS FOR SWIMMERS

(By T. W. Sheffield, Hon. Member Royal Life-Saving Society.)

The many drowning fatalities recorded by the press during the summer seasons call for more care being taken by the average swimmer and beginners generally, and it is earnestly desired that the following don't for swimmers and pointers for non-swimmers be posted up in a conspicuous place at the bathing place or summer resort the reader visits, thus helping to minimize any undue risk being taken by followers of the sport:—

Don't bathe shortly after dining; wait at least two hours.

Don't sit in a boat or stand about undressed after being in the water

Don't swim far after a hard day's work, or over-exertion after other forms of exercise.

Don't bathe in unfrequented or secluded spots.

Don't bathe alone if subject to giddiness or faintness.

Don't dive into the water without first ascertaining the depth.

Don't take fright if you fall into the water with your clothes on; remember, clothes float, and assist you to float. Make for the shore, swimming with the tide or stream.

Don't swim too far out in the sea or lake unattended by a boat or an expert swimmer.

Don't take fright if seized with cramp; keep cool, turn on the back and endeavor to rub the place affected. If the leg is drawn up with pain, swim slowly with the arms only. All swimmers should practise this.

Don't swim without some recognized signal to give your fellow-swimmers if subject to cramps, such as lifting one arm or shouting for help. Don't abuse this; leave the water as soon as possible.

Don't dive out of or try to get into a boat from the side; dive from the stern and get in from the stern, but only then from a boat with a broad beam.

Don't swim near dams, waterfalls, or where reeds are growing.

Don't swim away from the shore, always along the shore.

Don't swim without company if you have a weak heart, and only then after consulting a doctor.

Don't swim against the stream if you come across weeds.

Don't swim without protecting your ears if subject to ear trouble.

Some Don'ts and Pointers To Beginners and Non-Swimmers.

Don't go beyond the depth of your hips if you can't swim

Don't plunge or struggle when you find yourself in deep water.

Don't throw the hands or arms out of the water.

Don't grasp any person who approaches you; do what he tells you.

Don't attempt to get into a boat coming to your rescue; catch hold of the stern until assisted to get in.

Tread water by keeping the legs moving up and down, as in walking upstairs: Hold an oar or canoe paddle, plank or branch of a tree in the middle when thrown to you; an oar or a paddle with the blade flat on the water will keep you up if you don't struggle. Take in long breaths through the mouth, and exhale slowly through the nostrils; this makes the body more buoyant and keeps you warm.

If you follow out these directions when in distress in the water you will help yourself and others coming to your assistance.

When canoeing take a life belt if you are not an expert.

TRADED PLAYER FOR UNIFORMS

Odd Deal Just Come to Light in the American Association.

Indianapolis, July 14.—One of the oddest deals in the American Association has just come to light. Oscar Graham last season was a pitcher for the Minneapolis team. In 1907 he was with Washington.

Charley Carr, manger of the Indianapolis team, entered into a deal.

"The price?" asked Carr.

"Enough uniforms to supply the Minneapolis club," was the response from Manager Mike Cantillon, of Minneapolis.

Carr is in the sporting goods business. The uniforms were sent and Graham was signed.

HANS WAGNER HAS IMPROVED WITH AGE

After 12 Years' Service Pirate Shortstop Is Hitting Better Than .400.

Few baseball stars improve, like wine, with age, beyond a certain limit. Hans Wagner, the great shortstop of the Pirates, is one notable exception After twelve years of active service in the National League he stands to-day the greatest batsman in the game. He is out to make his thirteenth year in fast company the greatest of his career. And he is doing it. With the game well on toward mid-season, Wagner has hit above .400.

Wagner has been forced to travel a record clip to earn his laurels as the king of batsmen. In his twelve years' major league experience he has never finished a season with a percentage under .309. This was his figure in his second year in the big league. Only once since has the "Big Dutchman" hit below .330. This was in 1902, when his performance reached the total of .329. Of the dozen years Wagner has led his company at the end of the season on six different occasions, a record unequalled by any other player in the history of baseball.

But not alone in hitting has Wagner shown his worth. He is without doubt one of the greatest fielders that ever broke into the game. Of awkward build and lumbering appearance Hans is one of the fastest men in the game. Age has robbed him of none of his agility. Indeed, he seems even speedier this season than ever before. On bases he is one of the most feared performers. He combines speed with a cunning and daring unrivalled by any player of the day with the possible exception of phenomenal Ty Cobb.

Wagner is to Pittsburg exactly what Mathewson means to the Giants. The absence of either from his team would be fatal to pennant chances Many are the arguments to the relative merits of the respective stars Perhaps Wagner is the more valuable as he is in the game every day, but New York fans will never see it that way. Both are indispensable.

"Heads up!"

"Ee-yah!"

"Up on your toes!"

"Now! Now! Now!"

"Come on, let's get 'em!"

You've heard these expressions, or some of them and many others at ball games. You never gave them much thought, or imagined they contained hidden meanings, did you?

Well, they do. When you hear a coacher turning loose a string of seemingly meaningless words, make up your mind that somewhere in his chatter is a signal to base runner and batter.

Watch a brainy team on the defense. A batter known to pull the ball right comes up. A right-hander is pitching The first baseman falls back and edges nearer the foul line. The second baseman draws nearer to first and plays deep. The right fielder moves toward the foul line and either in or out, depending upon the length of the batter's drives. The left fielder hurries in toward third and toward centre, and the centre fielder hustles toward right, while the short stop hovers closer to second.

The catcher calls for the fast ball around the waist line, over the inside corner. Crack, the ball, caught by the bat near the handle, shoots off toward right. The first baseman stabs it back of the bag, the pitcher covers and the ball is tossed to him. The batter is out as the result of scientific baseball.

Suppose a left-hander is pitching. The backstop calls for a curve. The team moves toward left field and the centre fielder drops back to deep left centre, while the left fielder 'covers up.' The third baseman and shortstop play deep, on their toes to start instantly should the batter cross them by bunting.

Shoes cost $8 a pair, and two or three pairs are worn out every season. The shoe bill nears $100,000.

Protectors, masks and other incidentals cost $50,000, while salaries are estimated at $6,000,000.

Add to this hotel bills, which means $2 a day in the minors to $4 a day in the majors for 6500 men while the teams are on the road, and at the end of the season $1,000,000 to $1,500,000 has been spent.

Railroad fares average $5 a week for each man, the total running between $500,000 and $700,000.

With all this going out, where does the profit come in?

In 1908 the attendance of 30,000,000, at from 25 cents to $1.50, meant that fans paid $10,000,000 to see the game. Added to this the peanut, pop and cigar privileges, the return from score card advertising and the fence advertising which prevails in some parts of the country, means $2,000,000 more.

The balance at the end of the season shows on the right side of the ledger. This does not appear as big as some think it is, but it is enough to keep the club owners from the free lunch during the cold weather.

EVELYN THAW'S REVENGE ON HUSBAND'S FAMILY FOR CUTTING HER ALLOWANCE

Although Apparently Unwilling to Give Evidence, Her Testimony Scored Hard for the State to Keep Thaw in the Asylum---Said He Would Kill Her When He Secured His Liberty---Thaw Claims to be Perfectly Sane.

White Plains, N.Y., July 16.—Harry K. Thaw's pretty little wife, formerly the chorus girl, Evelyn Nesbit, went on the stand here yesterday and gave damaging testimony against him. It was the strongest point scored so far by the state in its fight to keep Thaw in the asylum for the criminal insane at Matteawan. He demands his release on the ground that he is a sane man. Adjournment was taken until July 26.

When Evelyn Thaw took the witness chair yesterday afternoon she told, as if in fear, what Thaw's lawyer has sought most to keep back.

Deputy Attorney Clark asked her: "Did Harry K. Thaw at any time say this to you or this in substance, 'I shall have to kill you when I get out of here?'"

Mrs. Thaw appealed to the court and begged Justice Mills not to make her answer the question. With tears in her eyes, Mrs. Thaw said "I do not want to answer that question. It places me in a terrible position. My husband will refuse to support me the minute I answer it, and I will incur his everlasting enmity, I know it. I am very much afraid to answer it.

"I do not care how he has treated me. I am still married to him and I do not want to answer it."

Justice Mills instructed the witness to answer, and she said with a long-drawn sigh. "Yes, he did. He said, 'When I get out of here I suppose I will have to kill you.' We were discussing his mental condition. I had asked him what he meant and he said, 'You know I was not crazy the night that I shot White.' I asked him again and he said, 'You know that I missed White by two minutes on the day before'."

Harry K. Thaw, when asked about his wife's testimony after court, said: "It is very plain to everyone that her story is not true. I never threatened to kill her. First, she says one thing and then another."

It has been decided to do away with a physical examination of Thaw by the state's alienists and confine the insanity tests by the experts to the mental examination of Thaw as a witness.

Before leaving for New York, last evening, Evelyn Thaw discussed her testimony yesterday, somewhat at variance to the attitude on the stand.

"If the Thaw family had done the right thing to me, I would never have taken the stand to testify against my husband," she said. "But they would not guarantee me the allowance I asked for when the annulment proceedings were begun. If they had done that I would have been far away from here to-day, and Harry would have a better chance of getting his liberty.

'I can't go back to the stage. My notoriety would prohibit that. I may try to get work as a model, I can do it, too, I am sure.

"When my husband cut my allowance to $70 a week and $300 a month, he left me with many debts on my hands. I used my allowance to clear off my debts. My studio costs $19 a month, and I have to buy food and clothes and the money I get is not much more than enough to get along on."

SHOOT TO KILL IF A MAN REACHES FOR A GUN

Special to The Examiner (2.45 p.m.)

Pittsburg, Pa., July 16.—Shoot to kill if a man reaches for a gun is the order under which members of the State Constabulary are working this morning at the Schoenville plant of the Pressed Steel Car Company. Owing to the increasing gravity of the strike situation a bloody battle is anticipated to-day. The company announces it will resume operations. It claims 3,000 employees wish to return to work if guaranteed protection. Any attempt to oust strikers' families from their homes by the company will be fought. The first serious attempt to effect an organization has been made by the strikers with nine nationalities represented.

NOT A SAFE PLACE FOR YOUNGSTERS TO BATHE

The sad death of little Max Martyn on Wednesday night should serve as a warning to other boys. The spot where the affair occurred has been used for years as a swimming place, and until a short time ago was a safe place in which it was possible to wade out for a considerable distance, on this account being popular with the little fellows who could not swim. Since the Government dredge did some deepening of the channel along the side of the river, however, the character of the bottom has changed, so that it is no longer safe to bathe there, except for those who can swim. While shallow at the shore it deepens rapidly at spots, there being treacherous holes that are very dangerous. It would be well for non-swimmers to avoid bathing at that particular point.

On the return trip the boat's engine became disabled near Jubilee. Fortunately Dr. and Mrs. Jebb, of Orillia were following in their gasoline launch and came to the assistance, towing the Rob Roy up the river. At the Yankee Bonnett the party was met by Mr. Rye's launch. Mr. Rye having very kindly come to the rescue. The party reached the Street Railway wharf shortly after the arrival of the excursion steamers.

SEVEN ARE CRUSHED

While Builders Are at Work on Five Storey Structure a Huge Beam Carries Away the Supporting Timbers and Steel Frame — Work Has Become a Mass of Twisted Ruins — Citizens Helped.

Philadelphia, July 16.—The five-storey building at the northeast corner of Eleventh and Market streets collapsed at 1.15 yesterday afternoon, burying workmen who were employed in the construction works in the ruins, and injuring many men and women who were passing along the sidewalks. The entire Market street end of the building fell, and became a mass of timber, brick, and twisted steel. Of the workmen, seven were killed, one is missing, one is mortally hurt, and twenty-four are more or less seriously injured. In all thirty-three were buried for a time in the ruins.

All the lower portion of the building, which was being remodelled for the United Gas Improvement Co., had been cut away, the weight of the upper stories being supported by heavy beams.

A huge girder that was being slowly hauled into the building struck one of these timbers, knocking it from its position. The rests of the supports were not strong enough to carry the weight, and the sides and front of the building fell, carrying everything away with it.

Hundreds of citizens secured ropes tied to timbers, and helped drag them into the street.

FOWLER'S TORIC LENSES

My! How the orders did come in as soon as we told you that we were in a position to grind these lenses, at a reasonable cost. They came in almost faster than we could handle them, but we don't believe at that that any customer was kept waiting as long as if we had to send out of the city for them. We are making about the prettiest lenses that can be imagined, and making them right, and we appreciate very much the unanimity with which our customers all over the country started to send in their order for this new style of Toric Lenses. All work positively guaranteed.

THE FLAG.

There are instances of abuse of the British flag on July 12th. It is reported that in Toronto the flag was displayed on public schools in honour of July 12th, and that the court house, Ottawa, was similarly treated. This is objectionable in every way. The Orange Society is a secular and sectarian organization and as only representing only a part of the population and even antagonistic to another part, it cannot properly receive official recognition as a national society, and entitled to monopolize the flag that stands for the protection and interest of all classes of subjects, of all creeds, colours, and political faiths. Military bands are forbidden to play in Orange or other party, processions in uniform, and on the same principle the flag cannot be flown as a recognition of a party holiday. While in this free country everybody has a right to his opinions and the properly regulated expression of his opinion by word or otherwise, no right exists in respect of any party to have used invidiously, as recognition or honour, the flag that covers all shades of religious belief and all varieties of personal or political opinions. No one party or society can arrogate to itself exclusive claim to the enjoyment of the symbolism of the national flag.

THE NATIONAL OUTLET.

A concentrated example of the progress of Canada is the Port of Montreal and its complement, the St. Lawrence Channel, of which much may be learned from the annual report of the Harbour Commissioners of the Port of Montreal. In regard to the St. Lawrence river from the latter city to Quebec it is acknowledged to be the best lighted and best buoyed ship channel in the world, a fact which is of infinite credit to the Dominion Government, which, by virtue of a considerable expenditure, has deepened this channel to an average depth of nearly thirty-four feet throughout the season, making it the best, as it is the largest waterway for sea-going ships on the continent. The only thing that militates against the popularity of this route is the high insurance rates charged by British companies. There is no ground for these excessive rates beyond the conservatism which obstructively retains the old rates adopted when the channel was shallow, tortuous and dangerous, conditions which are now completely removed and which justify a relaxation of rates. In spite of this the popularity of this route is shown by the fact that last season no fewer than twenty full cargoes of wheat left the port of Montreal for Russian and Mediterranean ports. We thus have an outlet for the wheat of Canada and the interior of the continent to the outer world, and by a route superior to all others, and an increasingly, and to our neighbours, an alarmingly, formidable rival to the New York outlet. Ten years ago not a navigator on the St. Lawrence believed in the possibility of "night navigation" of the St. Lawrence, but now every ship captain is praising the facility with which the river may be navigated by night, a circumstance which has practically added 70 days to the season of navigation. Further evidence of the popularity of the Canadian route is that of steamers of the White Star line making Montreal their cisatlantic terminus and point of departure. The improvements in the port of Montreal correspond to those in the river. The transhipping, loading and discharging facilities are unequalled anywhere. The report furnishes the proof in the statement that the Canadian Pacific liner "Mount Royal" discharged 4,250 tons inward and took on over 9,500 tons—13,750 tons in 53 hours; while the average time taken in European ports to load and discharge 10,000 tons is 14 days. The port of Montreal handled 13,750 tons in less than three days. The economy in handling freight has a distinct merit in the way of profit. During the year 1908 the handling cost of every ton of through freight was reduced by 22 cents per ton, meaning a saving in a single season of more than $90,000. With all these advantages of port and route, involving safety, economy and despatch, the business of the port is bound to increase, especially as continual improvements and facilities are being made. With a continuation of this policy, with the rapid develeopment of the Northwest and other parts of the Dominion, the St. Lawrence water way will become to an increasing degree the imperial highway of commerce on the American continent. The expansion of the hopper will demand an enlargement of the spouts. The expenditure in improving the port of Montreal and the St. Lawrence route, large as it has been, and large, as it must continue to be to get the best results, is amply justified. It is the logical complement of the expenditure of some ninety millions of dollars in the construction and improvement of our splendid system of canals. To withold such expenditure would be like building an expensive bridge without providing approaches.

TIMELY "HIGHER CRITICISM."

One utterance of Rev. W. A. Graham, rector of St. John's Church, St. Thomas, in preaching to the Orangemen there on Sunday last is thus reported by the St. Thomas Journal:

"This is an age of a vast amount of public religion and we thank God for it, but we must not forget that unless it is accompanied by private religion, it's of no real, solid value. Incessant running after sensational preachers, incessant attendance at hot, crowded meetings, incessant craving after highly spiced pulpit novelties are calculated to produce an unhealthy state of Christianity and in many cases ruin the soul, for after the excitement comes exhaustion, discontent, and too often a relapse into deadness and unbelief, and a return to the world."

Higher criticism of this kind is timely and worth pondering. Practical Christianity and practical loyalty are all that count. Religion that parades itself once a year and finds itself shelved the other three hundred and sixty-four days is not the need. We are commanded or enjoined to confess the founder of the Christian religion before men. Confession in words and loud professions of piety are evidently not what was meant. The Scribes and Pharisees were scathed pitilessly, for a vain parade of their piety—long prayers on street corners to be seen of men. The religion that is not lived, that does not become an element in daily life, that the carpenter does not drive in with every nail—honest work—that the bricklayer does not lay with every brick, that the merchant does not use with his yard stick, the grocer with his scales—that does not influence all our relations with our fellow man—is not of the right brand and will not stand the great accounting. Such religion is like the outside, noisy flagrant loyalty the Toronto News preaches when it says "The Union Jack should always float from our public buildings and our homes." We may do all this and yet not be loyal and patriotic. But if we live the life the cross-blazoned flag suggests; if we perform our duty as citizens; living God-fearing, honest, straight lives, do our full duty by the state and our fellow men, not for show, but because these are the right things to do, no one can mistake the genuiness of our loyalty and patriotism; who shan't need flag wavin to show our loyalty, nor love the flag the less, nor be unready to fight for it when it is assailed. Button your pocket when you meet a man that is always parading his honesty—in words.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Higher taxes in Germany, higher taxes in England, higher taxes in the United States and, says the Kingston Standard, to build Dreadnoughts. If these taxes were raised to build schools, hospitals, and santoria; to clean out the slums of the great cities and build workingmen's dwellings; to rescue starving children and poverty-stricken old-age we could understand the necesisty for them; but to build the means of destroying human life—that must give us pause.

THE MAKING OF NEWSPAPERS.

(Ottawa Free Press.

There are evolutions and evolutions, but none surpasses in interest the evolution of the news-gathering system of the present day, none is more commensurate with the progress of civilisation in the realms of invention and organization.

In the early history of news-gathering there is nothing more interesting than the story of how Nathan Rothschild, one of the pioneers of the great family of financiers, "scooped" every other news agency in the world on an event of paramount importance in world history,—the crushing defeat of Napoleon at Waterloo by the Duke of Wellington in 1815.

At that time few people were alive to the importance of rapid transmission of news. By means of special couriers and special vessels, and also by a discriminating distribution of rewards to the captains of the ordinary packet boats and the guards of the Royal Mail coaches, Rothschild found it an easy matter to outstrip the ordinary vehicles of public information, thus keeping himself in close touch with mercantile and military matters in which he had very large financial interests.

In the spring and summer of 1815 the Rothschild news agents swarmed all over the seat of war, and he was easily the best-informed man in England. On the memourable Sunday evening of Waterloo the authorities in Brussels published an official bulletin. It contained but one line:—"Great victory of the English."

One of Rothschild's news agents despatched a courier with a copy of this announcement to Dunkirk. There a ship was in waiting to convey the precious bulletin across the English channel. The final stage of the journey was accomplished by relays of post horses, and the news was placed in the hands of Rothschild some time during the night of Monday. Early next morning it was communicated to the Secretary of War, but he refused to believe it, as he was unable to reconcile it with other news of previous battles which he had only just received.

A few hours later a second message arrived from another Rothschild agent; this second advice was received 30 hours before the official despatches came ot hand at the War Office.

How vast a change now! Bulletins by cable announcing the result of a great battle in this country would be posted in the newspaper offices of all Europe and America before the smoke of battle had cleared away, and in an hour or two the newspapers of the world would be printing detailed descriptions of the fight.

When one reflects for a moment what this means he cannot but be impressed by the limitless proportions and the superb organization of the modern news-gathering system.

As you read your daily newspaper this evening, pause for a moment to think of what it involves, of the countless thousands whose co-operation has placed before you the very latest happenings of every corner of the globe. Meditate for a moment upon the ingenius inventions which are called into play, and you must conclude that the newspaper of to-day, rendered commonplace though it is by its ubiquity, is one of the truly wonderful productions of this age of wonderful progressiveness.

REWARD OF HONESTY UNDER TEMPTATION

Woman Finds $100 and Returns to Owner —Might Have Kept It, But Didn't Do So.

Honesty that stands the test of temptation is of the right quality. Mrs. Jobbin, of Smith Township, the wife of a husband who lost both arms at the shoulders and the mother of three children, two of whom are crippled, follows peddling small ware as a means of livilihood, as a means of keeping "my little family together," and if honesty constitutes a claim to patronage, is deserving of being patronized.

Yesterday Mrs. Jobbin was plying her business at the Grand Trunk station at the time of the train bringing passengers from the east. As she left the station she she found a purse containing $100 and a return ticket to Montreal. Presently she saw an elderly lady returning hurriedly and excitedly towards the station and in a state of great agitation because she had found the missing purse. The lady, Mrs. Charles Smith, 1115 St. James street, Montreal, who was on her way to the lakes, was very grateful, and gave Mrs. Jobbin $5.00 as a recognition of her honesty on returning the purse and suggested that the latter should report the matter to the newspapers, so that the public might see that she was worthy of patronage. This is the story Mrs. Jobbin tells and she adds that she was a Barnardo girl, reared in Peterborough. Her husband, while working in a saw-mill at Hull, lost both arms at the shoulder in an accident, and she herself, at the age of 17, had her right leg broken and still suffers from the effects, though she still tries to make a little money by selling small articles. Her husband, though quite helpless physically manages to help her a little. He keeps his stock of pencils and other things for sale in an outside pocket: the purchaser takes a pencil and puts the price of it in another outside pocket.

MISS MILLER'S MUSICAL SUCCESS IN TORONTO

The lady referred to in the following from the musical columns of Saturday Night, is a native of Keene, and well-known, for her musical ability and acquirements, in Peterborough:

"The piano recital of the pupils of Miss Emeline E. Miller attracted a fashionable audience to the Margaret Eaton School of Expression on Saturday evening. Those taking part were Master Archie Bryce, Master Lawrence Wallace, Miss Edna Carr, Miss Effie Carr, Miss Elsie Worthington, Miss Edith Gash, Miss Leah McCarthy, Mr. mark, Miss Lillian Fogler. In tone production and intelligent and artistic interpretation, the pupils, from the primary to the advanced grades showed evidence of valuable instruction and careful study, reflecting great credit upon their teacher."

Miss Miller and her native home Keene, have reason to be proud of her achievements and success in the musical world. With commendable perseverance she pursued her musical studies and elected to become a teacher in Toronto, where, in competition with the best in a great musical centre as that city is, she has succeeded in a most pronounced and creditable manner. The Examiner joins with her many friends in Peterborough in extending cordial congratulations.

Another sister, Miss Florence Miller, for some time soprano soloist in St. Andrew's Church choir, Peterborough, is successfully pursuing her vocal studies abroad. For two years she has been under instructions of the best vocal teachers in Paris and has gone to London, where she is studying oration under Mr. Henry Wood the well-known teacher and director of Quene's Hall, and she contemplates also taking a course in the study of Grand Opera. Judged by the progress she is making she has a promising future.

DOCTOR ADVISED OPERATION

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Canifton, Ont.—"I had been a great sufferer for five years. One doctor told me it was ulcers of the uterus, and another told me it was a fibroid tumor. No one knows what I suffered. I would always be worse at certain periods, and never was regular, and the bearing-down pains were terrible. I was very ill in bed, and the doctor told me I would have to have an operation, and that I might die during the operation. I wrote to my sister about it and she advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Through personal experience I have found it the best medicine in the world for female troubles, for it has cured me, and I did not have to have the operation after all. The Compound also helped me while passing through Change of Life."—Mrs. LETITIA BLAIR, Canifton, Ontario.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has proved to be the most successful remedy for curing the worst forms of female ills, including displacements, inflammation, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, and nervous prostration. It costs but a trifle to try it, and the result has been worth millions to suffering women.

Wants to Widen Divorce Laws.

London, July 16.—Lord Gorrell, who, as Sir John Gorrell Barnes, was president of the Divorce Court, moved in the House of Lords that county courts should have the power to grant divorces, thus bringing the law within the reach of those whose circumstances prevented their proceeding in the High Court, the only tribunal in England empowered to deal with divorces.

Lord Gorrell urged in support of his motion that much immorality resulted from the present law, as the poor, instead of becoming legally separated, simply drifted apart.

The Archbishop of Canterbury and other opponents of the motion cited the experience in the United States as evidence against extending the facilities for securing divorces.

The House of Lords finally decided to institute an enquiry into the whole question.

Want Supervised Insurance.

Niagara Falls, Ont., July 16.—The presentation of McNeal medals for acts of bravery, and a suggestion of federal supervision of insurance companies doing business in the United States were the principal events at yesterday's session of the International Accident Underwriters' Association. Medals were awarded to Samuel Voce, Montreal; Arthur Walsh, Brooklyn, and W. J. Rheinfrank, Milwaukee.

Voce was not present and Hon. W. A. Weir, Montreal, accepted his medal from D. Murphy, Ottawa, president of the Canadian Railway Accident Co., Arthur I. Voreys, personal representative of President Taft during the last Presidential campaign, suggested federal supervision of insurance companies, and said that if the system were adopted policyholders would run no risk from failing companies.

Soo Employes Injured.

Sault Ste. Marie, July 16.—While standing on a trestle leading to the open hearth furnace at the Algoma Steel Co., D. J. Williams and Archie Hughill were struck by a car that was shunted from the furnace. It is feared Williams will not recover.

Williams is superintendent of the open hearth furnace and Hughill is chief chemist for the company. They were talking and did not seen the car approaching and were pinned against girders.

Hughill sustained serious injuries to his left side and Williams was injured about the chest.

Returns Home to Find Five Dead.

Ottawa, July 16.—To get home after an absence of upwards of two years and learn for the first time that five of his loved ones were dead is the sad experience of a youth named St. Armour belonging to Notre Dame de la Sallette, Quebec.

A year ago last April the landslide occurred at La Sallette, and of the thirty-three victims over a dozen have never been recovered. Five of those killed were members of the St. Armour family. Young St. Armour has been working in the bush far north of La Salette ever since.

Runaway Boys' Adventure.

Windsor, July 16.—Walter Belleau, aged 14, and Emile Chapeau, aged 11, Windsor runaways, were found in Gibraltar, a short distance from Detroit, and turned over to a marshal. One boy made a dash for liberty on a bicycle, and was closely pursued by the marshal, riding on a borrowed wheel.

The tire on the lad's wheel blew up, and he jumped off, waited for the officer and begged him not to shoot any more.

Police Chief Must Quit.

Calgary, Alta., July 16.—The police commissioners have called for the resignation of Chief English, who has served on the force for many years. A thorough reorganization is desired under a more experienced man.

U. S. Army Abandon Khaki.

Washington, July 16.—The United States army has discarded khaki. The service uniform in the future will be an olive drab cotton cloth. Nine hundred thousand yards are needed each year.

Talbot Family Gathers.

A BACHELOR'S LAST CHANCE.

By ARABELLA JASON.

[Copyrighted, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.]

Aunt Mary Spooner, widow of Deacon Spooner, sat on the veranda of her house in the village of Parkville with some sewing on her lap, when there was a rattle of wheels in the road, a "Whoa!" from a man driving a one horse wagon, and she looked up to catch her breath and exclaim:

"Now, then, if that ain't Sam Bottford, whom I haven't seen for the last six years, then it must be his twin brother, though I know he never had any!"

It was Sam. He hitched his horse and entered the gate, and they were upon shaking hands and asking about each other's health. A chair was brought out for him, and after some general talk the widow said:

"Sam, you are looking worried and troubled, and I'm sorry to see it. Is there anything on your mind that you want to consult me about?"

"There is, Mary," he replied. "That's the reason why I've come over to see you after all this time. Yes, I've been worried for a good spell back and hadn't anybody to go to for advice. All at once the other night I happened to think of you, and I says to myself, says I, 'Why not go over and see Mary Spooner about it?' and that's why I am here."

"I hope you are not going to lose your farm on a mortgage."

"No; nothing of the kind, Mary. I've got to be fifty-five years old, and I've been living alone all these years. I'm the oldest old bachelor in the county. Ten years ago it kinder seemed for a while as if you and me was going to make a match of it, but it fell through. The deacon came along, and you preferred him to me. I ain't kicking about it. He was a good man, the deacon was, and I was sorry when I heard that you was left a widder. He's been dead two years or more, but don't think I've come a-courting. I've got old and shackiety and bald-headed, and I know it would be no use to begin talking about turtle-doves to you."

"No, Sam, it wouldn't," was the quiet reply as the widow breathed a sigh of relief.

"In fact, Mary, I'm sorter bound to another woman—another widder—and I'm not the man to be cavorting around after two widder women at once. She's a woman named Grimes, living about three miles this side of my farm. She owns what they call the Plum Tree farm."

"Yes; I know her by sight. So you've fallen in love with her?"

"Y-e-s; my heart's been a-throbbing for her for the last six months. She hain't no great shakes as far as looks go, and I wish her hair wasn't so red, but she's got a nice farm there, Mary—a mighty nice farm—and she can cook the best boiled dinner a hungry man ever sat down to. We agree on the Bible, on the best way to smoke hams, on having wire screens to the winders in summer—on everything but one, and that is what is bothering me and why I've come over to see you."

"And what's that, Sam?" asked the widow.

"I popped the question two months ago, but there's another feller did the same thing. He's Abe Johnson, a widower, then about my age and no better looking, and the widder is hanging fire as to whether it is best for her to marry an old bach or an old widower. She says she's got to take time to think it over."

"And you want to hurry her up?"

"That's just it, Mary. You are understanding the situation right off. Yes, I want to hurry her up, and I want the decision to be in my favor. You are a woman and a widder. You ought to know what another woman and widder would do under certain circumstances."

"Perhaps," was the doubtful reply. "What are the certain circumstances?"

"Jealousy, Mary—jealousy. I've had it all planned out for a week past, and I believe that if you will help me I can win out as easy as grease. I take it that Abe and me stand about equal in the Widder Grimes' affections. It's like balancing a stick on the top rail of a fence. Abe can drive oxen and not swear, and in case the preacher ain't there he can take the lead at a funeral or prayer meeting. I can drive a hog out of the garden without yelling to be heard a mile away, and I have made two speeches on the Fourth of July. It's about an even thing between us. The widder is balancing. She may balance for a year if something hain't done. Something is going to be done. I'm going to appeal to her jealousy. I'm going to make her think she's lost me forever."

"But just how?"

"That's where you come in, Mary. You'll set a day, and I'll drive over here and get you. I'll drive you past the farm and back. She'll surely see us. She'll see us sorter cuddled up to each other and talking confidentially. Right in front of her house she'll see my arm stealing around your waist, and we'll both be looking as happy as all outdoors. The demon of jealousy, as they call it, will bubble up in her heart at once, and she'll feel that she loves me only and must have me or die. When I pass for the third time after leaving you home she'll be down to the gate to stop me and say, 'Sam Bottford, you bump yourself and bring a preacher here and marry me or I'll show you what a desperate woman can do.' She'll say that, Mary, and within two hours she'll be mine. Come, now, wouldn't you act just like that under the same circumstances?"

"I—I hardly think so," replied the woman after a moment's thought.

"But you hain't red headed, you see, and that makes a heap of difference. Mebbe you couldn't be made jealous, but red headed women and jealousy go together. Lord, how comfortable your arm stealing around your waist will grow a foot taller in a minute!"

"But I couldn't allow that, Sam."

"Oh, yes, you could, Mary. You'll allow it for old time's sake. Your conscience has always troubled you for the way you throwed me down, and I'm telling you that this is the last chance for me. If I lose the Widder Grimes I'm a gone coon. The turtle-doves will never coo for me again."

There was more talk, and the Widow Spooner finally gave a doubtful and reluctant consent. She warned Sam, however, that he was taking chances and must put up with consequences.

A day and hour were named for him to drive over again, and he went home with a smile on his face for the first time in weeks. When the day came for him to head for Parkville again he drove at a slow pace past the Plum Tree farm.

The Widow Grimes was out among the cabbages killing slugs. She saw him and waved her hand, but he looked straight ahead and never stopped. This was to make her wonder what was up. The other widow was ready, and in the field as the man in the white horse and deliberate wagon came trotting back. The Widow Grimes stood in the open door. They saw that she did, and Sam chuckled and, nudged and whispered to his companion:

"It's a mighty hapter, Mary. Lean on me as if you loved me half to death!"

Mary leaned, and two minutes later, as they were square in front of the house, he said:

"Now my arm goes around your waist. The Widder Grimes sees it. Her heels are lifting up. I daren't look at her, but I know that her face is as red as a beet. The demon has suddenly appeared, and she's saying to herself that she'll kill any woman that takes me away from her. Lord, Mary, but I shall be grateful to you all the rest of my days!"

They drove up the road two miles and then turned about to repeat the performance. This time the Widow Grimes was halfway down to the gate. She pretended to be pulling some weeds out of the bed of pinks, but it was only pretense. She saw the Widow Spooner lean; she saw an arm go around her waist; she almost heard whispers of love as the old wagon creaked along.

"Mary Spooner," said Sam Bottford as he helped her out of the wagon at her own gate, "I'm owing you a debt I can never, never pay. You've helped me through like the good woman you are. As I drive along back the Widder Grimes will be at the gate to blow me up, and after the blowing it will be the preacher and a marriage. Nobody ever had such a plan before. It has worked without slipping a cog. Don't you buy no taters this fall. I'll see to it that you have ten bushels to start the winter on—yes, ten bushels of taters and a crock of butter."

"And when shall I know how you came out?" she asked.

"Oh, you'll hear it talked of in two or three days, and you'll hear that we are off on our wedding tour. Lord, Mary, hasn't it worked beautifully—beau-ti-ful-ly!"

Two hours later, as the Widow Spooner was eating her supper, she heard the rattle of that democrat wagon again and another "Whoa!" and went to the door just as Sam Bottford reached the veranda and sat down on the steps.

"For mercy's sake, but what has happened?" she exclaimed.

"There won't be any wedding!" replied a hollow voice.

"No!"

"Nor any bridal tour!"

"No!"

"Nor any nothing!"

"But why, Sam, why?"

"Because the Widder Grimes and Abe Johnson were married three days ago! She was down to the gate to tell me as I drove back and to hope that my health was the same as usual."

The Widow Spooner turned her head to hide a smile.

"I knew it all along, Sam," said she, "but I thought you wouldn't ever be surprised unless you saw twins ever, you knew."

Samuel looked at her. Slowly a smile crept over his face.

"To tell you the truth," said he, "I really hollered for joy, Mary," he said sharply, "Mary, do you want me to remain an old bachelor?"

And after a little while the Widow Spooner whispered "No."

Old Saving.

"The late James Molloy," said a music publisher, "wrote humorous songs now and then, but it is as the author of 'Love's Old Sweet Song' that he will be remembered.

"Yet his humor was good, too—bright, clean and pure. He liked to make fun of people who lived in the country. I once heard him say to London to a Devon man:

"'Why do you live in the country, anyhow?'

"'To save money,' was the reply.

"'Are vegetables and milk and meat cheaper?'

"'They are on the contrary, slightly dearer.'

"'How do you save, then?'

"'No opera, $50 a year. No restaurant dinners, $100 a year. No theater, $100 a year. No taxicab fares, $50 a year. No distractions of any kind, $15 a year.'

"'Look here,' said Mr. Molloy, 'couldn't you save money if you died?'"—New York Tribune.

The Land of Cain.

Labrador, according to a local tradition which the gleaners of folklore consider of much importance, is the land to which Cain was banished after the murder of Abel. That country, according to the legend, was cursed by God with perpetual silence on the day when it was granted to the first murderer. Certain it is that the whole region has been silent and desolate ever since it was first known to white men.

Why Musicians "Tune Up" in Public.

Some people have been puzzled to understand why musicians tune up their instruments in public and not before they enter the orchestra. If they attended to them before entering the theater or concert room they might find the temperature different in the place of performance, and the instruments would not be in tune.

A New City a Thousand Years Old.

Budapest, whose front is circled with lights like a crown, whose hills rise dark and feathery above the river, whose parliament buildings run along the bank and are second to none but Westminster—Budapest, bright, flashing, gay, beautiful, modern and rich, ardent and executive, close built and amalgamative, blender of peoples—is the product of only a few decades, and yet at its last exposition it celebrated its thousandth birthday. Pest, to the right of the river—for the cities are twin and divided by the Danube—Pest dates back to 1200, and Buda was the Ofen of the Romans. WOMAN TAKES LONG TRIP TO BECOME A BRIDE

Nurse Travels a Thousand Miles North of Edmonton to Wed a Clergyman--Will be Made by Rail, Stage, Scow and River Steamer--A Trip Scarcely Ever Made by a Woman.

Edmonton, July 13.—Miss Annie S. Nash, of Carstairs, Alberta, left yesterday, and will travel over a thousand miles straight north of here before she reaches Hay River, where she will wed Rev. Alfred J. Vale, an English Church missionary, formerly of Berlin, Ont., and a graduate of Wycliffe College, Toronto, in 1906. The trip will take in the neighbourhood of two months to complete, and will be made by rail, stage, scow, and river steamer. It is a trip scarcely ever made by a woman, and one that few men, except traders, take.

Miss Nash will be two days on the stage before she reaches Athabasca Landing, 105 miles almost due north of this city. From there she will transfer to a river scow, which will take her on the third stage of her journey, a distance of nearly 700 miles. Each passenger has to carry his own tent and a complete camping outfit, as the crew tie up each night, and the travellers camp out on the shore. After two or three weeks of rugged pioneer life, Fort Smith is reached, and another transfer is made to a small steamer, which covers the last stage to Hay River, a distance of 225 miles. On the water the travellers traverse the Athabasca River, and Great Slave Lake.

Hay River is a Hudson Bay trading post, inhabited by about 275 Indians and ten or twelve white people. It is situated at the north end of Great Slave Lake, and is not very far from the Mackenzie River.

Miss Nash is accompanied by Archdeacon Lucas and wife, of London, England, who are in Canada for a year's holiday. The Archdeacon is going north to perform the marriage ceremony, and will probably spend the winter in that district with his wife, returning to England in the spring of 1910.

Miss Nash has had a wide and varied experience in the five or six years that she has been a trained nurse. Her early home was in Berlin, Ont., where she lived for many years and became acquainted with her fiance. She graduated from Erie County Hospital, Buffalo, later went to Montreal, where she took a post-graduate course in district work for a year, and since then she has been located at Indian Head Hospital, Sask., Nelson and Trail, B.C., and Red Deer, Alberta.

This dauntless traveller does not expect to remain buried at Hay River all her life, but believes that her husband-to-be will be transferred to some point farther South in a few years.

"When will the wedding take place?" she was asked.

"When I arrive; it can't come off any sooner, I guess. That ought to be some time early in December. Do you know I even have to take my own wedding ring with me. Mr. Vale can't purchase it up there, of course, and he can't send down here for it without knowing the exact size so he delicately hinted that I get it myself. It's a funny thing for a woman to have to do, isn't it?"

Waving a farewell to the newspaperman and civilization, Miss Nash took her seat in the coach and started on her long trip towards the Arctic Circle.

Only A Santa Claus Gave Jim Wilson This Bottle Of Whiskey

Found a Bottle in His Waggon Left By a Stranger Whom He Had Given a Ride—Roland Butcher Discharged—Denied Wilson's Statements.

NOT SUFFICIENT EVIDENCE

James Wilson, more commonly known as Jim, was the star witness at the police court this morning in a case against Roland Butcher. The latter was charged with having procured whiskey on July 13 for Wilson, who is on the "Indian list." Owing to lack of evidence Magistrate Dumble dismissed the charge. Butcher pleaded not guilty.

Wilson was sworn and stated that Mr. Butcher supplied him with liquor on the day referred to. He appeared to be intoxicated. "I gave him a pail to get some lager and we both drank from it." Jim then went on to tell how he got a bottle of whiskey. It was apparently a godsend for Wilson did not know who gave it to him and the donor went out of his way to provide him with the bottle. He had driven a man down town from Murray street to a hotel. The stranger asked him if he wanted a drink. Wilson told him the idea tickled his palate but "really I'm on the blacklist and I would not leave you get into trouble." Jim stated that he turned the temptaton aside and drove the man into the hotel yard where he left him. Wilson started away a short time afterwards when his eyes caught the glint of a bottle. Jim thought it a vision but a closer examination revealed that it was the same bottle with which the stranger had tempted him. After pinching himself several times and having shaken the bottle to reassure himself that the coloured stuff was not merely the glass, but was a quality of the contents he found it the genuine goods which needless to say was consumed in the usual manner.

Roland Butcher stated—"I have not to my knowledge ever drank with the last witness. Tuesday I met him and asked for the loan of ten cents. He had no small change but gave me a dollar. I wanted a drink for myself. I asked for a quarter's worth of beer at the hotel but they only gave me a quart for which I paid ten cents. Wilson drove me to the hotel and both again. At home I had a glass of the lager and then I went out the back door and down town."

"You're a very sociable fellow. Turned your back on Wilson?" the magistrate remarked.

"There were others in the house. I did not return him the change but I intend to pay him back.

"I did not get a bottle of whiskey for him. That's false. I never knew he was blacklisted and I never drank with him in my life."

"So he gave you a dollar, drove you to the hotel and back and you did not even touch glasses with him." Butcher replied in the affirmative.

Wilson being recalled stated that Butcher must have forgotten himself. "I was pretty well 'sprung' at that time. I had been drinking whiskey. He got the bottle for me. I told him to get the whiskey."

Wilson was confident that Butcher got whiskey. He did not refer to the other bottle which he professed to have secured in such a mysterious manner. Magistrate Dumble concluded that there was not sufficient evidence to convict Butcher and discharged him.

Trio Held Up A Man But Got Only A Package Of Tobacco

A hold-up on the C. P. R. bridge several nights ago was phoned into the police station and one of the night squad started out to the rescue. The message sounded "phoney" enough, and the constable had some misgiving as he started on his way south. Arrived at the station everything was as quiet as a side street in New Rochelle. No one seemed to know anything about the affair and claimed that nothing had happened. However it was learned that a man had been stopped near the bridge by three others who wanted to know what he had in his pockets. He went through them one after the other and produced only a package of tobacco, which he was relieved of. In some manner he managed to get away from the trio safely, but badly frightened. He was as blanched as if he had seen a ghost, and told one of the men at the station that he had been afraid the strangers would find a roll which he had hid on his person. He did not wait long, continuing his way home as soon as he had told his story.

Work On Waterworks Dam Is Now Progressing Favourably

Pumping the water out of the coffer dam will be started to-day or to-morrow at the new water works dam. Two pumps were started on Tuesday night, but they were too small and a third is being installed. The big pump was practically installed, a short delay being necessary while some new parts were being made. There is one boiler to steam the two small pumps and another boiler to steam the big one. When ready to start the water will be lifted out at the rate of 10,000 gallons or more per hour, and at this rate of pumping it will take but a short time to empty the coffer dam.

The Bishop Construction Company are hustling things. Since the coffer dam was finished they have strung cables across the river for the purpose of carrying cement across from the railway siding and for carrying the concrete from the mixer to the dam. The power for running the cable is supplied by a boiler and engine on the east side of the river while the cement mixer which is the same one used on the Buckhorn dam and which arrived yesterday is on the west bank. For carrying the concrete two immense iron buckets with drop bottoms will be used. These will be loaded direct from the mixer and run out on the cable to the proper place and then lowered to the dam level and dumped. This will not only be many times faster than men with wheel barrows can handle it, but will be a great deal cheaper. The Bishop Construction Company have, or will have, a most complete plant on the grounds. They look out for speed and economy and in this way the water commissioners profit also.

The cement will be brought down by the carload and stored on the east bank. A special siding has been run on to the property from the G. T. R. spar ling. Then while the west half is being constructed the supply of cement for the following day will be run across on the cable at night.

All the past week a gang of over 60 men were engaged, but yesterday on account of the delay while the third pump was being installed nearly half of the men were laid off for a couple of days. As soon as the water is pumped out the men will all be taken on again, and will have steady work for the balance of the season.

MUSIC AND DRAMA.

A New One

Arthur Deagon, who appeared here in "Peggy From Paris" sings a duet with Lillian Lorraine in the Follies of 1909, entitled "I Love My Wife, So On Your Way."

How Cohan Celebrated

Geo. M. Cohan celebrated his birthday on the Fourth of July by dictating a new musical play to a relay of stenographers. Between times he sat at the piano and composed the score. Mr. Cohan is in robust health, and has entered upon a period of productivity, which his associates believe will be the richest in his remarkable career. He has already delivered the score, lyrics and libretto of The Chorus Man for Raymond Hitchcock. Willis P. Sweatman will be featured in the cast.

"Blood and Thunder" To Go

"The fate of the howling melodrama has been sealed. After being the rage for about seven years, the gallery gods have become tired of that form of entertainment in its most gory form and now demand that they be given a play with a reasonable basis. Evidence of this is that many of the popular melodramas which have appeared at the Grand in previous seasons will not be booked for next season."

"The melodrama, while it lasted, was the most popular form of entertainment ever offered on the stage," said a theatrical man. "During six or seven years a certain class would be satisfied with nothing else. The more blood and gunplay there was in it the more the people liked the play.

"But now there must be something more than a series of thrilling situations. There must be a connected story, and it must be probable. It won't do to rush the heroine through about fifty narrow escapes in five scenes, just for the purpose of letting the hero work up a sweat and the comedian make faces at the villain. The play must have human interest, of course, and plenty of action, and there must be some thrilling scenes, but the play must seem real.

"The hair-raising melodrama simply spent itself. A new generation has arisen. People have got tired of that kind of entertainment.

"The change came last season. One after another of the melodrama companies which had been making great successes in previous seasons met defeat. The managers saw how the receipts were dwindling in the box office and they simply pulled off one show after another. There were few of the old popular melodramas that found their way as far as St. Paul the latter part of the season. There will be still fewer of them next season.

"The sensible melodrama and the musical comedy will be the main attractions for next season."—Dramatic News.

MAY BE ALLOWED TO KILL ONLY ONE DEER

Game Commissioners Alarmed at Large Number of Deer Killed.

The Ontario Game and Fisheries Department is alarmed at the destruction of deer, and the permit to kill two is likely to be changed to only one.

The number of carcasses of deer carried by express companies during the open season of 1908 was 4,387 as against 3,866 in 1907, and increase of 510. This number, large as it is, is not one-third of the total actually killed, when taken into consideration that 11,363 deer hunters' and settlers' permits were issued, the holders of each being entitled to kill two deer. In addition to the above, Indians and settlers in unorganized territory were allowed to kill two each without licenses or permits, for their own use, but not for sale or barter.

"In view of the large increase of hunters and the number of deer killed," says the superintendent, Mr. Tinsley, "it may be necessary in the near future to limit the number to one that may be legally killed on each license. It seems incredible that our northern district should continue to supply these immense numbers year after year with no apparent diminution, except in older settled portions of the Province, where the deer have disappeared with the woods."

NEW ST. GEORGE'S CHURCH WAS OPENED BY THE ARCHBISHOP

Interesting Ceremony at Gore's Landing Yesterday Afternoon---Was Attended by a Large Number of Peterboro' People---Church is Very Handsome Structure and is a Credit to the People of the Village.

The opening of the New St. George's Anglican Church at Gore's Landing was a most interesting event and was attended by a very large number of Peterborough people who went down to the pretty little hamlet on the lake on the two excursion boats, the Otonabee and Stoney Lake. Both steamers carried big crowds to Gore's Landing and the majority were present at the ceremony at the new church, which is one of the prettiest and most artistically constructed in the district. It is built of solid stone and the effect is most pleasing, the church being a credit to the progress of the people of Gore's Landing. The building was admired on all sides by the visitors yesterday. The church was crowded long before the time for commencing the ceremony and many could not find admission. His Lordship, Archbishop Sweeney, of Toronto, in company with the rector of St. George's, entered the edifice with the visiting clergy and proceeded to the chancel.

Among those present in addition to His Lordship were: Rev. Canon Davidson, of St. John's Church, Peterborough; Rev. Rural Dean Dr. Langfeldt, of St. Luke's, Peterborough Rev. H. R. Trumpour, All Saints' Peterborough; Rev. Mr. Daniel, of Port Hope; Rev. Canon Spragge, Cobourg; Rev. W. J. Creighton, Lakefield; Rev. Mr. Summerhayes, a former rector, and Rev. Mr. Newton, rector of St. George's.

Those taking part in the ceremony were His Lordship Archbishop Sweeney, who preached an inspiring and helpful sermon: Rev. Canon Davidson, Rev. Mr. Summerhayes, and Rev. Mr. Daniel. His Lordship's text was taken from the 17th verse of the 19th chapter of Genesis. Archbishop Sweeny congratulated the congregation upon the handsome place of worship they had erected and expressed the hope that they would do great good in the neighbourhood.

During the offertory, which was a very liberal one, Miss Dawson, of All Saints' choir, Peterborough, sang a solo in splendid voice, her singing being thoroughly appreciated by those present.

At the conclusion of the ceremony supper was served by the ladies of the church on the lawn of Mrs. Edwin Harris, and the greater part of the visitors sat down there to a sumptuous repast. Although the crowd was larger than was anticipated the ladies had taken care to see that nothing was lacking and a pleasant social hour was spent before the boats left for home.

The excursionists reached Peterborough on the homeward trip at about 10 o'clock. In addition to those who went down on the steamers a large number visited Gore's Landing in gasoline and steam launches, while many Cobourg people drove or motored over.

HAVE RETURNED FROM THE PYTHIAS' CONVENTION

Messrs. C. M. Blewett and S. H. Baker, delegates from Marathon Lodge, No. 39, have returned from St. Thomas, where they were attending the annual convention of the Grand Lodge of the Knights of Pythias, which next year will meet in Peterborough. They report having an enjoyable time in St. Thomas, the Pythians of that city proving themselves ideal entertainers and there were no dull moments. The entertainment of the visitors cost the home lodge $700 but they seemed to regard it as money well spent.

The visitors were the guests of Rathbone Lodge of St. Thomas, on Tuesday, being treated to a ride around the city and to Pinafore Park on street cars. Returning, the party entrained on three special Southwestern Traction cars and left for Port Stanley, where they were treated to a delightful sail on the steamer Chenerie. Baseball, boating, bathing, and other pastimes were indulged in and the Knights had a most enjoyable afternoon.

Dinner was served at the Invernie Hotel and afterwards an enjoyable toast list was listened to with pleasure. The 25th Regimental Band was present and enlivened the proceedings with delightful music. The convention was well attended and was most successful. About 200 delegates will come to Peterborough next year for the 1910 convention.

RAISED A RACKET PAID TWO DOLLARS

Police Court Crowd Deprived of Details in This Case.

A family quarrel in which Brock Wright played a prominent part was not aired in police court owing to the accused pleading guilty. The charge preferred against him was that he had created a disturbance on Dublin St. several nights ago. Mr. E. Mann, who resides on that street was passing the Wright home at 10:30 o'clock and heard sounds suggesting a family quarrel. Bad language was well mixed in the heated cross fires. No details of the affair were taken by the court. Wright was fined $2.00 to be paid in 10 days.

CURE FOR WHOOPING COUGH

Mrs. William Ball, Bracebridge, Ont., writes: "My three boys had whooping cough and we could get nothing to help them until we used Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine. It arrested the coughs at once and they kept on improving until they were cured at the cost of one dollar. This was not a large bill for so dangerous and distressing an ailment."

ANNUAL Y. M. C. A. CAMP ABANDONED THIS YEAR

It is learned that the annual camp of the Y. M. C. A. boys at Clear Lake will not be held this year. The Board arrived at this decision owing to the fact that not a sufficient number had sent in their names.

Story Of Stolen Gold

One of the Participants Tells How the Robbery on the Warship Indomitable Was Accomplished

STORY OF THE CRIME

London, July 16.—There was a startling development in the trial at Portsmouth of the three sailors and a woman, charged with being concerned in the robbery of nearly £5,000 from H.M.S. Indomitable. The accused are Wilfrid Tomey, petty officer, charged with stealing the money; and Charles Henry Thomas Hobbs, leading seaman; Sidney Keith Alston, leading seaman; and Ethel Staples, charged with receiving, knowing the money to have been stolen.

The Recorder in passing sentence of nine months' imprisonment with hard labour in Hobbs, said he was convinced the man had nothing to do with the actual planning or carrying out of the robbery.

After sentence had been passed, the woman Staples, with whom it has transpired Hobbs has lived for some time, broke down and wept bitterly.

Hobbs told a remarkable story in the witness box. First he related how he noticed a parcel arrive at Whale Island addressed to Alston on 22 Feb. Alston took possession of the parcel, but said nothing about it until 2 days later, when news of the Indomitable robbery was reported. He (Hobbs) mentioned that Tomey an old messmate, was on the cruiser, and then Alston said Tomey had committed the robbery, and sent the banknotes in a parcel to him.

Alston entrusted the parcel to Hobbs next day, and on opening it, the latter found that it contained a number of £5 bank notes. He did not count them but out of curiosity he compared the numbers of the notes published in all the daily papers with the numbers of notes he had. Two days afterwards Alston wanted the parcel to take to London, and when he (Hobbs) returned it he told Alston that he should claim half of the contents. He took ont, roughly, a third of the contents of the parcel, selecting the notes the numbers of which had not been published in the newspapers. There were other bundles of notes in the parcel originally, and he arranged them in three bundles before he returned the parcel to Alston, who he felt certain would not suspect that he had abstracted any.

Witness asked Tomey how he got the gold ashore, and he explained that he had an old album and hollowed it out, packing 200 sovereigns inside. He also carried about the same amount in the pockets of a belt round his waist.

DWELLING AND SAW MILLS WERE LOST

Mr. Stewart Murphy, Dummer, Suffered Heavily From Recent Fire.

Four thousand dollars is the estimated loss occasioned by a spark, which, falling unobserved from the smoke-stack into some dry material and igniting, caused a fire last Thursday morning which destroyed the saw and shingle mill and dwelling on the 7th line of Dummer owned by Mr. Stewart Murphy.

The exceedingly dry weather which prevailed for such a long period previous to the fire made everything as dry as tinder, and when once underway it was impossible to stay the progress of the flames. The smoke of the fire could be seen quite plainly in Norwood.

The saw-mill was completely destroyed as was also the adjoining shingle mill. It was impossible to save Mr. Murphy's home, and his residence, furniture and all, was swept away. Forty thousand feet of lumber and a large quantity of shingles were also burned.

The employees of the mill formed a bucket brigade and worked hard to save the mills and house, but their efforts were of little avail, and when it was seen that everything was going to be burned, their efforts were turned to try and prevent the fire reaching the woods in the vicinity from which the timber cut in the saw-mill is obtained.

The loss is estimated at $4,000, with no insurance.—Norwood Register.

BOY ALMOST RUN DOWN BY AUTO AND HORSE

Between Two Fires, His Escape Was Most Fortunate.

A little boy on Charlotte street this morning dodged an automobile and narrowly escaped a horse and buggy at the Aylmer street crossing. The auto is said to have been travelling along Charlotte street at a fast clip, and the boy, going south, thought he could reach the opposite side. He realized, when in the middle of the street that this was impossible and stepped back just as the auto whizzed by. At that moment a horse and vehicle were passing and in escaping the first danger he had a narrow escape from being trampled on by the horse or struck with the shaft. The speed of the auto is said to have been very rapid and those who saw the affair say that the lad's escape was almost a marvel.

For Imperial Defence.

London, July 16.—The royal commission on electoral methods examines Earl Grey to-day.

Sir R. Borden, interviewed, said that the instructions to the Canadian delegates to the defence conference were based on the Ottawa resolution. The delegates intimated that they desire to avoid public dinners and other entertainments as far as possible.

In a Melbourne despatch Minister of Defence Cook states: "I am thoroughly in favor of a local squadron provided it becomes the Australian section of the imperial navy. The offer of $10,000,000 is unconditional, but should the home authorities prefer to employ the money in building swift cruisers for the protection of Australian trade routes, so much the better. These could train Australian sailors and work in connection with local destroyers.

Two Thousand Vaccinated.

Philadelphia, July 16.—While a detail of two hundred policemen kept close guard, physicians vaccinated nearly 2,000 persons in the city block bounded by 26th, 27th, York and Dauphin streets, following the discovery of a case of smallpox in the home of Charles Krimmie, No. 2837 Gordon street, where the seven-year-old son of Krimmie is ill.

Chief Medical Inspector A. A. Cairns of the health bureau, and his staff of forty physicians, went through the entire twenty-seventh ward and vaccinated all persons who desired to take the precaution against the spread of the disease. Several dwellers within the quarantine escaped before the ropes were stretched, and the police are watching for their return, when they will be quarantined until vaccinated.

Newspaper in the Air.

Dayton, O., July 16.—The Dayton Journal has taken the lead of the world in things aerial through the exploits of the Wright brothers, and it is only natural that the city should strive to maintain its position. Now added to the Wright records is one by The Dayton Journal, which has won the distinction of being the first newspaper in the world to publish an edition in the air. The Journal sent five of its staff into the clouds armed with a hand press, a font of type and some paper, and told them to drop the results of their labors on the towns over which they passed. It was only a very small newspaper that was printed a thousand feet or more above the earth, but it was a newspaper done in the sky, a novel idea successfully carried out.

Who Will Be Archbishop?

Montreal, July 16.—La Canada contributes the following despatch from Ottawa, touching the question as to whether the next archbishop of Ottawa will be an English or a French-speaking prelate:

"The French-speaking priests are at last under the impression that Mgr. Sbaretti's candidate is the Rev. Father Whelan, an Irish priest of distinction. I am told, however, that Mgr. Begin, Archbishop of Quebec, has been informed as to what is taking place in our archdiocese, and that his grace will see that the interests and aspirations of the French-Canadian clergy in the diocese of Ottawa are looked after."

Impaled on Pitchfork.

Dunnville, July 16.—Aaron Anger, aged 28, met a most horrible death in Dunn Township.

He, his nephew, Arthur Anger, and Harry Dingman were drawing in a load of hay. Part of the load slid off, and Anger and a fork went with it. The handle of the fork struck the ground first, and before it could turn Anger alighted on the upturned tines with his full weight, entering over the heart and under the left arm. The tines penetrated the lungs and heart five inches.

At his request his companions pulled the fork out, and, with blood gushing from his nostrils, he died without uttering another word.

Weary Walking Ended.

San Francisco, July 16.—Edward Payson Weston yesterday handed to Postmaster Arthur Rider, the letter given him by Postmaster Morgan of New York City on March 15 last, the 1910th ceremony ended one of the most remarkable feats of pedestrianism on record. Although Weston was four days behind the schedule he had set for himself, when he stepped off the ferry Wednesday night the old man was not downhearted.

"It was a great walk. The pain, save but for unforeseen difficulties and hardships in the last three weeks of my journey, I would have been here on the Hundredth day. Still I am feeling fine and could do it over again."

It is the first time that a bona-fide walk has been made across the American continent. Weston laid so much stress on this fact that he walked over railroad bridges in the far west instead of resorting to ferries.

Arrested for Shooting Debtor.

Parry Sound, July 16.—About two weeks ago an Italian, Nicola Alelle, shot and attempted to rob a Bulgarian named Dimoff on the G.T.P. near Shawbridge. Dimoff was believed to be carrying $250 in a belt about his waist and Alelle, who claimed the Bulgarian owed him money, approached the man, carrying a shotgun, and on his refusal to give him anything, and as he turned to join some men at a distance Alelle deliberately shot him in the back. Thinking he had killed the man, he advanced toward him, when the wounded man sprang to his feet and ran screaming toward the gang.

Alelle fled. Yesterday Constable Madigan located him at Depot Harbor and arrested him. Dimoff is at Sudbury. The only thing which saved him was that Alelle was some distance from him when he fired and the shot scattered.

After the Fort Erie License.

Fort Erie, July 16.—A writ for an injunction to restrain the operation of the bar license at the Fort Erie race track, has been secured by F. E. Miller of Bertie Township. The application will be heard at Osgoode Hall next week. It is argued that the license is a tavern, not a club, license, and that no attempt is made to accommodate the general public as required by law. The supposition is that the temperance forces are behind the application.

Left, One Wife.

Windsor, July 16.—William Lawson, aged 28, was arrested yesterday on a charge of bigamy preferred by his wife in Utica, N.Y. She married Lawson nine years ago, and is the mother of three children. Some time ago Lawson, it is charged, began to pay attentions to Miss Gladys Fay of Schenectady, N.Y., and three weeks ago eloped with her to this city, where they were married by Rev. Dr. Manning.

Infatuation Leads to Death.

New York, July 16.—Suicide ended the gay career of a wealthy young Cuban yesterday, when Juan Ralainde, aged 26, shot himself in his apartment in East 14th street. Nearly 200 seat tickets from Cuban theatres, some memoranda and a letter indicated that he had been infatuated with an actress and had followed her from place to place in Cuba and in this country.

Diehm Is Caught.

Chatham, July 16.—Frederick W. Diehm, Eddie Quinn's accomplice in the Sovereign Bank robbery two years ago on a train between Chatham and Tilbury, has been arrested at Los Angeles, and will be extradited. The money, $1,575, was in charge of a bank clerk who carried it in a grip. Diehm switched grips. Quinn is now doing time.

New Military Headquarters.

Ottawa, July 16.—The headquarters of the eastern Ontario military command will be transferred from Kingston to Ottawa on Sept. 1. Col. W. D. Gordon will also act as district officer commanding No. 4 district. Col. Hodgins will go to London to take command of that district Sept. 30.

London, July 16.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—In connection with the question of British trade in Canada, The Mail is sending F. A. Mackenzie on a tour of investigation through the Dominion.

New Line to Canada.

London, July 16.—A new line of steamships, to carry cabin and emigrant passengers, is to begin service from Naples to Canada next November. In the summer time they are to land on the other side at Montreal and in the winter at Portland, Me. The first steamship, the Tortuna, will be launched in a month from Messrs. Swan & Hunter's yard at Newcastle, who were the builders of the Mauretania.

Missionary In Cells.

Detroit, July 16.—John Mohamed, colored missionary from Morocco, is locked up on a charge of obtaining money from churches in Detroit and Windsor by means of fraud. He told various stories wherever he collected funds and a trap was laid for his capture, which was effected by Dr. Mahoon, pastor of Central Methodist Church, Detroit, who had to sprint about five blocks in pursuit.

Used Coal Oil on Fire.

Brockville, July 16.—Presence of mind saved Mrs. David Cooper from being burned to death. She undertook to kindle a fire with kerosene and an explosion followed, the flames striking her face and arms. Her clothing and hair also caught fire, but she plunged into a tub of water in the kitchen and extinguished the flames.

Lie Passed In House.

London, July 16.—The House of Commons, the tempers of whose members have been sorely tried by the frequent all-night sessions, was thrown into an uproar by a scene between Earl Winterton and William Jumes Thorne, a Labor member.

Earl Winterton, replying to an interruption from the Labor benches, remarked that Thorne was unfit to take part in the debate. Thorne replied by saying that he was as sober as any member of the House, and concluded by saying, "I call him the complete liar that he is."

Thorne left the House, and invited Earl Winterton to follow. The latter apologized, but Thorne refused to withdraw the remark, and was suspended.

Segregation Is Only Cure.

Winnipeg, July 16.—Hon. T. Mayne Daly, public commissioner and magistrate, in a statement yesterday regarding criticisms following a raid on a number of resorts last Saturday night, declares that the raid of five years ago breaking up the "segregated district," has resulted as feared. Since then, records show 895 illegitimate births in Winnipeg, including 115 already this year.

"Hundreds of young girls," said Mr. Daly, "are going to the devil, not in houses of ill-repute, but on street corners and in their own homes."

Segus Americans.

Kingston, July 16.—As the result of a report made by Col. Vansant, U.S. Consul, Geo. H. Stevenson, vice-consul at Liverpool, is here investigating into "citizenship question." He found that in Kingston and district are people holding United States citizenship papers who have no right to them. They were of U. S. parentage, but lived in Canada for years and voting here. When occasions were necessary they would go across the border and vote.

A Dirigible Torpedo.

Stockholm, July 16.—A new dirigible torpedo recently patented by a Swedish inventor, operated by electricity, is said to have a range of 5,000 yards and its course can be altered while submerged, at will by the operator. Furthermore, it can be exploded whenever desired, and it has a speed of thirty knots an hour at any depth.

A Pan-American Bank.

Washington, July 16.—With great enthusiasm and favorable responses on the part of Governments of Latin-America and the large business interests of those countries has the proposition to establish a Pan-American Bank in New York with branches throughout Central and South America been received.

One Flash Burns Barns.

St. Thomas, July 16.—A strange case of fire from lightning occurred at Iona Station yesterday afternoon. There was but a single flash of lightning and one peal of thunder, but it struck the barn of George Rapelje, burning the building and hay crop. Neighbors saved the house.

They report Bug Death has made an excellent record in each of the past two years. The potatoes on which the Bug Death was applied were more vigorous in growth and greener in appearance throughout each of the seasons than those on which other applications were made.
DO YOU WANT BETTER CROPS?
Of course you do. Well, the way is clear. Use Bug Death and you'll not only have a heavier crop, but larger potatoes of better quality.

The cup was presented in 1891 by the late Col. MacKinnon. A special commemorative silver bowl is presented by the N.R.A. to the winning team.

There are ten shots each at 800, 900, and 1,000 yards.

CHANGES IN LINE-UP OF CITY LEAGUE TEAMS FOR TO-MORROW

To-morrow's City League games at Nicholls Oval will commence at 4 o'clock sharp, the first attraction being the Strathcona-T. A. S. game, followed by the West End-Park Street A. C. engagement. Two lively games will be provided as the teams are out for blood. Although the T. A. S. have a clear lead it is possible to head them off and a defeat at the hands of the High Commissioners to-morrow would help some.

The T. A. S. will have their regular line-up to-morrow with Quinlan and McFadden in the points. The Straths will have a different team from the last time out. Wilson will not be able to get off work to play and Craig is out of the game with an injured arm, but the Commissioners have a very strong line-up and will make things interesting for the Abstainers. They have been fortunate in securing the services of an experienced catcher in the person of Andrus, who has caught in the Midland League for Oshawa and Port Hope, and who was in the Canadian League last season. Andrus will be remembered by local fans, as being Henry Surphlis' battery partner for a number of years in Port Hope. He has been living in Peterborough for some time, and has decided to turn out. Another old Midland League player will be seen with the Straths to-morrow, Jack Sheridan being billed for a place in the outfield. The Commissioners will line-up as follows: Andrus, c.; Ryan, Gorham or Hickey, p.; Heaslip, 1b.; Curtis, 2b.; Weatherstone, s.s.; Kerry, 3b.; Shaw, l.f.; Sheridan, c. f.; Guerin, r.f.

There will also be several changes in the West End team, owing to the absence of players from the city. Manager Oldham is also leaving town and the team will be looked after by Mr. Jim Davidson. They will line up as follows for their game with the Park Street A. C.: Chick Callaghan, r.f.; Gibson, 3b.; J. Eano, 1b.; Dickie, c.f.; Fallon, l.f.; Mensies, c.; Rose or Kirn, p.; Halpin, 2b.

Park Street will have their regular team with Dusty and Bell doing the battery work.

Dan McCabe will umpire both contests. Indications point to a good crowd being present.

STRATTON CUP RECEIVED BY THE WINNERS OF MIDLAND LEAGUE

The first semi-final game for the Provincial Championship will take place at Claremont on Saturday evening when the locals will meet the Claremont team.

The Havelock team will leave on the afternoon train and everyone is hoping that they will continue their victorious record.

The return game with Claremont will take place at the Park here on Wednesday afternoon of next week at 2 o'clock.

Stratton Cup Arrived

The Stratton Challenge Trophy, emblematic of the championship of the Midland Football League, presented by Hon. J. R. Stratton, and won this year by the local football team, has ben received and is on exhibition in Mr. Jas. E. Fowler's window, together with the Fowler Silver Trophy presented to the Havelock Baseball team in 1907 when they won the championship of the Trent Valley League.

Blamed It On the Referee

The Bowmanville Statesman and the News came to hand last week and they contain accounts of the recent football game at Hampton, which are, to say the least, most unfair to the referee, Mr. E. Brumwell, and entirely misleading in general. They blame the loss of the game on the referee, instead of being honest and manly enough to give the locals credit for their superior play. Mr. Brumwell's decisions were never questioned during the game, and when the teams could not agree on some trivial point he invariably tossed the ball up, thereby giving neither an advantage. Both the Statesman and the News should be ashamed of their false account o fthe game and should tender Mr. Brumwell an ample and early apology.—Havelock Standard.

ENGLISH MINERS THREATEN STRIKE

To Support Scottish Miners Who are Resisting Wage Reduction.

Examiner Special.

London, Eng., July 16.—The Mines Confederation of Great Britain, after a prolonged meeting, has decided in favour of balloting its million members as to declaring a national strike in support of the Scottish miners, who are resisting a wage reduction of air pence a day. The ballot will and the Executive Committee of the Confederation will meet on the 28th to take action on the result. The present feeling seems to be in favour of the stoppage of all mines, which would mean practically a tie up of all British industries.

HARVESTING STRAWBERRIES

From Farm and Dairy.

"To have strawberries in the best condition for keeping and for marketing, they must be picked and not pulled," said Mr. J. P. Dodds, of Peterboro Co., Ont., to a representative of Farm and Dairy, who visited his place recently. "At least one half an inch of the stem should be picked with each berry. Keep the poor, mis-shapen and very small berries out of the boxes. The best policy is to market only saleable fruit.

"It is not wise to top the boxes. Have the berries the same all through. Do not bruise the fruit when picking. Pick in the morning or late afternoon. I sell all my fruit in the city of Peterboro, both wholesale and retail. A good local trade can be worked up for a good article."

SAILBOAT AT STONY LAKE WAS UPSET IN A GALE

Mr. Herbert Rice, of Toronto, Received an Unexpected Ducking---Was Rescued by Spectators of the Accident---Doings at Viamede and Other Points on the Lake ---Programme for the Annual Regatta.

Special Staff Correspondence.

Stony Lake, July 15.—The tourists to the lakes continue to come in large numbers, each boat up carrying its quota of visitors for the various resorts. The cottages are nearly all opened up and things are taking on the gay and lively aspect that is so characteristic of Stony Lake during the months of July and August. Dances are held regularly now and the young people come from all points on the lake to enjoy this favourite pastime. Picnic parties have been a popular form of pleasure during the past few days and numerous little excursions have been made to dome one of the many attractive points such as Eel's Creek and White Lake that are ideal places for such outings.

Sailboat Upset

While out sailing in his dinghy the other day, Herbert Rice, of Toronto, who is holidaying at "Grassy Island" was upset, the heavy wind that was blowing apparently being too much for him. The upset occurred near "Ispheimery," Mr. T. Barrie's Island. When the dinghy went over, it was seen by some parties on shore and assistance was readily given, someone going out in a skiff to him. He was none the worse for his experience, being a good swimmer, no danger was felt.

Stony Lake Year Book

The Stony Lake year book issued by the Stony Lake Cottagers' Association, is out and is now on sale at the Juniper Island store. It is very attractively gotten up and contains much information of interest to the tourist. Among other interesting things, it contains a map of the lakes giving the situation of various cottages and resorts and the names of their owners.

The Annual Regatta

The year book announces the annual regatta to take place on Monday, August the 9th.

The programme for it, will be as follows:

Men's Single Canoe—(Silver cup, presented by H. T. Woodroofe.)
Dinghy Race—(Silver cup, presented by Hon. G. A. Cox.)
Open Sailing Race—(Silver cup, presented by Hon. J. R. Stratton.

The annual "At Home" of the Association will be held at the pavilion at 9 o'clock. Programme, 9 to 10. Dancing, 10 p.m.

At Viamede

The social life has been much in evidence at this resort during the past week or so. The forty guests that are stopping are apparently enjoying themselves, there being few idle minutes. Besides catching plenty of fish they are having a good time in many other ways.

On Monday an euchre party was held, for which some valuable prizes were donated. Miss Raisbeck, of Rochester, N. Y., was successful in carrying off the honours for the ladies, while Mr. Rainbeck, of the same city, won the gentleman's first prize. The consolation gifts were carried off by Mrs. Murtan, of Hamilton, and Mr. Deinaer, of Buffalo. After the euchre a dance was held in the pavilion.

On Wednesday afternoon the guests enjoyed the round trip on the steamer, going down on the afternoon boat to Lakefield and returning on the evening one.

The first masquerade dance of the season is being held here this evening.

Among those holidaying at this popular resort are: Mr. and Mrs. Albert Stewart and Mr. Frank G. Stewart, Washington, D.C.; Mrs. N. L. English, Buffalo, N.Y.; Mrs. A. M. Giddings, Rochester, N. Y.; Miss Marion J. English, Buffalo, N. Y.; Mr. Donald Shook, Peterborough; Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Doyle, Pittsburg, Pa.; Messrs. E. C. and H. G. Boswell, Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Gordon, Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. A. Howard Johnston, Rochester, N. Y.; Mr. Bernard H. Slavin, wife and son, Rochester, N. Y.; Mr. Sam C. Bell and family, San Antonio, Texas.

At Mount Julian

The Mt. Julian hotel is as popular as ever this year and at the present time there are about thirty guests there. Among those stopping here are: Ward Patterson, wife and two children, Alex Innis and three children, of Havelock; Mr. and Mrs. Robt. B. Magill and Miss P. Bine, Toronto, and Mr. and Mrs. Giles Stones and Miss Francis Stone, of Peterborough.

From the facts known Mr. R. C. Braund is the only grocer in Peterborough who has given his clerks a Thursday half holiday this year. He not only allowed them a half day yesterday, but also invited them to spend the afternoon with his family, who are camping several miles down the Otonabee. Whether he intends to continue this is not known but it is not probable as it is understood that all the other grocers remain open.

CARDINAL'S SCORCHING SERMON AND DEFY STARTS ANOTHER CHURCH WAR IN FRANCE

Andrieu, Prelate of Bordeaux, Tells His People That It's Their Duty to Disobey Obnoxious Laws—Hailed to Court He Defies Them—All Europe Agitated Over Incident.

WORDS OF CARDINAL THAT STARTED TROUBLE

"What reply shall we make to this Caesarism? None other than that of the apostles: NON POSSUMUS!

"Your laws are foul. Since foul laws are not binding to the conscience, it follows that when there exist those which you decree compromising to the most sacred interests of the church and of the family we have not only the RIGHT but the DUTY to disobey them!"

By Phil Simms

Paris, July 16.—Trouble, trouble, boil and bubble! This line of the bard of Avon might well be the motto of France instead of that which now takes the place of the milled edges on coins: "Liberte, Egalite, Fraternite!"

Beset on all sides by a discontented soldiery, a jeering citizenry, an "I-told-you-so" journalism, an anarchy inclined working class, a bitterly split up legislature, not to mention a never-ending list of strikes, the government is now on the ragged edge of another religious controversy as hot and vengeful as was that of 1904. That row, it will be remembered, ended in the separation of church and state and the abrogation of the Napoleon-Pope concordat of 1801.

The prosecution of Cardinal Andrieu, of Bordeaux, will tell the tale. If the government backs down, little harm will be done save that it adds another cause for being blamed for wishy-washiness. But it may save itself a more serious affair.

Some time ago Cardinal Andrieu, in a sermon to his new congregation in the cathedral at Bordeaux declared that the laws of France were bad, and that when one found them clashing with the interests of church and family, one owed himself the duty to disobey them.

For this speech he was brought before the judge of instruction at Bordeaux for an explanation. He gave it. It was short and to the point. Said he:

"I recognize no man-made justice in the contral of the affairs of my diocese. I recognize no human censor; what I say concerns my conscience, the pope and God.

"I do not recognize the right of the French Government to prosecute me because of an alleged disobeyance of an article called the law of separation. This law does not exist so far as Catholics are concerned, since their supreme chief has condemned it many times as hostile to the authority and liberty of the church.

"I do not fear your arrests nor your judgments which are, at most, ephemeral. There is always a rehearing before Him whose decisions are justice itself, and always without appeal.

"I beg of you, in consequence to remember that if the prosecution continues against me, I shall allow you to take judgment by default. For I regard as incompetent the tribune which shall judge me, deriving its power as it does from a law manifestly contrary to the rights of the church, and of the Christian conscience."

The hearing over, the cardinal walked from the court room, head erect, to hear loud shouts of "Long live the cardinal." The next step will be to summons the cardinal before the court of correction, but as indicated by his speech before the judge of instruction, he will not be present to defend himself.

What can the government do? Plainly the cardinal has told it go ahead and do what it would; that he didn't recognize it as having the right. Should the verdict of the court be against him, Catholics will consider it as against the church, and the second great controversy will be on. As I said in the beginning, if the government drops the affair, another contingent will laugh the laugh of derision.

The matter has created the biggest kind of stir at the Vatican. As a matter of fact the Catholic press of the whole of Europe is talking the case over.

The Pope himself considers the action of the French government as a new proof of an indisposition toward the church, and is greatly displeased. He sees in it an obstacle to the renewal of any friendly relations which seemed slowly, very slowly, getting under way. It is a repiy, the Pope has said, to the French bishops who still believe possible a modus vivendi between the French government and Rome. It is known also that the Pope has addressed a letter of congratulation to Cardinal Andrieu, encouraging him to wrestle to the end for the rights of the church.

TRAGEDY OF GERMAN OFFICERS' DUEL ON THE FIELD OF HONOUR

Used Pistols at Ten Paces, and the Combatants Were Surrounded by Soldiers.

Berlin, July 16.—Particulars of a recent duel between two young officers at Blenkenburg have just come to light, showing the support which this form of manslaughter receives at the hands of the authorities.

Lieut. Zwitzer, of the 165th Infantry Regiment, celebrated his promotion by a supper party, among the company being the fiancee of a brother officer named Granier. Zwitzer saw the lady home, and although a married man he so far forget himself as to endeavour to kiss her. The lady repulsed her over-elated cavalier, but at parting forgave him, promising to tell nobody of the indiscretion.

Four months later, however, she told her fiance, who immediately challenged his brother officer. The duel took place with the full concurrence of the so-called Court of Honour, under conditions which were bound to prove fatal—pistols at ten yards' distance, thirty seconds being allowed for aiming, and alternate shots till either combatant was disabled. Two doctors were in attendance, and the ground was surrounded by soldiers. An engine with an ambulance coach was in waiting at a neighbouring station to convey the wounded to Halberstadt Hospital.

Lieut Granier, as the injured party, was allowed first shot. He aimed slowly and deliberately at his opponent's head but the bullet whizzed past his ear. Then it was Lieut. Zwitzer's turn. His pistol missed fire, but the shot counted. New pistols were brought, and every nerve was trained to the utmost. Granier shot again, this time aiming lower, and the bullet penetrated Zwitzer's lungs.

The wounded lieutenant was conveyed in a dying condition to the hospital, where he expired during the night. He leaves a young and disconsolate widow, whose accouchement is imminent, and a child of two.

Granier, who displayed no regret, will probably receive a few months' comfortable detention in a fortress, whereas a peasant for a similar deed would be executed.

FOSTER PREDICTS COOL WEATHER DURING GREATER PART OF NEXT WEEK

Washington, D.C., July 17.—Last bulletin gave forecast of disturbance to cross continent 14 to 18, warm wave 13 to 17; cool wave 16 to 22. This was expected to be the most severe disturbance of the month, the severe weather to cover five days in crossing the continent and the most severe storms to occur within the week of which July 17 is central day.

Next disturbance will reach Pacific coast about 20, cross Pacific slope by close of 21, great central valleys, longitude 105 to 85, about 22 to 24; eastern parts of the continent 25. Warm wave will cross Pacific slope about 20, great central valleys 22, eastern states 24. Cool wave will cross Pacific slope about 23, great central valleys 25, eastern states 27.

Moderate temperatures will prevail during the transcontinental passage of this disturbance. Rains will be moderate and in many places below the usual amount, with a tendency to dry weather. In front of the storm centre temperatures will go considerably higher from 24 to 26, and then go to about normal again. Force of the weather events will increase 24 to 26 and after the cool wave passes a great rise in temperature, with some very uncomfortably hot weather may be expected.

Next bulletin will give general forecasts of August weather and will be a very important bulletin. I have not yet made out detailed calculations for August—these bulletins are written two weeks before they are published—but August will make or unmake the corn crop and have much to do with maturing of flax and spring wheat.

I will not be able to give dates of the first killing frosts till about the middle of August, but the unusually cool dates in August will be given in next bulletin. Up to June 7 the crops promised well except too much rain in some sections south of parallel 40.

Moon and Weather.

If you depend on the moon for weather changes you will get left. The moon is not independent, but is influenced by its surroundings. If you do not note its surroundings, its neighbours that are paying their respects to it, through some force very like that which operates the wireless telegraph, you cannot guess what the moon will do with the weather.

The moon has one effect in a certain locality and an entirely different effect in places a thousand miles away, therefore migrations of people from east to west have caused the moon weather signs to become woefully mixed.

The force coming from the moon that controls the tides widely differs from that which controls the weather. The tide force is more constant while the weather force is very changeable. The two forces differ as widely as do light and electricity.

THREE CHILDREN CREMATED

Gibraltar, July 16.—A shocking accident occurred at the Buena Vista Barracks. Three children belonging to Sergeants Parker and Rover, of the Bedfordshire Regiment, were playing at housekeeping in a large packing-case containing straw at the back of the officers' mess. The straw ignited and the flames set fire to the children's clothes.

A passing policeman rescued them, throwing his coat round one after the other, and himself being badly burned.

SIR NIGEL

BY A. CONAN DOYLE.

Copyright 1905, 1906, by A. Conan Doyle

"It seemes a most monstrous enterprise," said Nigel. "When the King hath come and gone we will spare a day for the outlaws of Puttenham. I fear there is little chance for us to see them on this journey."

"They prey upon the pilgrims who pass along the Winchester Road, and they are well loved by the folk in these parts, for they rob none of them and have an open hand for all who will help them."

"It is right easy to have an open hand with the money that you have stolen," said Nigel; "but I fear that they will not try to rob two men with swords at their girdles like you and me, so we shall have no profit from them."

They had passed over the wild moors and had come down now into the main road by which the pilgrims from the west of England made their way to the national shrine at Canterbury. It passed from Winchester, and up the beautiful valley of the Itchen until it reached Farnham, where it forked into two branches, one of which ran along the Hog's Back, while the second wound to the south and came out at Saint Catharine's Hill where stands the Pilgrim shrine, a gray old ruin now, but once so august, so crowded and so affluent. It was this second branch upon which Nigel and Aylward found themselves as they rode to Guildford.

No one, as it chanced, was going the same way as themselves, but they met one large drove of pilgrims returning from their journey with pictures of Saint Thomas and snails' shells or little leaden ampullae in their hats and bundles of purchases over their shoulders. They were a grimy, ragged, travel-stained crew, the men walking, the women borne on asses. Man and beast, they limped along as if it would be a glad day when they saw their homes once more. These and a few beggars or minstrels, who crouched among the heather on either side of the track in the hope of receiving an occasional farthing from the passer-by, were the only folk they met until they had reached the village of Puttenham. Already there was a hot sun and just breeze enough to send the dust flying down the road, so they were glad to clear their throats with a glass of beer at the ale-stake in the village, where the fair alewife gave Nigel a cold farewell because he had no attentions for her, and Aylward a box on the ear because he had too many.

On the farther side of Puttenham the road runs through thick woods of oak and beech, with a tangled undergrowth of fern and bramble. Here they met a patrol of sergeants-at-arms, tall fellows, well-mounted, clad in studded-leather caps and tunics, with lances and swords. They walked their horses slowly on the shady side of the road, and stopped as the travelers came up, to ask if they had been molested on the way.

"Have a care," they added, "for the 'Wild Man' and his wife are out. Only yesterday they slew a merchant from the west and took a hundred crowns."

"His wife, you say?"

"Yes, she is ever at his side, and has saved him many a time, for if he has the strength it is she who has the wit. I hope to see their heads together upon the green grass one of these mornings."

The patrol passed downward toward Farnham, and so, as it proved, away from the robbers, who had doubtless watched them closely from the dense brushwood which skirted the road. Coming round a curve, Nigel and Aylward were aware of a tall and graceful woman who sat, wringing her hands and weeping bitterly, upon the bank by the side of the track. At such a sight of beauty in distress Nigel pricked Pommers with the spur and in three bounds was at the side of the unhappy lady.

"What ails you, fair dame?" he asked. "Is there any small matter in which I may stand your friend, or is it possible that anyone hath so hard a heart as to do you an injury?"

She rose and turned upon him a face full of hope and entreaty. "Oh, save my poor, poor father!" she cried. "Have you perchance seen the wayfarers? They passed us, and I fear they are beyond reach."

"Yes, they have ridden onward, but we may serve as well."

"Then hasten, hasten, I pray you! Even now they may be doing him to death. They have dragged him into yonder grove and I have heard his voice growing ever weaker in the distance. Hasten, I implore you!"

Nigel sprang from his horse and tossed the rein to Aylward.

"Nay, let us go together. How many robbers were there, lady?"

"Two stout fellows."

"Then I come also."

"Nay, it is not possible," said Nigel. "The wood is too thick for horses, and we cannot leave them in the road."

"I will guard them," cried the lady.

"Pommers is not so easily held. Do you bide here, Aylward, until you hear from me. Stir not, I command you!" So saying, Nigel, with the light of adventure gleaming in his joyous eyes, drew his sword and plunged swiftly into the forest.

Far and fast he ran, from glade to glade, breaking through the bushes, springing over the brambles, light as a young deer, peering this way and that, straining his ears for a sound, and catching only the cry of the wood-pigeons. Still on he went, with the constant thought of the weeping woman behind and of the captured man in front. It was not until he was footsore and out of breath that he stopped with his hand to his side, and considered that his own business had still to be done, and that it was time once more that he should seek the road to Guildford.

Meantime Aylward had found his own rough means of consoling the woman in the road, who stood sobbing with her face against the side of Pommers' saddle.

"Nay, weep not, my pretty one," said he. "It brings the tears to my own eyes to see them stream from thine."

"Alas! good archer, he was the best of fathers, so gentle and so kind! Had you but known him, you must have loved him."

"Tut, tut! he will suffer no scathe. Squire Nigel will bring him back to you anon."

"No, no, I shall never see him more. Hold me, archer, or I fall!"

Aylward pressed his ready arm round the supple waist. The fainting woman leaned with her hand upon his shoulder. Her pale face looked past him, and it was some new light in her eyes, a flash of expectancy, of triumph, of wicked joy, which gave him sudden warning of his danger.

He shook her off and sprang to one side, but only just in time to avoid a crashing blow from a great club in the hands of a man even taller and stronger than himself. He had one quick vision of great white teeth clenched in grim ferocity, a wild flying beard and blazing wild-beast eyes. The next instant he had closed, ducking his head beneath another swing of that murderous cudgel.

With his arms round the robber's burly body and his face buried in his bushy beard, Aylward gasped and strained and heaved. Back and forward in the dusty road the two men stamped and staggered, a grim wrestling-match, with life for the prize. Twice the great strength of the outlaw had Aylward nearly down, and twice with his greater youth and skill the archer restored his grip and his balance. Then at last his turn came. He slipped his leg behind the other's knee, and, giving a mighty wrench, tore him across it. With a hoarse shout the outlaw toppled backward and had hardly reached the ground before Aylward had his knee upon his chest and his short sword deep in his beard and pointed to his throat.

"By these ten finger-bones!" he gasped, "one more struggle and it is your last!"

The man lay still enough, for he was half-stunned by the crashing fall. Aylward looked round him, but the woman had disappeared. At the first bow struck she had vanished into the forest. He began to have fears for his master, thinking that he perhaps had been lured into some death-trap; but his forebodings were soon at rest, for Nigel himself came hastening down the road, which he had struck some distance from the spot where he left it.

"By Saint Paul!" he cried, "who is this man on whom you are perched, and where is the lady who has honored us so far as to crave our help? Alas, that I have been unable to find her father!"

"As well for you, fair sir," said Aylward, "for I am of opinion that her father was the Devil. This woman is, as I believe, the wife of the 'Wild Man of Puttenham,' and this is the 'Wild Man' himself who set upon me and tried to brain me with his club."

The outlaw, who had opened his eyes, looked with a scowl from his captor to the newcomer. "You are in luck, archer," said he, "for I have come to grips with many a man, but I cannot call to mind any who have had the better of me."

"You have indeed the grip of a bear," said Aylward; "but it was a coward deed that your wife should hold me while you dashed out my brains with a stick. It is also a most villainous thing to lay a snare for wayfarers by asking for their pity and assistance, so that it was our own soft hearts which brought us into such danger. The next who hath real need of our help may suffer for your sins."

"When the hand of the whole world is against you," said the outlaw in a surly voice, "you must fight as best you can."

"You well deserve to be hanged, if only because you have brought this woman, who is fair and gentle-spoken, to such a life," said Nigel. "Let us tie him by the wrist to my stirrup leather, Aylward, and we will lead him into Guildford."

The archer drew a spare bowstring from his case and had bound the prisoner as directed, when Nigel gave a sudden start and cry of alarm.

"Holy Mary!" he cried. "Where is the saddle-bag?"

It had been cut away by a sharp knife. Only the two ends of strap remained. Aylward and Nigel stared at each other in blank dismay. Then the young Squire shook his clenched hands and pulled at his yellow curls in his despair.

"The Lady Ermyntrude's bracelet! My grandfather's cup!" he cried. "I would have died ere I lost them! What can I say to her? I dare not return until I have found them. Oh, Aylward, Aylward! how came you to let them be taken?"

The honest archer had pushed back his steel cap and was scratching his tangled head. "Nay, I know nothing of it. You never said that there was aught of price in the bag, else had I kept a better eye upon it. Certes! it was not this fellow who took it, since I have never had my hands from him. It can only be the woman who fled with it while we fought."

Nigel stamped about the road in his perplexity. "I would follow her to the world's end if I knew where I could find her, but to search these woods for her is to look for a mouse in a wheat-field. Good Saint George, thou who didst overcome the Dragon, I pray you by that most honorable and knightly achievement that you will be with me now! And you also, great Saint Julian, patron of all wayfarers in distress! Two candles shall burn before your shrine at Godalming, if you will but bring me back my saddle-bag. What would I not give to have it back?"

"Will you give me my life?" asked the outlaw. "Promise that I go free, and you shall have it back, if it be indeed true that my wife has taken it."

"Nay, I cannot do that," said Nigel. "My honor would surely be concerned, since my loss is a private one; but it would be to the public scathe that you should go free. By Saint Paul! it would be an ungentle deed if in order to save my own I let you loose upon the gear of a hundred others."

"I will not ask you to let me loose," said the "Wild Man." "If you promise that my life be spared I will restore your bag."

"I cannot give such a promise, for it will lie with the Sheriff and reeves of Guildford."

"Shall I have your word in my favor?"

"That I could promise you, if you will give back the bag, though I know not how far my word may avail. But your words are vain, for you cannot think that we will be so fond as to let you go in the hope that you return?"

"I would not ask it," said the "Wild Man," "for I can get your bag and yet never stir from the spot where I stand. Have I your promise upon your honor and all that you hold dear that you will ask for grace?"

"You have."

"And that my wife shall be unharmed?"

"I promise it."

The outlaw laid back his head and uttered a long shrill cry like the howl of a wolf. There was a silent pause, and then, clear and shrill, there rose the same cry no great distance away in the forest. Again the "Wild Man" called, and again his mate replied. A third time he summoned, as the deer bells to the doe in the greenwood. Then with a rustle of brushwood and snapping of twigs the woman was before them once more, tall, pale, graceful, wonderful. She glanced neither at Aylward nor Nigel, but ran to the side of her husband.

"Dear and sweet lord," she cried, "I trust they have done you no hurt. I waited by the old ash, and my heart sank when you came not."

"I have been taken at last, wife."

"Oh, cursed, cursed day! Let him go, kind, gentle sirs, do not take him from me!"

"They will speak for me at Guildford," said the "Wild Man." "They have sworn it. But hand them first the bag that you have taken."

She drew it out from under her loose cloak. "Here it is, gentle sir. Indeed it went to my heart to take it, for you had mercy upon me in my trouble. But now I am, as you see, in real and very sore distress. Will you not have mercy now? Take ruth on me, fair sir! on my knees I beg it of you, most gentle and kindly Squire!"

Nigel had clutched his bag, and right glad he was to feel that the treasures were all safe within it. "My proffer is given," said he. "I will say what I can; but the issue rests with others. I pray you to stand up, for indeed I cannot promise more."

"Then I must be content," said she, rising, with a composed face. "I have prayed you to take ruth, and indeed I can do no more; but ere I go back to the forest I would rede you to be on your guard lest you lose your bag once more. Wot you how I took it, archer? Nay, it was simple enough, and may happen again, so I make it clear to you. I had this knife in my sleeve, and though it is small it is very sharp. I slipped it down like this. Then when I seemed to weep with my face against the saddle, I cut down like this——"

In an instant she had shorn through the stirrup leather which bound her man, and he, diving under the belly of the horse, had slipped like a snake into the brushwood. In passing he had struck Pommers from beneath, and the great horse, enraged and insulted, was rearing high, with two men hanging to his bridle. When at last he had calmed there was no sign left of the "Wild Man" or of his wife. In vain did Aylward, an arrow on his string, run here and there among the great trees and peer down the shadowy glades. When he returned he and his master cast a shame-faced glance at each other.

"I trust that we are better soldiers than jailers," said Aylward, as he climbed on his pony.

But Nigel's frown relaxed into a smile. "At least we have gained back what we lost," said he. "Here I place it on the pommel of my saddle, and I shall not take my eyes from it until we are safe in Guildford town."

So they jogged on together until passing Saint Catharine's shrine they crossed the winding Wey once more, and so found themselves in the steep high street with its heavy-eaved gabled houses, its monkish hospitium upon the left, where good ale may still be quaffed, and its great square-keeped castle upon the right, no gray and grim skeleton of ruin, but very quick and alert, with blasoned banner flying free, and steel caps twinkling from the battlement. A row of booths extended from the castle gate to the high street, and two doors from the Church of the Trinity was that of Thorold the goldsmith, a rich burgess and Mayor of the town.

He looked long and lovingly at the rich rubies and at the fine work upon the goblet. Then he stroked his flowing gray beard as he pondered whether he should offer fifty nobles or sixty, for he knew well that he could sell them again for two hundred. If he offered too much his profit would be reduced. If he offered too little the youth might go as far as London with them, for they were rare and of great worth. The young man was ill-clad, and his eyes were anxious. Perchance he was hard pressed and was ignorant of the value of what he bore. He would sound him.

"These things are old and out of fashion, fair sir," said he. "Of the stones I can scarce say if they are of good quality or not, but they are dull and rough. Yet, if your price be low I may add them to my stock, though indeed this booth was made to sell and not to buy. What do you ask?"

Nigel bent his brows in perplexity. Here was a game in which neither his bold heart nor his active limbs could help him. It was the new force mastering the old: the man of commerce conquering the man of war—wearing him down and weakening him through the centuries until he had him as his bond-servant and his thrall.

"I know not what to ask, good sir," said Nigel. "It is not for me, nor for any man who bears my name, to chaffer and to haggle. You know the worth of these things, for it is your trade to do so. The Lady Ermyntrude lacks money, and we must have it against the King's coming, so give me that which is right and just, and we will say no more."

The goldsmith smiled. The business was growing more simple and more profitable. He had intended to offer fifty, but surely it would be sinful waste to give more than twenty-five.

"I shall scarce know what to do with them when I have them," said he. "Yet I should not grudge twenty nobles if it is a matter in which the King is concerned."

Nigel's heart turned to lead. This sum would not buy one-half what was needful. It was clear that the Lady Ermyntrude had overvalued her treasures. Yet he could not return empty-handed, so if twenty nobles was the real worth, as this good old man assured him, then he must be thankful and take it.

"I am concerned by what you say," said he. "You know more of these things than I can do. However, I will take——"

"A hundred and fifty," whispered Aylward's voice in his ear.

"A hundred and fifty," said Nigel, only too relieved to have found the humblest guide upon these unwonted paths.

The goldsmith started. This youth was not the simple soldier that he had seemed. That frank face, those blue eyes, were traps for the unwary. Never had he been more taken aback in a bargain.

"This is fond talk and can lead to nothing, fair sir," said he, turning away and fiddling with the keys of his strong boxes. "Yet I have no wish to be hard on you. Take my outside price, which is fifty nobles."

"And a hundred," whispered Aylward.

"And a hundred," said Nigel, blushing at his own greed.

"Well, well, take a hundred!" cried the merchant. "Fleece me, skin me, leave me a loser, and take for your wares the full hundred!"

"I should be shamed forever if I were to treat you so badly," said Nigel. "You have spoken me fair, and I would not grind you down. Therefore, I will gladly take one hundred——"

"And fifty," whispered Aylward.

"And fifty," said Nigel.

BROTHER TOLD BROTHER

One Suffered for Fifteen Years, the Other for Thirteen.

The convincing powers of a testimonial were never more clearly shown than in the case of Mr. Hugh Brown. A brother, Lemuel Brown, of Avondale, N.B., read in the paper about Hon. John Costigan being cured by "Fruit-a-tives." Knowing the Senator would only endorse a medicine which had cured him, Mr. Lemuel Brown tried "Fruit-a-tives." They cured him of Chronic Indigestion and Constipation, so he urged his brother to try them.

Hartland, N.B., Oct. 18th, 1907.

"Three doctors told me that I had Liver Disease and serious Stomach Trouble. My stomach was very weak. I took their medicines for thirteen years and grew worse. My brother (who was cured of terrible Indigestion by "Fruit-a-tives" after suffering for 15 years), recommended me to try these wonderful tablets. I bought half a dozen boxes and have just finished the sixth. I eat all kinds of hearty foods without distress and am greatly improved in every way. "Fruit-a-tives" also cured the Chronic Constipation which was so distressing in my case."

The Feed Door of a No. 200 Sunshine Furnace is 12 x 13 inches. This means that the largest shovel can safely be emptied into our smallest size, and that good-sized chunks of wood require no chopping in order to be used as fuel.

To keep the correct humidity for sanitary purposes, we place the water pan in right over the main door, a place where the heat and the householder can reach it. So in Sunshine Furnace the water never gets stagnant, and the householder never complains about the awkwardness of pouring the water in.

Automatic Gas Damper allows furnace to be checked shortly after cooling. This saves fuel and protects plants in rooms above.

To make "Sunshine" the easiest-to-be-cleaned furnace, we construct two fine doors, and place same not only at an equal distance from each other, but at an equal distance from the large feed door. So the operator with an ordinary soot-cleaning brush can go completely around the radiator without inconvenience; and, what is more important still, can do this without having to put out the fire or take down the smoke-pipe.

GLIMPSES OF LIFE AND CONDITIONS IN ENGLAND

The Great Church Festival at Glastonbury is Described---Old Grove Schoolmaster is Making a Name for Himself as a Vocalist in England---Other Interesting Events.

(Written for The Examiner by Mr. F. M. Dela Fosse.)

Bath, July 14. — I promised to write and tell you something about the great church festival at Glastonbury, and if I can get my brains sufficiently cleared from the mists engendered by the everlasting gloom of the atmosphere, I shall endeavour to do so. Where is the villain who asserts that England has a climate? We have had every rain every day for the last month, and notwithstanding all the charms of old associations, there is a subduing quality in these continuous downpours that is, to say the least of it, depressing.

The Glastonbury Festival was a most interesting episode. As I think, I mentioned in last week's letter, it was held to celebrate the handing over of the Abbey to the custody of the Church of England. The history is interesting. Edward VI. had granted the Abbey buildings, lands and orchards to Edward, Duke of Somerset, but when that worthy was attainted for treason, they reverted to the Crown. Queen Elisabeth, in 1559, granted the site to Sir Peter Carew, and after his decease the property passed by various transitions into the hands of Wm. Stanley Austin. In 1907 it was rumored that that gentleman intended to sell the place by public auction. At once various prospects were mooted, one of them by an American lady, who sought to enlist sympathy for the founding of a "School of Chivalry" based upon traditions of King Arthur and the Round Table. The upshot was, however, that the property passed into the hands of Mr. Robert Jardine, of Nottingham, and was by him handed over to the church on the receipt of close upon £31,000, which had been raised by public subscription for its purchase. The ceremony, of course, was like very many other ceremonies. It was graced by the presence of the Prince and Princess of Wales, and attended by a very great throng of sight-seers, who were not to be deterred by the gloominess of the day or the frequent showers that descended upon the town. There was a wonderful array of bishops (over 30) and clergy, and the Archbishop of Canterbury also was present. Glastonbury is one of the most interesting places in England. It is situated in that glorious vale of Avalon, renowned as the place where King Arthur and Queen Guinivere are buried. It is renowned also as being the first spot in which christianity was taught, and as the only place in England which can boast of no break having been made in the "faith once delivered to the saints". St. Joseph of Arimathea is stated to have come here with 12 companions in A.D. 60, and to have built the first church. He is said also to have brought with him the Cup of the Last Supper, which is alleged to have been buried by him in what is now known as Chalice Hill. Other interesting features about Glastonbury are the famous Glastonbury thorn, which is supposed to blossom every Christmas from the staff that St. Joseph thrust into the ground when he rested on Weary-all Hill. St. Patrick is said to have been born near the town, and the famous Dunstan was abbot of the Abbey in 936.

I had the great pleasure when I was in London a few days ago, of seeing Mr. H. M. Eisdell, whom many Examiner readers will remember as a master at the Grove School, Lakefield, some three years ago. Mr. Eidell, as is well known, is the possessor of a beautiful tenor voice, and it will please his friends to learn that he is meeting with marked success in his career as a vocalist in London. He was engaged at the Apoll Theatre in 1907, has sung in oratorio in various provincial towns, and on June 25th had the honour of singing before Her Majesty in a grand concert at Olympia. Mr. Eisdell, nothwithstanding his musical triumphs in this country, assures me that his heart is still in Canada, and stranger things may happen than we shall find this young and gifted vocalist settling in Peterborough as a teacher of singing in the not very distant future. Mr. Eisdell has at present a studio in High St., Kensington.

Schoolboys write funny things even in England. The other day I heard of a boy who, on being asked to translate "Eastern Hemisphere" into French, rendered it "Demi-moudaine orientale."

I had an amusing experience the other day in a railway carriage on my way to Brighton. Two fat and perspiring females jumped into the smoking compartment just as the train was about to start and commenced to puff and pant energetically. "My," said one to the other, "but I ham in a horrible sweat!" "Hovens ain't in it with what I'm a sufferin'" said the other. They were apparently two "trippers" on an outing to Brighton and the way they lounged back in their seats and aped the manners of certain society ladies by turning their supercilious noses in the air and smoking cigarettes, was ludicrous in the extreme.

It is impossible to get away from the fact that large numbers of the English people are in a very highly strung, nervous condition on the two subjects of Germany and the Budget. The papers are full every day of horrible prognostications of evil and Kipling has been trying to add to the uneasiness in a few stanzas, which, if preptrated by a less eminent, being, would be at once stigmatised as arrant doggerel. It is really very hard to convince a man when he does not want to be convinced, but granting for the sake of argument, that England is in need of a more efficient navy, how is that navy going to be procured save by additional taxation? Those who are screaming themselves hoarse over the "iniquity" of the budget proposals are the very ones who are talking "blue ruin" about the navy.

This will be my last letter from England. I hope on my return to give a more succinct summing up of my impressions than is possible in the hurry and scurry of everlasting railway travel.

HOW WEAK GIRLS MAY GROW INTO STRONG WOMEN

The Blood Supply Must be Kept Rich, Red and Pure—Good Blood Means Good Health.

Healthy girlhood is the only path to healthy womanhood. The merging of girlhood into womanhood lays a new tax upon the blood. It is the overtaxing of the scanty blood supply that makes growing girls suffer from all those headaches, backaches and sideaches — all that paleness, weakness and weariness — all that languor, despondency and constant ill health.

Unhealthy girlhood is bound to lead to unhealthy womanhood and a life of misery. Nothing but the blood-building qualities of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills can save a girl when she undertakes the trials and tasks of womanhood. That is the time when nature makes new demands upon the blood supply. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills actually make new, rich blood which meets those new demands with ease. In this simple scientific way Dr. Williams' Pink Pills fill a girl with overflowing health and strength.

Miss Eva Dennis, Amherst, N. S., says:—"Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done me a world of good. I was completely run down, was very pale, easily tired and suffered from frequent severe headaches. Though I tried many medicines I got nothing to do me the least good until I began using Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Even the first box of these seemed to help me, and after taking a half dozen boxes I was again a strong, healthy girl. I have not had any illness since, but should I again fele run down Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will be my only medicine, and I strongly recommend them to every weak and ailing girl.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all medicine dealers or sent by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 by The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

CLEAN AND DIRTY FARMING

From Farm and Dairy.

It is at this time of year, perhaps more than at any other, that the ordinary traveller can determine those farmers who have noxious weed life under their control or those whom noxious weeds control. The doctor may make a mistake with a patient, but that mistake is soon buried out of sight and the circumstance forgotten. The farmer on the side line or concession, in his profession, is given away, by the tell-tale weeds such as couch grass, wild oats, wild mustard, perennial sow thistles, Canadian thistles (which thistles are thick this season), ox-eye daisy and ragweed.

There are very few farms in Ontario to-day that are not more or less affected by some form or forms of noxious weed life. The vigorous up-to-date farmer does not appear to be disconcerted; however, he is wide awake at this season of the year and is waging an unrelenting war against his enemies when fighting them counts every day. You see him weeding his crops in the field and cultivating his hoe crops most thoroughly. He is at it when, from appearances, one would think his efforts of little use. He is ready to commute Statute labor and spend the time that otherwise would be required in working on the roads in fighting weeds. When his hay crop is ready to cut, he cuts it. He does not leave a lot of weeds coming up in it to mature their seeds and depreciate the quality of the hay or to seed the land. He doesn't neglect his hoe crop or summer-fallow altogether when haying is on. He rather hires some extra help and keeps the scufflers going. He studies the nature of the weeds on his farm and learns their vulnerable points and then attacks them when they are the weakest. He plans his rotation and times his work so as to grapple with his worst perennials.

The careless farmer is not thus minded. In a happy go easy way he fights weeds when he feels like it, and so always has more or less with him, enough to spare, as in the case of thistles, to supply all his neighbors and he seeds down their nice clean bare fallows and hoe-crop ground.

No weed is, so bad but it may be successfully dealt with if persistence and proper methods are applied. The best farmers are not worrying about weeds excepting those which come to them from outside sources.

Laid Behind the Counter Until Relief Came.

TERRIBLE SUFFERING OF AN OWEN SOUND CONTRACTOR AND BUILDER.

Mr. Wm. Kranth, Owen Sound, Ont., writes: "Having read some of the testimonials of cures effected by Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, I thought it advisable to say a word of praise for its merits.

"Some years ago I was much troubled with stomach trouble and cramps. I used to roll on the floor in agony, and on one occasion I went into a faint after suffering intensely for four hours. A short time after this, in driving to town, I was attacked again and had to lie down in my rig, seeking relief.

"When I reached the drug store I asked the druggist for a quick remedy and laid behind the counter until relief came. The remedy I received from the druggist was Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry. Whenever, after that time, I felt cramps coming on, I found speedy relief in the above mentioned remedy, and I am now cured of this dreadful malady. The bottle is small, but its contents effect a marvelous cure. I can recommend it highly for the cure of cramps."

Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry has been on the market for 65 years. It is not a new and untried remedy. Ask for it and insist on getting what you ask for. Refuse substitutes. They're dangerous.

A MINIMUM PRICE FOR HOGS

From Farm and Dairy.

It has frequently been advocated by hog raisers that there should be a minimum price paid for live hogs delivered at the packing house. This price should be high enough to ensure farmers a fair profit at least and thus encourage them in off seasons to stay in the business. If such an arrangement was to be considered it would be necessary for the packers to be sure of a minimum price for their pork products in the British market. This would be out of the question, as the supply and demand will vary and the prices rule accordingly.

If the packers were approached by the farmers on that question one of the first things the farmers would be asked to do would be to guarantee a certain number of hogs weekly. Of course they could not comply with such a request. No farmer can tell, six months in advance, the number of hogs he will have to dispose of, any more than he can tell in the spring how his grain crop will turn out in the fall. The same conditions apply in other countries. Our packers cannot prevent the unloading of an unduly large supply of hogs on the British market from European centres and the United States, therefore they cannot set any one price. It is well that they cannot. If they could combine to set a price for live hogs, they would naturally, set it at a figure that would be sure to net safe and handsome returns. It would do away with all of the elements of competition, and hog raisers would be at the mercy of one of the greatest combines in Canada and one which they had assisted to establish.

THINNING APPLES.

From Farm and Dairy.

Jos. Gilbertson, Norfolk Co., Ont.

Methods of Thinning.—1. Use a four foot step ladder, for as much of the tree as possible. 2. Thin out all small and deformed apples. 3. Do not leave more than two apples together, and if tree be heavily laden thin to one.

On July 7th, last year, I commenced to thin Greenings and continued on Holland Pippins, Alexanders, and Baldwins. Thinning Spys before last of July is not recommended, but afterwards it may be proceeded with until harvest.

In 1908, this work on my entire orchard of Greenings, Baldwins, Kings, Golden Russets, Spys and a few other varieties effected such a uniformity of size in the ripened crop that packing in boxes, a method certain of adoption in the near future, was made comparatively easy. It is only thus that we will be enabled to receive the highest market price, and prove our box apples equal to those of Oregon and British Columbia.

By thinning, the buds for the following year are benefitted by the nourishment which has not been unsaleably absorbed by the unsaleable fruit. Proper modes of fertilising, thinning, spraying, cultivating, and pruning cannot but produce apples fine enough for the world's competition.

Although I found the expense of thinning in 1908 averaged five cents a barrel, the cost of picking and packing was much reduced in not having to pay for the handling of small and inferior fruit. My entire crop of 880 barrels was picked and packed for 20 cents a barrel, and, including the cost of thinning, was handled cheaper than in the previous year.

From the method adopted for the first time in 1908, I reached results otherwise unobtainable, for only seven per cent. were found "seconds" while ninety-three per cent. were marked as "firsts." Therefore, in conclusion, my advice to the fruit growers of this country is to thin apples, peaches, and in fact all fruits where the vines or trees are overloaded.—From a pamphlet issued by Ontario Fruit Growers' Association.

WOULD YOU CONVICT.

ON CIRCUMSTANTIAL EVIDENCE?

A SCAFFOLD CONFESSION

A TRUE STORY

(Copyright, 1900, by the New York Herald Co. All Rights Reserved.)

DANIEL ADAMS, formerly District Attorney of New Orleans, and one of the most successful criminal lawyers in the South, says:—

"If the circumstantial proof be of such character as to fulfil the requirements of the law of evidence then I would unhesitatingly and unequivocally recommend it.

"It must be remembered that this species of testimony is not admitted out of consideration of policy or necessity.

"On the contrary, there is scarcely any cause imaginable triable in a court of justice the determination of which is not more or less dependent upon circumstances. It is a class of proof universally recognized as being capable of bringing to the mind the most absolute sense of certainty.

"It reckons with the human frailty and human fallibility for the precept that it is better that ten guilty men should escape than that one innocent man should suffer, and finds expression in the cardinal rule that 'to justify the inference of legal guilt from circumstantial evidence the existence of the inculpatory facts must be absolutely incompatible with the innocence of the accused, and incapable of explanation upon any other reasonable hypothesis than that of his guilt.'

"See what is essential:—

"First—The circumstances from which the conclusion is drawn must be fully established.

"Second—All the facts must be consistent with the hypothesis of guilt.

"Third—The circumstances must be of a conclusive nature and tendency.

"Fourth—The circumstances must to a moral certainty actually exclude every hypothesis except the one proposed to be proved.

"With these safeguards an unlawful conviction seems practically impossible.

"During an active and extensive practice in the criminal courts of New Orleans, covering thirty years, I have never known or heard of a case in which it was even suspected that an innocent defendant had been convicted on circumstantial evidence.

"This species of proof lessens the danger of reaching an erroneous conclusion either from the honest mistake or the wilful falsification of a witness. It multiplies the number of the facts to be proven and of witnesses by whom they are to be established. It lessens the danger of fabrication by reason of the varying circumstances required to complete the chain. When justly considered and properly applied it furnishes the most satisfactory, reliable and conclusive of all proof dependent upon human testimony."

"You are not of my religion," said James Baxwell coldly, "and I forbid you to pay further advances to my daughter. You need not mistake me. I left England and took up my residence here in Gibraltar years ago to escape the dominant faith of my country. Since then I have avoided all personal contact with those who believe as you do, and it is not likely I should give my daughter to one of them. Elezia is to make her choice of a husband only as I approve."

"You are unjust and narrow," answered the young man, whose hand did not relinquish that of the strikingly handsome girl beside him. "Elezia has been brought up among the persons who are eligible according to your views and she cares nothing for any of them. She loves me as I do her, and you have no right to come between us in a matter vital to both of us."

Baxwell flushed. He was not a man used to being thwarted. One of the most important and prosperous merchants of the place, he had ever been able to nurse his own prejudices and eccentricities as he saw fit.

"Stand aside from my daughter, William Katt, if that is your name," he answered sharply. "Who are you to judge of what I have a right to do? I say you shall not have her. Nor shall you even see her again. Now leave before I call the servants."

The girl, whose part in the situation had changed from that of a timid, modest listener to that of an angry, determined supporter of her lover, stepped forward and confronted her father boldly.

A warmer blood of the South flowed in her, an inheritance, with her black hair, dark eyes and full figure, from the Spanish gentlewoman who had been James Baxwell's wife. For three years she had been the accepted beauty of the town, and many had been the admirers to seek her favor. Her father's care, his forbidding manner and a certain degree of reserve which she had from him had brought her scathless and heart whole through to her nineteenth year, and it was an ardent first affection which she had returned to that of William Katt. The difficulties in the way of their meetings had led the young couple to decide upon an appeal to Baxwell, although they had known each other scarce two weeks.

If the quiet, stern merchant was not accustomed to have his opinions in anything turned aside, she was the less so in having her fancy checked. Since the early death of her mother she had ruled in all affairs with one significant exception, of which, however, she had never been conscious. In matters of religion Baxwell was little short of a fanatic. The relations of father and daughter had been smooth because if he had never crossed her in her small desires she had never failed to yield the observance to religion that he demanded. This, then, was the first question upon which they had differed. Her wishes ran directly against his strongest views, both were firm willed and the issue was squarely joined.

"Perhaps I may be allowed to put in a word as to the disposition to be made of me," she said, with sparkling eye. "You have brought me up in your church, father, and I have no thought of waver[illegible] it. But my happiness demands that I marry William Katt. You have never taught me to play puppet, and I would rather come to you with this than deceive you. We intend to do as we please, with or without your consent."

Irritated as he had been by the straightforward antagonism of the young man, Baxwell lost control of himself at the first actual opposition he had ever encountered in his daughter.

Nettled by Opposition.

"What now?" he cried. "You are with him to that point, are you? He has led you to outface your father, to forget your plainest duties, has he? Is this your piety?"

"In nothing else have I set myself contrary to your slightest wish," replied the young woman with composure. "But I must object when you seek to interfere in something which concerns only me and the man of my choice. I am free to dispose of myself as I choose whether or not your ideas agree with my own. You did not impress upon me a respect for the Spanish family system. I am not a chattel. I am an Englishwoman."

Baxwell turned upon her, raging.

"Does that give you license to cast aside all respect for your parent? If I cared to baudy words I might remind you that I have never failed to humor you until this minute and in this most important matter. And here is proper reward for my fond belief in your regard for me. I have lavished every care upon you, counting safely that you would never think to strike me in what I hold nearest. But enough of argument. You are still my daughter and beneath my roof and I charge you, leave the man instantly and go to you room."

The girl exchanged a glance with Katt and started slowly toward the door. She paused at the threshold and looked defiantly at her father.

"It will do no good," she said. "I have your blood in me and you will see I can be as obstinate. Nothing can keep me from marrying the man I love."

Katt had moved to the street door. He heard one last passionate outbreak from Baxwell as the merchant followed his daughter.

"And again I say you shall not. I will see you in your grave before I will allow you to marry any one of that religion."

A week later strange rumors were afloat and folks began to look askance at Baxwell as he passed in the street, wearing an anxious and preoccupied air. He had never been popular in the community on account of his austerity and severity. It was known that he had been in consultation with the police recently. People called him a crafty old fox, and whispered that he was thus attempting to cover himself from a certain grave suspicion. Feeling against him increased, and one day came two Scotch artisans, neighbors of the wealthy merchant, who desired to lay information before the authorities. They sought an interview with the chief of police.

"It's about Baxwell's daughter, Elezia," said the elder of the men, in preface. The chief nodded.

"She's been gone eight days now, no word nor sight of her, and there are things should be known. Baxwell had trouble with the girl and a young man who's been courting her. About religion, we heard. However, that may be, we can take our oaths on a creepy thing we heard on the second day after the quarrel.

"Me and Simpson here, with some Italians, was drawn by cries to one of Baxwell's caves. He has places where he stores goods, and this cave is just next to his house. There's a tunnel connecting somewhere inside the rock and a big barred door on the street. What we heard was a crying like, and a sobbing, and sound of blows. It wasn't loud, account of the heavy door, but it did seem as if some one, and a woman at that, was being beaten. It lasted maybe five minutes, and the noise getting fainter. Then it stopped and we heard nothing more.

Outside the Cage.

"We wanted to find out about it at the house, but nobody seemed to be at home, and we thought it wasn't any of our business anyway. That was before we heard about the quarrel they'd had—I mean old Baxwell and the girl. But she hasn't been seen since, and we thought, like, that we'd better tell what we knew."

The news brought by these informants was considered and inquiries were made in the neighborhood. The statements of the two men were corroborated by others who had been of the group outside the cave that afternoon. While Baxwell was not one to whom official attention would be freely attracted by hints as to a crime, it was felt that the affair was too serious to be passed over. Baxwell had reported that his daughter was missing, and public clamor demanded that careful investigation be made.

Accordingly, in the absence of the merchant, a party of police in charge of the chief entered his house and instituted a search. It was found that from the rear of the low, unpretentious structure, which backed against the wall of the mountain, a gallery had been cut leading into the cave indicated. This cave was spacious and apparently had been used as a storehouse for goods. It was now empty. Hamilton, the police chief, made a careful inspection of the floor, which was covered with rough planks roughly laid and raised about a foot above the solid stone beneath.

In one corner he was startled to find a large stain, which covered several of the planks. It had all the appearance of dried blood. Closer examination was rewarded by the discovery of several long black hairs. Hamilton ordered the flooring lifted. Beneath was found more blood and in considerable quantity, with a tress of the black hair.

On the orders of the chief all the flooring was removed. Stuffed in another corner was found a section of a torn skirt, stained and dried into a mass. From its appearance Hamilton thought that it probably had been used as a mop to remove part of the blood from the planking.

Search was then concentrated upon discovery of the possible disposition of a body, but no advance was made in this direction. The scanty soil of the garden offered no evidence of a burial. One of the policemen, however, came upon a blood stained axe in a little tool house. Hamilton found that this, also, carried a few of the same black hairs.

Baxwell was placed under arrest immediately on his return, and every effort was made to induce him to reveal what he had done with the body. The merchant appeared confused when he was charged with the crime and denied his guilt querulously. He said that the girl had left home. It was doubtful in the minds of the authorities if the action against him could proceed until positive proof of the death of his daughter was brought forward.

Hamilton's theory was that the body had been left in the cave until after nightfall and had then been taken to the sea. He believed it likely that Baxwell had put out a short distance in a boat and thrown it over. As to the motive, enough was learned of Baxwell's character to establish that he carried religious enthusiasm to extremes. Katt was questioned and described the quarrel in detail, ending with the significant remark from Baxwell which had closed it. The young man said that he had not seen Elezia after their attempt to gain her father's consent to their marriage.

Watch for the Body.

Hamilton caused a watch to be kept along the coast and led searching parties to inaccessible points, confident that the body, even if weighted, would be washed ashore by the action of the tides. About two weeks had passed in this way without visible effect upon Baxwell, who had sunk into a condition of stupefied indifference, occasionally broken by periods of frenzy in which he raved about his faith and his daughter, a party of fishermen along the Spanish coast above La Linea one day came upon a floating body of a woman, much disfigured. It was brought ashore and offered for identification.

Although the features were no longer recognisable, there was no difficulty in obtaining witnesses who were willing to swear positively that the body was that of Elezia Baxwell. It was the proper height, the hair was black and the remnants of clothes were identified as garments worn by Elezia and missing since her disappearance. About the waist of the body were some shredded strands of rope. From this it was supposed that a rude attempt had been made to sink it with stones or other clumsy weights which had worked loose.

"NOW LEAVE BEFORE I CALL THE SERVANTS!"

Having thus provided the corpus delicti, the authorities proceeded to erect the case. The principal precedent circumstance upon which the prosecution relied was the disagreement of Baxwell with Katt and Elezia. To avoid the weakness presented through the fact that Katt himself had supplied this link corroborative testimony was obtained from the two servants. From the rear of the house they had overheard the quarrel and were able to repeat phrases of the words uttered by the merchant which bore out Katt's statements perfectly.

A cloud of witnesses were discovered who could aid in establishing the prisoner's religious obsession, which, as it was made to appear, amounted to a mania. He had refused to conduct profitable dealings with firms whose members were not of his persuasion. He had exercised a strict supervision over the religious professions of his servants and had made regular attendance at church a condition to entering and continuing in his service. On several occasions he had high words with disputatious individuals on religious topics, and at these times had exhibited a rabid intolerance and bigotry. While his excessive piety was not at all in variance with the prevailing sentiment of the inhabitants of the place and had done much to counteract the unpopularity incident to his cold and reserved manner with all men it served to show a state of mind which might easily have been aggravated into violence by opposition touching him so closely as that of his daughter.

The marks on the floor of the cave were fully proved to have been made by blood, as were those on the axe. While lacking a distinctive shade, the hair was found to offer no contradiction to the belief that it was that of Elezia. One more circumstance advanced by Hamilton gave color to the whole hypothesis. He showed that the cave was constructed so as to form a safe prison. The door leading into the tunnel to the house was solid and braced with iron. It was fitted with a strong lock, and when examined the key was found on the house side of the door. As for the door leading to the street, it would have allowed little sound to pass other than that caused by a violent screaming, such as had been heard with difficulty by the group gathered outside.

The view of the prosecution, then, was that following the scene with Katt, Baxwell had imprisoned the girl in the cave, hoping to bring her to his view by severe treatment; that she had remained there for two days, probably on scanty fare and visited frequently with pleading and reproaches by her father; that finally a tempestuous climax to their differences having arisen, he had struck her with the axe, probably without careful premeditation, and that he had been able to remove her body in a boat or through the aid of fishermen employes that night.

The Trial.

There was little or nothing to combat the position taken by the authorities. Baxwell recovered somewhat at the beginning of the trial and entered a general denial of the circumstances alleged against him. He admitted that he had refused his daughter to Katt, but declared emphatically that he had not said anything about seeing her in her grave before he would allow her to marry the young man. He was particularly unfortunate in this, for his closing remark, delivered while he was following his daughter from the room, was one of the phrases that had been overheard by the servants. For the rest the case was entirely circumstantial.

On the day on which the murder was supposed to have been committed Baxwell, in great agitation, had applied to the police for the discovery of his daughter. The story he had told at that time, according to the written report of the complaint, was that he had awakened to find her room empty, with neither note nor sign of her intention to depart. In attempting to fix the exact time of the events of this day it appeared that the cries from the cave had been heard about ten o'clock in the morning. Baxwell's appearance before the police had been noted at eleven o'clock.

The servants had not seen Elezia after the quarrel with Katt. Early on the morning of the day in question Baxwell had been moody and distraught, and finally had sent them into the streets, bidding them seek his daughter. They had thus been absent from the house at ten o'clock. Since that day Baxwell's condition, as they and others described it, was such as might have been induced by a torturing and undermining sense of guilt.

Baxwell's behavior in prison was puzzling and supported the view that his act had affected his reason. He remained for the most part in a silent torpor after his denials at the trial, coming out of it at intervals to exhibit acute religious mania. He aroused himself to some sense of his position when he was convicted, and again, some weeks later, when he was led to the scaffold.

To the jailer who came to conduct him to the guards waiting below he made a rational declaration of his innocence, and, apparently fortified by a more moderate religious enthusiasm than he had yet shown, prepared himself to meet the end. He walked quietly among the troops, intent upon his prayers. In ascending the scaffold he scanned the crowd collected about him and noticed the face of William Katt in the first rank.

Baxwell paused and looked at the man whose testimony, more than that of any other, had convicted him, the one, moreover, who had been the moving cause of the entire tragedy. He turned and extended his hand, while the guards, willing to allow the momentary respite to the condemned, though alert for possible retaliation, halted and closed in about him. There was no need for their interference, however.

"My friend," said Baxwell, calmly, "in a few minutes I shall enter eternity. I wish to die at peace with all men. Give me your hand. I pardon you freely for the injury your evidence has done me."

Katt, with a hundred pair of eyes upon him, did not refuse the offer, and the men exchanged their last greeting. The younger man was deadly pale, and after Baxwell had released his hand held it awkwardly before him, gazing stupidly from it to to the ascending figure and back again. The merchant, meanwhile, gave himself into the hands of the executioner to undergo death by hanging. The functionary, following ancient local custom, began the preparation for his duties by solemnly crying:—

"Justice is doing. Justice is done."

He then advanced with a long black cap, which he adjusted over Baxwell's head. The cap covered the condemned man's head entirely and fell about his shoulders. In another moment the executioner had fixed the noose in place and was testing the knot. His next move would be to step off the trap and release it.

The Revelation.

While the crowd watched in strained, breathless silence there came a sharp, agonized voice and a commotion near the steps of the scaffold.

"Stop! Stop! The man is not guilty. I swear it. It is I who should stand there. Let me speak."

The executioner paused at his work and stepped forward to view the source of this strange disturbance. The guards quickly cleared a space, and from the confusion came the figure of William Katt, struggling in the arms of two soldiers. The judge who presided at the trial was present, and after hurried consultation with the commander of the troops ordered Katt forward to explain while the execution proceedings were halted.

The young man, greatly agitated, spoke rapidly and at times incoherently, clearly overcome by the sudden release of some great remorse. But his earnestness and the sincerity with which he told his strange story left no doubt upon the minds of his hearers that he was telling the truth.

"I ran off with Elezia Baxwell. She is my wife, in a Spanish town not far from here. She is not dead. I swear it."

They calmed him and he described his plot in detail. According to an arrangement made with the girl he was to come for her on the second night following if her father would not consent to their marriage. He did come and they escaped to the home of a relative of Katt's, where they were married by a clergyman. He did not tell her of his intentions for revenge upon her father and the rest of the affair was carried on without her knowledge.

He returned to Baxwell's house, finding both the merchant and the servants gone. Having supplied himself with a bottle of blood from a lamb and some hair clipped from his bride's head, he went into the cave and manufactured the scene of a crime. The portion of the girl's dress was also part of his setting, as were the stains on the axe. After he completed his task he raised the outcry which was heard in the street. Being something of a mimic he was able to imitate a woman's screams. He left the place without being discovered.

His first intention was to submit Baxwell to a fright, but the discovery of a woman's body in the sea put a more serious face upon the matter. After that he was afraid to come forward, though he was on the point of doing so several times. He said that at last he decided to speak at the scaffold and reveal the cruel prank he had played.

When the revelation of the astounding mistake was complete and Katt ceased speaking, standing with bowed head in shame and remorse, the judge turned to Baxwell. Unobserved during the time when Katt's story held his hearers spell bound, he had slipped to the planking of the trap on his knees. As the executioners, at a gesture from the judge, removed the noose and the black cap, the merchant fell forward at full length. Attempts to revive him were useless and he died without regaining consciousness. Physicians gave the cause of his death as heart failure, and said that he probably had been stricken just after the executioner adjusted the noose. They did not think it likely that he had heard Katt's confession.

Katt was imprisoned, tried and sentenced to a long term for perjury and mischief leading to a death. Elezia, overcome with horror at the turn of affairs, of which she had remained in ignorance, made what atonement she could for her share in it, retired to a convent for life.

A Positive Cure for Deafness

A large proportion of all cases of impaired hearing and deafness is due to disease of the middle ear and Eustachian tubes, caused either by acute inflammation or chronic catarrh.

Nearly all these cases can be cured, or the progress of the disease arrested, by inflation of the ears through the nose and Eustachian tubes with medicated air.

A very safe and efficient means of accomplishing this end can be had by the use of Catarrhozone, a positive cure for catarrh in the most chronic form.

It is sure death to the microbic life which maintains the inflamed condition, and also through its healing properties restores the diseased organs to a healthy, normal condition.

It is not mere theory. The result of actual experience proves that ninety-nine cases in one hundred can be cured, and stay cured, of impaired hearing by the use of Catarrhozone.

Catarrhozone Cures

Catarrhozone is a new scientific remedy for all diseases of the nasal and respiratory passages caused by microbic life, and if you are affected with catarrh, asthma, or bronchitis, it is well deserving of your attention.

It never fails to cure any of these affections, because it is sure to reach the seat of the disease. That is why Catarrhozone is so far in advance of treatment by snuffs, washes, douches, etc., which are absolutely useless, because they cannot reach the root of the trouble.

You simply breathe the medicated air, it does the rest—nothing could be simpler. Complete outfit, sufficient for two months' treatment, price $1.00, at all dealers, or by mail from the Catarrhozone Company, Kingston, Ont.

Stories Of The "Cavan Blazers"

Reminiscences of a People Who Swayed a Section of the Country a Generation Ago---How Disputes Were Settled and Differences Made Right.

It would appear that "W. L. S.," a staff reporter of The Weekly Sun, has been taking a semi-official holiday through those parts of Durham, Northumberland, and Peterboro adjacent to the waters of Rice Lake with his eyes and ears wide open, and among interesting things heard from the old-time settlers of course the ancient fame of "The Cavan Blazers" would take up no small portion of his sketch book, a few leaves of which he has torn out and mailed to headquarters last week for the edification of the readers of his journal, which we believe to be of sufficient interest for many reasons to everybody in this locality where the term "Cavan Blazers" has been heard in every household in the neighboring townships as far back as many of our fathers and mothers can remember, to justify our reproducing it herewith for our circle of readers:

"'The Cavan Blazers' were the social regulators of the early days in the northern part of Durham," said George Berry. "Now-a-days its all law, law. If any little dispute occurs between neighbours, or if some one is acting in a manner injurious to the community, the magistrate and constable must be called in. 'The Blazers' settled all such matters in the early days without delay, without cost and with less of ill-feeling than follows upon legal proceedings now. Not only that but they made the punishment fit the crime in the case of men whose offences could not be reached in the ordinary way.

"For instance there was one mean and generally disagreeable fellow, whose conduct was such as to call for a little discipline. This man had a wagon load of grain standing in the barn all ready to go to market. When he got up in the morning he found the wagon, still loaded, on the ridge of the barn. He may not have enjoyed the work of getting wagon and bags down again, but he was a better citizen afterwards.

Then there was a storekeeper who insisted on pasturing a calf on the roadway. A near-by church and the cemetery alongside were both open to the road, and the calf would go into the graveyard and nibble the long grass. Then as a chill came on with the night, it would lie on the warm steps of the church and leaves these in a most filthy state by morning. "The Blazers" stood it as long as possible, and then one Saturday night something happened. When the storekeeper got up late on Sunday morning he found the calf boxed up in a great crockery crate in front of his store door, and the crate securely anchored with some heavy stones and a block of timber placed on top. The lesson was effective. There was no more desecration of the place of burial and the church steps did not require scrubbing every Sunday morning before service.

"The Blazers" had their own method of punishing contempt of the court they maintained. One man, forgetting the respect due so useful and august a tribunal, had the temerity to express, in a letter, sentiments which "The Blazers" thought derogatory to their dignity. One evening, as he was walking home along the concession line, he found himself unexpectedly in the midst of a group of figures that appeared from the gloom of the fence corners. He was first requested, and the request was promptly complied with, to eat his own letter. Then he was asked, and again no special urging was called for to hold up his right hand and repeat a solemn declaration that "I, A.B., am the greatest liar on the top of the earth."

On another occasion "The Blazers" came in for what they considered unjust criticism. In this case the criticism was given in the course of a sermon by a preacher in the neighbourhood. The preacher also happened to be going along the road a short time afterwards, and he likewise found himself in the midst of a group of stalwart figures that appeared from the surrounding gloom. He was asked to get out of his buggy. He got out. He was requested to kneel in the dust of the roadway. He kneeled. Then he was requested to pray, not for the conversion of "The Blazers" but for the success of their efforts to maintain order and promote good citizenship in their own way. He prayed.

"A widow had a cow that was almost as great a nuisance as the storekeeper's calf. It carried a bell,—a jarring, jangling bell, that kept the whole neighborhood awake at nights. On Saturday night there was an unusual calm; the bell had disappeared from the cow's neck. Next morning it was found hanging from the middle of a telegraph wire that ran opposite the church, in which the sermons were of the two hour order and even more. That Sunday, the preacher had scarcely reached the 'firstly' when a gentle breeze sprung up and jang-clang went the bell as it swayed on the wire. The sermon proceeded, but before it was fairly on the 'secondly' stage, the wind had increased, and the jang, clang, clang brought the discourse to an abrupt and unusual ending. "The Blazers" got their two birds with the one stone—a-fi-ap-le two birds with that shot all right; the cow no longer disturbed the night, and from that time on the sermons in that particular church were confined to moderate length.

"The Blazers" were fine workers and had their once peculiar sense of humour.

One night when out on some other business, a quiet young man happened to be going the same way on horseback. He, too, suddenly found himself in a bunch of men on the roadway. Their unlooked for appearance rather alarmed him at the start but their demeanor and gentle conversation reassured him and he thought he must have struck a lot of neighbours going home from a prayer meeting. When he got into the stable, with a light, he found that the tail of his horse had been as neatly shaved as ever a chin had been shaved by a barber with all the accessories of electric light and upholstered chair.

"The Blazers" were all Orangemen, and there was only one Catholic in the whole township. One year, as the harvest season approached, this Catholic was taken ill and was unable to care for his ripening crop. It was then 'The Blazers" showed the warm heart beneath the sometimes rude exterior. They went one moonlight night and cut and shocked the ripened grain on the farm of their sick Catholic fellow-citizen. A few nights later they went again and hauled the grain into the barn."

EXPRESS RATES RESTORED

From Farm and Dairy.

The appeal of the fruit growers of the district near Queenston in the Niagara peninsula against the raising of express rates on fruit shipped to Toronto, was heard with approval by the Dominion Railway Commission on July 7th. Judge Mabee ordered the Canadian Express Company to restore its rates on fruit from Queenston to Toronto to 30 cents as the company had agreed that the rates in effect when the Railway Commission undertook an investigation of express rates, would be maintained while the matter was before the Board. Subsequently, the Canadian Express Company raised its rates from 30 cents to 40 cents despite this agreement. According to the company this was done because the business did not pay at the lower rate but, as remarked by Judge Mabee, it is a "peculiar coincidence" that the Canadian Express Company raised its rates immediately after the Dominion Express Company had gone out of fruit carrying business in that locality.

During the hearing of the case, Judge Mabee took several opportunities to express contempt for the action of the Canadian Express Company and, in scathing terms, disallowed the change of rate. The decision of the Board was a great victory for the fruit men and incidentally reflected much credit on Mr. W. H. Bunting, of St. Catharines, who stated the case for the growers.

TIT FOR TAT.

By CLARA M. HOLMES.

[Copyrighted, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.]

The train from the west pulled into the station, puffing breathlessly from its long race, and Ben Hildreth dropped off the rear car and looked about expectantly.

"Hilda!" he ejaculated joyfully, stooping to kiss the slender young lady who approached him with extended hand.

Her haughty withdrawal and very indignant look surprised him, and her critical glance made him painfully aware of his forty-three years and his dusty and very ordinary dress.

Her glance said plainly, "Mercy, how old he is, and look at his clothes!"

After five years' betrothal their cherished love dream became at once intangible by reason of a misfit coat and a plainly shown girlish contempt for an accumulation of years.

But when Ben clasped hands with Hilda's mother he forgot the bitter tang of disappointment. She was unchanged. Her face wore the same contented look, and the welcome he received might have been a leaf torn from the book of past happenings.

Even the hot biscuit at supper time had the well remembered relish of former days. And the thoughtful manner of saying, "Now go and take your smoke, Ben; I know you are wanting it badly," seemed like the picking up of the raveled threads from the tangled skein of time.

Somewhat of Hilda's aloofness wore off after the first few days—whenever she could forget the humiliation of being kissed in public.

"The very idea! Any one would know he was from the west!" she concluded wrathfully when telling it to her mother.

Mrs. Stevens laughed heartily. "Are people so different in the west? I had supposed that they were merely energetic persons who needed elbow room."

"Oh, you can laugh, but just look at his clothes!"

"Yes; clothing does make a difference in the favor of a kiss."

"Whether it does or not, I am not going out there to live with a man old enough to be my father," was the angry reply.

"Tell him so, not me. You knew where he lived and his age, didn't you, when you gave him your promise?"

"I suppose so, but I didn't have sense enough to know what it meant," she grumbled, "and besides, he's so much older than he was then. Why, it's five years!"

"Yes, he is five years older, and so are you. Excuses are so easy to find if we seek them."

"I don't care; he isn't one bit as he used to be!"

"When people say they don't care they acknowledge that they are in fault, and know it. I think that the change is in you, Hilda."

As the days went by Hilda's dislike seemed to increase. She would frequently go out and let her mother entertain Ben for a whole afternoon without the courtesy of an apology.

Ben did not appear to be annoyed in the least. Instead he chatted merrily with Mrs. Stevens and easily fell into the old time habit of calling her Lottie. Occasionally he would regard Hilda so teasingly that she would grow restive under his gaze and fly out of the room, storming to her mother: "I hate him! I hate him!"

"Well, why not tell him so and end the engagement? You are in a happy frame of mind for a prospective bride."

To this Hilda made no reply.

The wedding day drew near. Ben had been out of town one afternoon, and, being delayed by business, it was late when he returned.

"Do you know where Hilda is?" he questioned of her mother.

"Why, yes," she replied. "She said that she was going over to her cousin Nettie's."

"Oh, she did, did she?" answered Ben so quizzically that Mrs. Stevens said nervously, "What is wrong?"

"There's nothing wrong," he replied with a light laugh and settled himself for a smoke. His laugh was too light to be reassuring. Mrs. Stevens drummed on the table restlessly.

"It's all right, Lottie," he assured her, laying his hand over her fingers to still their restless movement. After a moment he remarked, "How homelike you make every place, Lottie! I have been thinking of the hills all day, and—it makes me homesick. I wish you and I were there," he finished wistfully.

"It would be nice. I'd like to see the mountains. When you and Hilda have been married a year or so, I'll visit you, perhaps," a doubting hesitation in her tone.

He regarded her with wrinkled eyes for a minute. Then he asked with seeming irrelevance, "Do you know Charlie Dupont?"

"Why, yes. Why do you ask that?"

"Just curiosity, I suppose," with another laugh.

"Ben, what is the trouble between you and Hilda?" in a tone of exasperation. "She isn't happy, and you are tormenting. I do not believe she will be at all happy out there. She hates the west," Mrs. Stevens remonstrated rather incoherently.

"She'd hate any place with me. I'm the difficult problem, Lottie," replied Ben calmly.

"You two are laying up an abundance of unhappiness for yourselves," was the grave reply.

"Don't you fret over us little children, Lottie," said he, rubbing his hand significantly over the very apparent bald spot on the top of his head. "Sit down here and let me talk to you," he said, pointing to a chair beside his own.

For fully an hour they conversed in low tones, he persuading, she half remonstrating, occasionally both laughing, until at last she said in a tone of yielding, "I suppose it is all right, but it does look ridiculous for"—

"Sh-sh! Here comes Hilda," cautioned he.

Her mother was sewing busily and Ben was smoking very contentedly when she entered. As neither made a remark of any kind, she seemed to feel the urgent need of an explanation of something within her own mind and commenced in the most voluble manner: "Did you think I was going to stay all night, mother? We had such a lot of things to talk about, Nettie and I"—

"Who?" interrupted Ben. The tone was so derisive that Hilda cried out angrily:

"Perhaps you do not believe me! You are always laughing at me, and I think it's awful mean of you."

Ben smoked placidly and made no reply, which angered Hilda all the more. She looked toward her mother as if craving support, but as she appeared absorbed in her occupation the enraged girl flounced out of the room, slamming the door vigorously.

It lacked only a week to the date set for the wedding. The evening was coldly clear, but gusty, and the few remaining leaves were blown from the bushes and scurried down the street like droves of frightened fairies. Hilda stood in the embrasure of the window drumming restlessly on the window pane.

An automobile halted by the curb, but well in the shadow of the trees. She turned, as if tired of her amusement, and sauntered up to her room. It was but a very few minutes until a soft frou-frou through the hall and the cautious opening and closing of the front door betrayed her departure.

Ben came from an adjoining room laughing gleefully. "Hurry up, Lottie! If they get there before us it will spoil all the fun."

"You are sure that it is an elopement, Ben?"

"Certainly. I heard them planning it. Come on, come on," he urged, taking her by the arm. They hurried out by the rear entrance, and before the others were under way they were flying down a side street to the parsonage.

When the elopers arrived they were conducted at once to the study by the parson himself. As they placed themselves in readiness for the marriage ceremony the parson remarked: "You must excuse me, but the law requires two witnesses. I suppose you do not object." And without waiting for a reply he opened a side door and admitted Hilda's mother and Ben.

"Oh!" breathed Hilda, frightened. But Ben said nothing. The minister went on with the ceremony, and Hilda, having caught sight of Ben's derisive smile, did not lift her eyes again till the final words were spoken.

The ceremony concluded, her mother congratulated her calmly. Ben's eyes twinkled mockingly as he held out his hand to Hilda.

"Receive my hearty congratulations, Mrs. Dupont. You rushed things a bit, and yet we were ahead of you. I came here to marry. I thought you were to be my bride, but you were a little cheat. I overheard you planning with the man who wore a better coat than I, and, listening to your very amusing comments on my personal peculiarities, I acknowledged to myself that the union would not be very satisfactory on either side. But the situation was not as unpleasant as it might have been. I had been mistaken as well as you, and the more I saw of your mother the better satisfied I was with the way things were coming. I really wanted you to be honest enough to speak out, but when you wouldn't, why, we made first inning and were married less than five minutes before your arrival here."

Hilda's look of astonishment changed to one of demure mockery. "I trust, papa, dear, that you enjoyed my summary of your very mature charms," she said.

"It didn't hurt my feelings a little bit, daughter. I knew my age to a day and all about the 'skating rink,' and as to my coat, if Mr. Charlie had worn it you wouldn't have known it from broadcloth."

Hilda laughed saucily and gave her newly made husband an adoring look.

"So, you see, it wasn't the coat; 'twas the man in the coat," philosophized Ben.

"It was just a little game of tit for tat, in which we are all winners," remarked Mrs. Hildreth happily.

Courting in Cordova.

At night Cordova sleeps early. A few central streets are still busy with people, but the rest are all deserted; the houses look empty; there is an almost oppressive silence. Only here and there as one passes heedlessly along a quiet street one comes suddenly upon a cloaked figure with a broad brimmed hat leaning against the bars of a window, and one may catch through the bars a glimpse of a vivid face, dark hair and a rose (an artificial rose) in the hair.

Not in any part of Spain have I seen the traditional Spanish lovemaking, the cloak and hat at the barred window, so frankly and so delightfully on view. It brings a touch of genuine romance which it is almost difficult for those who know comic opera better than the countries in which life is still in its way a serious travesty to take quite seriously. Lovers' faces on each side of the bars of a window at night in a narrow street of white houses—that, after all, and not even the miraculous mosque, may perhaps be the most vivid recollection that one brings away with one from Cordova.—London Saturday Review.

Lundyfoot and His Snuff.

The shop of a Dublin tobacconist named Lundyfoot was destroyed by fire. While he was gazing dolefully into the smoldering ruins he noticed that his poorer neighbors were gathering the snuff from the canister. He tested the snuff for himself and discovered that the fire had largely improved its pungency and aroma. This was a hint worth profiting by. He secured another shop, built a lot of ovens, subjected the snuff to a heating process, gave the brand a name and in a few years became rich through an accident which he at first thought had ruined him. It was Lundyfoot to whom the great orator and wit, John Philpot Curran, suggested the celebrated motto to the coat of arms emblazoned by the successful tobacconist upon the panels of his carriage, a motto which had its meaning in Latin and English and was significant in both, "Quid Rides" (who laughs). "Quid," it may be mentioned, was a nickname bestowed on tobacconists at the time, owing to a prominent article in their stock of trade.

The King of Instruments.

Restricted as is its range of dynamics, the violin has had for its votaries men of such widely differing temperaments as Paganini and Spohr, Wilhelmj and Sarasate, Joachim and Ysaye. Its literature does not compare with that of the piano, for which Bach, Beethoven, Schumann, Chopin and Brahms have written their choicest music, yet the intimate nature of the violin, its capacity for passionate emotion, crowns it—and not the organ with its mechanical tonal effects—as the king of instruments. Nor does the voice make the peculiarly poignant appeal of the violin. Its lowest note is the G below the treble clef and its top note a mere squeak, but it seems in a few octaves to have imprisoned within its wooden walls a miniature world of feeling. Even in the hands of a clumsy amateur it has the formidable power of giving pain, while in the grasp of a master it is capable of rousing the soul.—James Huneker in Everybody's.

The Use of Iron.

Iron has been known to men for a very long time. In the time of the Assyrians it was extensively used, iron saws, knives and other tools having been found by Layard at Nineveh. Homer refers to the forging of iron, while the hardening and tempering of steel appear to have been operations in common use among the early Greeks. The employment of a kind of bellows for the forging of tools, presumably of iron, figures in Egyptian sculpture of 1500 B. C. Cast iron appears to have been discovered about 350 B. C. Through the agency of the Romans the manufacture of iron was introduced all over the then known world and into those regions where it had not been previously known.

THE HARDY CODFISH.

It Will Live For Hours Out of Its Native Element.

A man who had stopped at a stand in Fulton market to buy a fresh fish pointed his finger at a fish that pleased his fancy, being about two feet long and weighing about five pounds.

"That looks like a nice fish to me," he said, whereupon the dealer picked the fish up to put it on the scale.

The moment he picked it up the fish began to wriggle, and the next moment it had slipped out of the dealer's grasp and fallen on the sidewalk.

As the fish went down the customer turned to the stand and picked out another, which the dealer picked up, and this fish stayed quiet until it had been put on the scale, but the instant it touched it it began to flop vigorously and finally flopped itself out of the scale pan, to fall on the stand below.

Codfish these two lively and vigorous fish were, the cod being a fish that will live out of the water three or four hours, a good deal longer than most fish. At Fulton market live cod can almost always be found. The dealers keep their stock in fish cars in the East river, just across South street, and for small trade bring over maybe fifty or a hundred pounds at a clip, enough to last half an hour or an hour, and when the stock runs low they bring over another lot, fresh out of the fish car.

The cod, though a salt water fish, will live for hours in fresh water. An angler who goes occasionally to the fishing banks tells of carrying home a codfish caught in the afternoon and placing it in a bathtub, to find it alive the next morning.

May Cure Snoring Too.

"I've found a cure for nightmare," said the man who will eat despite his subsequent sufferings. "When I go to bed at night I slip a string through an empty spool, secure the spool firmly so it will not slide and then tie the string around me, waist in such a way that the spool comes in the middle of my back. The result is that if I try to turn on my back in my sleep I lie on the spool, and I can assure you it awakens me promptly. No; it isn't pleasant to be wakened in that way, but it is better than having to go through one of the diabolical nightmares from which I have suffered for several years."—New York Press.

Must Keep It Dry.

The teacher had explained to a primary class the difference between solids and liquids and illustrated her points by objects kept on a table. When she thought her pupils had grasped the idea she held up her watch and asked, "Now, children, must I put this among the solids or among the liquids?" "Among the solids, teacher," a bright little boy replied. "Why not among the liquids?" she asked. "Because," replied the little fellow—"because if you do you will get it wet."

FAKE MOVING PICTURES

WHAT THE ANIMATED PHOTO MAN MAKES.

Comfortable Income May Be Made Supplying Short Sketches and Stories in Dumb Show to the Men Who Supply Cinematograph Films to the Five Cent Theatres — How Fake Royal Pictures Were Secured.

To the man who knows the ropes, and has got plenty of ideas, there is a comfortable enough income to be made by supplying the various animated picture companies with clever "made up" or "faked" pictures.

"Life on Our Home Farm" was my first effort. I first of all wrote out a short description of the various scenes I intended to introduce into the pictures, which I submitted to a company, and was straightway commissioned to get them. I fixed the whole thing up in the city yard of a dairy company, the manager of which was a friend of mine.

The dairy stock consisted of four cows; but we borrowed a couple of sheep, a pig, and a dog; whilst the yard man—a stout individual—made a splendid farmer of the well-known John Bull type.

The company paid me $400 for the pictures, which left me a clear profit of $250, after deducting the expenses I had been put to in obtaining them. Of course, the picture-maker has to supply all necessary "properties" and costumes, and pay the "actors." Some picture companies send an operator to photograph the pictures when they have been made up, but usually the picture-maker has to take the photographs himself.

While preparing the photographs, it is a simple matter to stop the film in the camera, and make changes in a group. Thus a dummy is substituted for an actor just before a train is supposed to strike him. A doll or a "Teddy" bear may seem to move on a lantern screen by taking each photograph separately, and changing the poses very slightly between times.

A most profitable line just now in the picture-making business is short, funny sketches, or stories, for which there is an enormous demand. The man who can supply a company regularly with really funny sketches, full of incident, may reckon on earning at least $5,000 per annum.

I know a man who is making double that figure. He turns out about ten sketches in the year, and each puts $1,000 into his pocket. They are, however, very difficult pictures to make up.

To start with, you must get a good idea for a short sketch, or skit; then it has to be written up, and submitted to the company for approval. If it is accepted and commissioned, the picture-maker has to get together a company of professional actors and actresses, to supply all costumes, properties, etc., and find a stage where he can rehearse the sketch thoroughly before photographing it.

A sketch of this sort costs from $1,500 to $4,000 to secure—this does not include the picture-maker's fee—but in a good sketch there is always a lot of money, just as there is in a good stage play.

I know of one picture-maker who asked a certain company to pay him a royalty on a humorous sketch he had made up for them instead of the usual lump sum down. The company did as he asked, and probably have often wished since that they had not, for the lucky picture-maker has drawn $5,000 in royalties during the past three years, and there is plenty of money in the sketch yet.

A lot of money was made some years ago by faking pictures of royal personages for the American market. "The Queen entertaining some friends at tea at Buckingham Palace," and "The King playing bridge at the Marlborough Club," obtained an immense popularity in New York, and put several thousands of pounds into the fakir's pocket; but there is little or no demand for royal pictures now, as it is well known they are faked.

Georgeous Bridal Attire.

The choice of white for wedding dresses is comparatively a modern fashion. During the middle ages brides wore crimson, and most of the Plantagenet and Tudor queens were married in this vivid hue, which is still popular in parts of Brittany, where the bride is usually dressed in crimson brocade. It was Mary, Queen of Scots, who first changed the color of bridal garments. At her marriage with the Dauphin of France in 1558 she was robed in white brocade. It was not, however, until quite the end of the seventeenth century that pure white, the color hitherto worn by royal widows, became popular for bridal garments in England.—London Answers.

The First Metals.

There are at least fifty-nine metals known to the chemist. At the dawn of history there were only four—copper, tin, gold and silver. Three more were added by ancient civilization—iron, lead and mercury. These seven were all that were known to classic antiquity and for the first thousand years of the Christian era. It is believed that copper, because found most abundantly in the pure state, was the first to attract the attention of primitive man. Tin was probably the second, the largest deposits being in those regions longest inhabited by the human race. Iron came into general use between a thousand and fifteen hundred years before the Christian era.

The Elopement.

Mr. Smart was a very testy old fellow, and if there was one thing he hated more than another it was to be "caught napping." As a consequence he was always very suspicious of any deed or word the full meaning of which he could not grasp. A few days ago he paid a visit to the zoo, and, being fond of animals, he was greatly interested and soon got into conversation with one of the keepers. A very interesting chat ensued.

As Mr. Smart was about to leave the keeper turned to him and asked: "By the way, sir, did you see our black-faced antelope?"

"No, sir," he replied stiffly. "I have not. May I ask with whom it was that your black-faced aunt eloped?"

Woman Suffrage.

"George, have you any influence with the election board?"

"Perhaps."

"Well, I want you to see them right away and tell them that they must be careful and not let election day come on our washday, or our baking day, or our sweeping day, or my bridge whist day, because if they do I certainly won't have time to vote."

System Poisoning
CONSTIPATION

Do not be satisfied with temporary relief—Cleanse the system and make cure lasting with DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS

Constipation begins with the bowels but it does not end there.

You must also consider the way it affects the liver, the kidneys, the digestive system and in fact the whole human body.

Headaches, backaches, aching limbs, indigestion, biliousness, kidney derangements, and the most serious diseases imaginable, often have their beginning with constipation of the bowels.

There is one treatment which has a direct and combined effect on the bowels, the liver and the kidneys and gets these organs into good working order in remarkably quick time, and that is Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

They afford relief quickly but they do more than that. They positively cure constipation and insure lasting regularity of the bowels by setting the liver right.

Policeman Peter C. Morris, 10 Wascana Ave., Toronto, Ont., states:

"I was troubled for years with habitual constipation and have spent considerable in so-called remedies and can gladly say that I have been completely cured by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and shall be pleased to personally recommend them to any person who wishes to interview me."

It scarcely seems wise to trifle with medicines which merely afford temporary relief, when by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, you not only get prompt relief but also a thorough cleansing of the whole excretory system and lasting benefits by the restoration of the health and activity of the liver.

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, one pill a dose, 25 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

Startled the Tailor.

A London tailor was once measuring Dr. Parker, who had a quaint sense of humor, for an overcoat, when suddenly the doctor broke forth in his most sepulchral voice:

"Can you measure the ineffable?"

The assistant looked up and saw that the doctor was extremely grave. He said:

"I beg your pardon, sir."

The doctor raised both his hands with a grand upward sweep and said:

"Can you measure the ineffable? Can you comprehend the infinite?"

"We'll make you a nice coat, sir," returned the puzzled assistant. Tapping the doctor's shin, he said:

"That's about the length, sir?"

"Longer!" ejaculated the doctor in determined tones.

"There, sir?"

"Longer!" thundered the great man.

The tailor remonstrated. As a technical professional he could give points on tailoring to any preacher that ever wore a head.

"If you have it any longer, you won't be able to walk," he remarked conclusively.

The doctor looked on him compassionately and, once more extending his arms toward the skies, said confidentially:

"I don't want to walk; I want to soar!"

A Rhineland Legend.

There is a Rhineland legend of three German robbers who, having acquired by various atrocities what amounted to a very valuable booty, agreed to divide the spoil and to retire from so dangerous a vocation. When the day appointed for this purpose arrived one of them was dispatched to a neighboring town to purchase provisions for their last carousal. The other two secretly agreed to murder him on his return that they might divide his share between them. They did so. But the murdered man was a closer calculator even than his assassins, for he had previously poisoned a part of the provisions, that he might appropriate to himself the whole of the spoil. This precious triumvirate were found dead together.

PHONOGRAPH TRAIN CALL.

Canadian Pacific Will Install One at Winnipeg.

The megaphone is now a familiar sight in the hands of the railway train-announcer; but it is said that the "man behind" is now to be replaced by the useful and tireless phonographic record. The human worker may — and usually does—mumble and roar inarticulately; while the well-selected record, we are told, goes on forever talking intelligibly and correctly. Says Railway and Locomotive Engineering:

"The fact that a man possesses a powerful voice is no guarantee that what he says will be understood in a big building. This fact is often painfully brought home to the traveling public in the waiting-room of almost any large railway station. There is a great difference between mere loudness and distinctness. This fact has led Mr. G. J. Bury, general manager of lines west, on the Canadian Pacific, to introduce what is probably a most welcome innovation in the matter of announcing the arrival or departure of passenger-trains.

"Ordinarily a man with a loud voice calls out something and the public is made aware of the fact that something is happening, but what it is nobody seems to know. Mr. Bury has substituted a phonograph for the loud man in the Winnipeg station of the Canadian Pacific Railroad, and records have been prepared where distinct enunciation has been substituted for the usual jumble of sounds and where a clear, steady voice supersedes a roar. The new arrangement, if satisfactory, will be repeated in the Montreal station. Mr. Bury believes that to make the traveler understand what is said is the main thing, and if this is not done, Stentor himself would be a useless railroad employe in the matter of train announcement."

Making a Five.

It was just the other day that a lawyer at Osgoode Hall, Toronto, slapped his knee and chortled to himself.

"I was just thinking," he said, "of what Pat Ferguson (that's W.N.) said to old Judge Ferguson one day.

"Pat was arguing a matter before the judge, and the judge was following him and was reading the papers which they say were in Pat's own handwriting. The case was full of figures and almost every time the judge would read out an amount Pat would have to correct him. The judge stumbled along, making the best he could of the figures, but at last he stumbled again.

"'What's this—a five or an eight?' he demanded of Pat.

"'It's a five, my lord.'

"'Can't you make a five better than that?' demanded his lordship, angrily.

"Pat looked up at the angry judge with a twinkle in his eye and a smile playing about his mouth.

"'I find it very hard to make a five some days, my lord,' he answered.

"But that was years ago."

A Novel Outing.

A party of Americans have a novel idea for the enjoyment of the summer in Canada. They have written to a Toronto friend to get them figures on the cost of a freight van, and the additional cost of fitting it up with rooms and berths. Their idea is to have the van turned into a cottage on wheels and run about the country to any point which they may wish to locate for fishing or hunting purposes, and when a move is desired the van can again be attached to a freight train and moved on while the passengers go on by express train.

The plan has been put into operation by them on some of the lines in the Eastern States, and at present they have a car in the States, but the expense of bringing it into Canada would be greater than that of equipping a new car here. Everything is done to make the car like a home, and where it has been used it has been found very serviceable.

Found It at Home.

The fame of the wonderful waters of Canada has spread around the world, although it is probably true that many who live not far from one of these healing fountains are like the Montreal man who journeyed all the way to Berlin to consult a great specialist, writes Cy Warman in Canada West. The learned doctor looked his patient over carefully, and then told him there was but one place where he could find relief for his peculiar malady.

"Name it," said the Montreal man, "I don't care where it is, I'll go there."

"It is a place called Abenakis," said the doctor, "in the Province of Quebec, which is in Canada."

"Oh, fudge," said the patient, "why, I can go out there in two hours."

So he paid the fat fee, came back to Montreal, went out to Abenakis in two hours, and was cured.

THE ART OF CANNING FRUIT.

(By An Expert.)

By Alice Gitchell Kirk

Many questions have come to me since the first article was written on canning. These articles have only one purpose, and that is to be clear, definite and helpful to the housekeeper; and I want to urge careful reading of directions given, several times, if necessary, to have the working process perfectly clear. And then follow the recipe to the letter.

Spiced Currants

Material: Currants, one quart; sugar, four cups; vinegar, three-fourths pint; ground cloves, one teaspoonful; ground cinnamon, one teaspoonful.

Utensils: Porcelain-lined kettle, measuring cup, tablespoon, teaspoon, wooden spoon.

Directions: Wash and stem the currants, then measure and arrange proportions as given. Put the vinegar into the kettle with the sugar, stirring until dissolved. Add the fruit and spices and boil slowly two hours, or until it jellies. Watch carefully that it does not burn. Turn when done into sterilized glasses and finish same as jelly.

Ripe gooseberries and cherries are delicious spiced in this manner and all are nice served with meats.

Raspberry Rolypoly

Mix together one pint of sifted flour, one-half teaspoonful of salt, one teaspoonful sugar and one teaspoonful baking powder, and rub in two tablespoonfuls of butter. Mix with sufficient sweet milk to make a soft dough, turn out on a floured board, work with the hands for a moment, then roll out in a sheet one-half of an inch thick. Spread thickly with black or red raspberries, sprinkle with a spoonful or two of sugar, and roll up like a jelly roll,

MRS. ALICE G. KIRK

pinching the ends to keep in the juice. Lay on a greased pie plate and steam for half an hour, then place in a hot oven for 10 minutes to dry off the crust. Serve with sweetened cream or hard sauce.

Erring Husband Returns Home To Find His Wife A Suicide

Another Woman Disrupted Family Happiness—She Waited for Her Spouse to Come Back, But Discouraged, at Last Turned on the Gas.

LAID OUT BURIAL GOWN

New York, July 17.—"Even the remembrance shall be forgotten."

When Morris Kohn, an expert diamond finisher, returned to his home at No. 540 East One Hundred and Forty-ninth street, to seek forgiveness from his pretty nineteen-year-old wife Gisella, whom he had quarrelled with and left a week ago, he found her dead and her farewell message tucked in a picture taken of them on their wedding day four years ago. The picture frame was draped in black, the pretty bridal gown was carefully laid over a sofa in the parlour, and on the mantle were strewn the dried and withered petals from the wedding bouquet.

All day neighbours trooped into the apartment and told the policeman guarding the body how the young wife had been pining away since her husband left her a week ago. They knew the couple had quarrelled and parted, but ever since he left Gisella had been watching until after daybreak each morning. She had not touched the piano until late Friday night, and then they heard the strains of "Softly, So Softly," followed by sobs. At 11 o'clock yesterday Mrs. Laura Lieberman, the janitress, smelled gas and traced it to the Kohn apartment. She summoned a policeman, who forced his way in and found Mrs. Kohn lying dead.

Turned the Gas on Full

Her head was lying near a gas stove, every tap of which was turned on; the windows were closed and the keyholes and crevices stuffed with paper. Before lying down to die she had dressed herself in her prettiest frock, a white silk gown with lace embroidery, and had tidied every room in the apartment, just as had been her wont when she expected the return of her husband before their quarrel. His effects were carefully arranged on his dresser, but no message other than her last words, "Even the remembrance shall be forgotten," did she leave to explain her act. A note was found, addressed to Mrs. Irene Benedict, a neighbour, in which Mrs. Kohn asked forgiveness for committing suicide.

"I am sorry if this act of mine shall cause you inconvenience, but I have not the strength to resist. It is useless to struggle against fate," she wrote.

The Kohns came from Hungary four years ago and were married here. They lived happily until she learned of another woman whom she accused Kohn of being attentive to. Last Saturday he left after a bitter quarrel, and on Thursday Mrs. Kohn had him arraigned before Magistrate Steinert, in the Morrisania Police Court, on a charge of abandonment. Throughout the proceedings in court the wife appeared bitter, but when the Magistrate threatened to send Kohn to jail she pleaded that he be spared from a cell.

"Well, I'll hold him in $50 bonds to insure that he pays you $6 a week," announced the court.

Thought He Would Return

"No, no," Mrs. Kohn broke in, "he will come to me and pay. He may—he will forget that other woman."

Agreeing to send his wife the money yesterday, Magistrate Steinert let him go. Since Thursday she had waited for him to return.

By the time the wife was found dead Kohn had left his work at the jewellery establishment of M. C. Tiegue, No. 31 West Thirty-fourth street, where he earns $50 a week, and was roaming about aimlessly, waiting until night-fall. He had planned to surprise her and plead forgiveness. The neighbours had long departed, and a policeman sat in the darkened dining-room when Kohn entered. He looked at the policeman and inquired if his wife were at home. The policeman beckoned toward the kitchen, and Kohn peered in. The rays of an electric light outside shone on his wife's body lying on the floor.

It was some time before the husband realized it all, and then he became frantic with grief. He begged that the policeman let him join his wife in death, and it was with difficulty that he was restrained.

FATAL FIGHT WITH BANDITS

Merchant Who Betrayed Them Found With Dagger In His Breast.

Lisbon, July 16.—For some time past the district of Murcia has been terrorized by a band of daring smugglers who will fill up their spare time as banditti.

Their chief is the notorious Molina, and, notwithstanding the efforts of the authorities, he always managed cleverly to evade capture. Two days ago a merchant named Ruiz, who had secret dealings with the band in disposing of their smuggled goods, volunteered to disclose Molina's hiding-place for 1,000 duros (200 pounds). The authorities agreed, and at night a force of Civil Guards set out for the mountain retreat of the robbers. Seven of them were surprised in a cave. They offered resistance and two fell, shot dead. The rest immediately surrendered.

The remainder of the band, five in number, including the captain, were on a marauding expedition, and thus escaped capture.

The dead body of the merchant Ruiz was discovered in a field with a long stiletto buried in his breast. Evidently he had met a traitor's death at the hands of the escaped banditti.

FOR BABY'S SKIN TROUBLES

There are times in the life of nearly every child when Dr. Chase's Ointment proves itself a blessing. The tender skin chafes and is irritated by the clothing. Oftentimes baby eczema develops from this very cause. In a dozen ways Dr. Chase's Ointment can be used to sooth and heal the skin and prevent suffering of the little one. No treatment is so well suited for this purpose and none is so entirely satisfactory.

BIG SUMS MADE HIM GIDDY

Paris, July 16.—A lawyer's clerk has been getting into trouble for having embezzled upwards of £5,000, the property of clients, which his employer has had to make good to them. Suspicion having fallen upon him, he was arrested, and when questioned he coolly exclaimed: "I had a taste for luxury, and when I found that I had big sums at my disposal I was seized with giddiness." How had he contrived to get through a matter of between £5,000 and £6,000 in a couple of years? He drew up a little account of his expenditure in a most accommodating manner. Among them were purchase of an automobile, £600; upkeep of the same, and chauffeur's wages during the two years, £800; purchase of a fishing boat, £80; two years' rent of a "chasse," £800; purchase of a bit of ground, £320; life insurance, £200. The rest of the money was devoted to daily expenses, which the clerk himself admitted to have been decidedly extravagant.

FRENCH GUNNERS ALMOST WRECKED

Shells From Cap Brun Nearly Put the Craft Out of Business.

Paris, July 16.—An amazing mistake was made a few days ago by the gunners on Cap Brun battery, near Toulon, where the tug which was towing a floating target was nearly sunk by shell practice.

The firing began at half-past eight, and continued for two hours without incident, when, all at once, the captain of the tug and a sailor standing by his side heard a hissing sound above their heads. A shell had passed about a yard from them.

Almost at the same instant a second shell struck one of the funnels and entirely destroyed it, together with a lifeboat. Usually some of the crew sleep in this boat, but fortunately it was empty at the time.

Shortly afterwards a third shell struck the deck-cabin, the shock knocking a sailor senseless.

The arsenal artillery inspector was on board watching the practice, and was sitting close to the funnel when it was struck by the second shell, which passed a few inches from his back.

Signals were immediately made to the shore, and the firing ceased.

No explanation is offered of the mistake. The tug's lights were burning, and the target, which was 800 yards astern, was lit up. The battery searchlights were working as usual.

HATPIN DESTROYED MAN'S EYE

Budapest, July 16.—A young woman was standing on the step of an omnibus in Budapest recently when a man who desired to get off begged her to make room for him.

She immediately turned round, and the passengers heard a cry of pain. One of the young women's hatpins had entered the man's eye. He was taken to an oculist, who stated that the sight of the eye had been destroyed.

REIGN OF TERROR EXISTS IN LIVERPOOL

Catholics and Protestants Moving In Large Numbers From Homes

Liverpool, July 16.—There has been a remarkable development of the sectarian disturbances in Liverpool.

Although on the surface everything appears tranquil, there is still a vast amount of acute feeling. Certain regions are at present under a reign of terror. In these districts good, respectable families are being driven in scores out of their homes.

Both parties are suffering. Orangemen are being driven from Roman Catholic quarters, and Roman Catholics from Orange quarters. Altogether I am informed that some hundreds of families have been terrified out of their homes in the Scotland road and Great Homer street region.

The method is simple. A man living among neighbours of the opposite party receives by post an envelope containing a post-card which bears some such words as these: "Clear by such a date." Sometimes the warning is added that if the man does not "clear out" his home will be "smashed up." But generally the order is left in its baldness. In every case the warning is anonymous.

The people warned know their local conditions, and they go. On Monday one man, a Roman Catholic, was stopped as he was going to work by a stranger, whom he described as of respectable appearance. "Your name is ——?" said the man. "You must clear out of your house in three days." The man is going.

A day or two ago a rent collector, when going to collect his rents, found in five houses new people whom he had never accepted as tenants. There appears to be some symptom of organization about the business. Protestants are being told to remove by Wednesday of this week, and Roman Catholics are warned to go by July 12th, the date of the great Orange demonstration.

There is no doubt that the leaders on both sides are sincere in their pacifi cassurances but hot-headed partisans are not willing to allow the matter to drop, and there is reason to believe that in several cases the opportunity has been taken to vent private spite.

STRANGE LOTTERY LAW IN FRANCE

Lucky Winners Kept in Want by Fraudulent Claimants—Drawbacks of Successful Ones.

Paris, July 16.—Few people would object to winning the substantial prize in a lottery, but the winning of prizes in French lotteries has other drawbacks besides difficulty. There is a curious law in France which permits anybody to "make opposition" against the prize-winner. That is to say, any person can, without producing a ticket, or without even proving that he bought a ticket, declare that the prize ought to belong to him. Recently the drawing of almost every lottery in France has brought up one or more claims which have proved to be absolutely without foundation, but the law orders the organizers of the lottery to wait for a year and a day in order to enable claimants to make good their claims and the real winners have to wait.

Not very long ago a negro singer in Montmartre won £8,000 in a lottery. He nearly starved while he was getting his money. Three other people claimed it, two of whom were proved eventually never to have bought a ticket at all, and Charley, the negro, in question, was too excited by his good luck to go on working. When he did get his £8,000 he had mortgaged more than half of it.

A few days ago the case was heard of an old maid of seventy-five, Mlle. Flamery, who in July, 1908, had won £10,000 in the Ormesson lottery. Three oppositions were made. One of the three withdrew. The two others persisted. Mlle. Flamery, who was fortunate enough to find lawyers to fight her case, in which they believed, on speculation, spent several hundred pounds in taking action against the others, and this week she won her case, obtained £80 damages from the two fraudulent claimants, and had the money paid over to her. Three-quarters of an hour after signing the receipt she died in a home for the poor at Neuilly.

TRAGEDY IN REAL LIFE ON THE STAGE

Russian Actor Shoots Two Other Players And Then Himself.

St. Petersburg, July 16.—A terrible tragedy was witnessed at the National Theatre in Saratoff recently.

In the third act of the play, which was being given, the heroine is shot by a rejected suitor and dies in the arms of her sweetheart, who arrives on the scene soon afterwards. Last night, to the astonishment of the audience, M. Tashnakoff, who was acting the villain, made no attempt to shoot the girl, but put a bullet through the heart of her lover, who was waiting for his cue to appear, then shat the girl, and finally turned the revolver against himself and fired.

Several women in the audience fainted, and a great many other spectators sustained injuries in the panic which ensued while endeavouring to force their way out of the theatre.

The motive of the crime appears to have been jealousy, the actors having really represented the parts they played.

POPE REFUSES TO USE MOTOR

WEALTHY GREEK PROMOTES AVIATION

Gives Money to University of Paris Promote Technical Study

Paris, July 16.—Thanks to the generosity of M. Deutsch, the University of Paris is to be endowed with an Aero Technical Institute for the pursuit of technical study and research, with a view to the perfecting of aerial navigation apparatus generally.

The donor has promised a capital sum of £20,000, and an annual subsidy of £600. A capital sum of £28,000 has also been given to the university to found a chair of aviation at the Faculty of Science. The donor is a Greek gentleman, M. Basil Zakaroff, who has resided for some years past in Paris. According to the "Temps," he is connected with the firm of Vickers, Maxim and Co.

M. Zakaroff, who is a bachelor, is famous in Greece for his patriotic munificence. Forty young Greeks are maintained at his expense in French schools and universities. The premises of the Greek Legation in Paris are a gift from him to the nation, and he has announced his intention of similarly providing premises for all the Greek Legations in Europe.

BRAINS WERE DASHED OUT IN AN AUTO ACCIDENT

Two Women Killed in a Crash on a Road in Germany—The Driver Neglected to Slow Down His Machine in Rounding a Curve.

WENT INTO A TREE

Berlin, July 16.—A fatal automobile accident occurred on the main road through the Grunewald forest a few days ago.

Dr. Aronsohn with his mother and his fiancee, and the latter's cousin, Fraulein Loewenstein, had been out to Wannsee in the doctor's motor-car, and were returning by moonlight to Berlin. In rounding a sharp curve where a fatal accident occurred a year or two ago, and which is much dreaded by motorists, Dr. Aronsohn neglected to slow down, and the car dashed against one of the huge trees thereabouts. It overturned with such violence that Frau Aronsohn and Fraulein Loewenstein were thrown against a tree nine yards off, their brains being dashed out.

The doctor and his fiancee escaped with comparatively slight injuries. A market cart conveyed them to a house, where their injuries were attended to. The bodies of the two ladies, whose ages were 41 and 22 respectively, were left on the scene of the accident till daylight.

Dr. Merwise, an experienced motorist, had competed in the same car, which is now smashed to pieces, in the recent Prince Heinrich race.

BOYS CRUSHED TO DEATH.

Berlin, July 16.—A party of small school boys out on an excursion with a master the other day in Strassburg were passing through the narrow archway called the Fortress Gate when they met a heavy furniture van. Five lads attempted to pass between the van and the wall. Two succeeded, but the other three were crushed to death before the horrified master's gaze.

BEATRICE NEW PRINCESS'S NAME

Madrid, July 16.—The baptism of the Infanta Beatris, the new Spanish royal baby, took place in the throne room of the palace recently.

The royal infant, who received the name Beatriz (the Spanish form of Beatrice) in honour of Queen Victoria Eugenie's mother, Princess Henry of Battenberg, was held at the font by the Archduke Frederick, her godfather, and the Infanta Maria Theresa, representing the Archduchess Isabella, the godmother.

King Alfonso and all the royal family, with the Premier and Ministers, the British and Austro-Hungarian ambassadors and a distinguished company of military, civil, and ecclesiastical dignitaries, assisted at the ceremony.

THE LIGHTNING TORE UP FLAG

Lightning played some queer pranks at "Islands." Mr. Perry Alexander's summer resort on Buckhorn Lake during the electrical storm on Thursday.

The building was struck by lightning, a portion of the roof being shattered. A large Canadian flag, flying from a pole was also hit and tore to atoms. The inmates of the house escaped uninjured, but were badly frightened. The storm is said to have been one of the most severe in years and included a terrific gale of wind, which lashed the lake into a mass of foam.

SIX MILES THE LIMIT

Joy Riding on George Street Must Not Be of the Loop-the-Loop Variety—Six Miles An Hour Must Do.

THE MAGISTRATE'S DECISION

Magistrate Dumble has sounded a warning to speed crazed autoists if there are any in this city. He called attention to Chief Roszel this morning that some of the chauffeurs were driving recklessly and apparently faster than the law allows. The law states that no machine shall be driven at a greater speed than 10 miles an hour in the city and gives permission to the magistrate to determine the speed in particular sections. It is therefore pointed out to automobilists that the limited speed on George St. between Smith St. and the C. P. R. station shall be six miles an hour. There are other thoroughfares which may be placed under this limit.

Offenders will be prosecuted according to the statute. It is claimed that on the main street many cars are sent along at a thoughtless rate which may easily result in a serious accident which would be avoided by a slower speed. The city blocks are easily measured by a police officer and it would not be a difficult matter to get an auto's speed as it passes a particular point.

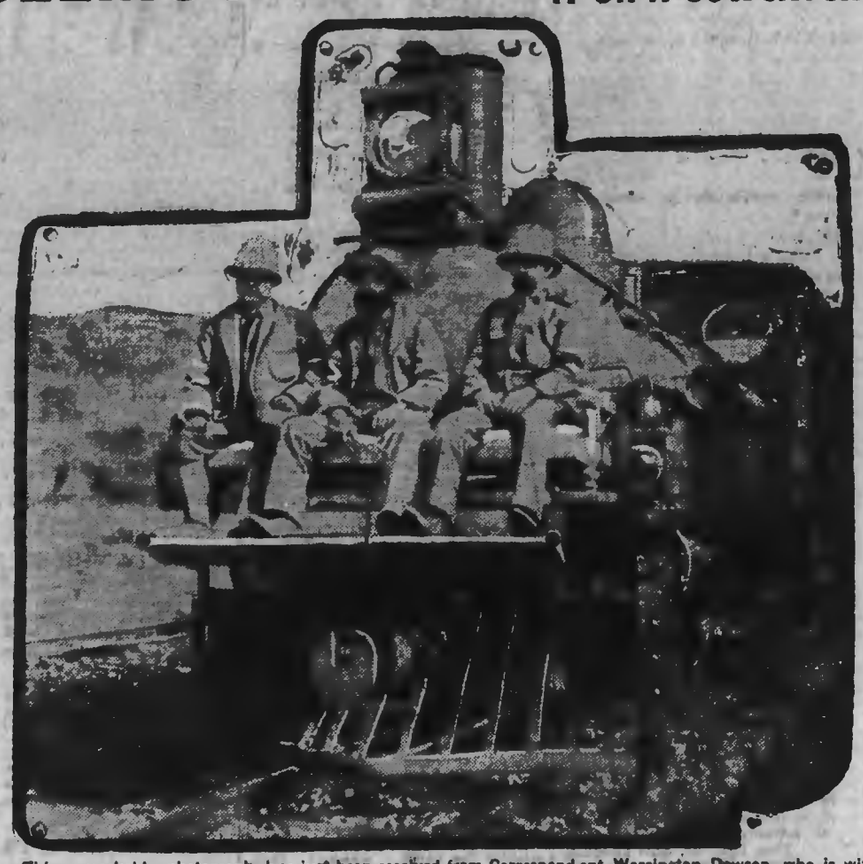
Chief Roszel stated that he hoped the owners of cars would be guided by this warning.

HAY $20 A TON

Market Prices Have Gone Up—Hogs at 8 Cents Live Weight.

Loose hay sold on the market the past week at $20.00 a ton. Live hogs are bringing $8.00 per cwt. Eggs today were 22 cents a dozen and butter 23 and 24 cents a pound. All these are high prices, particularly for this time of the year and the farmers who have plenty of produce are jubilant.

SEEING AFRICA — HOW ROOSEVELT DOES IT ON A COWCATCHER



This remarkable photograph has just been received from Correspondent Warrington Dawson, who is with Colonel Roosevelt's hunting party in Africa. It shows how the former President viewed the country while travelling by train to the hunting grounds at Kijabe. Colonel Roosevelt is on the left, the English hunter, Cunningham, sits next to him, and on the right is Dr. Mearns, the United States Army surgeon, who was retired last winter so that he could accompany the hunting expedition.

TWO SISTERS ARE DROWNED AT SARNIA SLIPPED INTO DEEP WATER AND SANK

Distressing Fatality in Which Family is Doubly Bereaved---Only One Could Swim and She Was Pulled Down by Her Sister---Body of Young Port Arthur Boy Was Found in the Water---Another Double Drowning in British Columbia.

Sarnia, July 16.—Ensign Bertha Brace of the local Salvation Army Corps and her sister, Miss Daisy Brace, of Boston, met death by drowning this afternoon about four o'clock in the St. Clair River, just below Sarnia. The young ladies, accompanied by Miss Cooper of the local Army, were spending the afternoon by the river and the two sisters were bathing. Miss Daisy, the younger sister, was an expert swimmer. They had been in the water about five minutes, and were splashing about with their arms clasped, when they slipped over the channel bank into deep water and disappeared. Miss Cooper called for help, but no one was in sight at the time. Robert Harrison, a chain maker from the Standard Chain Works nearby, and others responded, but the bodies had completely disappeared. Miss Bertha Brace came to Sarnia this pring. Her sister arrived from Boston two weeks ago. Their mother, Mrs. R. K. Brace, resides in Charlottetown, P.E.I.

Hamilton Boy Drowned.

Hamilton, July 16.—Joseph Gower, the seven-year-old son of Alfred Gower, 470 Macnab street, north, was drowned in the bay this morning. Although he had been warned by his parents not to go in swimming, the lad, accompanied by Bert Martin, went in bathing at the foot of James street, east of the Hamilton Steamboat Company's slip. Martin can swim, but Gower started to wade into the water. He got on a pile where the water is five or six feet deep. In some way the lad slipped off the pile into the water and was drowned before help arrived. Martin was too scared to give his companion any assistance. Robert Phillips, an employe of the steamboat company, dived into the water, but it was so roily that he was unable to see the boy. The father of the boy is an employee of the Canada Coloured Cotton Company.

Body of Port Arthur Boy Found.

Port Arthur, July 16.—(Special.)—This morning the body of Arthur Strachan, the fourteen-year-old son of J. Strachan, an employee of the street railway, was found in Booth's dock slip. The lad had been missing since the 7th inst., but as he was in the habit of going away on fishing tugs and other vessels without telling his parents, his absence caused no alarm, until the dead body was located. No inquest will be held.

Two drowned at Point Tupper

Port Hawkesbury, C. B., July 16.—(Special).—A double drowning occurred at Point Tupper to-day, the victims being Clarence Peeples and Daniel Ryan. The latter, with Frank Moore, and Joseph McEachren, left here in a sailboat for their homes at Mulgrave, N.S., and soon after they started the boat was capsized. Moore and McEachren were saved by clinging to the upturned boat, but the others sank from exhaustion. Both bodies were recovered.

SMART BOYS CATCH WIRELESS MESSAGES FROM SHIPS AT SEA

JOHN PETRI AND WILLIE LAIER AT THEIR WIRELESS INSTRUMENTS

London, July 16.—Two boy rivals of Marconi have built a plant of their own on top of a store here, and have intercepted messages from ocean steamers. They are John Petri, 15, and Willie Laier, 14.

The boys have been playmates since John wore short pants—Willie still wears 'em—and when they started to dabble in electricity nothing but wireless looked good to them.

Wireless outfits cost lots of money, so the boys made their own battery, wound their own coils and built their own tower out of old iron.

But their principle was right. They got that out of a book that both studied when they weren't building the wireless outfit.

One day when the machine was all set up and John had learned the Morse telegraph code, they thought they would send a message.

John opened the key and when he did the sparks began to fly.

"Cr-r-rzz; cr-r-r-r-rzz; cr-r-ack!"

It was an aerogram for a big steamer which was then forty miles out on the ocean.

They "got" the boats' answer, then the message.

Both boys want to be like Jack Binns some day, and send real wireless messages from big ocean liners.

BAND SAID FAREWELL TO SERGEANT WALTER HUGHES

Clever Cornetist of 57th Band, Who Leaves To-day for Vernon, B.C., Was the Recipient of Two Presentations From His Friends Last Evening.

HE WILL BE MISSED

Band Sergeant Walter Hughes, of the 57th Regimental Band, who for the past eight years has most acceptably filled the position of solo cornetist with that organization leaves today for Vernon, B. C., where he has accepted a position as leader of the Vernon City Band, a well-known Pacific coast musical organization. Sergeant Hughes' departure will be a distinct loss to the 57th Band, as he is undoubtedly one of the cleverest cornetists in Canada, and has given the best that was in him for the welfare of the 57th. He was the cornet soloist of the Grand Opera House orchestra and was one of the mainstays of that organization.

Last evening Sergeant Hughes was the recipient of several presentations from his friends. Immediately after the band concert he was the guest of the 57th Bugle Band, of which corps he has been the instructor for some time and with whom he has been deservedly popular. A pleasant social time was spent and Sergeant Hughes was presented with a case of pipes by Mr. Fred Myles on behalf of the band, while Mr. W. Sharpe read the following address:

Peterborough, July 16, 1909.

Dear Walter,—It was with the deepest feelings of regret that we, the members of the 57th Regimental Bugle Band, learned of your intention to leave the city, and try your luck in the far West. We feel that we cannot let the opportunity pass without showing, in some tangible manner, our appreciation of your valued services and good fellowship, while one of us.

We ask you to accept this set of pipes, and when you light them up after your day's labour, that you will let your memory wander back, through their smoke, to Peterborough, and remember your bugler friends, who will always wish you good health and prosperity in your new field.

Signed on behalf of the Bugle Band.

T. MYLES.
Sergeant.

Afterwards the 57th Band said farewell to him at the band hall, on Simcoe street, where light refreshments were served and impromptu speeches made.

Mr. Gliddon, leader of the band, referred in appreciative terms to the fine work done by Sergeant Hughes since coming to Peterborough, eight years ago, and paid a high tribute to his work as solo cornetist. He wished him every success in the West.

Bandsman Cronk, on behalf of the band presented Sergeant Hughes with a case of pipes.

Sergeant Hughes replied briefly and feelingly, thanking the members of the band for their kindness to him, not only on that occasion, but during his residence in the city and expressed his regret at his departure from Peterborough, of which city he would always have the most pleasant recollections.

Insane Man Lured From His Perch By Piece Of Pie

Detroit, July 17.—A large wedge of home-made blueberry pie was the lure used to capture Dennie M. Scadden, of Cleveland, 37 years old, who went insane aboard a lightship and fled to the masthead.

Scadden was a new man on the craft and he often complained of the loneliness. Oftentimes he would sit in the bows of the ship and sob for the clang of a car or any other city sound. His only consolation was pie.

Sunday afternoon, when the intense heat caused the steel ship to become warm as an oven, Scadden went insane. He was put in irons. Late Monday he was brought on deck to be transferred ashore.

As the irons were slipped off the madman's legs he shrieked that his mother was talking with an angel at the masthead, and he clambered up to see her there.

For eight hours he held conversations with the supposed wraith of his parent, with the exception of the time he used in fighting off the crew.

Suddenly the cook remembered Scadden's fondness for pie. With a wedge of the blueberry dainty in hand, the cook toiled to the masthead and captured the maniac while eating.

STONY LAKE SWEPT BY ONE OF WORST STORMS IN ITS HISTORY

Terrific Windstorm on Thursday Followed by Electrical Disturbances—Boats Were Blown Off the Wharf at Juniper and Smashed Badly.

TREE WAS STRUCK.

Special Staff Correspondence.

Stony Lake, July 16.—The worst storm of the season visited the lake yesterday afternoon. The wind blew terrifically and the waves were lashed high upon the rocky islands. The lightning was exceedingly sharp and vivid. The rain came down in torrents and not a few persons who were out in boats had to seek shelter at some nearby cottage.

The thunderstorm came up quite suddenly and thus caught many who were out boating. Preceding the heavy down-pour of rain, the wind blew in great gusts and it was almost unsafe for anyone to be out in a boat. At Juniper Island two skiffs were blown off the wharf and after the storm, were found washed up on the shore at Eagle Mount. One belonging to Miss Graham, of "Kilnna" Island will require repairing before it can again be used. A large hole was knocked in the side of it. People took shelter at the nearest places and some experienced great difficulty in getting to them in safety. A party in a sail boat had a narrow escape from upsetting and before they could reach a cottage were caught in the rain.

The lightning was very severe at times and so dangerously near that several cottagers thought their homes must have been struck. A tree on the land at the rear of Mr. J. S. Knapman's island was struck. No damage of a serious nature has been reported.

An Auto Party

Mr. Edgar McCabe, of Pittsburg, Pa., with three other young men from the same city are stopping at the Victoria House, McCracken's Landing. They arrived there a few days ago, having made the entire trip from Pittsburg, in Mr. McCabe's automobile. They were only four days making the journey. They intend spending a fortnight at the lakes and are enjoying splendid luck fishing.

A number of young men from Hamilton and Toronto stopped at Sandy Bay, Kawartha Park, Clear Lake, a few nights ago. They had with them an immense sailing boat which they had brought from Hamilton to Lakefield on the train. They are making the trip from Lakefield as far as the Trent Canal waterway will take them.

A REVELATION TO A VISITING EDITOR

"Its a revelation to me," remarked Mr. L. Blake Duff, of the Welland Telegraph, Welland, speaking to the Examiner to-day, of the Kawartha Lakes. Mr. Duff in company with Mr. H. L. Hatt, of Welland, and F. H. Rice and Kenneth McDonald, of Buffalo, N. Y., has been camping at Sandy Lake, and is delighted with the scenery and fishing of the Kawarthas. Coming from the Garden of Canada as he does, Mr. Duff's opinion naturally carried with it considerable weight. This is his first visit to Peterborough and to the Kawartha Lakes, and he has been most favourably impressed with both.

PROF. YOUNG TO LECTURE

Lecturer of S. P. S., Toronto, Will Address the Board of Trade on Tuesday Night on the Subject of "Re-inforced Concrete Bridge Building."

EXPERT ON THE SUBJECT

An important meeting of the local Board of Trade will be held on Tuesday night next, July 20, in the Council chamber, when the subject for discussion will be "Smith St. Bridge and Street Extension By-laws." In this connection it is a pleasure to be able to state that Prof. C. R. Young, instructor and lecturer in the Engineering Department of the School of Science of Toronto University will be present to address the meeting on "Re-inforced Concrete Bridge Construction," a subject that will be timely and instructive. This is the line of work with which Prof. Young has to deal in his University teaching and should be found decidedly fascinating as the speaker does not go into wearisome technical details that mystify instead of enlighten. His address will be illustrated by views thrown on canvas by a steroptican lantern, which Mr. H. C. Fiske has very kindly consented to operate. The pictures will not only illustrate the methods of bridge building but will deal with the appearance of the finished structure from an artistic standpoint. The lecture should prove not only very interesting but highly instructive as well.

At the conclusion of the lecture there will be a general discussion on the by-laws to be voted upon on July 29th. The general public is invited and it will be a good opportunity for the ratepayers to get some information about the by-laws in order that they may be able to intelligently vote on the measures when they are called upon to do so the week after next.

ONLY THREE CHARGES

Charles Clarke Pleaded Guilty to One Of Them.

Charlie Clarke faced Magistrate Dumble on three separate charges. One was for having placed nightsoil on the property of Mrs. Harrison, 220 Edinburgh street, in March, 1909. He pleaded not guilty. The second was that he did unlawfully receive $5.00 from Mrs. Truesdale in April, having pretended he had the right to it. He pleaded guilty to having received only $3.00. Charge number three was that he had unlawfully damaged real property at 220 Edinburgh street. He pleaded not guilty to this and was remanded until Tuesday morning.

FIVE GENERATIONS

Represented by Members of a Peterborough Family.

Five generations in one family is something out of the ordinary among the short-lived people of to-day. For a short time, a week ago, there were five generations represented but the youngest, the infant of the fifth generation only lived eight hours. The information was obtained from Mr. Mark Spencely. Mrs. Hodges, aged 70 years, his mother-in-law, is the representative of the first generation, Mrs. Mark Spencely the second, Mrs. Wm. Lloyd, her daughter, the third, Mr. Harry Lloyd the fourth, and the latter's infant son, who died eight hours after birth.

MAYOR DECLINES TRIP

Will Not Go to Convention of Municipal Representatives Owing to City's Shortage of Funds.

Mayor Rush will not attend the meeting of the Municipal Association this year at Medicine Hat. In 1908 it was held in Montreal and Mayor Rush was one of those who took a prominent part in the meetings. The Council offered to send him to Medicine Hat, but His Worship declined with thanks, stating that it would cost $150, and as the city's finances were very low and the money could be used in other channels, where it was needed more.

Ald. Phelan brought up the question informing the committee of the whole council that while in Toronto recently he met Mayor Stevely of London, who asked that the City of Peterborough send a representative to the Municipal Convention in Medicine Hat. Ald. Phelan thought that the mayor should go and he moved that the Council send the Mayor.

BETWEEN TWO FIRES

Assyrian Peddler Must Get License or May Have to Pay Fine.

A young man, an Assyrian peddler, arrived in the city a few evenings ago to dispose of his wares here but fell under the eyes of the police before he had proceeded far. To-day he was charged with having hawked without a license and if he does not obtain a $30.00 license by Monday morning at nine o'clock, he may possibly be fined a sum not exceeding $50.00, which means that he will have to do some extra work to make up whatever sum the law may demand.

He said he came to the city on Thursday night and had done practically no business here. He takes orders for Japanese goods including kimonos, gowns, waists and other articles. He would deliver the goods probably several days after receiving the order. Magistrate Dumble said it did not matter whether he got orders or not, he was going around for that purpose.

"Our merchants must be protected. They pay taxes and otherwise support the city and these men come in and hawk their goods under the merchants' noses and pay neither tax, rent, or anything of that nature."

Mr. G. K. Gordon appeared for the defendant.

BEAUTIFY THE CITY.

In the work of beautifying the city there enter several distinct, yet complementary elements. In the first place there must be sympathetic co-operation between citizens themselves and between the citizens and the city authorities, especially that department having charge and control of, or a right to control, the streets. Then, having secured beauty of private premises and boulevards we must have the co-operation of the public at large to preserve from spoliation and injury the beautifying conditions established.

This is especially necessary in the matter of boulevards and public places, and those private premises, thrown upon the generosity of the public by the removal of fences. No private owner of such a lawn will himself do anything to mar or deface or deteriorate the beauty which, by dint of time, patience, much clipping, rolling and watering, he has created. He will have the same respect for the boulevard in front of his beautiful premises and as for the property of others. Conditions would be ideal if the public at large would show the same respect. But they do not do so. They forget—some of them, too many—to be honest, fair and decent. They do not hesitate to tramp over lawns and boulevards regardless of the injury they do and the share they contribute to defacing and destroying the uniformity of public beauty in the form of lawn and boulevard, all over the city. Each one selfishly and sinfully seems to think that what he does is of little account, but thousands every day or many times a day in all parts of the city sharing his indifference and acting similarly create a havoc that plays havoc with the general beauty of the city.

How shall we remedy this condition? We must have an educative campaign, and the city authorities must be first enrolled as pupils. They are the chosen representatives of the people elected and supposed to act in a corporate capacity in the interests of the citizens, and as protectors and promoters of their rights and interests respectively. The city authorities do not do their duty when, instead of helping the citizens to make the city beautiful, they neglect to provide boulevards, and not only that, but also when they permit their employees to deface and destroy the beauty of boulevards made and created by private taste and enterprise. Let the city fathers reflect that in so doing they are acting dishonestly; they are forcing the people to contribute money in the shape of taxes, which is practically used for the injury of those by whom it is contributed; and not only that, but to the destruction of the beauty of the city, the destruction of its attractiveness in the eyes of those seeking a home, and the lessening the claims of the city as a desirable place of residence.

The Scriptures tell us that a city divided against itself shall not stand. This refers no less to aesthetic than to material considerations. If the city authorities pull one way and fight against the efforts of citizens, or, in cases where they do not overtly oppose, discourage and obstruct, the work of civic beautification, what but undesirable condition can be expected?

The educative process must also be applied to the public generally, or a part of it. They must be taught, urged, begged and prayed to develop a taste for the beautiful in itself, and practise the things that create it in their own homes and surroundings; then they must be brought to respect the beauty of the places and premises of others and from the public point of view, regard them as sacred as their own. They must be urged to consider the slightest act in disregard of the integrity, of boulevard, or lawn, as a sin against their loyalty to the city and against the whole community; they should be led to reflect that even one step upon forbidden ground (such as the turf of a boulevard or lawn, should be held) is wrong. That one step may be nothing in itself; but it must have some effect; for if it is repeated often enough the turf is destroyed. Have a hundred persons passing the same spot, in a day, and thinking and acting the same; let eight or ten thousand in the aggregate think and act the same in every part of the city, and one can easily see the immense area of destruction of lawn and boulevard beauty and tidiness that will result.

Who is to inauguraite and conduct such an educative campaign? We look first to our churches and our schools. From the first we should expect the impression of the duty of respecting the rights, tastes and feelings of others, the religion of the golden rule and the sacredness of the beautiful, not only in character, but in the material world. God made the trees, the grass, the flowers beautiful, and sweet, when, as far as power is concerned, he could as easily have made them unsightly and repulsive. We are imitating a great Example when we love and cherish and protect the beautiful, and also imitating a great Example when we love and cherish the beautiful in character, the grace of unselfishness and respect for the rights and pleasure and happiness of others.

Then, our schols should be centres of culture, centres of good manners; breeding grounds of the graces of refinement and politeness, convertible terms for appreciation of, and respect for, the beautiful and orderly. The child whose mind only is trained—or, as is too often the case, crammed—has only a jug-handled education. The higher nature must be drawn out and upward. The moral sense—not doctrinally nor dogmatically—must be quickened; reverence and politeness, variants of the same spiritual essence, and of which there is a bountiful lack in these rude, ill-mannered days, must be developed. Then is laid the foundation on which to build a character of respect for the beautiful, which has no higher form of exposition than respect for the rights, feelings and tastes of others.

Who shall lead? Those in whom nature or the fortunate accident of good training and breeding have developed a sense of the beautiful, and of the moral obligations that almost unvariably go with it. These should combine—should form some organic cooperation and unitedly push the battle to the gates. It is only by acting together, by enlisting every influence that can develop a public sense of duty and destroy hostile elements, such as will help or hinder the important work of making Peterborough in all respects the city beautiful that this consummation can be reached.

WHAT WE HAVE, LET US HOLD.

A good, sturdy, British motto is, "What we have we'll hold." This can have no more fitting and profitable application in spirit than to the conservation of our natural provincial, and national resources. We must take good care of our timber. We in this district, have made provision to prevent the waters from our northern lakes being wasted by rushing off in a great spring tidal wave to the risk of being without water for power purposes and other purposes. If we do not apply the same idea to our other national resources we shall rue the day when we neglected to do so. We can't understand why our governments do not take immediate steps to not only effectively prevent waste and unduly rapid exploitation of our forest resources, but that they do not take immediate steps for undertaking or providing reforesting operations. All that can be done is to keep the note of warning sounding. In this connection may be quoted what Mr. William Whyte of Winnipeg, second vice-president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, has written on the subject of reckless waste of natural resources:

"From Cape Breton to Virginia the original English settlers of America found themselves in a country of natural opulence so great, especially in timber, water and soil that such an eventuality as exhaustion or even appreciable impairment never suggested itself. That was only three hundred and fifty years ago—and less. They came from a land where thrift and care had been taught by centuries of experience, but the old ways were soon forgotten and never renewed. Until very lately, there was no uneasiness, no economy. On the contrary, a tremendous incoming swirl of humanity swept across the continent after the eighteen sixties, carrying with it the same recklessness, the same waste, so that forests have faded, streams have at some seasons washed bare the lands and at others left them parching. Iron and coal have shrunken to a known supply sufficient at the present rate of use for not much more than a hundred years. Oil and gas fields once thought perpetual have died out; and in some of the older sections the soil itself has become sterile. We have sported with our resources until the end of them had begun to threaten, but we are fortunate in knowing what is left; and beyond that remainder, we know how we may bring out of nature's eternal reservoir a restoration of original opulence to at least the most important of the things we had."

THE QUESTION OF GOOD ROADS.

(Globe.)

Here is an excellent subject for debate: Resolved, that prosperous farming communities are a result of good roads being a result of prosperous farming communities. The question might be stated with more exactness by an expert, but this will do for a suggestion. Whatever the decision the two almost invariably go together, and the combination is admirable. Anyone who drives over the good roads betwen Woodstock and Ingersoll, between Blenheim and Leamington, along the Talbot road, the Long woods road, or the River road at Chatham, to name only a few notable examples, cannot help being struck by the beautiful homes and excellent farming conditions. As some of these roads are of military or Government origin, they antedate the developments of the country, and the weight of the evidence they yield as in favour of good roads as the source of prosperity.

Leaving the more prominent highways and crossing the townships it is found that the country is curiously checkered with thriving communities. Along the town lines that are built and kept up by the co-operation of the townships good farms are plentiful, which also suggests good results as flowing from good roads. At the the same time it must be admitted that many stretches of good roads encountered are due to the enterprise of farmers who contribute liberally from their own funds and urge their needs on the municipalities.

One powerful argument in favour of good roads lies in the fact that the basic principles of permanent highways is thorough drainage, and the roads cannot be drained without material advantage to the adjoining farms. This, however, calls attention to an element of unfairness inseparable from road building, to which only one remedy suggests itself. When good roads are built either by the townships or counties the land lying along them is immediately increased in value. A farm lying beside a good road is worth from ten to twenty-five per cent. more than one of the same soil and general character that can be reached only over bad roads. No system of taxation can make the burden of partial road-building rest justly on everyone concerned. Some are bound to get back as much or more than they contribute in increased land values. The only remedy for this that suggests itself is to bring all roads to the best condition as quickly as possible. As good roads are necessary everywhere, road-building is an understood science, and the methods of building them economically through commuted statute labour, municipal enterprise, and Provincial aid fully developed, the discomforts, wastefulness, and injustice of present conditions should be ended without delay. Ratepayers will find it to their material profit to give the question of good roads pre-eminence over all others.

'ROUND THE STORES

Tan shoes are more worn this summer than ever before, perhaps because they are coming considered as cooler than black. For country wear they are more suitable and show the dust of walking much less than the black shoes. The tan Oxfords are cool and easy on the foot and have been much called for by both ladies and gentlemen. Some of the best and most stylish of these come from the stores of Messrs. Stenson & Sons, and R. McWhinnie's, both firms reporting numerous sales up to date.

Messrs. H. LeBrun & Co.'s merchant tailoring department announced a special cut price, good until the end of July. The offer is well worth consideration on the part of the men who are in need of another suit or a new overcoat for fall, as a saving of fully twenty per cent. is promised.

• • •

The preserving season is now in full swing, and the demand for sugar is on the increase. Housekeepers can afford to lay in a good supply of canned fruits this season, as the price of sugar has not advanced, as it usually does. Mr. James R. Bell, the pushing grocer of Hunter street and East City, advertises twenty pounds of sugar for one dollar.

• • •

Warne's drug store had a crowded store to-day, particularly from 10.30 o'clock, when their special sale of two-pound bars of shell brand Castile soap for fifteen cents, was started. Many shoppers were interested in this snap. Two hundred pounds were offered at the cut price, but no more than one bar of the soap was allowed to go out to one customer.

• • •

The Mason & Risch pianos have long stood for all that is best in construction and tone among pianofortes. At the store of Mr. J. P. Cunningham, which has a well deserved popularity with the musical circles of Peterborough, one will find a good range of these perfect instruments. The Peterborough Music Co. is also the local agency for the Autonola Playerpiano, The Bell Art piano, as well as high-grade organs, violins, and other instruments.

• • •

The Turnbull & Co.'s Hour Sales are developing quite an interest in special lines of goods. This firm's big sale of hot-weather goods is keeping up a lively shopping trade, and the novelty of the Hour Sales is quite a drawing feature. Some beautiful lines of lingerie dresses are shown, and a choice assortment of frocks appropriate for street, tourist, and evening wear. Also, charming creations in blouses.

• • •

The man shopper will be interested in the stock of fancy shirts and other haberdashery for hot weather wear at Lang & Maher's "Daylight" Store. A large assortment of summer vests, summer cravats and hosiery are among the special features of this smart stock.

• • •

Have you seen the new markings in the prices of straw hats at McWilliams' hat store? Not the knife, but the black pencil, has been run through the regular prices and a lower figure substituted therefor. There are hats becoming to the thin man, the fat man, the man with the large head, and the man with the small head, and all sizes between. And prices to suit all pocket books.

For a sparkling and perfectly clear as well as a delicious and thirst-satisfying spring water, the housekeeper will do well to select for the home table the much-talked-of York Springs Water, the Peterborough agency for which is at E. F. Mason & Co's.. If unfamiliar with this water, give it a trial and thus become convinced of its worth.

Grass-fed cattle yield the tenderest meat, and the result is they are more sought after by good butchers than the other kinds. The tenderest cuts are those cut from the best grass-fed cattle. A steak of a prime roast from S. A. Oke's, successor to H. P. Kennedy, will serve to prove how much more nourishing and satisfying than meat that has not been carefully selected. Mutton, lamb, veal, pork and poultry, are also offered in the finest quality. Fruits galore.

Dutton's is a busy store these days. There are reasons for this—chief among which is the full and varied character of choice fruits, garden vegetables, and family groceries, which Peterborough's best customers enjoy buying at this store. The goods you want at the prices you wish to pay, are here.

THE COATLESS MAN

Coney Island has come out as a stickler for summer manners. Democratic as is this amusement resort, the top-notch restaurant places and thirst-quencheries of the Island resolutely refuse to tolerate men with their coats off. It would set a bad precedent, say the proprietors. The keep-cool-at-any-price party refers triumphantly to a dinner given at the Hotel Astor last week to William Sherer at which the majority of the guests removed their coats. Some, it is said, removed their waistcoats, and still others took off their galluses. Those who regard this as a sufficient excuse for appearing coatless in a restaurant must be reminded, however, that it was a private function and that the hotel management did not pretend to be responsible for the code of maners adopted by its guests when the latter was provided with a dining hall to themselves. It is quite certain that the shirtwaist men would not be tolerated in the public dining-rooms of the hotel.

All things considered, Coney Island is to be congratulated upon the stand it has taken, though it isn't of course the coatlessness of a man that makes him impossible as an associate for nice perons. He might have on two coats and be undesirable. He might have a proper sort of shirt on and be acceptable, but there is a sentiment against the shirtwaist man that must be taken into account, and it is safe to predict that he will be a very long while making his way into the best dining rooms. A beginning toward securing toleration for him might be made were he to wear silk, preferably of a colour that will suggest that it is being worn specially for the occasion, rather than the every-day undergarment, the undue display of which is rightly tabooed.—The Telegraph.

A popular idea used to prevail that all teas were pretty much alike, but "Salada" Tea is proving a pleasant surprise to thousands of particular tea-drinkers. Sold by grocers everywhere. 50

MYSTERIOUS DOUBLE SUICIDE

Berlin, July 16.—A mysterious double suicide occurred at a hotel in Breslau a few nights ago. A man aged about forty and a lady considerably his senior, whose names were entered in the book as Dr. Baumann and mother, from Koenigsberg, received a visit from the police, who desired to confirm their names and residence. This is not an unusual proceeding, particularly when, as in this case, the persons had been staying two or three weeks in the hotel.

Upon the entrance of the official and as though by a preconcerted signal, the man drew from his pocket two daggers and stabbed himself in twenty different places, while his companion drank the contents of a bottle of poison. They were conveyed to the hospital, but both expired within an hour.

THE MINERS ARE VERY APATHETIC

Largest Pay Day of the Year Will Probably Result In Considerable Disorder and Many Arrests—Real Test of Staying Powers of Men Is Expected to Come on Monday—Coal Output the Same.

Glace Bay, N.S., July 17.—President James Ross of the Dominion Coal Co. arrived yesterday morning and spent the day secreted with the company's officials, leaving at night by special train for Sydney. Officials would give no information concerning the meeting.

The town, which has been very quiet since July 5, will probably take on a more lively appearance to-day, when the biggest pay of the year will be distributed.

Since the 5th not one "drunk" has been arrested, but pay day usually sees a large number arrested for drunkenness.

Knowing that a strike was imminent, the men now on strike worked steadily before the strike was begun, hence the big pay sheet, which they will draw on.

The pay is up to June 30, so there is still nearly a week's pay coming to the men at the next fortnightly pay, the last of July.

Between $150,000 and $200,000 will be paid to-day. The men in the outside mines, No. 6, 12 and 14, were paid yesterday. In the afternoon the tin boxes containing the money for the men were taken to different places under an escort.

Regarding the strike itself it looks as if the U.M.W. leaders will have to arouse the ardor of the men if they wish to get successfully over the critical period which is acknowledged to be near at hand.

There is danger of many of its adherents deserting, for coal miners as a rule cannot stand periods of inaction and idleness, and a strike of any magnitude is a novelty here.

Although it is thought that many of the U.M.W. men are weary and discouraged, yet the U.M.W. leaders are very optimistic. The test will likely be on Monday.

The output yesterday was about the same as Thursday.

Killed by Blast.

Tweed, July 17.—Percy Harvey, aged 26, was down in one of the shafts at the Sulphide Mine about 2.30 o'clock Thursday night preparing to fire a round of nine shots. A helper, Frank Langevin, was holding the ladder Harvey was to use in getting out of the shaft, which was about 25 feet deep. This short shaft was at the end of a 125-foot drift and from this drift the main shaft of about 300 feet led to the surface. To each charge was attached a four foot piece of fuse. It takes about four minutes for this fuse to burn up, so Harvey had to light the nine fuses and then get away to the top. He was killed by a premature blast. Langevin was knocked down and stunned. Harvey leaves a wife and two small children, the eldest being only three years, and a third is expected.

Plead for Protection.

Washington, July 17.—The White House was stormed yesterday by a delegation of twenty-three Republican Congressmen, who spent an hour and a half with the President telling him that their very political lives depended upon the protection of raw minerals.

Many of the Congressmen who composed the delegation, represent southern districts.

"It is merely a question of facts, gentlemen," the President said to the Congressmen, "and in the light of facts we all want to try to do the right thing."

Foreign Police Barred From France.

Paris, July 17.—The remarkable series of revelations regarding the methods of the Russian students and refugees in France, which followed Bourtseff's exposure of Gen. Harting's complicity in the plot against Alexander III., has led Premier Clemenceau to announce in the Chamber of Deputies that the Government has decided to forbid the maintenance hereafter of foreign police in French territory.

Buffalo Suffragette Is Arrested.

London, July 17.—Miss Grace Johnson of Buffalo, N.Y., was one of four suffragettes arrested yesterday afternoon while loitering in Downing street for refusing to obey the police order to leave the locality. The women were trying to deliver a petition to Premier Asquith. All of the suffragettes were sentenced in the Bow street Police Court to three weeks in prison in default of paying a fine.

Doctor Struck Off the Rolls.

Vancouver, B.C., July 17.—The British Columbia medical council have struck the name of Dr. Wm. H. Willson of Nelson from the rolls. Dr Willson had, it was alleged, while in a state which rendered him unfit to attend any patient, attended a case of confinement, in which the patient died. Willson has been practicing in this province for ten years.

Lightning Destroys Church.

Stratford, July 17.—At Dublin the fine new Roman Catholic Church, which cost $40,000, and was only recently opened, was struck by lightning and burned to the ground.

A LIMITED NUMBER OF SHARES AT 25 CENTS

I am offering a limited portion of fully paid-up shares of $1 each, of the Belmont Silver Mines of Kerr Lake, at 25c a share. This offer may be withdrawn any day—this is an opportunity to get in on one of the best appearing propositions in the Cobalt District.

The Company's Properties

(1) The Northeast corner of lot No. 2, in the 4th Concession of the Township of Coleman, free of encumbrance and exempt from all royalty. This property consists of forty acres (see map, section enclosed by black rule), in the rich Crown Reserve; Kerr Lake District, directly adjoining the well-known Drummond and Hargraves Mines, and only a few claims distant from the famous Crown Reserve and Kerr Lake Mines.

(2) The south half of the north half of lot No. 4, in the 11th Concession of the Township of Lorrain, Nipissing District, containing two claims of forty acres each, also free from encumbrance and exempt from royalty.

A Great Future

The forty acres of the rich Crown Reserve, Kerr Lake District, it is believed, on further development work will prove equally as valuable as any of the rich neighboring properties. The situation is ideal, being near the greatest shippers of the Cobalt Camp. About $20,000 worth of honest work has been done, which resulted in nearly 4000 feet of trenching, and three shafts being sunk from 20 to 50 feet in depth. Some promising veins, one measuring over four inches has been discovered and developed under the management of Mr. Ward, superintendent of the Little Nipissing and Michigan Cobalt Mines.

An important and promising feature is that on the Hargraves claim, adjoining the Belmont Silver Mines of Kerr Lake, Limited, two large veins have been discovered—the "Jacobs" vein, 6 inches in width, and already uncovered for a distance of 400 feet, and an 18-inch vein paralleling the Jacobs vein, of which over 60 feet has been laid bare and from all appearances bids for prominence with the Crown Reserve showing. Both of these rich appearing veins are headed by the Belmont. This makes the Belmont one of the best propositions in the Cobalt district. The shares should in a few months sell at double or, perhaps, three times the present price of 25c a share.

Some Rich Neighbours

The Crown Reserve Mine consists of about twenty-two acres, or about half the size of one claim in this Company. The Crown Reserve stock is now quoted at $3.40 for shares the par value of $1.00, while the Kerr Lake stock is over $2.00 per share for shares of the par value of $5.00.

These figures show that the Belmont proposition is the most attractive in the Cobalt Camp, and affords another opportunity to profit by a low-priced issue in this famous district.

Just consider these two important points—its close proximity to so many rich silver mines—The Hargraves, Drummond, Crown Reserve and Kerr Lake—and the fact that the two large veins recently uncovered on the Hargraves head directly for the Belmont.

Only a limited portion of this stock on sale. Applications should be accompanied by cheques, payable to the order of the Metropolitan Bank, of Toronto, who will act as trustees, and certificates of stock will be issued on payment thereof.

The vendors reserve the right to withdraw the shares from sale, or to increase the price, or to refuse any application, or to accept applications for a less number of shares than applied for, in which case the excess of money will be returned. Any other information will be gladly furnished.

Percy Harvey of Tweed, a miner, was killed by a powder blast.

The strike of the 16,000 miners of the Pittsburg Coal Co. has been called off.

Antonio Amiconi, aged 23, fell into a bank of sulphuric acid at the Trail, B.C., smelter and perished.

A serious bush fire has been raging for nearly two weeks in McCarthy Township along Sturgeon River.

Cholera is increasing to a degree which is beginning to cause widespread anxiety in Russia. On Saturday last 127 cases were registered.

At Roanoke, Va., Claude Minor, who struck Harry Thompson of Montreal, Que., on the head with a dirk, causing death, was sentenced to six years in penitentiary.

Two bricks were hurled through a window in an attempt to wound Thos. French, license inspector, at St. Thomas He had received intimations of impending troubles.

The Glass Bottle Blowers' Association of the United States and Canada have defeated a proposition to amalgamate with the American Flint Glass Workers' Union. The vote was 197 to 36.

Thomas Sutcliffe, a Sudbury man, on Thursday night was struck on the head by a large stone, and robbed of $15, at Portage Du Fort, Que. It is not thought likely that he will recover.

The monthly financial statement shows that the revenue is ahead of the figures for last year, but that it has not quite reached the record of 1907, the banner year. The expenditure, however, is greater than the two previous years.

Mrs. Baker G. Eddy, founder and leader of the Christian Science denomination, passed her 88th birthday yesterday at Boston. Members of Mrs. Eddy's household said that "the mother," as she is known by her followers, was in splendid health and was attending to her affairs with her usual vigor.

Louis Rosenberg, a cigarmaker of Cleveland, O., was murdered on a lonely island in the St. Clair flats. A few hours later Frank Elbera, also of Cleveland, who is charged with the murder, was also dead from a dose of poison, self-administered. A third Cleveland man, Sam Frisbie, is held as an accomplice.

Pleads Guilty.

Whitby, July 17.—Seven years in the penitentiary may be the punishment of Henry Willing, the bigamist, in the opinion of practicelly everybody who has heard the details of his treatment of Gertrude Lomax, the sweet-faced girl whom he lured from her home in England and married in New York, only to tell her after a fortnight's wedding trip that he had a wife and three children in Canada.

When her father learned of her misfortune, after having sold his home to enable the daughter to marry Willing, he advised her to prosecute him, hence the exposure.

Yesterday Willing pleaded guilty and is to be sentenced next Monday.

Padded Pay Lists.

Ottawa, July 17.—Investigation into the serious charges of padding pay lists made against Major de la Ronde, officer commanding No. 5 company, C. A. S. C., police chief of Ottawa, and Capt. de la Ronde, his son, is proceeding slowly. The accused officers have refused to attend afternoon sittings, so that the board will meet in the evening to suit their convenience.

For the defence it was claimed the time had been insufficient to allow of proper evidence to be prepared and an adjournment until next September was requested. The board, however, ordered that the case be proceeded with on Monday evening.

Presbyterian Manse Destroyed.

Blyth, July 17.—The manse here was completely destroyed by fire, and Rev. J. L. Small and family are now living in the basement of the Presbyterian Church. The fire originated in the stable.

Aid to Manufacturers.

Berlin, July 17.—At a general meeting of the Board of Trade the following important resolution was passed, and, if deemed advisable by the committee appointed, will be sent out to sister Boards of Trade throughout the province for endorsation:

"That the chairman name a committee to report on the provincial statutes dealing with aid to manufacturers, and the advisability of taking steps to secure an amendment by striking out that clause requiring established manufacturers to give their consent before a bylaw can be submitted for aid to concerns in similar lines."

Persian Shah Flees.

Teheran, July 17.—The fact that the Shah of Persia yesterday morning took refuge in the Russian Legation here is accepted as tantamount to his abdication of the throne, and arrangements already are on foot to organize a provisional government.

It is probable that the successful revolutionaries will choose Mohammed Ali, the ex-ruler's son, to rule the state. Mohammed Ali is a minor and will be under a regent. It is possible that the uncle of the dethroned Shah, Zilles Sultan who is at present in Europe, will be given this post.

Long Hatpins Dangerous.

Hanover, Germany, July 17.—The president of the police has issued a decree warning women against the dangers of wearing long hatpins.

He points out that several deplorable accidents have occurred recently from this cause, and he announces that if in the future an accident occurs to another through a woman's hatpin, she will be liable to arrest and prosecution for assault.

Young Man's Suicide.

White Plains, N.Y., July 17.—With a revolver still clutched in his right hand, the body of Harold G. Cox, aged 23, teller of the Home Savings Bank of this place, who has been missing from his home here since July 5, was found yesterday.

Liberal Elected.

London, July 17.—In the Mid-Derbyshire bye-election, Hancock, Liberal-Labor, was elected over Cresswell, Conservative. The vote was: Hancock, 6,735; Cresswell, 4,398.

USELESS LINIMENTS

Are being fast driven off the market by the overpowering merit of Nerviline, which has more strength in one drop than is found in a quart of ordinary remedies. Full of pain-subduing properties, healing and soothing, its influence on rheumatism, sciatica, and lumbago is unsurpassed. Nerviline is without question the best household liniment made. For nearly fifty years a staple in every drug store in America.

DROP ALL OTHERS.

"I dropped all liniments but Nerviline because I found Nerviline the quickest to relieve pain," writes E. S. Benton of St. John's. "If my children are croupy or sick, Nerviline cures them. If a case of cramps or stomach-ache turns up, Nerviline is ever ready. We use Nerviline for neuralgia rheumatism, and all kinds of aches and pains; it's good as any doctor."

Use Only "Nerviline"

Good to rub on any part of the body—soothing, antiseptic, and just full of pain-relieving power. Just as good for internal pains, like cramps, toothache, dyspepsia, etc.

You can't beat Nerviline as a general household panacea for the aches and pains of the whole family. Try it.

END COACH DERAILED.

One Lad Fatally Injured In Nova Scotia Wreck.

New Glasgow, N.S., July 17.—A special excursion train on the Pictou Landing branch of the Intercolonial Railway, carrying a Sunday school excursion met with an accident near New Glasgow yesterday. Fred Donkin, 16, was fatally injured and many others badly shaken up.

The cars were crowded by the Sunday school of the United Presbyterian Church, about 600 in all, principally children. After leaving the steel works yard at Trenton the end coach left the rails and bumped along the ties for seven hundred feet before becoming detached from the train, plowing into a bank of earth on its side.

Donkin and two others were standing on the platform and jumped as the car careened. Donkin was caught in the wreck and sustained, besides other injuries, a fracture of the skull.

Almost miraculous was the escape of those within the wrecked coach. It was filled principally with ladies and children and a few men, including R. M. McGregor, M.P.P. Though almost frantic with fear the occupants were extricated without difficulty and received but a few scratches from broken glass. The seats were torn up and badly wrecked. The forward coaches of the train kept to the rails and the passengers there were hardly aware that any damage was done.

Boilermakers Strike.

Montreal, July 17.—Two hundred boilermakers and blacksmiths employed at the locomotive and machine works at Longue Pointe, a branch of the American Locomotive Co., have gone on strike on account of a new timing system which has been adopted and which the men claim reduces their pay.

This system has been introduced in some departments, but the boilermakers and blacksmiths rebelled against working under it.

Briefly stated the system is one by which clerks compute the time a certain piece of work should take and the workman is credited with that much time, whereas it might take him an additional hour to do the job.

The clerks are supposed to be experts in most cases. The men claim it takes more to pay the clerks than any amount the company might lose under the old system.

Panic on Steamer.

Montreal, Que., July 17.—There were thrilling scenes on Lake St. Peter, between Montreal and Three Rivers, on Thursday night.

The steamship Prefontaine of the St. Lawrence Canadian Navigation Co. was proceeding up the lake, bound for Montreal with a full load of passengers, mostly women, when the propeller shaft tubing broke.

High winds were prevailing at the time, and the boat began to leak rapidly. Instantly there was a panic on board, and the boat was headed for the shore. She was grounded in about ten feet of water.

Attracted by the whistling, the Government steamer Vercheres and the Imperial, the latter also of the St. Lawrence Co., hurried to the rescue.

A Missing Indian.

Brockville, July 17.—Mike Bero of St. Regis was summoned to answer yesterday to a charge of perjury in the evidence he gave a few weeks ago on an information against the proprietor of the Windsor Hotel, fined for selling after hours. He didn't show up and a warrant was issued.

A Business College Change.

Kingston, July 17.—J. Stockdale has disposed of his interests in the Frontenac Business College to W. H. Shaw, Toronto, and has accepted a commercial mastership in Leamington High School.

Anarchists Exiled.

THE COLOURING OF CONCRETE BLOCKS

White Cement and Small Amount of Marble Dust Relieves Sombre Effect of Dark Grey Colour.

One of the serious objections to concrete blocks in the past has been their dark grey appearance, says the Cement Age. This can be overcome by using light-coloured sand or crushed stone and a white Portland cement, which will give a light grey effect. If a pure white effect is desired, then white cement should be used, with white sand or crushed stone, mixed with a little marble dust. It is very difficult to obtain a coarse white sand, although there are kinds which are quite coarse. A fine white sand used alone with cement will not make a thoroughly waterproof facing. In order to make such a facing waterproof it is necessary to use a proportion of marble dust or crushed stone with sand.

Care must be taken not to use too much marble dust, for its too much of this is used the facing will check and show unsightly cracks. For this reason marble dust should never be used alone with cement. Usually the checks and hair cracks referred to will not show until the blocks have aged several weeks and even months, but eventually they are bound to come.

The amount of marble dust to be used should not be more than one and one-half parts of marble dust to four parts of white sand. If the facing is too rich in cement, checks and hair cracks are liable to appear, as when marble dust is alone used with cement. Very good results can be obtained by using limestone screenings, from coarse to fine, which will pass a quarter inch screen, but usually it is advantageous to use a little white sand with this as well in order to produce a smooth, dense surface.

DO YOU WEIGH TOO MUCH?

The Real Remedy and the Recipe

There are some stout people whom the above question does not seem to trouble very much. They are, however, wrong to be so careless, for obesity is a complaint which brings many evils in its train. There are others who have sought long and earnestly for a really reliable remedy for obesity, and to these the following prescription will be of absorbing interest, because it presents in a simple and harmless form and sure relief—a remedy which is rapidly gaining a world-wide reputation. The reader may make up the prescription for himself (or herself) on getting the ingredients from the druggist—or the latter will do so willingly.

This is the full recipe: ½ oz. Marmola, ¾ oz. Fluid Extract Cascara Aromatic, and 4¾ oz. Peppermint Water. Take a dose of one teaspoonful after each meal and at bedtime.

This admirable and quite harmless remedy will soon take off pounds of the offending fatty excess; and as, day by day, the weight decreases, strength and vigor will return in equal ratio; for, be it observed, there is no fasting or exercise required. Rest, good food, regular doses—these are all that is necessary to reduce weight to normal, increase the supply of pure blood, clear the skin, beautify the complexion, and restore energy and excellent spirits.

SARAH BERNHARDT'S ACTIVITY

Paris, July 16.—One had thought that it was impossible even for Mme. Sarah Bernhardt herself to beat her own feats of energy, but she has just surpassed even her own records. She has come back from a tour of twenty-one days in the provinces, during which she actually played the "Dame aux Camelias" on the twenty-one successive evenings. How many times she has by now died of consumption towards midnight as Maguerite Gautier, even she probably can no longer count. During her latest tour she travelled by motor-car throughout, and never set out in a railway carriage. When next she starts on a circuit of Europe and of the globe she thinks of journeying by the same means wherever possible. For the present she is off to her castle of Belle Isle, on the Brittany coast, for a few weeks' rest if she ever does rest.

"Mauretania" is the all-the-year-round collar. Men who wear it in summer for its style and comfort, wear it all winter for the same reasons.

OFFICER TELLS OF HUNT FOR THE BANDITS

Sergt. Nicholson, of the Mounted Police, Says the Hold-Up Was Planned and Carried Out by Two Men—The Shooting of Decker.

Edmonton, Alta, July 17.—That there were only two men in the company who committed the hold-up of the C.P.R. train at Ducks, B.C. that these were the man Kelly, who was shot at Ashcroft three weeks ago by Constable Decker, and his companion who killed Decker, and has since been baffling the efforts of the police to find him, are the conclusions reached by Sergeant Nicholson, of the Mounted Police at Edmonton, after investigations made while a member of the posse under Supt. Constaine, who has for the past three weeks been chasing the bandits all over the British Columbia hills, in company with the C.P.R. and British Columbia police, but with little success.

"When we reached the scene of the hold-up," said Sergt. Nicholson, "we had nothing to work on. The men had disappeared after the holdup and for all we could find out they might as well have gone up in a balloon. They made a clean get away. All the description we got from the train crew was that one of the men had square-toed boots."

Shooting of Decker.

Sergt. Nicholson described the shooting affray at Ashcroft nearly three weeks ago, when the two men were sighted in a boat in the Thompson river, and were ordered to land by Constable Decker who went down alone to the water's edge to arrest them. Kelly, the man who was killed, was standing in the stern of the boat, with a coat wrapped around his left hand, behind which he hid his right which held a colts. When the boat touched the bank, he stepped out and said to Decker, 'now, arrest me,' and arising his gun he shot Decker, the bullet entering the constable's abdomen. Almost at the same time in the cheek and breaking his neck. Decker fired and hit Kelly, hitting in the cheek and breaking his neck. Both men fell, but before Decker reached the ground, the other man in the boat had raised his gun and fired. The charge carried away the entire top of Decker's face, gouging out his forehead and eyes. The man after dropping his gun, walked away up the road and disappeafed. Since that moment the police have been unable to find the faintest trace of the man.

Sergt. Nicholson believes that he may be still near Ashcroft living in the bush and living on berries. He believes that the train robbers had an accomplice close by on some of the surrounding farms, who kept them in hiding.

Yorkshire Lad's Act Makes The Regulars At Coney Take Notice

Down at the Pain's pyrotechnic drama of "The Battle in the Clouds," at Brighton Beach, there is a nimble English Yorkshire lad who shins up a flag pole which is only sixty feet high,—that's all!

The lad's name is William Frederick Cattle, and he is known as "The-Man-Up-the-Pole."

And what he does when he gets up the pole is hair-raising and heart-breath taking.

Mr. Cattle does spread eagles, arms' length "planche" balancing and when one sees him get right up on the very apex of the pole and carelessly swing around on the top of it one thinks he is about to end his marvellous act. But now there is a breathless moment when dull care and all worry seem to be thrown out to the surging ocean by him, for he turns head foremost and darts down that pole like gressed lightning.

Mind you ,this is all done on a pole made of Norwegian pine ship mast wood, and sways to and fro like the ebb and flow of the restless tide below him. At the base the pole is but eighteen inches in diameter and at the top, where he swings about, it is scarce two inches.

Cattle has never had an accident doing this remarkable stunt. And he further stated that in his career in the acrobatic rings of all the European circuses for twenty-six years he has never as much as sprained an ankle or a wrist.

William Frederick Cattle was born twenty-six years ago in Scarborough, Yorkshire and immediately went into the ring with his famous father, who was known in Europe as "Comical Cattle." Cattle, the elder, appeared in Amberg's circus in this country, some forty years ago, and now for the first time in America comes his son William to thrill American audiences.

He did this dare-devil act for nearly a year at the Royal Agricultural Hall, London, before coming over here.

One would think at first gasing on the man that he was a sailor or had the technical experience of climbing to dizzy mast heights, but he knows only how to ship as a first cabin passenger on the palatial leviathans of the deep.

Cattle has done everything in the circus business from being a clown to flying in the air, and his development shows the perfection to which man can attain when he does this strenuous muscle-building work.

America will see this wonder daring high and lofty tumbler for the two years both in the circus arena and on the audeville stage, for he suits his act to the size of the scene of his performance —The World.

WHY ARE GIRLS SO UNGRATEFUL?

By A Man Who Knows.

Women, it has often been demonstrated, are the unselfish sex. They will sacrifice themselves and all they hold dearest, for the sake of making other people happy. They will refuse to count the cost if it is the gain of any one they love. They will give up life, and all that makes life worth living, with a cheerful smile, at the behest of those they want to please.

They are magnificent in this virtue. There is positively no limit to the unselfishness of which a good woman is capable; but even the best of women are not noted for their gratitude.

It is a curious fact, and perhaps it in some measure accounts for it, that people who are generous in bestowing are generally ungrateful. They are so used to self-sacrifice that they don't appreciate sacrifices at their full value when other people make them. They take as a matter of course what selfish people would regard with awe and wonder.

Women's ingratitude comes out in even the simplest acts of every day life. Look at them in travelling. You may get up a score of times to give a woman your seat, and it is perhaps one time out of twenty that she even troubles to thank you. When she does, it is in the most casual manner, as if she thought your action a matter of course.

Give up your time, your work, your money to her and she will accept it in the same spirit. I think, in a pretty wide experience of life and manners, I have never known a woman more than twice to endeavor to repay a service that was done for her. She may be graceful in acknowledging it—education teaches her pretty manners—but it slides off her like water off a duck's back, and she is a living example of benefits forgot.

There is no doubt that the greatest compliment any man can pay any woman is to ask her to be his wife. He shows by his act that he places her above the rest of the world. He bestows on her a favour which she might as least appreciate if she cannot accept it; but how many women ever lived upon this terrestrial ball who were grateful to men for having proposed to them.

They take a proposal in a dozen different ways. They may shy at it, avoid it, try to escape it. They may refuse it with contempt, with indifference, with indignation; but how often do they feel an emotion of gratitude in connection with it? Nay, even when they accept they are not grateful. Pleased they may be — elated, gratified, filled with rapture; but the emotion of gratitude is the very last one that presents itself to their minds.

What woman was ever grateful to the man who works for her? He may toil and slave, and expend the sweat of his brow to an unlimited extent, and she will never think she has reason to thank him for it. He may work for years to have means to support her; and once those means are secured he may work no less hard to keep the household. She only thinks he is doing a foolish thing in devoting so much time to his business, and she grudges the hours he spends over it, and regards it with hatred as her rival.

No, gratitude is not a feminine virtue. The obligation of a favour received sits lightly on a woman's mind. Instead of being anxious to repay it, she is like the gentleman who thought that one good turn deserved another; and because his neighbour had lent him $2 last week, he was entitled to borrow $5 from him to-day.

CONSTIPATION AND HEADACHE

Mrs. E. Morrow, Bracebridge, Ont., writes—"For years I was troubled almost constantly with constipation and never got anything to do me the lasting good that has been obtained from Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. Not only have they cured constipation but have also entirely cured the headaches from which I used to suffer terribly and have improved my health in every way."

VACATION TIME

To country lanes the toiler beats his way from dismal city streets. To country lanes, where bud and sprout the kind of flowers you read about, and fat red birds sit round and sing and bumblebees and hornets sting. The modest cottage on the hill for city guys exerts a charm; through all our grinding day of toil, we're yearning for the virgin soil, the bucket hanging in the well, the johnnie-jump-ups in the dell, the humble meat of bread and milk, the grapes and honey fine as silk. And when we reach the farmer's cot—the Mecca of our yearning thought, the honest farmer feeds us beans, and moldy prunes, and canned sardines, and rank bologna shipped from town, denatured milk to wash it down. The moss-grown bucket in the well, the johnnie-jump-ups in the dell, are visions of a fevered brain, the fat red birds are all insane, the milk, the honey and the grapes, are nothing more than phantom shapes; the only time we feel a thrill is when the host hands in his bill. And so the guys come back to town, sad, but resolved to live it down.

Paul's Second Missionary Journey—Thessalonia and Berea. Acts xvii; 1-15.

Golden Text—Thy word have I hid in mine heart, that I may not sin against thee. Ps. cxix:11.

Verses 1, 2—Is church going a good habit, and what do they lose who have not formed it?

How many times a day should a person attend church?

What is the value of a good habit, and how are good habits formed?

Verse 3—Did Paul mean to say that it was necessary for the Jews to have put Jesus to death, and if not what did He mean?. (This question must be answered in writing by members of the club.)

(The position taken by the present writer is, that the Jews ought to have accepted Jesus, and, that their putting him to death is the colossal crime of history, and the calamity of calamaties that has befallen the Jews. That there are two distinct lines of contingent prophecy in the Old Testament, either one of which being fulfilled, would cancel the other; and the prophecies concerning the perpetuation of the Jewish nation and the throne of David with unparalleled splendour, were cancelled by the fulfillment of those concerning the rejection of Christ. God sent Jesus in good faith, and they voluntarily rejected him, when God's first and best plan was that they should accept him. God then proceeded to do through the death of Christ, that which would have been done more speedily by his life.)

Is it necessary for us to adopt all Paul's opinions in order to be well-pleasing to God?

Were all Paul's opinions correct concerning the time of the second coming of Christ?

In what sense was it true, "that Christ must needs have suffered?" (See Luke xxiv:26, Jer. xxiii:5-8, Mich v:2. Matt. ii:4-6.)

In what way do the Old Testament Scriptures bear testimony that Jesus is the Christ?

Verses 4, 5—How do you account for it that the same facts and reasoning which converts some only serves to harden others?

How is it that women are generally in the majority in Christ's converts?

Why were the Jews moved with jealousy?

Can a jealous man, at the time, either be a true man or a correct reasoner?

How do you characterize a person who is jealous of another in doing good works?

Have we any modern example of the way these people acted?

Verse 6—Is the world, to-day, upside down, or right side up?

Is the world getting better or worse?

Verse 7—When people oppose the work of God do they generally confine themselves to the truth in their objections, or do they ever confine themselves to the truth?

Do objectors to the truth knowingly falsify or do they do it in blind ignorance, or through prejudice?

Verses 10-12—Is there ever any virtue in exposing ourselves to danger, when it is not necessary in the interests of the truth?

What was the difference between the religious people of Thessalonica and those of Berea?

Is a truth seeker sure to find it?

Is it ever right to suppress the truth in the interests of the Kingdom of God?

Verses 13-15—What is it which prompts men to work so hard, and persistently in opposing what they know to be the truth?

Lesson for Sunday, July 25th, 1909—Paul's Second Missionary Journey—Athens. Acts xvii:16-34.

The Canadian Witnesses Upset The Girl's Story

Witnesses From Belleville, Ont., for Purpose of Aiding the Prosecution---Her Former Employer Proves Unbelief in Defendant in Sensational Trial

Chicago, July 16.—Three witnesses from Belleville, Ontario, attacked the testimony of Ella Gingles, giving testimony to the effect that the girl had suffered an illness that would make her assertion of innocence false; that she had caused herself to be photographed in her mistress' evening gown, a fact which she denied under oath; that she stole table linen from her mistress, another fact that she denied under oath; that she assumed a false name, which was still another fact that she denied under oath, and that she consorted with men in an unseemly manner.

The Canadian witnesses were David S. Thornton, Miss Gingles' former employer at Belleville; Dr. W. J. Gibson and Walter E. McCormick, a photographer.

"This defendant," stated Mr. Thornton, "was known to me and to my wife as Ella Raymond. She was employed in my house as a cook. Soon after we received her she was suddenly taken ill at night, and I called Dr. W. J. Gibson to attend her. My wife and I cared for her until the doctor arrived, and she was afterward removed to the Belleville Hospital for treatment.

Sees Hugging and Kissing

"One night I saw Ella hugging and kissing a man near our home, and on another night I saw her at the rear of the house with a man. When I questioned her concerning her relations with men she told me falsehoods.

"When the girl left our employ my wife gave her a letter of recommendation. She said that she had to leave because her sister was dying in Chicago. The letter was written in the name of Ella Raymond and not in the name of Ella Gingles, as is the letter she now has.

"My wife was away from home when Ella decided to quit our service, and she sent the letter to me to give to the girl. After Ella's departure and my wife's return, we found that during my wife's absence Ella had gone to the photographic studio conducted by Mr. McCormick and had her photograph taken in my wife's evening gown. And still later, after we had been told that linen bearing our name had been found in Ella's trunk in Chicago, we found that some of our marked linen was missing from the attic in which we had stored it.

"All these things I told to Mr. O'Donnell when he visited me at my home. I told him of Ella's illness and the nature of it, and told him that Dr. Gibson had attended the girl. Mr. O'Donnell told me that Ella had been grossly wronged, and was lying at the point of death in a Chicago hospital. He said that the police had broken into her room at the hospital and subjected her to the 'third degree,' and that she had been abused by Miss Barrette, whom he described as an agent for a man who wanted 'white slaves.' I told him that I did not have a high opinion of Miss Gingles. I called in my wife and she told Mr. O'Donnell practically the same as I had told him."

Photographed in Finery

Mr. Short produced a rich lace evening gown and a French fan, and Mr. Thornton identified the articles as belonging to his wife. He also identified a photograph of Miss Gingles and said that she had the photograph taken while wearing Mrs. Thornton's gown and carrying her fan.

Mr. McCormick, the photographer, identified Miss Gingles as a girl who told him her name was "Miss Wilson," and who had her photograph taken while clad in Mrs. Thornton's gown.

A telegram bearing date of July 4, 1909, signed with the name of Ella Gingles, and admitted by Attorney O'Donnell as having been sent to Mr. McCormick upon the authority of Miss Gingles, was introduced by Mr. Short. The telegram asks Mr. McCormick to inform Miss Gingles what photographs he took of her, and to send her the plates. Mr. Short stated that he would endeavour to show that the telegram was sent in the hope either that Mr. McCormick would reply that he had no photographic plates of an "Ella Gingles," or that the defense wanted to get the plates into its possession.

Identified by Doctor

Dr. Gibson, one of the oldest medical practitioners of Belleville, testified that he was called to the home of Mr. Thornton to attend "Ella Raymond." He identified Miss Gingles as Ella Raymond, and then related in full detail the nature of her illness.

Attorney O'Donnell opposed the introduction of the testimony of the Canadian witnesses.

Manager E. C. Capen, of the Wellington Hotel testified that the rooms adjoining the rooms of Miss Barrette were rented on the nights of Jan. 4 and Feb. 16, and that persons in the adjoining rooms could easily hear screams or loud talking. On cross-examination he said that he did not know that the rooms were actually occupied on those two nights.

John Burke, a special watchman at the Wellington, testified that he was on duty in the upper hallway on the nights of Jan. 4 and Feb. 16 and heard no screams or other unusual noise to show that there was nothing unusual about the watchman's failure to hear screams in view of the fact that no one heard the pistol shot that killed Dr. J. T. Bingley in the same hotel, but he was shut off by Mr. Short's objection, and when he pressed another question along the same line Judge Brentano warned him that any further inquiry into the matter of pistol shots would be viewed as a contempt of court. Other questions that touched upon a raid made at the Wellington by officers of the state's attorney's office met a similar fate.

Loreno Burrell, a negress, living at 2815 Armour avenue, testified that she was Miss Barrette's laundress, and always marked her linen with thread, and never with ink, as the "A. Barrett" night dress worn by Ella Gingles on the night of Feb. 16 was marked.

Miss Barrette Recalled

Miss Barrette was recalled as the state's last witness. She stated that she last came to Chicago during November, 1908, and that her mother now lives in Ireland.

"I won't repeat all those things that have been said about you by Ella Gnigles," said Mr. Short, "but I will ask you if you ever attempted to sell here into 'white slavery,' if you ever abused or attacked her in the Wellington Hotel, or had any knowledge of any of these things?"

Miss Barrette's voice trembled and tears came to her eyes as she replied: "No, sir; it is all a falsehood from beginning to end. I had never heard of such terrible things until Miss Gingles told of them here in court."

The lawyers for the defense consulted for several minutes and then Attorney O'Donnell said: "You may leave the stand, Miss Barrette."

Government By Commission Is Strongly Advocated

Mr. W. H. Moore, K.C., Points Out the Advantages That Would Accrue From Same Step---The Exampies of Houston and Galveston are Referred To---What it Would Mean to the Citizens Generally.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Sir,—Your issue of the 15th inst. contained an editorial criticising our system of municipal government and referring to the success of commission government in our own and other cities. Our form of local government no doubt with its present machinery falls short of giving a complete economic system. People are looking about for something more appropriate, and many have thought that what has come to be called a commission form would give better results. For myself I am convinced in favour of a small legislative body, or council, with commission bodies to execute some of the important departments. The people will never give up the right to elect the former, and there is no use crying for the moon. Whether the electors should continue to have a voice in the appointment of the commission bodies as well as the council is a debatable point. The School Board and Water Commissioners are elected by the people; the City Trust by the Council, and the Police Commission is fixed by statute.

It is asserted that Galveston and Houston, Texas, have been "revolutionised" by the change from popular to commission government, but we have not yet arrived at the deplorable state they are described to have been in when the change was made. It appears by the report published that since this revolution, the commission have bought out the waterworks system, and made it yield a profit at reduced rates; created a sinking fund to take care of the City's debt; driven out pool rooms and gambling dens; provided storm and other drainage and "organized a navigable district that will yield returns into tens of millions." All these things except the last we revolutionised pretty well many years ago without parading it before the world as having any extreme merit, and as to the "tens of millions" expression it rounds off the sentence from which the above is taken, quite nicely. The report goes on to say, "Houston was driven to government by commission as Galveston had been by municipal waste and cheap grafting." Surely it would be hard to imagine a case for drastic measures equal to the conditions that had existed in these cties. Whatever shortcomings our Aldermen may have, we have not yet arrived at a point when they can be accused of "cheap" or any other kind of grafting. These Texan Cities evidently had submitted for long time to government the most rudimentary and pitiful. Things had gone to the deuce generally, clamouring creditors were at the city treasurer's door with four hundred thousand dollars of overdue claims, in no manner provided for, and it became a case of do or die, sink or swim. Now this commission so called, for it is nothing more than a small council elected by the people and compensated for services, had a short way of getting rid of the huge debt. They converted it into bonds (debentures) of the City, and then thanked God the debt was paid. There is no question that these Cities were in a grievous state, and the new form of government is doing very well and have improved the affairs of the City greatly. As I have pointed out, it is not a "commission" government at all. Galveston commenced with State appointments of Commissioners to manage the City, but that was found to be unconstitutional, and resort had to be taken to the popular election of Mayor and Aldermen, the same as in other places. But they got credit while it existed for being a "commission" government, and the name has stuck to them since and brought them notoriety far beyond their deserving, the same with respect to Houston. These places have not been slack in this kind of advertising, rather than that to which many of our cities resort to catch manufacturers and others, and it has formed a capital for them of small cost and great profit.

Sober-minded men must recognize that no particular form of government in itself guarantees satisfactory results. The same thing may be accomplished under different systems, when the municipal representatives and officers are united in an honest effort for the public good, and have the necessary knowledge and capacity for the services required, and where the duties and responsibilities are placed directly at the door of each officer and employee.

I consider there is no cause for general censure of the City Council. It is easy to say broadly that as a body the Council has failed to make good, and to compare our affairs to those of some Texan cities, in respect of which and in truth, we are better governed.

I have not space to develop the subject, but consider it worthy of serious consideration, whether the outlay on our streets by the Board of Works is as nearly economic and valuable as it should be. I am persuaded it is not, and that this service cannot too soon be placed in commission of say three paid members of skilled knowledge of the problems presented, with terms of office of three or four years, that they may have time to mature and carry out plans, and within limits as to general character and expense, independently of the Council. Add to this the reduction of the Council to, say a Mayor and four aldermen, who should be compensated for their services. Amend the law in these respects, and when the reforms are attained, the work of the Council will be attended with vastly improved results.

Your obedient servant,

W. H. MOORE.

The Examiner very gladly gives space to Mr. Moore's letter. It is a valuable introductory contribution to a discussion, which it is hoped will be continued and for which we shall be pleased to give space. The Examiner is dealing in a mildly critical way with civic administration, has had no individual alderman in mind, nor the council of any particular year. It has been pointed out that results have not been commensurate with the expenditure of money, especially in connection with the administration of our streets. It was in this connection that the commission idea was suggested. Mr. Moore agrees with that idea; and the City Council also for the aldermen have the matter under consideration. It is no reflection upon the council as a whole that in the matter of street administration there is ground for criticism—miles of it. Like the City Waterwarks, street administration needs special knowledge and business aptiture; and it cannot be expected that from a body of men elected as aldermen at large can be selected a committee or Board of Works, specially qualified as they should be for the special duties demanded of them. As the composition of councils goes from year to year, it is not probable that the membership will contain even one man specially equipped in this desirable special knowledge and administrative ability. But a board of three or four men must be chosen when, as a matter of fact there is no choice. The board is selected not because the members have the necessary special qualifications, but because they are members of the council and the committee must be composed of somebody. A commission composed, of say three members, with the necessary knowledge of proper street methods would, as in the case of the Waterworks Commission, give satisfactory service, and a fair return for the money of the people expended, in the shape of satisfactory streets and civic services. This is something that, in the nature of things, cannot be expected of the Board of Works constituted of members elected for one or even two years and changed the next. This forbids the adoption of anything like a fixed policy or system, without which na good work can he expected.

Clergy Confers With Council Regarding A House Of Refuge

Rev. H. J. Keith, Rev. Canon Davidson and Rev. J. G. Potter, Together With Rev. Father McColl, Discuss Means of Providing Accommodation for Aged Poor.

REV. FR. McCOLL'S IDEAS

The Committee of the Whole Council last night held an impromptu conference with the clergy of the city regarding the providing of a home for Peterborough's aged poor. Mayor Rush presided with the following present: Aldermen Phelan, McIntyre, Duffus, Buller, Turner, Metherall, Hicks and Duncan. Rev. Father McColl, who broached the question some time ago represented the Catholic people, while Rev. H. J. Keith, President of the Ministerial Association, Rev. Canon Davidson and Rev. J. G. Potter, represented the Protestant community. Rev. Mr. Keith was asked to speak but considered that as the movement had been initiated by Rev. Father McColl, he should be given the preference. The latter had written his proposition to the Council and Rev. Mr. Keith continued as the first speaker. He appreciated the fact that Rev. Father McColl had initiated the plan and, desired to strengthen his hands at the same time acting in the matter according to the broadest policy. The action that would be taken by the Portestant people would depend upon the plans of the city. If there was too be a civic House of Refuge they would not likely take further steps but if the Council decided not to erect one this would necessitate different plans on the part of the Protestant community to care for their poor.

Rev. Father McColl

In explanation of his views Rev. Father McColl went into the matter rather fully. Under the present conditions it was only right and proper that assistance should be given the House of Providence for those of the city's poor who were unable to pay for themselves. The shelter has been provided and now if the city builds a House of Refuge the Catholic people will have to pay a double tax. Father McColl did not consider this fair particularly as the present House of Providence was erected at a time when the congregation was not of the strongest as too finances. It is conducted on a broad basis, no differentiation being made with respect to colour or to creed. Many of the people treated in the hospital are poor and are unable to pay for the attention they require and receive. There is no distinction as regards the staff, yet in the Nicholls Hospital to-day a Catholic doctor is not given a place on the staff of that institution.

"We do not want to put a burden on others, but to relieve ourselves of a double burden."

An Excellent Bargain

The offer made by Father McColl to the city was to build a $30,000 home like the House of Providence, the city paying $1.50 for each poor person received provided this sum was guaranteed for a sufficient number of years. "The inmates cannot be supported at that rate and the city could not support them for less than $2.50 each. There would have to be good salaries paid the staff and considering all the expenses, I think the city is receiving an excellent bargain."

It was desired that the old people have religious services daily, practically identical with the Sunday services. The Protestant people would want to look after the welfare of their people and the result would be that accommodation for this would be necessary in a common institution. If it was deemed necessary, Father McColl had no objection to a common House of Refuge, but he considered that it would be to the advantage to both sections of the community to have their own institution and that the same grant be made to each.

Has Been Discussed

Speaking again Rev. Mr. Keith stated that the question had been discussed by different boards of the Protestant Home. The city must first make their decision. It would never do to have either section of the community go into a large expenditure of money and then the city to provide a municipal House of Refuge.

Rev. Canon Davidson addressed the committee briefly as follows:

We are altogether for a charitable purpose. We desire to know from standpoint of the church what the Council intends to do. The Grand Jury has recommended the provision of adequate accommodation and everybody was anxious to see something done along these lines. It would need to be guarded and it should not be permitted or the idea spread that aged persons could be easily turned upon the city or the church which ever the case might be. This could be guarded against for if it continued the city to a large extent would lose its self-respect as a community. Rev. Canon Davidson did not know of a city in Canada where the indigent were looked after better. There are only four aged poor in the County Gaol at present and it was hoped that the number would not be largely increased. Others were cared for in the Protestant Home and House of Providence.

A general discussion of the question was carried on for a time, the members of the council taking part. Alderman Hicks suggested that the Ministerial Association should endeavour to arrange a definite recommendation and to submit it to the council. Mr. Keith replied as before that it depended upon the action taken by the city. He believed that the scheme outlined by Father McColl to be the most preferable. Something will have to be done in the near future as the Protestant Home is beginning to fall in to disrepair. Father McColl agreed with Canon Davidson that only the aged and incapacitated be received and that the old people should not be made feel that they were dependent. It was the aim in the House of Providence to have the conditions as closely as possible simila to those in a private home and the sisters act towards the old people as if they were their daughters.

Alderman Hicks stated that while it was not possible to give permanent assistance to homes as proposed, but each succeeding council could make the grant. However, to assure that it would always be carried out an attempt might be made to secure special legislation providing that the city pay $1.50 or whatever sum is agreed upon for a particular number of years.

It was considered that as there were four of the members of the Council absent the question should be more fully dealt with at a later time. On motion of Aldermen Buller and Hicks it was decided that the Committee of the Whole Council further consider the matter at a later date to be fixed by Mayor Rush. It is likely that the Ministerial Association will be represented and that Father McColl will be present at this meeting when a decided action will be looked for.

ODD HATS AND PARASOLS

By Marian Morris

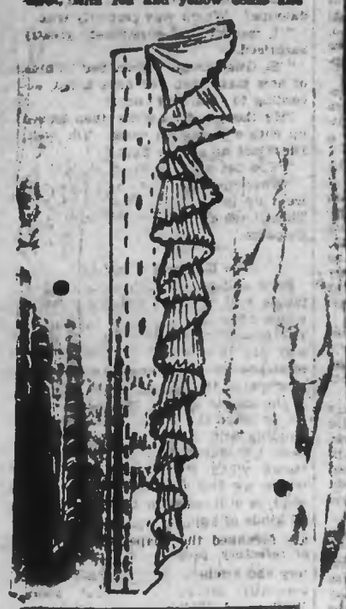
WHEN some time ago we told of whole stuffed roosters—specimen or barnyard rather—actually roosting on the hats of smart Parisiennes, we exclaimed "How absurd! I wonder what next!"

But now I have seen one of these hats with mine own eyes and the effect isn't absurd at all—is not even sufficiently out of the ordinary to create any comment at all from casual passers-by. Of course, those who make a study of fashions immediately "spot" any new effect.

This hat—which, by the way, is christened "Chanticleer," in honor of the famous play we shall all be flocking to see next Winter—was worn by a girl with fresh coloring and dark hair.

It was a wide, shaped leghorn, rolled up sharply at the left side and trimmed with loose folds of white chiffon laid around the crown.

Seated securely on the crown, its feathers spread around it in a manner very suggestive of mother hen sheltering the brood of little ones, was the rooster. All his feathers were pure white, so that his head, which was stretched out on the brim, directly in front, with red and yellow comb and bright yellow glass eyes, made a good contrast.



A jabot and front plait that can be buttoned to any waist. Made of linen, lawn or net trimmed with edging.

At first glance it looked as though the hat was trimmed with white coque feathers—which as a hat trimming are having a sudden and unexpected Midsummer vogue, and as if the rooster's head was only added as an after thought.

But, in reality, his lordship is all there, looking very game and quite ready for a fight, although, as I said before, he is only a common, barnyard rooster.

If you have any pieces left over from your colored linen suit or dress this summer, I am sure you cannot have got them out before this and made yourself a Hat. Perhaps it is only in process of construction, but a hat of linen to match you must have or confess your wardrobe quite incomplete.

If you have happened unaware upon the fashion where fashionable or "near fashionable" ended any rainbow people spending money and inclination to indulge each new dream that might appeal, congratulate you must have been struck with amazement at the Sometime ago we told of two of the then latest and most novel parasols on view. Thought the limit of originality had been reached. But we were deceived.

Not only are the colors startling and unique contrasted, but the shapes are beyond the imagination of the days.

From the latest fad stripes—three Japanese shapes of the Spring and early Summer parasols have rushed to the other extreme and are now contracted and the latest models are almost ball shapes.

One extreme creation seen was of rich emerald green taffeta silk. The top was flat across and not very wide.

At the edge it dropped straight down for about eight inches and then curved inwards, making it like an exaggerated lamp shade.

Around the lower edge was a row of swinging green balls, made of chenille.

Of course, when the parasol closed the bent-down edge, which was hinged, folded inside the outer rim. But of what use for shade or protection it was I failed to see.

Many of the late-imported parasols have rows of little balls or deep fringe edging them.

Tiny carriage parasols of ruffled, pinked-out taffetta or of lace over a color, are being carried on the street by women whose only carriage is the convenient vehicle which carries us all at the impartial rate of five cents each.

But we have long ago made up our minds that this is a season of extremes in everything in dress, and so we must be resigned.

NOVELTIES IN MIDSUMMER WEAR

Silk gloves for Summer are thought by some women to be the only possible wear for this part of the continent, which has lately been indulging in such tropical weather during the Summer months.

And this season the manufacturers have paid great attention to their possibilities.

Tucked ribbon for collar and ends finished by covering wads of cotton and winding threads to form the balls.

Some of the prettiest silk gloves I have seen are elaborately embroidered in little sprays of blossoms and leaves, which not only extend onto the part of the glove that covers the arm, but down onto the back of the hand as well.

A novelty in silk gloves has made a very tardy appearance. It is meant evidently to imitate the tucked gauntlet cuff we have worn for so long, for it reaches to the elbow and is tucked around the arm in half-inch tucks all the way up.

It is made extremely tight fitting at the wrist, as if at all loose it would look awkward, and buttons up the outer side of the arm into real buttonholes for three or four buttons. After that the buttonholes are only simulated, but it gives the effect of buttoning straight up to the elbow. It comes in black, white and golden brown.

Stockings seem to have caught the popular elaboration of embroidery and are adorned with all kinds of hand work in effective and dainty designs.

Indeed the feet of fashionable girls at fashionable Summer resorts are worthy of attention just now. For some wonderful things in shoes and stockings are being displayed by girls who before this season would have scorned anything but the most conservative footwear. The sensational germ must surely have been floating in the air during the past year to have infected even the most sedate with such radical ideas in clothes.

Big black buckles on white shoes are a fad taken up with enthusiasm by the Midsummer girl.

They are quite quaint in effect when worn with white linen or muslins.

Of course shoes must more than ever this season match in color the costume with which they are worn. A few contrasting colored shoes are seen, but they are always kept in countenance by parasol, hat trimming and girdle of their own color.

It is a pretty fashion this of having everything to match, buttercup drill hard on the pocketbook.

Square or oval buckles of silver, bright and shining, are cherished possessions of some lucky girls and are transferred from one pair of shoes to another as wanted.

Three yards of material is needed to make this waist, 21 to 24 inches wide; one-half yard of velvet ribbon required for collar. Tuck and gather before cutting out.

Each Midsummer brings some unforseen fashion into view. Perhaps the exclusive and expensive dressmakers can tell where they come from, for a group of girls will appear in something quite simple and yet out-of-the-ordinary. Even the closest student of shops and fashions will be taken by surprise! Will you and wonder. Then this fashion will be observed by other girls and adopted until towards the end of the season, it will be seen at seaside and mountain and lake resorts, all over the country.

Collar and cuffs like the above are a decidedly attractive addition to a Summer suit.

The girls who have gone a-Summering are looking unusually attractive during the morning hours, this year.

The simple little frocks of linen, gingham or chambray, delicately colored, with slightly low-cut neck and wide turned-back collars and cuffs of white, are most flattering to youthful lines and coloring.

So simple, unadorned, and inexpensive are they that the girl of even restricted dress allowance can have a variety of these little dresses without bankrupting herself.

Gingham and imported percales in wide, decided, not to say noisy, stripes and plaids are having a distinct vogue among women whom George Ade would describe as "swell dressers."

The whiter the stripes, the more "hoot mon!" the plaids, apparently, the better. This is no time to shrink from publicity in the matter of clothes.

These frocks are made with plaited skirts and plaited waists, usually joined under a belt of the material, and with collars and cuffs of white linen or pique.

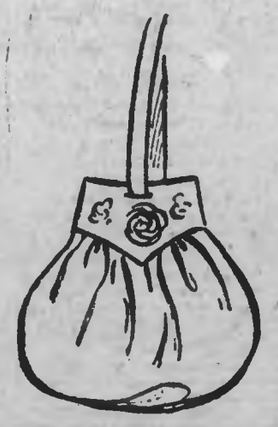
The women who had the courage of their convictions and refrained from having their wash dresses cut "all of a piece" must now be deriving deep satisfaction from viewing the feminine figures robed apparently in dressing gowns, and not much else—which are infesting the boardwalks and shady country lanes.

That they are satisfied with their uncanny and unlovely appearance must be nice for them, although it is not a great deal of consolation to the distressed and outraged on-lookers.

White lace veils, through the elaborate patterns of which it is next to impossible to distinguish your dearest friends, are beloved of the Summer girls.

For motoring the funny little baby veils of white shetland wool are being again worn this Summer.

A novelty in veils is one that can easily be copied by the girl who is clever with her needle. It is nothing but a big square of white or colored chiffon, covered on the outside with black octagon net. It is bound with a narrow band of bias black satin.



The "Medieval Alms Bag," made of embroidered linen or beading and silk to match gown.

The square is made large enough to completely cover the hat, the fullness being gathered down to the nape of the neck and either tied or fastened with a long veil pin.

Negligees for Hot Weather

By Ella Stan

WITH the approach of Warm weather the necessary dressing sacque and loose, comfortable kimono become doubly interesting because there is no other garment in which one may take so much real solid comfort. It is always ready to be slipped on regardless of the condition of one's stays—whether they be properly adjusted or not; in fact, the stays may be discarded entirely and the wearer rest satisfied in knowing that the graceful folds of the negligee will hide all defects.

To get the most out of such garments and also to save expense, consideration of the material. It is not always the low-priced goods that are the cheapest in the end, for they wear poorly and soon do not repay them.

For general all around purposes China silk will be found most desirable. It is cool, will launder nicely, if it is given ordinary care in the process, and it is not expensive for a fine quality may be had at from sixty cents to a dollar a yard.

The higher priced gloss the preparing of a good width and thickness

Collar and cuffs made of striped linen with buttonholed edge and coin dots in solid embroidery. The same style can be attractively made of tucked net, to be worn with linen suit.

less number of yards will be required.

One woman who is known among her friends for having unusually pretty and dainty negligees tells me that they cost her very little. From time to time she buys the goods of which they are made, finding here a bit of lace that has been reduced and somewhere else a short end of silk that is sufficient for her purpose.

These things are carefully put away in tissue paper until some day when she wants a sacque or kimono, and then they are brought forth and matched up, so to speak, until the best combination is obtained.

In this way a much better effect may be had than if one goes out in a hurry, snatches up a piece of goods and then buys a bit of lace and ribbon for trimming.

It will be well for women who want these dainty garments to profit by this suggestion and visit bargain counters, for there may frequently be had short lengths of goods or pieces that are slightly soiled at less than half the original price.

Crepe de chine is always soft and pretty, and this goods dyes or cleans nicely.

At present heavy laces of the thread order are the vogue, and therefore are more expensive than these of lighter weaves. But even these fashionable laces may be had at a small cost if one will but watch the bargain counters.

The important part that ribbon plays in these fascinating bits of feminine attire must not be overlooked, for it would seem as if it were next to impossible to get too many yards of ribbon on a negligee.

Therefore it behooves the wise buyer to take advantage of an opportunity to buy ribbons when they are specially priced.

Staple shades of light colors, such as pink, blue and white, and also weaves of a novelty design, one is quite safe in buying, for such ribbons will certainly be of use for trimming.

The selection of a pattern is quite as important as the selection of the goods, for in order to have the latter show to advantage the pattern must be cut along graceful, comfortable lines.

Recently negligees of the one-piece order, savoring of the true Oriental, have found favor, and indeed there could be nothing prettier or more graceful. We cannot do better for these garments than accept such models which have been long tried and found satisfactory by women of the Orient, whose judgment as to grace and beauty is unquestioned.

Patterns for a number of such designs may be had in either long or short lengths. Some patterns combine both, giving a line of perforations indicating the length to cut the material when only a sacque is wanted.

The Well-Dressed Woman

ODD HATS AND PARASOLS

By Marian Morris

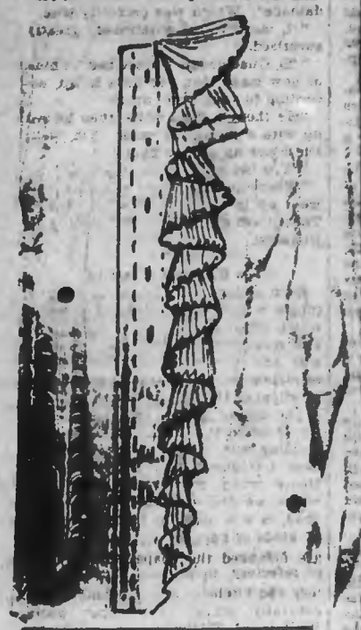
WHEN some time ago we said of whole stuffed roosters, specimen or barnyard rooster—calmly roosting on the hats of smart Parisiennes, we exclaimed "How absurd! I wonder what next!"

Well, now I have seen one of these hats with mine own eyes and the effect isn't absurd at all—is not even sufficiently out of the ordinary to create any comment at all from casual passers-by. Of course, those who make a study of fashions immediately "spot" any new effect.

This hat—which, by the way, is christened "Chanticleer," in honor of the famous play we shall all be flocking to see next Winter—was worn by a girl with fresh coloring and dark hair.

It was a wide, shaped leghorn, rolled up sharply at the left side and trimmed with loose folds of white chiffon laid around the crown.

Seated securely on the crown, its feathers spread around it in a manner very suggestive of mother hen sheltering the brood of little ones, was the rooster. All his feathers were pure white, so that his head, which was stretched out on the brim, directly in front, with red and yellow combs and bright yellow glass eyes, made a good contrast.



A jabot and front pleat that can be buttoned to any waist. Made of linen, lawn or net trimmed with edging.

At first glance it looked as though the hat was trimmed with white coque feathers—which as a hat trimming are having a sudden and unexpected Midsummer vogue, and as if the rooster's head was only added as an after thought.

But, in reality, Chanticleer is all there, looking very game and quite ready for a fight, although, as I said before, he is only a common, barnyard rooster.

If you have any pieces left over from your colored linen suit or dress this Summer, it is unsure you must have got them out before this and made your—self a hat. Perhaps it is only in process of construction, but a hat of linen to match you must have, for confess your Summer wardrobe quite incomplete.

If you are fastened on getting the finished "smart fashionable" or "near fashionable" outfit any rate, despite your money and inclination to be fashionable, some discarded part appears, inaugurate the figure you must have been at some amazement at the [illegible]

Something [illegible] of the then latest and most novel parasols on view. Although the limit of the eccentricity had [illegible] man dreamed.

Not only are the colorings startling and [illegible] but the shapes are [illegible] imagined. These days.

IN THE WORLD OF SPORT

FRED SIMPSON MAY ONCE MORE RACE IN ENGLAND

Big Professional Olympic Meet is Being Arranged and Local Indian May Start in the Marathon--Johnson vs. Ketchell and Gotch vs. Hackenschmidt Two of the Attractions.

London, July 16.—As the Olympic games of London, 1908, was the greatest gathering of amateur athletes ever witnessed, so will the "Professional Olympic Games, London, 1909"—as the promoters propose to call the event—be the greatest assembly, if it goes through, of runners, cyclists, boxers and wrestlers ever brought together for one meeting. It will be a grand carnival of professional sport, and it is to be sincerely hoped that no untoward circumstances will arise to prevent its realization.

An international syndicate of great financial possibilities has made offer to Mr. Imrie Kiralfry of £10,000 as rental of the Stadium for one week during the latter part of August or September.

Programme Arranged.

The programme is already practically arranged, and most of the men named therein have actually agreed to the terms offered them for their participation. It will surprise many to learn that two of the events contemplate a return engagement between Frank Gotch and George Hackenschmidt, and a twenty rounds contest between Jack Johnson and Stanely Ketchell, who are matched to fight in California in October. There will be a Marathon race, the following being willing to sign: Hayes, Dorando, St. Yves, Svanberg, Longboat, Simpson, Maloney and Cibot. The prize for this alone will be £2,000. A six-days'-go-as-you-please race, a week's cycle endurance race, swimming events, tug of war, and other field sports. A match will probably be found for Jim Driscoll.

Never has there been framed such a series of world-interesting events to take place under one management, and at one time. The Venture depends of course, upon the securing of the Stadium as London has no other place equally suited to such a scheme.

The Transvaal team entered a protest against the use of a hood over the foresight of the Ross rifle by the Canadian team in the MacKinnon Cup competition. The Bisley committee has declined to entertain a protest. The totals were—Canada, 2,609; England, 1,492; Scotland, 1,492; Ireland, 1,493; India, 1,339; Guernsey, 1,345; Natal, 1,491; Transvaal, 1,504; South Rhodesia, 1,422.

The scores of the Canadian team at 1,000 yards were—Capt. W. H. Forrest, 41; Col.-Sgt. J. Freeborn, 43; Sgt.-Major S. J. Huggins, 45; Maj. J. M. Jones, 43; Sgt. W. Kelly, 43; Capt. J. McVittie, 41; Lt. F. H. Morris, 46; St.-Sgt. T. Mitchell, 41; Corpl. D. McInnes, 41; Sgt. G. W. Russell, 49; Lt. Neil Smith, 43; Sgt. W. A. Smith, 45.

Men Entitled to Credit.

London, July 17.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The Morning Post thinks its to men, not to rifles, that the Canadian Bisley victories are due. The Telegraph says the present is one of the very best teams the Dominion ever sent. To Bennett Burleigh, Col. Bertram declared also, it was to the men behind the guns, fully as much as the rifles, that the success is due. The Mail says the Kolapore is another triumph for the Ross rifle.

Canada's Taxation.

London, July 17.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Sir R. Perks, speaking on the land tax question, said that he had been lately in a happy country where problems which perplexed us were not brought under the consideration of the Legislature. When we are told sometimes to copy New Zealand or Germany, he thought we might with advantage turn our eyes to the growing, prosperous Dominion of Canada, where such land regulations as are now being proposed here would not be tolerated for a moment.

Cobalt, July 17.—Mrs. Van Ophen and her 8-year-old daughter were injured Thursday night, when lightning struck their home at Haileybury. The lightnir struck the chimney and set the house on fire, but neighbors succeeded in quickly subduing the flames. Mrs. Van Ophen was badly burned about the arms and hands by the lightning, and the child received similar injuries.

FLIRTATION COST THE DRUMMER $500

Girl Had Persistent Man Arrested When He Followed Her After She Alighted

St. Louis, July 17.—Miss Carrie Hoeman believes that an acquaintance formed on a railroad train should end on leaving the train. By failing to understand this, Charles Ruttenberg, a St. Paul travelling man, offended the young woman so seriously that Judge Tracy fined him $500.

Miss Hoeman is from Marion, Ark. She met Ruttenberg on a train bound for St. Louis. The train got to St. Louis after dark and the young woman remarked that she would have just time to catch her train for Hannibal, Mo.

"You're not going to Hannibal tonight, surely," said Ruttenberg. And when he left the train he attempted Miss Hoeman said, to carry her hand baggage in a direction leading away from her train.

A sharp peremptory demand from the young woman caused the travelling man to halt. He then began apologising profusely.

"Your apology is not accepted," said Miss Hoeman emphatically, and she called a station policeman, Ruttenberg spent a night in a cell.

When Judge Tracy had heard the young woman's story he gave the man a very severe look over his spectacles and asked him what he had to say.

Ruttenberg sat in the witness chair and said nothing. He uttered an exclamation of amasement when he heard the $500 fine pronouced.

Ruttenberg had not the money with him, and was led back to the prisoner's cage. A fellow prisoner advised him to find a bondsman, file an appeal and take a chance on the absence of the prosecuting witness when the case comes to trial in the Court of Criminal Correction. Miss Hoeman, who remained in order to prosecute him, is anxious to go to Hannibal.

"I have been on the road fourteen year," said Ruttenberg after the imposition of the fine, "and I never was in any trouble before. I am an Odd Fellow, a Red man and a member of the United Commercial Travellers."

Miss Hoeman remained over night in the city to prosecute the drummer, although she had barely enough money to take her to her destination, Hannibal, Mo.

After the man had been fined Miss Hoeman was obliged to appeal to the police for aid in reaching Hannibal. She said she had spent for lodging and meals most of the money which was to have bought her ticket and was unable to get to her destination. She was taken to the detention room while policemen endeavoured to obtain transportation for her. Her mother lives in Hannibal.

BROADWAY KNOCKS

A close friend is all right until he declines to lend you money.

How an opporunity to show off in public does tickle a small man!

One smile of fortune is better than a dosen of her laughs.

Some men get an awful jolt when they fall in love.

Some so-called mediums don't give you a ghost of a show for your money.

Most people who cross the ocean for the first time find it a very swell affair.

And a man's idea of his own importance decreases as the gray of his hair increases.

Some writer say that "every woman loves the wrong man once." Yes and every man loves the wrong woman several times.

Loose change is often found in a tight wad.

A booking agent will often take to give time.

Fact is what a man is earning; fancy is what he wishes his salary was.

Never ask a man to do you a favour unless you are prepared to do him one in return.

A man who will laugh only when he sees others doing so has no faith in his own sense of humour.

The top rung of the ladder of life is a fibrous cord called success.

Bold Burglars Rob Bank.

Ashland, N.H., July 17.—One masked robber held three families at bay for more than a quarter of an hour early yesterday, while two robbers, also masked, worked in the glare of an electric light and finally succeeded in blowing open the safe of the Ashland Savings Bank, escaping with $500 in cash. Three explosions were necessary to force the safe and the robbers were at work for more than fifteen minutes after their operations had been discovered.

Liberal Leader Gets Post.

Vancouver, B. C., July 17.—A big conference was held by Liberals here yesterday, with Hon. Mr. Templeman, Dr. Pugsley and others present, including Liberal Leader J. A. Macdonald and Stuart Henderson, M.P.P. Rain Causes Washout.

Niagara Falls, July 17.—Caused by heavy rains, which fell for four hours yesterday afternoon, a washout occurred on the Michigan Central lines at St. David's, preventing a movement of traffic which has not yet been resumed. A train load of earth and cinders has been despatched with which to repair damaged lines.

Waterworks For Prince Rupert.

Safe Seat For Joe Martin.

London, July 17.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Joseph Martin, K.C., "stormy petrel of Canadian politics," has been adopted as the Liberal candidate for East St. Pancras in the place of Hugh Cecil Lea, who is retiring. The Liberal majority in 1906 was 1,881 in a riding of about 7,500 votes. On May 5 Mr. Martin was buried under a hostile majority of 2,627 at the Stratford-on-Avon bye-elections. The previous Liberal majority was 148.

British Coal Strike Threatens.

London, July 17.—The Miners' Confederation of Great Britain after a prolonged meeting, has decided in favor of balloting its million members as to whether or not a national strike shall be declared in support of the Scottish miners, who are resisting a wage reduction of sixpence a day. The executive will meet July 28 to take action on the result.

The present feeling seems to be in favor of the stoppage of all mines, a condition which would entail practically the complete paralysation of British industry.

In view of the consequent expected shortage in the coal supply, many factories already have served notice to their employes of the termination of contracts.

Sir Hugh Graham Entertains.

London, July 17.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—This week finishes the work of the Imperial Press Congress. On Thursday night Sir Hugh and Lady Graham gave a farewell reception to the delegates who remain in London and those who entertained them during June, as well as those who were instrumental in making the conference a success. An attractive program of music and recitations was contributed by well-known Canadians, among them Edmund Burke, Kathleen Parlowe and Edith Small, who gave selections from Drummond's well-known works.

Mr. Laidlaw will accept if the call is unanimous. He has been four years at Belleville, is about 35 years old, and an aggressive worker.

Riveters' Awful Fall.

New York, July 17.—Four riveters dropped from the top of the new Manhattan bridge yesterday when the frail plank scaffold on which they were working, 150 feet above the waters of the East River, gave way under their combined weight. Only one of them perished in the water. The other three clutched steel beams as they fell and escaped his fate.

In the Big Stand.

Did you ever stop to think how many people the big Grand Stand at the Canadian National Exhibition, Toronto, holds? Sixteen thousand four hundred. It would seat every man, woman and child in the city of Guelph, and leave enough vacant chairs for all the visitors from Elora or Fergus who might happen along. And when you realize that the amusement centres of the world are raked annually for attractions to fill this biggest Grand Stand on the continent, nightly, you realise why August 28th to September 13th are the dates on which Canadians can see more things and get more for their money than any other holiday of this season.

SULTAN'S MEALS GROTESQUE.

His Kitchen Built In What Was Virtually a Safe Deposit Vault.

Abdul Hamid, the deposed Sultan of Turkey, has not been without a generous side. For instance, his jester received a rich reward for his services in inventing a new kind of torture, which consisted in putting gradual pressure on certain soft portions of the body and increasing it until the victim confessed or swooned with pain. Another favorite torture in the inquisition at Yildiz was to place boiling hot eggs into the armpits of the victim and to pinion the hands by his sides. This torture, it is said, inflicted such a shock to the nervous organism that the victim rarely escaped with his reason.

The Sultan's meals were as grotesque as if designed by a comic opera writer. He had his own private kitchen, built in what was virtually a safe-deposit vault.

Everything was prepared under the personal supervision of an officer of the household who at the time was held in less suspicion than the others. The meals were sent up to the dining apartment covered with a black cloth, sealed by the royal seal. It was the equivalent of high treason for any subject to break those seals, except at the order of the Sultan, and in his presence.

Notwithstanding all these precautions, Abdul often refused to taste a dish until it had been "tried on the dog." Usually the dog was an officer of the household or an attendant.

"No, thank you, I have already dined," or, "I really don't care for any," never was heard on such an occasion. The attendant took his medicine rather than to have it forced down his throat after it had been tested in the Sultan's private laboratory.

No one was free from suspicion. Every unexpected incident threw the Sultan into a panic. Akef Pasha, president of the Council of State, was talking with Abdul Hamid one day when, perceiving that a window was open, the Minister rose suddenly to close it.

Before he could take a step the Sultan had his hand on one of his revolvers.

The Prince of Samos, in withdrawing from the royal presence, tripped on a rug and threw himself forward violently to recover his equilibrium. In an instant the ruler of the two continents and the two seas was behind the friendly shelter of a screen with a revolver ready for action.

Anatomy for Beginners.

Some time ago a junior reporter got "fired" out of one of the London newspaper offices, and as he could not get another crib he made up his mind to become a doctor. Here is an extract from one of the anatomical essays of the budding sawbones:

"Proceeding in a southerly direction from the torso we have the hips, useful for padding, and the legs. The legs hold up the body, and are sometimes used in walking, but when riding in motor-cars they take up valuable space which otherwise might be employed to better advantage.

"Attached to the legs are the feet. Some varieties of feet are cold. Some people are born with cold feet, others acquire cold feet, and still others have cold feet thrust upon them.

"The surface of the body is covered with cuticle, which either hangs in graceful loops or is stretched tightly from bone to bone.

"On the face it is known as the complexion, and is used extensively for commercial purposes by dermatologists, painters, and decorators.

"Between the cuticle and the bones are the muscles, which hold the bones together and prevent them from falling out and littering up the pavements as we walk along.

"Packed neatly and yet compactly inside the body are the heart, the liver, and the lungs; also the gall, which in Fleet street is abnormally large.

"These organs are used occasionally by the people who own them, but their real purpose is to furnish surgeons a living."

German Red Tape.

A Danzig, Germany, paper tells a story of incredible red tapeism witnessed in that city. A fire broke out at a big sugar factory, and great damage was done in a few minutes. The flames were rapidly spreading, but it was hoped that the storehouse containing 13,000 casks of raw sugar, each holding a hundredweight, might be saved, and all efforts of the fire brigade were turned to that quarter. Here, however, several custom house officers suddenly appeared and forbade the firemen to enter the warehouse on the ground that the duties had into yet been regulated. Despite energetic opposition the officers stuck to their principles, and the whole stuff was consumed by the flames.

The Very Highest.

"What is the highest form of animal life?" was a question set for the pupils in a school some time ago, and one little girl was heard to reply, "The giraffe."

A Bad Man.

Sherman Whitaker wrote a story of the Tehuantepec rubber plantation. Guadaloupe, the mandador on one plantation at which Mr. Whitaker stayed, was informed that he was to be one of the characters in his story. "He never failed to question me each day as to the things I had made him do—in the story," said Mr. Whitaker. "When one morning I informed him that I had killed him off, he expressed great surprise.

"'Porque, senor, porque?'

"'Because you are a bad man, Guadaloupe.' Which was perfectly true.

"'I, senor?' he questioned, greatly surprised.

"'Si, Guadeloupe, you are bad. Think of how many men you have killed, according to your own count.'

"He thought for awhile, then looked up with a humorous smile. 'Oh, well! Did I put up a good fight?'

"'You bet you did, Guadaloupe.'

"Whereupon eyebrows and shoulders went up in a shrug. 'Buenos! Buenos! Then it all right.'"—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

The Colleges of Oxford.

Each college is built round a quadrangle with a large outrance gateway which often rises into a quasi tower. The rooms immediately over the gateway are invariably designed for the residence of the warden, provost or principal of the college, so that the eye of the master may be over all who enter or leave the place. This mode of building still exists in India, having been introduced into Europe by the Moors when they conquered Spain, where we find that the compound, or quad, is still used for the tethering of all kinds of animals. Around the quad are arranged the chapel, library, hall or refectory, president's lodgings, buttery and kitchen. The students' rooms generally occupy the upper floors. William of Wickham, the celebrated architect, wisely placed his taller buildings—the chapel and hall—on the north side to keep off the cold winds, the lower buildings on the south more freely admitting sunshine.

Rainbow Upside Down.

Not very many persons have ever seen an inverted rainbow, although the phenomenon sometimes appears. At the Italian geodynamic observatory of Rocca de Papa not long ago the director and a party of visitors were fortunate enough to see one. The morning was showery, and as the party looked down from an elevation of 2,300 feet they saw in the Campagna a perfect rainbow with its concave side up, the middle point bearing to the northeast. From the Eiffel tower in Paris one has also been seen, in this case the rainbow being double and extending above and below the horizon to form two concentric circles nearly complete. Generally the inverted rainbow is to be seen only in the mountains and then very rarely. The phenomenon, of course, is due merely to the position of the observer, which must be above the refracting agent instead of below.—Pathfinder.

An Old Ash Wednesday Custom.

At one time it was on Ash Wednesday the custom to appoint an official of the English palaces to crow the hours of the day, like a cock, as a reminder of the denial of St. Peter. This practice excited the furious indignation of George II. His ignorance of English made it very difficult for the courtiers to explain that the royal cock crower was not making fun of him. The cock crower was a salaried officer at the English court as late as 1823.

A Boy's Idea of Parsons.

Not long ago a class of boys in an elementary school had an essay set, the subject being "Clergymen."

This is what one youngster wrote: "There are 3 kinds of clergymen, Bishops, rectors and curats. the bishops tells the rectors to work, and the curats have to do it. A curat is a thin married man, but when he is a rector he gets fuller and can preach longer sermons and becums a good man."—London Scraps.

The Cause.

Irving Washington (wiping his lips) —That was really the sweetest kiss I have ever had! Louise Barkis—I thought you would think so, Irving. My face powder gave out, and I used confectioner's sugar.—Judge.

Very Gently.

"How do you tell bad eggs?" queried the young housewife.

"I never told any," replied the fresh grocery clerk, "but if I had anything to tell a bad egg I'd break it gently."—Christian Guardian.

Offer Of $50,000 For Burleigh Falls Power Is Laughed At

Mr. McLaughlin and Mr. J. A. Culverwell Meet Committee of Whole Council—Former Thinks City's Proposition is a Humourous "Feeler"—Mr. McLaughlin's Explanation.

QUESTION NOT SETTLED YET

Mr. R. J. McLaughlin, K.C., made another effort to impress upon the Council that the city should not let Burleigh Falls Power slip through their hands, and particularly he endeavoured to prove to the satisfaction of the committee that $125,000 is not too heavy a demand. The representatives of the Central Ontario Power Co. laughed at the city's offer of $50,000, saying that some of the aldermen must have a delicate view of humour in their dispositions. He likewise scorned the city's proposal to erect a plant and contract to sell the power to Peterborough at $7.60 per h.p. The city itself could develop Burleigh at this price, but no private company could consider it at less than $10 or even $12.00 per h.p.

After a lengthy address and some deliberation on the part of the Aldermen it was decided to leave the question with the Power Committee.

Ald. McIntyre, the chairman, stated that unless the Company reduced the $125,000 he did not think he would call the Power Committee together.

The general opinion of the Aldermen is that the Company's price is verging on the exhorbitant. They believe Burleigh Power to be a splendid investment and are preparing information, but the feeling against $125,000 is rather strong. Mr. McLaughlin stated that if Peterborough did not buy the power the Company would likely develop it themselves, and would no doubt find a market in this city, and the price would be far greater than that at which Peterborough could develop the power itself.

A Decided Advantage.

He referred to what other cities and towns in Western Ontario are doing. He submitted a copy of the contract which Guelph has signed for 2500 h.p. at $24 per h.p. undistributed for a long term of years. This city by purchasing Burleigh Falls will have a great deal more power for very much less money, in fact about one-third the cost.

It would be an advantage even if developed by a company and sold here at $20 per h.p.. But would it not be a great thing for the city if it could offer power at $10 or $12 a h.p. as they could if they developed Burleigh themselves? It would throw something in the balance which no city in the province could secure, and would be the strongest possible asset in the securing of new and reliable industries.

Alderman Turner said that he concurred in much that Mr. McLaughlin had said. First, he agreed that the city must have an asset which would enable us to compete most favourably with any other city. The price of $125,000 is a little high, but whether that can be brought down or not this is an asset the city cannot afford to turn down. Cheap power would attract factories even where bonuses would not, and bonuses were bad.

After considerable discussion Alderman Buller moved that the whole matter be left in the hands of the Power Committee. This was seconded by Alderman Duffus.

Alderman Buller said he would never vote for the city paying $125,000 for Burleigh Falls. It was too much money.

Presentation To Mrs. W. J. Scott On Her Departure From City

Was Presented With a Dinner Set of Limoges China and an Appropriate Address at a Farewell Social Last Night.

LEAVING FOR CHICAGO

A very pleasant event took place yesterday, when the ladies of St. Luke's Women's Auxiliary were entertained at tea by Mrs. L. Turner. The occasion was a farewell social to Mrs. W. J. Scott, who with her family is shortly to leave for Chicago. A large table was laid with about 35 covers on the spacious lawn of the Courthouse, and the guests were royally entertained by Mrs. Turner, who proved to be a most attentive host. After ample justice had been done to the splendid repast, Rev. Dr. Langfeldt addressed the ladies, reminding them of the nature of the gathering and expressing his great regret at the forthcoming leaving of Mrs. Scott and her family. Dr. Langfeldt read the following address to her:

St. Luke, the Evangelist,
Peterborough, July 16, 1909.

Mrs. W. J. Scott:

Dear Mrs. Scott,—On the eve of your departure from our Parish to Chicago, we desire to express to you in some tangible manner our great regret at the impending separation. For many years you have been identified with the most active work of the Church, and in the carrying out of the Church's policy you have taken a leading and foremost part.

Whenever the opportunity for work presented itself, whenever a leader was wanted, we could always depend upon you for faithful work. Ever loyal, and sympathetic with the interests of the Parish, you possessed the entire confidence of the Rector and Presidents of the Organizations with which you were connected. As President of the Women's Auxiliary, as Superintendent of the Mission Band, as Sunday School Teacher, you evinced qualities of heart and mind which are most commendable.

We part with you with feelings of affectionate regret, we realize that your place will be difficult to fill. And since your daughters have so actively assisted the work of the Church in many capacities, the loss is doubly regrettable.

As we place on record our sincere apreciation of all you have done for us, and as we realize the sorrow of the separation before us, we desire to give you some affectionate proof of the sincerity of our sentiments, and ask you to accept the accompanying gift as a mark of our earnest esteem for you and yours, and of the grateful acknowledgment of your faithful work.

May you be long spared to continue to render such faithful service to your Master and His Church, wherever you are, as you have done here, and may the Lord watch between you and us, while we are absent one from another.

On behalf of the Organizations of St. Luke's Church.

A. E. LANGFELDT, M.A., Ph.D.
Rector.

E. GASKINS,
President of W. A.

The address was accompanied by a dinner set of Limoges china, presented by Mrs. Scott's many friends in St. Luke's. The formal presentation was made by Mrs. L. Gaskins, President of the W. A. Mrs. Scott felt very keenly the approaching separation, and appreciated the kindness of her friends.

The rest of the evening was spent in friendly intercourse, everyone regretting the loss of a true co-worker in the cause of Christ.

One Of Best Programmes Of Season Given By 57th Band

The weekly concert of the 57th Regimental Band in Victoria Park last night was one of the most enjoyable of the season from an artistic point of view and the grand programme rendered by the band was thoroughly appreciated. Mr. Gliddon's organization has rarely been in better form and their numbers were applauded in a manner that showed the delight of the large audience. The programme opened with the stirring march "Semper Fidelis," played with a swing that made it irresistible. Von Suppe's overture, "Morning, Noon and Night in Vienna," a standard number that gave the band an opportunity to show what it could do with a heavier style of music was superbly presented. The catchy intermezzo novellette "Iola" made a decided hit.

Band Sergeant Hughes was heard to great advantage in the cornet solo, "Sing Me to Sleep," loud applause from all parts of the park following his effort and he had to respond with an encore. The selection, "Reminiscences of the Plantation," a compilation of well-known Southern airs, charmingly interwoven and providing splendid opportunity for solo work, gave the members individually and collectively a splendid opening of which they took the fullest advantage and the number was one of the most enjoyable of the evening.

Remick's Hits No. 5, including "Shine On, Harvest Moon," "When I Marry You," "I Want Some One to Call Me Dearie," and other new song successes was well received and an encore demanded. "Reminiscences of England," a Godfrey arrangement, comprising a number of favourite old English melodies brought a captivating programme to a close.

Some Little Known Facts About The Despised Hen

The following letter appeared in the Toronto World recently:

For the last few warm summer days I have been perusing your articles on The Hen with much interest as a retired farmer. Now the way to stop a hen from laying on Sunday is to get it stuffed on Saturday night, because this question of which kind of hen, Black Spanish, Wyandotte, Plymouth Rock, etc., lays the longest must be settled. This has been done. The hen that lays the longest (see Report XXIII. Ontario Agricultural College, 1908) is a dead hen. A queer scientific fact is that hens never lay eggs at night, but this is accounted for because then they are all roosters.

The question in this connection has been often asked why a hen lays an egg, but it has been found that on account of the extension of the labour unions she's not allowed to lay brick. Of course in these deep questions of physiology and during the warm July days these facts must be based on truth, but the difference between truth and the hen's eggs is that "Truth crushed to earth will rise again," the eggs won't.

I pity you, City of Toronto fellows, who have to sit up nights thinking over this hen and egg question, but I don't blame you because from the kind of eggs I've been forced to buy for my family since living here with you. I can easily see the reason. Mind you, I don't say anything so special against the Toronto eggs, but the hens that laid them certainly should be put in the hospital.

One of the always interesting questions anent the hen, above referred to, is the one determining the paternity of the chickens hatched out by one hen from another's eggs. Who is the mother of the chicks?—The hen who laid the eggs or the hen who hatched them out? It certainly looks as if the latter had not hatched them out there'd be no progeny, no chickens born, but others have determined that the said hen is only, as it were, hired out as wet nurse. However, for instance, say I go down to the market and get a dozen duck eggs and the hen hatched them out? Now is she the mother of those ducks? Did you ever see a hen lay ducks?

All of which prompts me to end my letter by remarking that lots of Toronto eggs are not what they're cracked up to be!

Thorah.

Dearth Of Farm Labourers Is Again Felt By The Farmers

Mr. Geo. H. Howson stated this morning that fifty farm labourers were needed at present to meet the demand of the farmers of this district. If anything the condition is worse than last year.

There are few immigrants coming out and the class of idlers who are to be picked up on the street do not meet with the approval of the farmers. The hay season is now on and farm work will begin to assume large proportions in a few weeks. Just what will be done to relieve the situation is not known at present. A similar condition is reported generally.

MANY LOSE JOBS IN TURKISH SERVICE

Young Turks Dismiss Government Employees by Wholesale—Ten Doing Work of One.

Constantinople, July 16. — Turkish newspapers announce that the number of officers and officials, who will be dismissed or retired on a pension by the retrenchment scheme of the new Government, amounts to 27,000. Although this figure is incredibly large, it will be found little over the mark if it is taken to include those hundred and one hangers-on at Turkish Ministries who have in the past been able to make a living out of pickings and who will now have to find other fields for their talents; while the domestics and henchmen of the late Sultan are a little army in themselves.

Of late years the monthly pay-list of the Treasury had swollen to nearly £200,000. All departments of the State were excessively over-manned, and, although most officials received only a bare pittance, the higher officials received salaries out of all proportion to their work. As there was no age limit, officials, unless the victims of intrigues, remained at their posts till they dropped off like fruit left hanging. Even those, however, who succumbed to intrigues were usually appointed to some sinecure if they enjoyed any protection at the palace.

There was a lot of method in this system. If these old officials were overpaid, as heads of their families, they supported crowds of junior male relations who, as minor officials, were underpaid. In all departments there were at least three and four men to do the work of one; but in many cases ten and more officials were employed where there was barely work for one. Thus at the Ministry of Public Works there were nearly a thousand clerks, where a hundred would have been amply sufficient. So great was the over-crowding that there was never room for all to be present at the same time; the clerks therefore used to divide into batches which relieved other weekly.

The pruning knife of the Young Turks is now being applied mercilessly to all these administrations, with the result that there will be not merely much discontent, but also much misery. It is proposed that each man shall be indemnified according to his years of service, but permanent provision is only made for employees of over thirty years' service.
